MANY JEWS LOST LIVES

In Fierce Outbreak Which Occurred at Bialystok, Russia.

The Number Wounded Will Probably Never be Known.

Bialystok, Russia, June 15.—So far as can be ascertained thirty Jews were killed during yesterday's outbreak here. The hospitals are filled with wounded, but it is impossible to ascertain the correct number of casualties, as many of the injured are hidden in private houses. All the Jewish shops on the four principal streets were sacked. Military and police patrols now guard the streets, and no civilians are allowed to leave their houses. A sort of armed truce has been established pending the complete restoration of order.

Bialystok, June 15.—When the Associated Press correspondent arrived here at 4 o'clock this morning, the city was in possession of the soldiers belonging to the Vladimir regiment. The streets and railroad stations were occupied by military detachments and entrance into the town was prohibited. The population was greatly excited and the Jews were terror stricken, but there was no resumption of the killing of Jews up to noon. According to the information obtainable, the attacks on the Jews were provoked by the throwing of a bomb into a religious procession, that of Corpus Christi, yesterday, seriously wounding a priest, Father Fedaroff, who was at the head of the procession and several of his assistants. This aroused the Christian population and although the perpetrators of the outrage were unknown, the responsibility was promptly placed on the Jews. A mob was soon formed and for several hours ravaged the Jewish quarter, pillaging the shops and hunting down and beating their occupants. About twenty persons were killed and eighty were wounded. For hours the bodies of the dead and injured lay uncared for in the streets. The Jews concealed themselves in cellars and attics in order to escape the fury of the mob, and many fled from the city.

The governor is taking all measures necessary to calm the population.

Bialystok, Russia, June 15.—A Jewish anarchist threw a bomb among the Corpus Christi procession which was in progress here yesterday and killed or wounded many persons. In consequence the Christians attacked and massacred the Jews, and demolished their shops. Hundreds of persons were killed or wounded.

The bomb was thrown from the balcony of a house in Alexandrov street. A Russian clergyman named Fedoroff was among those killed by the explosion.

Immediately after the explosion Jews began to fire with revolvers from the windows of the house into the crowd. Soldiers surrounded the house and fired two volleys into the windows. Meanwhile the enraged Christians attacked the Jewish stores in Alexandrov and Suras streets, demolishing the fixtures and windows and throwing the goods into the gutters and beating and murdering the Jews. A crowd of Jews fled to the railroad station, pursued by a mob, which killed many of them there. Three Jews were thrown from second story windows of the railroad station building.

The Jews are fleeing from Bialystok to the neighboring forests, and mobs are pursuing them. Detachments of dragoons have been sent out to protect the Jews.

Jews arriving here on railroad trains have been dragged out of the cars, and many of them have been murdered. Troops have cleared the railway station.

OFFICERS WERE BADLY CLUBBED

Authentic Report on Arrest of Americans at Colon Recently.

Washington, June 15.—Interesting details have been received here from an authentic source regarding the affair at Colon, Panama, on the night of the first of June, in which United States officers were attacked and beaten by Panama policemen. A party of officers from the United States ship Columbia, including Ensign Smith and Midshipman Low of the navy, and Lieutenants Edward P. Dieter, C. M. Lutz and A. N. Brunzell of the marine corps, were ashore from the Columbia on leave. During the evening Lieutenants Dieter and Lutz got to skylarking about a swagger in Dieter's walk. Policemen appeared and put the four officers under arrest. They went quietly to the station house. While there, Ensign Smith, to let the police know who they were, and to ask for an explanation of their arrests, touched on the shoulder a man in civilian dress, who turned out to be the chief of police. Instantly a policeman behind Smith struck him on the head with a club. Lieutenants Lutz and Dieter, who were seated on a bench, arose to protest against the assault on their brother officer, whereupon the police set on them. Ensign Smith and Lieut. Dieter received a severe clubbing. The four officers were locked up. Medical attention was denied the officers, and they were kept in custody until about 4 o'clock in the morning, when the American vice consul secured their release on $400 cash bail. The men were so badly injured that they had to be taken to the canal hospital for treatment. In a subsequent hearing in the police court, the men were released without bail, and the matter dropped. The authorities of Panama expressed regret, and the incident was closed.

MEMORY OF BOONE

Honored by Kentuckians in "Home Coming" Jubilee.

Statue to the Pioneer Unveiled on Wooded Hill.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—As yesterday was given over by the "home coming" jubilee to the memory of Stephen C. Foster, so today was for the greater part devoted to Daniel Boone.

The great floral parade postponed Wednesday because of the rain, filled the streets of the business section of the city today. There were eight divisions of the parade.

Many of the vehicles in the procession were beautifully decorated with paper flowers, and the parade made a handsome spectacle, as it wound through the crowded streets.

The glorification of Daniel Boone came later in the day in Cherokee park. There was a reunion of the descendants of Daniel Boone in the park pavilion, about a dozen lineal descendants of the pioneer being present.

An hour later the statue of Boone, modeled by Miss Enid Yandell of this city, and presented to Louisville by C. C. Bicknell, was unveiled. The statue stands half way up a densely wooded knoll.

Breckenridge Castleman of Louisville made the presentation address for Mr. Bicknell. Col R. L. Durett accepted it on behalf of the park commissioners. The statue was unveiled by Miss Helen Stewart of this city. Former Vice President Stevenson was the orator of the day.

Following the ceremonies at the Boone statue, a reproduction of one of the many stirring events in the life of Boone was given in another part of the park. A stronghold, situated upon the summit of a small elevation, and called "Fort Boonesborough," was attacked by hordes of savages, who were on the point of overpowering and annihilating the garrison, when a swarm of pioneers, led by Boone in person, arrived in time to drive away the Indians and save the fort and its inmates. The spectacle was given in a vivid and realistic manner, and evoked the cheers of the thousands of people who gathered to witness it.

Open air dancing finished the day in the park, the program being limited to the reels and dances in vogue a century ago.

Tonight a ball, for which elaborate preparations have been made, will be held. Twenty thousand invitations have been issued.

COMPROMISE SETTLEMENT

In the Insurance Tangle at San Francisco is Suggested.

Oakland, Cal., June 15.—The Examiner today says: The thirty-two insurance companies who wish to settle losses in the San Francisco fire on a dollar-for-dollar basis, yesterday, at a meeting in Reed's hall, suggested to the other companies who seek to establish a 75 per cent basis of settlement, a compromise. This is now being discussed by all insurance men in this city, for and against the 25 per cent cut.

The proposed compromise is an agreement which all companies are to sign, and which will permit a flat settlement on all losses in which it is clearly established that no earthquake damage was sustained by the property before the fire. On all property damaged by the earthquake the companies interested are to be permitted to exercise their own discretion as to the basis on which the loss is to be settled.

That compromise was proposed by the large companies that are holding out for a full settlement of the losses. It was made to save the day and keep the other companies from bolting the bureau and establishing a bureau of their own. The thirty-two companies believe that a split in the underwriters' adjusting bureau at this time would be disastrous to the insurance situation. But the cut-payment companies were not prepared to lay down their claims for a general reduction, and asked that a meeting be called in a few days, at which this matter shall be finally settled.

NO SWEARING AT WAITERS

Waitresses' Union Adopts Rules for Behavior of Restaurant Managers.

Chicago, June 15.—The members of the Waitresses' union have held an indignation meeting, at which their sentiments were crystallized unanimously in the following maxims for the benefit of the managers:

"Employers shall not use profane language to waitresses.

"Waitresses shall not be reprimanded in the presence of guests."

These two dicta were carefully typewritten and laid on the desk of the manager of every downtown restaurant where girls are employed. Accompanying them was a note to the effect that, unless employers saw fit to follow these rules, they may be confronted with strikes.

The indignation of the young women is said to have been aroused when a manager in a restaurant discharged a waitress for taking offense at a reprimand. The manager afterward apologized, it is said, but this did not appease the wrath of the young women belonging to the union.

NEW RURAL ROUTE.

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rural Route No. 2 has been ordered established on Aug. 1 at Zimmerman, Sherburne county, Minn., serving 500 people and 100 houses.

WELLMAN SATISFIED

With His Balloon But May Change Mechanical Features.

The Arctic Explorer and Party Leave France for Tromsoe.

Paris, June 15.—Walter Wellman and the remaining members of the Arctic expedition, left Paris today for Tromsoe, Norway. A crowd of people, including Ambassador McCormick, saw the party off.

M. Foville, dean of the aeronauts and president of the Society of Aerial Navigation, presented Mr. Wellman with an address of congratulation on the thoroughness of his preparations. The mammoth airship and its appliances, totaling fifty tons in weight, occupied a special freight train.

Previous to his departure, Mr. Wellman said:

"We are fairly well satisfied with the airship, and feel sure the balloon features are the finest constructed, but in the mechanical features the constructor has not been so fortunate. His work is good, but not perfect, requiring slight changes at Spitzbergen, where we shall complete the machine. I still have faith in the success of the machinery, though strikes and the short time available prevented its being made perfect."

The crowd cheered, and bouquets were presented to the members of the expedition as the train drew out of the station.

MYSTERY IN MAN'S DEATH

Picked Up on St. Paul's Streets and Dies Shortly.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mystery surrounds the sudden death of A. C. Tairter, aged 25 years, of 428 South Wabasha street, who was picked up unconscious by a policeman in North Minneapolis early this morning, and died en route to the Minneapolis city hospital in an ambulance.

Tairter was found lying on the street in a stupor at 7 o'clock. Efforts of the police to arouse him were fruitless, and the hospital ambulance was summoned. He was still breathing when it arrived, but was dead before the hospital was reached. The cause of death had not been definitely established this morning. When found he had $8 in his pocketbook in his clothes. His relatives live at Jordan, Minn.

SENTENCE COMMUTED.

Washington, June 15.—President Roosevelt has commuted the sentence of First Lieut. Lancer Cravens, of the artillery corps, who was sentenced to dismissal by a court martial for duplication of pay accounts. Upon the recommendation of the secretary of war, the president changed the sentence to reduction to the foot of the list of first lieutenants of the artillery corps.

WORKED YEARS FOR STATEHOOD

PLEASANT PORTER,
Chief of the Civilized Tribe of Creek Indians, Who First Suggested Statehood in 1889.

THE COMMITTEE TO "STAND PAT"

On Meat Amendment to Which the President Objects.

Washington, June 15.—An informal conference of the members of the house committee on Agriculture, whose votes authorized the report on the substitute meat inspection bill to which the president objects, was begun today. It is understood that the president's objections will first be considered in detail by the members favoring the substitute in an informal manner before committee action will be attempted. Minutes of the informal session will be made by an official stenographer.

Chairman Wadsworth, of the house committee on agriculture, says he shall make no statement whatever regarding the president's criticism of the meat inspection amendment.

Other members of the committee who attended the informal conference today say the committee will "stand pat" on the substitute. After the conference with members of his committee who voted for the substitute, Mr. Wadsworth discussed the matter with Speaker Cannon.

It is pointed out by Representatives Adams (Wis.), Brooks (Colo.), and Lorimer (Ill.), members of the committee, that the lack of night inspection to which the president calls attention as being a fault of the substitute, is provided for in two paragraphs of the substitute bill. In one place, the language is: "Such inspectors shall have access at all times to every part of said establishment." In another, referring to the inspection to be made, the language is: "During the night time as well as during the day time, when the slaughtering of said cattle, sheep, swine and goats, or the preparation of said food products is conducted during the night time."

CHAIRMANSHIP FOR BENSON.

Washington, June 15.—The senate today provided a chairmanship for Senator Benson of Kansas, by recreating the committee on the examination and disposition of documents.

MANY WILL LOSE JOBS

Fat Offices Will be Abolished in Indian Territory.

When the Statehood Bill is Passed by Congress.

Muskogee, I. T., June 15.—The greatest disturbance that will occur in official life in Indian Territory following the passage of the statehood bill will be in the federal courts. Indian Territory finally will comprise one federal district, and there will be but one set of federal officers, where there are now four.

There are in each of the four federal districts two judges, each drawing a salary of $5,000 a year. In each district there is a United States marshal, drawing $4,000 a year, who has an average of thirty officers and field deputies, each of the deputies drawing salaries of $1,500 a year. For each district there is a clerk, receiving $4,000 a year, and each clerk has from four to six office deputies, and five each in recording towns, making about forty in all, who draw from $1,200 to $1,800. Four district attorneys draw $4,000 a year, and ten assistants from $1,200 to $2,000, while twenty-six commissioners receive $1,500 a year.

Guthrie, O. T., June 15.—The struggle for statehood in the twin territories has been going on for seventeen years. It was originated in Muskogee in 1889, in a meeting addressed by Pleasant Porter, chief of the Creek Indians, and several senators and congressmen from adjoining states. At that time Indian Territory included all of Oklahoma. Eight years ago the people of Indian Territory and Oklahoma gathered at a meeting at South McAlester, and asked for statehood legislation and the removal of restrictions. The strenuous campaign for statehood began three years ago, at a convention at Shawnee, where a joint statehood meeting, attend by delegates from both territories, was held. At that meeting it was decided for the first time to send statehood boomers to Washington. Each year since that time, statehood conventions have deen held. Boomers have bombarded the halls of congress, and until last night the people of Oklahoma have seen their hopes dashed to the ground by adverse lesigslation or never-ending delays.

GIVES WIFE $5,000 TO OBTAIN HIS LIBERTY.

New York, June 15.—In order to obtain his liberty, August Weider, a journeyman baker, who was arrested early Tuesday morning in the negro quarter of Williamsburg with more than $17,000 in his possession, agreed in the Lee avenue police court to give his wife $5,000.

The woman, with her 14-year-old daughter, Annie, lives in scantily furnished rooms in a tenement house at 273 East Tenth street, Manhattan.

Mrs. Wieder was inclined to prosecute her husband on a charge of abandonment. She nearly collapsed when she received the $5,000. She decided to place it in a savings bank.

TO PLEASE PACKERS

President Intimates the House Meat Amendment is Drawn.

It Minimizes the Chances of Rooting Out the Evils.

Washington, June 15.—Secretary Loeb today gave out the following summary of the letter President Roosevelt wrote Chairman Wadsworth of the house committee on agriculture, disapproving of that committee's substitute bill regarding the inspection of meat products:

"In the letter to Mr. Wadsworth, the president stated that almost every change in the proposed house amendment was a change for the worse, as compared with the senate amendment, and that no matter how unintentional, it was, in the president's judgment, so framed as to minimize the chance of rooting out the evils in the packing business; that the president felt it would doubtless suit these packers, who objected to a thorough going inspection, but that he also felt it would in the long run be a heavy blow to the honest stock raiser and the honest packer; that the proposed amendment would gravely hamper the secretary of agriculture in doing the work appointed him to do, and would simply defer the day when we could restore the foreign and interstate trade on the meat to a satisfactory position. The president has explained verbally that he is far less concerned with the question as to whether the packers or the government should pay for the inspection, than with certain other features in the bill."

EMPIRE INCIDENT IS NOW CLOSED

Steamer Can Now Sail at Will Without Danger of Interference.

Washington, June 15.—The steamer Empire incident is closed, as far as the United States navy is concerned, and although the United States cruiser Marblehead and the Empire are both still at Corinto, Nicaragua, the Empire may sail without interference from the cruiser.

Commander Mulligan was unable to get north from Panama soon enough to prevent the Empire from landing men and arms and ammunition at San Jose, Guatemala. Consequently, when he found the Empire back at Corinto, Nicaragua, without arms and ammunition, he was instructed not to take any action, because the statute under which he was acting does not provide for the punishment of any offense against neutrality laws, but only for the prevention of violations of neutrality. Advices of M. Munoz, the Guatemalan minister, indicate that the revolution is now over.

FLORIDA WANTS HER SWAMPS DRAINED.

Washington, June 15.—Senator Gallinger does not believe in diverting the irrigation fund so as to utilize it for drainage purposes, and said so today when Senator Mallory attempted to get the senate to act on a resolution authorizing a survey of the Florida everglades, with the end in view of determining the practicability of draining them and converting them into farming lands. He referred to Senator Hansbrough's bill for the drainage of a million acres of overflowed land in North Dakota and also to other projects, saying that there are many swamp lands in the New England states, and adding, "if the country is going to get into that kind of game, we want to get into it."

Senator Tillman concurred and said: "If this kind of cake is to be served out, I will want my piece."

Senators Stone and Hansbrough defended the policy. The resolution was ultimately sent to the calendar.

THE EDITORS TO MEET NEXT AT JAMESTOWN.

Indianapolis, June 15.—The National Editorial association will hold its next convention at Jamestown, Va. It was decided at the concluding session today. Delegates from St. Paul made a vigorous effort to have the next gathering held in St. Paul. All the St. Paul and Minnesota delegates wore red ribbons, bearing the inscription, "I'm for St. Paul."

ELECTED TO COMMONS.

Fulton, N. Y., June 15.—Joseph Leroy, Richard Hinch and Lewis Holden of this place, lost their lives today in a fire at the Allen Excelsior and Butter Tub works.

BRYAN IS BESEECHED

By Russians for His Views on Outcome of Parliament.

Nebraskan Declines to Make Statement on Russian Situation.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—William J. Bryan sailed for Stockholm this afternoon. He devoted the last day of his stay in St. Petersburg to a call on Premier Goremykin, with whom he had an hour's talk, and to another visit to the lower house of parliament, where he remained throughout the morning session. For a time Mr. Bryan was the center of attraction in the lobby of the house, holding a regular reception of members of parliament, who were anxious to be presented. Deputations of Jews and Poles wanted him to define his attitude on questions affecting them, and he was besieged by foreign and Russian correspondents anxious to secure his views on the outcome of the parliament struggle here. But beyond an expression of profound interest in the fight the Russian people were making for liberty, and the deep impression made upon him by the Russian parliament, Mr. Bryan declined to make a statement.

Lincoln, Neb., June 15.—William J. Bryan, Jr., returned to his home today, after traveling over a greater part of the world with his parents and sister. He stated the rest of the trip would have been a duplication of the journey taken by himself and his father some time ago, and that he preferred to return to this country, visit his married sister in Denver for a while, and then prepare for entrance to a military academy in Indiana. Young Bryan expects to enter the United States navy after completing his academic career.

DEMONSTRATION FOR A. L. COLE

People of Walker Hold Big Celebration in His Honor.

Walker, Minn., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walker and Cass county in general had a great demonstration last night in honor of the nomination of A. L. Cole of this city as governor. Flags throughout the county were flying, and at Walker the victory was appropriately celebrated. An immense bonfire on the hill back of the town, consuming pine logs saturated with oil, illuminated the country for miles around, and called the people in the rural districts to Walker to participate in the festivities. Speeches were made by prominent citizens and state notables who were stopping in town, and the occasion was made a memorable one for Walker. A barbecue was one feature of the program.

AMONG SUFFERERS.

Committeeman Would Distribute Remaining $6,000,000 in Frisco Relief Fund.

San Francisco, June 15.—W. J. Bartnett, vice president of the Western Pacific railroad, and member of the committee sent by the committee of forty to Washington, to appeal to congress for the loan necessary to rebuild San Francisco, has offered a plan for the expenditure of $6,000,000 remaining in the relief fund. He suggests in a letter to ex-Mayor Phelan, distributing it among the sufferers.

Bartnett, who does not favor loaning this entire fund for building purposes, believes that the money should be used to buy furniture for the refugees and for the relief of sufferers, as it was intended to, by the people who contributed it. He argues that the distributing of these funds will have a stimulating effect on the community and result in establishing many in business, relieving pressure on savings banks, and helping the general mercantile community and thereby the commercial banks.

WILL END STRIKE IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Fort Worth, Ark., June 15.—The tellers completed the count here today of the referendum vote on the Kansas City agreement, reported last week between the soft coal operators and miners of the Southwest. The agreement, affecting Arkansas, Indian Territory and Missouri, was carried by 1,400, a majority of about two thirds. The Kansas miners had previously favored the agreement. This, therefore, ends the strike in the Southwest, and the miners are expected to return to work on next Monday.

MINISTER MUST STAY OUT.

New York, June 15.—The synod of the Reformed church in America last night dismissed the appeal of Rev. Spitzka Koster of Hull, Iowa, for a rehearing of his case, and he stands suspended from the ministry. The accused minister made a personal plea to be restored to the church. After the case had been thoroughly discussed, a vote was taken, and it resulted 64 to 29 against Mr. Koster. The minister was accused of trickery in a horse deal.

MINES CLOSE DOWN.

Pittsburg, June 15.—The mines of the Cornell, Creighton, McFetridge & McKean Coal companies in the neighborhood of Tarentum, Pa., closed down today on account of the refusal of the operators to pay the Pittsburg scale. Pickets have been stationed about the mines but no trouble is expected. About 1,000 men are idle.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Deckhand Strikes Head on Dock and Falls Into Water.

Edward Moret, employed as a deckhand on the ferry "Ideal," had a very narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon, while landing at the Fifth avenue dock.

He was about to jump for the dock to place the rope around the pile, when he missed his footing and fell, striking his forehead against the dock. He was rendered unconscious by the blow and fell into the water between the boat and the dock. The captain saw the accident and with the engineer, ran to his assistance. One hand was projecting above the water, and they seized this and dragged the senseless man to the deck. The bridge of his nose had been broken by the blow, but he was otherwise uninjured, and soon recovered consciousness.

AN EXAMPLE OF QUICK JUSTICE

Wilson Sent to Reformatory Shortly After Committing Theft.

Thomas Wilson, who stole a suit of clothes and about $18 from Nels Oberg, at the Nicollet hotel, early yesterday morning, pleaded guilty to a larceny charge, before Judge Dibell, yesterday afternoon, and was sent to the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Disposition of his case was made under the new law permitting a person held to the grand jury to plead guilty on information furnished by the county attorney. Wilson's case was an example of quick justice, as he was on his way to the reformatory within ifteen hours after he had committed the crime.

Charles Nolan and August Stahl, who were being held at the county jail until the grand jury meets in September, entered pleas of guilty under the same law, and received their sentences.

Stahl was sent to the county jail for thirty days for larceny, and Nolan was sent to the reformatory for burglary in the second degree. He broke into a saloon at Hibbing, and was caught in the act.

FOUND IN AN ASYLUM.

Mrs. Anderson of Superior Located Through Official Controversy.

Mrs. Sarah Anderson who disappeared from Superior some time ago and whose friends did not know of her whereabouts, has been found in the insane asylum at Rochester, Minn., through a controversy between the Minnesota and Wisconsin authorities as to which state should care for her.

The Wisconsin state board of control was notified recently that the Minnesota authorities had a patient who claimed to have resided in Superior. She had attempted suicide in St. Paul. An investigation followed, by the Wisconsin state officials, and the patient was found to be Mrs. Anderson, formerly of 520 Hughitt avenue. She kept house for N. Ommang for some time, and left Superior, claiming that she had been jilted by her employer. Her attempt at self destruction at St. Paul then followed.

Hundreds of people in Duluth have gotten acquainted within the past week—through Herald wants.

CONTRACT WILL BE CARRIED OUT

General Electric Company Will Deliver and Install New Pumps.

The contract between the city and the General Electric company for the electrically driven pumps to be installed at the Lakewood station, has been accepted by the water and light board and has been approved by City Attorney Fesler. The machinery will now be delivered as soon as possible under the contract. Anticipating the sale of the bonds the department will meet the expense of the new pumps from its funds now on hand, although no payment will be required until Feb. 1, 1907, after the pumps have been installed, tested and accepted.

Residents in the districts where water and gas extensions have been planned this season are watching with interest the result of the advertising for the sale of the $575,000 bond issue. If any bids are received they will be opened by the council July 2.

Providing there are no bids for the bonds the city will purchase $100,000 worth of them from the sinking fund and the money will be used in purchasing the Lakewood station pumps and to meet the cost of construction of the new gas holder of 500,000 cubic feet capacity. These improvements are urgent and cannot be longer delayed.

Municipal Court Jurors.

The following persons have been summoned to serve as jurors at the general term of the municipal court, beginning June 19: John McArthur, T. F. Frank, George Good, H. F. Sallyards, David B. Hood, J. ## AN AUTO EXPLODES; WOMAN IS KILLED.

Kansas City, June 15.—Mrs. C. H. Patterson, wife of the president of the Bankers' Trust company of this city, was instantly killed last night when the large automobile in which she was riding with her husband, daughter and the driver, L. A. Philips, collided with two trolley cars at Fifth and Harrison streets, causing the gasoline tank on the machine to explode.

The other occupants of the automobile escaped serious injury. The two cars met at the point where the automobile had stopped, and both cars hit the machine. An explosion followed immediately, and Mrs. Patterson apparently received the full force of it. Mr. Patterson, his daughter, Eloise, and the driver escaped with a few bruises.

The crews of both cars were arrested and taken to the police station.

BEMIDJI MEN GETTING READY

For the Races and Contests at the Firemen's Tournament.

Bemidji, Minn., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the running team of the fire department are practicing diligently every evening, perfecting themselves for the various races and contests that will be pulled off at the firemen's tournament to be held at Cass Lake next week. The boys will have practically the same team that won the championship at Blackduck last year, with the exception that Schumaker will probably not be able to participate. He is suffering with poison from poison ivy, and will be out of condition. Schumaker is one of the very best runners in the country, and with Dilloway of Eveleth holds the record of the association for the firemen's 100-yard foot race—10 1-5 seconds. However, the rest of the team will go to Cass Lake determined to do their best and they will undoubtedly return with a fair share of the prize money. The Bemidji baseball team will play at least one game at Cass Lake, on Bemidji day, Thursday, when they will be pitted against either Walker or Akeley. The firemen will give a dance in the city hall Friday evening, the proceeds of which will be used to defray the expenses of the running team to the tournament.

There are a large number of summer visitors at Bemidji to remain for several weeks. Grand Forks bay, a half mile up the shore from the city boat house, has all cottages filled, and the new townsite at the north end of the lake is rapidly being covered with substantial cottages, which will also be occupied by Grand Forks people. There are a number of others from outside points who are camped in tents about the shores of the lake, and all are having a fine time. The fishing is very good, and the weather has been ideal this week for outdoor life.

Dancing at Oatka!

Dancing parties at new pavillon every Wednesday and Saturday evenings, during month of June. Dancing begins at 8:30 p. m. Last car leaves O-at-ka at 11:40 p. m. Music by La Brosse Orchestra. Ten-minute car service.

WILL NOT SPEND CENT IN CONGRESSIONAL RACE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 15.—Congressman Hinry W. Palmer of this city has announced himself for re-election upon an anti-boodle platform. He declares that practical politicians say he can get the nomination for $6,000, which is about $40 a head for delegates, but he declares he will not spend a cent, will not make himself liable to a term in prison for bribery or perjury and that the loss of his own self-respect would be far too high a price to pay for a seat in congress.

ALLISON'S ILLNESS ALARMS HIS FRIENDS.

Washington, June 15.—Senator Allison of Iowa is again ill and while doctors do not say that his condition is serious, his friends are anxious. Mr. Allison took to his bed during the close of the debate in the senate on the rate bill, and after a week's absence appeared in his seat to propose the so-called Allison court review amendment, which was afterwards adopted. Recently he attended the funeral of Senator Gorman against the advice of his physicians and it may be that his present condition is due to that fact. At any rate, it is announced that he will not be in his seat again for several days.

His age is such that even a slight indisposition starts his friends to worrying.

PLUNDER TRAVELERS WHILE APOLOGIZING.

Paris, June 15.—Two alleged Englishmen, a Russian and a Roumanian, have been arrested at the Gare du Nord for having operated on the hunstling system and plundered a traveler from London.

It is affirmed that several travelers from England recently complained of having been robbed at the northern terminus.

Accordingly, detectives watched the arrival of the train de luxe from Calais. They kept their eyes on four men, well dressed, who were on the platform.

When the train came in one of the well dressed men, carrying a valise, started up or the platform to meet a passenger from London who had left the train.

He knocked against the passenger and impeded his progress by letting his valise fall at his feet.

While apologies were being offered and received the other thieves came along briskly and in the confusion one of them stole the passenger's pocketbook, containing bank notes.

The four were then arrested by the detectives, who had followed all their movements. The passenger from London, who recovered his pocketbook, refused to prosecute the prisoners.

A REVIVAL OF TILTING

The Old-Fashioned Joust and Tourney in British Capital.

Vicar is Not Opposed to Sunday Golf and Boating.

London, June 15.—London has just witnessed a brilliant revival in the old-fashioned joust and tourney in connection with the naval and military tournament.

In none of the displays of modern times has such an elaborate and gorgeous spectacle been attempted as the great pageant of the present tournament, "Tilting in Tudor Times." During its presentation the arena was one blaze of brilliant, moving color. First came the lord of the tournament, with his banner and heralds, the latter in their gilt-braided tunics making a brave show. After the lord president had taken his seat on the crimson-colored dais, the standards of the four competing knights were paraded, and then followed the knight marshal and his deputies, squires, pages and escorts.

The four knights, mounted and encased from head to foot in armor, riding beneath silken canopies held by attendants in gorgeous raiment, then entered, and were followed each by a number of armed men. A tour of the arena having been made, the lord of the tournament signified his pleasure that the jousting should begin.

The trumpeters sounded a fanfare and two knights from opposite ends of the lists rode at full gallop, with lances couched, to meet each other. Lances were shivered on steel breastplate or helmet amid the cheers of the adherents of the successful knight, and when the winner of the bout had been declared, the remaining knights entered the combat.

Mr. Birrell, minister for education, has just unveiled a fine alabaster bust of George Whitefield, the famous preacher, the exercises being of unusual interest.

George Whitefield's "Chapple in Tottenham Court Road," or, rather, the site on which it was established exactly a century and a half ago, is the home today of an example of the institutional church, judiciously blending religious and social life, mostly for middle-class folk and shop assistants. It was the resort of a totally different class of people when Sollna, countess of Huntingdon, won for it the interest of friends "at court." Even royalty had a few bricks in the original building, and although Whitefield was burlesqued and caricatured at the theaters, David Garrick, "superior to the vulgar prejudice of his class," sent Whitefield to pay the workmen.

Mr. Birrell, having performed the unveiling in the presence of an upstanding congregation, observed that although George Whitefield was born in a public house, the Bell inn, Gloucester, and pursued in his boyhood the somewhat unhallowed occupation of tapster, he nevertheless came of a clerical ancestry, several of his forefathers having been rectors or vicars of the established church. He suffered or enjoyed what is called an irregular education. Whitefield's temperament was always that of an orator and actor rather than of the scholar. His first London sermon was preached at Bishopsgate, in 1736. Nobody has much chance of reposing under Whitefield's sermons. There was a good story about Lord Chesterfield, who was taken to hear him by Lady Huntingdon. Whitefield described the approach of the blind man toward the precipice so vividly that Lord Chesterfield, to the surprise of the congregation, leaped to his feet with the exclamation, "Great heavens, he is going." Whitefield's mission to the rich was interesting and remarkable; but his great work lay more directly among the poor. He preached with such effect to the prisoners at Newgate that the lord mayor and sheriff forbade him ever to preach there again. Whilst in America, Benjamin Franklin went to hear him, determined to subscribe nothing to the collection. But Whitefield's oratory had great effect on the purses as well as the hearts of his hearers. Franklin was so moved that at first he resolved to give coppers, but afterwards, becoming ashamed, he emptied his pockets of copper, silver and gold.

Writing in the parish magazine, the Vicar of Thomas Ditton (the Rev. B. H. Bosanquet) alludes to the approach of the river season, and to the influence of the river and other Sunday recreations on attendance at church. He adds: "It is hard to suppose that any Christian would enjoy his golf or his boating less on Sunday—assuming that he was taking part in this without offense to his own conscience—because he had previously attended worship in God's house, or was intending to do so later in the day. There is sometimes said to be a difficulty in the matter of costume. Yet it seems to me, at any rate in a parish such as ours, the convention as to 'Sunday clothes' should not be unduly pressed. Our church wardens would, I know, be glad to reserve, as far as possible, special seats for those in boating costumes in the parish church on Sunday mornings in the southwest gallery, which is seldom filled, and seems eminently suited for such a purpose.

The new animal hospital has just been opened by the Duchess of Teck.

The dogs' ward has about twenty-five roomy and well-ventilated pens, with a large pen at each end for very big dogs, or for small dogs to take exercise in. The cat ward, close by, has ample space for a hundred ailing cats.

A gently sloping matted way leads to the first floor, where is the horse ward, with plenty of room for ten horses. Adjoining are the operating room and extensive store rooms.

On the ground floor the receiving ward for horses was pointed out. In the first stall is a strong sling with which to raise a horse which has met with an accident. Here also the horses which will draw the horse ambulance to be kept on the premises are to be stalled.

"Every year large numbers of good horses which ought not to be killed meet their fate at the hands of the knacker, because their owners are too poor to afford proper treatment," said the superintendent. "We hope to remedy that evil to a large extent.

"In the case of a deserving poor man, whose one animal is his living, if we find it necessary to keep his horse or donkey in hospital, we shall supply him temporarily with another in its place."

The donkeys' ward is a nice, bright little place, with eight comfortable stalls and eight little bridles hanging up ready for prospective patients.

Fargo—Walter S. Green of Ashland is sent here by the Ashland Advancement association to work up interest in the excursion of the North Dakota farmers to the Wisconsin town. Those who will make the trip are interested in the independent elevator lines of the state and the object is to investigate Ashland as a possible place for the location of terminal elevators. A meeting will be held in Fargo the afternoon of June 20 and the excursion leaves that evening.

ALL PARTIES ARE BLIND.

Novel Divorce Suit Filed by a Composer at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 15.—Charles W. Bailey, a blind pianist and composer, has filed a suit for divorce from Amanda F. Bailey, also sightless, naming in his petition Charles E. Reavey, a blind newsboy, as the man who disrupted his home.

Bailey met the woman who is now his wife, Jan. 18, 1895, at a concert in the Union Methodist church. They were attracted to each other through their affliction. Mrs. Bailey was Miss Burr, daughter of the late William E. Burr, president of the St. Louis National bank. The family objected to Bailey's suit, but he eluded their watchfulness and they were married.

Bailey says: "I supported my wife through my own efforts for four years, and then her family settled a small allowance upon her. This helped considerably, and we lived happily until last July, when a cloud appeared upon our marital horizon.

"We met Charles E. Reavy, and one evening when we had intended to go to a party together I was compelled to go out on business and told my wife she could go with Reavy and I would call for her later. This she did, and after that she seemed to long for Reavey's society.

"Finally she admitted to me that she cared more for Reavey than she did for me.

"I demanded that she cease receiving him at our home, to which she replied that as she had an allowance, she was not dependent upon me, and if I did not like it I could get out. This I did."

Mrs. Bailey declined to discuss the separation, which took place May 3, but said she would not contest the suit, which will be tried in Judge Fisher's division, June 27.

Reavey sells papers in the main corridor of the city hall. He said there was nothing in Bailey's allegations.

HUDSON CELEBRATION.

Plans for Honoring Memory of Henry Hudson and Robert Fulton.

New York, June 15.—Plans for the celebration of the 300th anniversary of Henry Hudson's exploration of the river which bears his name, and the 100th anniversary of the first successful navigation of that river by steam by Robert Fulton have taken tangible shape. The Hudson-Fulton celebration executive committee has decided that the celebration should take place the week beginning Sept. 20, 1909, and that, instead of a temporary "world's fair," there shall be dedicated monumental works of lasting benefit to the people.

One of these will be the Hudson memorial bridge, extending from Inwood hill to Spuyten Duyvil hill, across Spuyten Duyvil creek at its confluence with the Hudson river. It is recommended that a public park be acquired on Inwood hill, at the southern terminus of the bridge, and that suitable buildings or monuments be erected there.

LEADERS IN SHOOTING IN UNITED STATES ARMY.

Washington, June 15.—The complete records of rifle, pistol and carbine firing of the United States army for 1905, which have just been published show Abraham Hill, a sergeant in the Twenty-Fourth infantry, stationed in the department of Dakota, to be the best shot in the army. The percentage of possible shots made by him on slow fire, time fire and skirmish fire was 86:33. The three others at the head of the list after him were Capt. Rufus E. Longan, Eleventh infantry, department of Missouri, 85:1; Sergeant William A. Cantrell, Fifth infantry, 84:67; Otto S. Hahn, sergeant in Second calvary, department of Luzon, 81:67.

GERMANS AROUSED BY TAXATION LEGISLATION.

Berlin, June 15.—German newspapers are complaining bitterly of the action of the reichstag in passing the group of taxation proposals introduced by the government for meeting the recurring annual deficits, and for providing for the payment of the imperial debt. The main proposals are for an increased malt tax, a tax on cigarettes, and on railway tickets and automobiles, and further, a somewhat inadequate measure for levying death rates.

BUILDING FOOD

To Bring the Babies Around.

When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food to bring it around again.

"My little baby boy 15 months old, had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die.

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got some, and for a few days gave him just the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself, and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well.

"That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my girl came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster the boy is now, but he didn't look anything like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centres and brain. A well-fed brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body.

SELLING AT ABOUT COST

Prices on Fresh Fish Very Low at Present Time.

Melon Season Has Opened —Strawberries and Potatoes Scarce.

"We're in the fish business for the love of it at the present time," said one of the local dealers yesterday afternoon, in speaking of the present market conditons.

"At present prices there is little or no profit in fish for the wholesalers, and the market is down to rock bottom prices."

Trout are quoted this week at 7 cents a pound and pike at 10 cents. These prices are about 3 cents a pound lower than those which are asked in Chicago and the Twin Cities, and there is very little margin above what has to be paid to the fisherman and to the transportation companies, to allow for the handling of them.

The cause of the low prices is the fierce competition between the Booth company and the independent dealers.

Fish have been more plentiful during the last week, as the weather has been favorable and the fishermen have been able to get out. Last week the heavy storms compelled the men to keep to shelter, and practically no fresh fish were coming in to the market.

The melon season has opened up, and for many weeks to come both watermelons and canteloupes will be on the market, becoming gradually cheaper, as the supply becomes more plentiful.

The first car of watermelons came in this week, from Florida, and next week the famous Georgia melons will be on the market. Georgia is the principal source of supply for the watermelons.

The canteloupes which are now being received, come from old Mexico, wrapped in papers, and packed in crates. They are a fancy, early variety, and the price is as yet pretty high. Mexico will continue to be the source of supply until the California crop is ripened, and later the Arizona and Texas melons will be on the market.

Strawberries have been scarce, and rather higher, this week, and the prospects do not seem very bright for any material drop in the price. Wisconsin berries will probably be on the market next week, the supply this week coming from Illinois and Iowa. The Wisconsin crop is not very heavy this season, however, judging from the reports which have been received, and no very low prices are expected.

Other small fruits are now beginning to make their appearance. California cherries are still on the market, but are very scarce and high. The reports state that the crop was almost entirely destroyed by recent storms in that part of the country, and that the supply for shipment will be very limited.

Some sour cherries are now on the market, but they are not very plentiful as yet.

Gooseberries are also beginning to make their appearance, but they are not always to be secured ,and the supply is rather uncertain.

Pineapples are rather plentiful at the present time, coming in car load shipments direct from Florida.

The season for navels is about over, and their place is being taken by the Mediterranean sweets and the late Valencias.

Lemons are scarce, and the market is very firm, owing to the heavy demand from all parts of the country, which is steadily increasing as the weather becomes warmer.

The supply of old potatoes is nearly exhausted, and the price is firm at from 80 to 85 cents a bushel. Within another week or two it is expected that the market will be about cleaned up and the new crop will have to be relied upon to fill the demand. At present the supply of new potatoes is very limited, and the price is ruling firm at about $1.75 a bushel.

Last year, conditions were just the reverse of those existing this season. The old crop was larger than expected, and there was a surplus when the new potatoes came into the market, while this season the old crop is not sufficient to supply the demand until the new potatoes are fairly on the market.

Prices on other vegetables remain about unchanged from last week, and the supply of all lines of Southern green stuff is large. Tomatoes are becoming one of the features of the market and Texas and Mississippi are now shipping.

The fine weather has brought a big improvement in business conditions. Both the range and the city are buying freely of all kinds of specialties, and the street presents a very different scene to what it did a week or ten days ago, when the weather was keeping everybody indoors.

TAKES VISITORS SAILING.

Commander Eaton Entertains on Gunboat Fern on Lake.

During the rush and excitement of the work on the Republican state convention, the local newspapers have undoubtedly overlooked many features of entertainment provided, one of the principal of which was the part the gunboat Fern played in the entertaining of guests. On Wednesday afternoon the gunboat, manned by the naval reserves, commanded by Lieut. Commander Guy A. Eaton, took quite a crowd of visitors out, and that evening fully 1,000 visitors were taken down the north shore as far as Two Harbors. Duluth was reached on the evening trip about 3 o'clock Thursday morning.

To say that the visitors enjoyed the trip would be putting it mildly. To many of them it was a positive novelty, and together with the perfect weather, and the moon shining on the water, the affair left an impression on the visitors who took part that they are not likely to forget. It is hoped that impression enough was made to induce the legislature next winter to appropriate liberally for the Minnesota naval reserves. Commander Eaton did his best.

"He joshed the crowd so carefulee—
The unctious ruler of the state navee."

BOY DROWNED AT WINDOM.

WONDERFUL DISCOVERIES

In Egyptian Mounds Made by Dr. Grenfell and Dr. Hunt.

Cairo, June 15.—Once more Dr. Grenfell and Hunt have made valuable discoveries in the mounds of Oxyrhyncus, quite equal in importance to those which so fascinated the world of scholarship nine years ago. The Egyptian exploration fund has done wonders already, especially in reference to those so-called "Logia"—"the sayings of our Lord"—one of which at least has a strange and unique value. In 1897, out of a mass of papyri, dug out of the ruins of Oxyrhyncus, which was one of the chief early Christian centers in Egypt, and is situated some 120 miles south of Cairo, was extracted a fragment containing eight sayings of the Lord. What exactly they constituted has been much debated by scholars since. Harnack maintains that they come from the lost gospel of the Egyptians, other suggest that they are excerpts from a primitive gospel—probably written in Hebrew in the first instance; while others, again, speak of them as though they formed part of a sort of original nucleus or nothing to the Biblical lore of the world, but the one numbered five was of first rate interest and importance—a strange text in which Christ says, "Raise the stone and thou shalt find Me, cleave the wood and there am I." To these "sayings" is now added a fresh and highly interesting contribution. Amongst the newest finds of Doctors Grenfell and Hunt is a vellum leaf, 45 lines in all, from the manuscript of a lost gospel. The subject, according to the latest details, is a visit of Jesus, with desciples to the temple of Jerusalem, and an encounter with a Pharisee. The Pharisee rebukes Christ and his followers because they have omitted the necessary and proper ceremonial of purification before entering the Holy Place. Christ replies with a discourse on the difference between the external and internal purity. This, of course, is not dissimilar from the gospels of Matthew and Luke; in the new fragment there are found several words not found in the New Testament, while the writer displays a considerable familiarity with Jewish customs, and also with the topography of the temple of Jerusalem. The nature and value of the gospel from which this passage comes, however, it is not known, nor can more be said on the subject until the fresh Orrryhyncus papyri are published next year. But this is not the only valuable element in the new discoveries. There is a fragment from Pindar—a novel form of composition for the Theban bard, for it consists of odes of supplication or thanksgiving, addressed to a god, and not a pacan, such as those with which all are familiar, in honor of some athletic victor. There is also a part of a tragedy on the subject of "Hypsipyle," supposed to be by Euripides; and, strangely enough, a part of a new history of Greece has been unearthed, which, it is hoped, will throw fresh light on the Peloponnesian war. Some of the manuscripts, dating from the second or third century, belonged, it is clear, to an owner of a library, and amongst them are fragments of Sappho and Bacchylides.

AN INNOVATION IN THE LIQUOR BUSINESS.

J. J. Wall has fitted up the front part of his wholesale and retail liquor establishment as a family liquor store. This is the first store of the kind in the city, and will be welcomed by ladies and gentlemen who wish to purchase wines and liquors for home consumption, but who do not care to enter a saloon. He will carry a full line of the staple bottled goods, and also cigars in boxes. As the place is simply a retail store, and in full sight of the street, no lady need fear remark should se wish to leave an order in person. Deliveries will be made to the residences.

The Big Duluth Commences Saturday Morning a Great Sale of Suits.

Owing to the Big Duith's great increase of trade this spring, their suit stocks melted away to nothing. Needling a new, big stock for this summer's trade, they were in just the position to close out, last week, for spot cash, several hundred men's and young men's suits at a reduction of 20 to 35 per cent from early in the season's prices. The entire lot of suits, consisting of the beautiful new grays, blue serges, handsome worsteds, Scotch cheviots, beautiful cassimeres and imported black, unfinished worsteds and thibets will be placed on sale, Saturday moring, at big reductions. See prices in the Big Duluth west front window.

SHAH OF PERSIA WILL AGAIN VISIT ENGLAND.

Teheran, June 15.—The shah of Persia is to visit England as soon as the state of political affairs will permit. His majesty is returning to Persia and expects to make an extended stay on the continent.

PREPARATION.

Kansas City Star: A Kansas City clergyman of sportsmanlike tastes recently went out southeast of town to the Blue valley in the hope of getting a shot at a rattlesnake. To the man who ferried him across the stream he confided his intentions.

"You're going to do something for the ferryman, ain't you?" said the man as they reached the bank.

"Of course," reaching into his pocket for change. "How——"

"Hell!" interrupted the boatman. "A man out hunting rattlesnakes ought to have something better than money about him."

GUARDING THE SKY.

Kansas City Journal: From the publicity given in its inception, the patriotic company of German Jew financiers which is to guard the sky along the French frontier seems to be interested in hot-air ships. A wit observed more than a century ago, when eGrman philosophy was at its cloudiest, that to England had been given the sea, to France the earth, while the only element left to Germany was the air. And now Lebaudy brothers have the audacity to threaten that with their balloons!

Low Outing Rates.

The Northern Pacific railway will sell week-end tickets each week until Oct. 31st at the rate of one fare for the round trip to Walker, Bemidji, Iron River, Brule, Sturgeon Lake, and Pine City. Deerwood only $2.85 round trip. Children of half fare age, half of the above rates. Return limit on all tickets good to the following Monday. has been the selling of these

Beautiful Dress Hats

At times we were almost unable to promptly wait on all the people who have come for these hats since the first announcement of the sale.

Some have bought the second time—others have come back with friends who've bought. Altogether it's a sale of the most absorbing interest we've had for some time.

Perfectly logical, too, when the remarkable values are considered—hats in the latest and most beautiful conceptions, that are worth and usually sell at $3.00 to $5.00 for $2.69.

No two alike—Pyroxaline braid, combined with chiffon and maline and beautifully trimmed with flowers and ribbons. Black, and white and all desirable colors.

100 of these $3 and $5 hats $2.69 each.

50 Extra Fine Suit Hats, $4.95

Indeed $8 would be the ordinary price for most of them, and some might bring $10—for such materials and trimmings are seldom found in hats at less prices. Finest French flowers and all silk ribbons have been put into the making and in such way that every hat is exclusive.

Is that the kind you've been looking for? Tomorrow's price is $4.95 each.

LITTLE TOTS' WASH HATS—Some corded, some buttoned, prices all sizes, but comparatively little ones—25c, 35c to 75c.

CHILDREN'S TRIMMED HATS—All colors and showing the prettiest effects in ribbons, flowers and chiffon—50c to $3.75.

A Finishing Touch

And a proper one, as well, in

White Separate Coats

Imagine just how "right" one of these white linen and natural linen coats will be, if, when you're on a day's vacation or outing, the evening takes just a little "cool turn." Your white dress will be a trifle light without one of these.

And it's an easy matter to select a style, for there are dozens here—including Etons, 26-inch box coats, short semi-fitted and long garments—strap and braid trimmed, with collars or collarless. Some mannish models, too—chic and smart as they're made.

Come in both misses' and ladies' sizes and at prices that will give you a coat

At $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 and up.

There's Style

As well as comfort in these

White Wash Skirts

And there's more than that—as some women will discern when they want to dress for a day's outing and discover the white suit "can't be worn." Then is the time you'll appreciate the value of a white linen suit to wear with the white waists.

And there's really no good reason why anyone can't be well supplied—with such little prices as these to assist. Take these at—

$1.50 An exceptionally good skirt for so little—full circular gored with two folds at the bottom.

And $1.75 This also a full circular gored skirt, but with four rows of braid trimming around the bottom.

$2 to $5. Other Styles Show Many More Novel Ideas in Strappings and Pleatings that You'll Like.

Good News

This Will Be to Many—About

White Summer Waists

Interesting to her who likes the firm real linen sort as it is to the lady who wants a sheer soft garment.

These of real linen have tucked yokes and beautifully embroidered fronts in many designs—hardly two alike, and are worth as much as $3.50 each.

The sheer waists are of lawn, with lace yokes and lace collars, lace cuffs and lace embroidered panels—or much plainer—showing little of trimmings. Both long and short sleeves in both varieties, and a "short" price for the whole lot.

$2.25 takes your choice tomorrow.

JAP SILK WAISTS—at $2.98, that are dressy as many you'll see elsewhere priced at $4 to $5. But don't take our word for it—look and see. Some elegant effects—dozens of styles at $2.98 each.

THE STAGE

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Sunday afternoon and evening, "Why Women Sin."

"WHY WOMEN SIN."

Nellie Howland, who plays the leading feminine role in "Why Women Sin," is said to be one of the most talented women playing in melodrama today. She has had considerable stock company experience, training which all the greatest stars in the country declare to be most valuable. The other roles in this big production, which comes to the Metropolitan Sunday for two performances only, afternoon and evening, are said to be in excellent hands.

IN CRIMELESS LABRADOR.

A traveler who recently visited the coast of Labrador says that nowhere on earth are life and property held so sacred as in that little known and barren land.

A thousand miles of lonely seaboard, along which is scattered a population of some 10,000 people, about one-third of whom are white, would seem to give every opportunity for crime, says Harper's Weekly.

Yet there is no police officer of any kind, no court and no jail. Nor are they needed. The only criminal charge within fifty years was one against an Esquimaux who shot a rival in love.

In addition to the resident population, the coast is visited every summer by about 10,000 New Foundland fishermen, and while Newfoundland itself is not by any means free from criminals, none appear among the fishers, or else the example of the natives of Labrador causes them to refrain from wrongdoing while there.

About forty years ago a circuit court visited the coast every summer, but as it found nothing to do, it was abolished. Now should any serious charge be made against a man, a magistrate would be sent from Newfoundland to investigate it.

DOES A BIG BUSINESS

Minnesota Lends Money at Rate of $75,000 Weekly.

Counties, Cities, Villages and School Districts Are Borrowers.

"I believe that few citizens of Minnesota have any idea of the enormous financial transactions that the state is constantly engaged in," remarked one of the state officials who was a visitor in Duluth during the Republican state convention.

"I presume that it would surprise some of them to know that Minnesota is in the money lending business and that she is at the present time lending money through the state board of investment, at the rate of about $75,000 per week. The money loaned comes out of the permanent school and university fund of about $20,000,000, and the borrowers are cities ,towns,villages and school districts scattered over the state. The money is loaned on the bonds which must pass muster before the investment board.

"This loaning business of the state is in itself a great feature of the departmental operations and scarcely a day passes that the investment board does not meet to consider some application for a loan and pass upon the bonds offered.

"Nearly every new school district that is formed needs funds to get started with and naturally turns to the state for assistance, the money being available from the trust fund, when the bonds are approved."

Chapter 40, of the Revised Statutes of Minnesota, provides that the permanent school and university funds shall be invested in bonds of the United States, bearing not less than three per cent. interest, or in bonds of this, or any other state, or in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town, or village, bearing not less than four per cent interest. The funds may be invested in county drainage bonds bearing not less than three per cent. interest, but no investment shall be made on bonds issued to aid in the construction of a railroad.

The investment board is comprised of the state auditor, the state treasurer and the governor. The auditor acts as secretary of the board. The duty of the board is to invest all funds derived from the sale of public lands, except as otherwise provided by law.

The first of the coming month, July 1 there is payable to the state from this county, on account of loans made to towns or school districts the sum of $9,950 as principal and $5,425.14 in annual interest, making a total of $15,375.15, that must be collected and paid back to the state at that time.

RETURNS AFTER NINE YEARS

Attorney, Believed to Have Committed Suicide, Was in Manila.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 15.—Jesse George, until December, 1897, one of this city's prominet attorneys, who at that time disappeared from here as effectually as though the earth had swallowed him, and believed by some to have committed suicide and by others to have been murdered, has returned to Leavenworth. He is at the present time assistant prosecuting attorney of the city of Manila and one of the successful practicing attorneys in the Philippines.

When George disappeared from here some small boys found a box of love letters in a sealed box on the Missouri river bank. It was opened and found to contain those written by George to a young woman in Amboy, Ind., and returned to him.

George began the practice of law here early in the '90s and was quite successful. It was not until the box of love letters was found that the theory of murder was dropped and then his friends concluded he had, in a fit of melancholia, committed suicide.

The attorney, after leaving Leavenworth, made his way to Honolulu, and practiced law. When the Spanish-American war broke out he was anxious to serve in the army, so he returned to San Francisco where he enlisted in the Third United States artillery and went to the Philippine islands.

In the islands George served through the Philippine campaign with the artillery, going through to Malolos in the chase after Aguinaldo. He remained in the service until the Third was ordered home, when he took his discharge and remained in Manila.

The first employment obtained by him was when this government sought school teachers for the Manila city schools. He obtained a place and taught for several years, being promoted from time to time until he was looked upon as one of that city's most prominet educators.

He married an estimable young woman who went to the islands from Iowa, but she died a year ago, and it was for this reason the attorney returned to the United States; to bring the body of his wife back to the cemetery in her old home.

George, after tiring of his teaching career, took up the practice of law again. He was successful and the authorities in Manila, when the office of assistant prosecuting attorney became vacant, chose him for the place and he accepted. He has been very successful in this office.

A MYSTERIOUS HAND SNATCHES AWAY DEED.

London, June 15.—A curious story of a mysterious hand has just been related at Kirkham county court.

Henry Trelfall, greengrocer, was sued by James Rizby for the return of a deed or $50, its value, and $50 damages.

Both men were interested in a will and deed of settlement was drawn up and signed by eleven beneficiaries. Trelfall promised to sign the deed, and he and others met in an inn for this purpose.

A room was specially cleared for the transaction of the business and when the deed was produced Trelfall took it, went to the door and asked the landlord for a pen and ink.

A second or two later he turned round and exclaimed: "Somebody has taken the deed." No footsteps had been heard, nobody was seen in the passage, and Trelfall did not know who had taken the deed away.

Trelfall said that when he opened the door a hand appeared suddenly and snatched the deed from him. He could not say whether it was a man's or a woman's.

Eventually the parties agreed to find a practical way of settling the action.

RIFLEMEN PRACTICING

For the Coming National Match and Other Big Events.

Great Interest Being Taken in Shoot at Sea Girt.

Washington, June 15.—Riflemen are now looking toward the coming national match and other rifle and revolver matches, to be shot at Sea Girt range in September next, and throughout the country practice is going on to select the members of the team to represent the different states and territories. The states sending teams pay all their traveling expenses and subsistence at the camp, while the state of New Jersey furnishes the tentage and camp equipment, so the members of the teams have an enjoyable outing, at no personal expense except for sidetrips to Asbury Park, New York, Philadelphia or elsewhere. As there are cash prizes as high as $300 for the teams, and many individual prizes, the expert marksmen have a good time, and many win enough to pay their personal expenses, with something to spare. The matches of the National Rifle association will be held at the same time, and are open to those shooting in the national matches under the supervision of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

The national team match will be open to teams of twelve men. The army will be represented by two teams, one from the cavalry and one from the infantry, the navy, marine corps, military academy and naval academy by one team each, and the National Guard or uniformed militia by one team from each of the several states and territories, including the District of Columbia. The members of the various teams must be officers, cadets, midshipmen or enlisted men of the corps or organization which they represent, and are required to appear in the service or authorized uniform. There will be three kinds of fire, at various distances—slow fire at 200, 600, 800 and 1,000 yards, and a skirmish fire of one run. The United States service rifles and carbines, with not less than a three-pound trigger pull, will be used with service cartridges as manufactured and issued by the ordnance department, and two sighting shots and ten shots for record at each range, will be allowed. The men will fire from a standing position, at 200 yards, and prone with head toward the target at all other ranges.

The team making the highest aggregate total in the contest will receive the national trophy (authorized by act of congress), and $300 in cash. The Hilton trophy presented by the late Hon. Henry Hilton of New York, and $200 in cash will go to the team making the second highest aggregate total, and the bronze Soldier of Marathon, presented by the commander in chief on behalf of the state of New York, and $150 in cash will be given to the team making the third highest aggregate total. To the three teams making the next highest aggregate totals will be given $100, $75, and $50 respectively. A medal will be presented to each member of the winning team. One-third of the members actually firing on any prize winning team shall not be eligible to compete again as members of a contesting team for the next three consecutive competitions, the four men to be eliminated to be those who have heretofore participated in the greatest number of competitions for the national trophy. No person, who is either a principal or an alternate in any team entered in the competition for the national trophy shall be eligible to serve either as a principal or an alternate in any other team at the next yearly competition for the national trophy.

No person shall be a member of any team in the national match, or act as captain, coach, spotter or alternate of such team, who does not present a certificate from the adjutant general of the state, territory, or District of Columbia, to which he belongs; or if from a team belonging to the regular establishment, a certificate from competent authority, showing that he has done 75 per cent of military duty during the twelve months preceding the competition. By the term "military duty" above referred to is meant parades, drills, encampments and other duties of a similar nature. Each team will consist of one captain, one coach, one spotter, twelve principals and three alternates—eighteen in all—and as it is expected that each state and territory will be represented, there will be present between 900 and 1,000 marksmen, exclusive of the members of the regular army and its branches, and those merely taking part in other matches.

There will also be a national individual match open to members of the National Rifle Association of America and affiliated clubs in addition to the number of the organizations competing in the national match. The distances and order of fire, positions, arms, ammunition, number of shots and rules for this match are the same as those governing the national team match. No entrance fee will be charged, but there must be at least thirty-six entries for this event. The prizes will consist of four gold medals and cash prizes of $210, four silver medals and cash prizes of $130 after the gold medal scores, and four bronze medals and cash prizes of $50 after the silver medal scores. These prizes will be given to each of the four competitors making the highest aggregate scores. In addition, there will be one gold medal and a cash prize of $20 for the highest aggregate score made in rapid fire, and one gold medal and $20 to the competitor making the highest aggregate score on skirmish fire.

Perhaps the most interesting event will be the National Pistol match, which will be open to members of the organizations above named. There must be at least thirty-six entries for this event, also. The United States service pistol, Colt's or Smith & Wesson of .38 caliber, length of barrel to be the same as issued to troops with a trigger pull of not less than four pounds, will be used, while the ammunition will be the same as that issued by the Ordnance department of the army. The rules governing the match are the same as those of similar matches in the United States army. Three classes of fire will be allowed—slow fire of ten shots at 75 yards, with 20 seconds to each shot; time fire of ten shots at 25 and 50 yards with 20 seconds to each score of 5 shots, and rapid fire of ten shots at 15 and 25 yards with 8 seconds to each score of 5 shots. No sighting shots will be allowed in this contest, and all shots will be fired in scores of 5 at each distance at each range. Target "A" will be used for slow and timed fire, and tarket "K" for rapid fire. In firing, one hand only will be used, while body or artificial rest will not be permitted. There will be four gold medals and cash prizes of $95, four silver medals and cash prizes of $40, to be given to the twelve competitors making the highest aggregate scores in the order of merit. In addition, one gold medal and $10 will be given to the competitor making the highest aggregate score in slow fire; one gold medal and $15 for the highest aggregate score in timed fire; and one gold medal and $15 for the highest score in rapid fire.

The National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice has noted with much pleasure the increasing interest taken in rifle and revolver shooting as evidenced in the reports received from various sections of the country. The smallness of the regular army in comparison with the size of the country and its population compels us to rely upon the volunteer in time of war. The volunteer can be quickly taught to drill and march, to make or strike camp, and perform other military duties, but it takes time and careful training and much practice to make him a first class shot. Consequently the National Board regards every man who voluntarily qualifies as a marksman or sharpshooter as fit material for volunteer service in time of war, and as having performed an act of patriotism in so fitting himself for military duty.

Owing to the work of the National Board, supplemented by that of the National Rifle association, there has been a revival of interest within the past few years in the State Rifle associations, and a large number of local rifle associations have been organized. Rifle practice is a sport requiring steady nerves, and gives abundance of outdoor exercise without danger of over-exertion. When congress passes the pending militia bill, which it will probably do before the present session ends, the states will have money to equip and maintain state ranges open to the militia and to rifle clubs, and it is hoped that before long hundreds of thousands will voluntarily qualify as marksmen.

Among the associations which are very active in promoting rifle practice is the Savannah Rifle Association, of Savannah Georgia, which has just given its thirty-first annual banquet. This organization has 150 members and at the banquet many novel and entertaing features were introduced. Major W. B. Stephens responded to the toast "American Riflemen" and said in part:

"The volunteer militia, rifle associations and organizations of similar import have upon them in large part the responsibility of perpetuating this national and all-important capability, and while this chivalrous city is perhaps more fully discharging her duty in this regard than any other community in the United States, let her be ever watchful and persevering in her efforts, especially among the men whose qualifications will bo of the greatest service in time of need; but under no circumstances should endeavor be limited to those who are legally subject to militia duty, for in all countries and on many occasions contingencies have arisen when youth and old age have put shoulder to shoulder in a cause for which they were willing to yield their lives, and it is not beyond the pale of possibility that the patriots of this association will yet be brought to exclaim with Tichnor's old rifleman?

"'Old Bess,' We've kept our barrels bright;
Our trigger quick and true;
As far, if not as fine a sight,
As long ago wo drew.'"

SUES FOR DAMAGE CAUSED BY PRINCE'S PET MONKEYS.

Paris, June 15.—M. Dadant, owner of a house in the Avenue d'Antini, is suing the Prince d'Obidine, who lives in the next house, for damages caused by the prince's pet monkeys.

These animals, which the prince claims are quite harmless, escape from their cages and climb by balconies and rain pipes into the rooms of M. Dadant's tenants, upset vases of oilwers and throw books and other articles about.

The court finally decided to appoint a referee who is to examine the monkeys and report on their behavior.

WEST END

IS TWENTY YEARS OLD

Swedish Methodism Will be Celebrating It Next Week.

Four Days Set Aside for Event—St. Clement's Graduation.

REV. JOHN A. ANDERSON,
Pastor First Swedish M. E. Church.

Swedish Methodism will soon begin a four-days' celebration of its twentieth anniversary in Duluth. That celebration will begin next Wednesday night, at the First Swedish Methodist church, at Twentieth avenue west and Third street, the pastor of which, Rev. John A. Anderson, is at the head of this coming celebration, and who is making most of the preparations therefor. Mr. Anderson's preparatory work has been extraordinarily successful, and he has prepared a fine program for the four evenings set aside for the purpose.

The Swedish Methodists will be assisted in the celebration by people of the various Swedish denominations, and it is expected that that the celebration will be one of the biggest of its kind in the history of the city. In addition to the programs, a sale will be carried on, and on two evenings the ladies of the church will serve supper.

Rev. A. R. Gustafson, presiding elder of the Lake Superior district, was the first to preach Swedish Methodism in Duluth. That was in the summer of 1886. He continued his visits to Duluth for about a year, and in the fall of 1887 Rev. G. A. Forsberg was appointed to the Lake Superior conference to take care of the work in Duluth. He was here only one year, but during that time raised enough interest and money to buy the lot on which the First Swedish Methodist church now stands, at the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street, after which a church was erected, the total cost of lots and church being $5,600.

Since the founding of Swedish Methodism in Duluth, the following clergymen have served as pastors:

Rev. G. A. Forsberg, one year; Rev. Frank Gustafson, four years; Rev. J. A. Palmquist, one year; Rev. P. M. Alfin, one year; Rev. E. A. Waiqvist, one year; Rev. Magnus Peterson, one year; Rev. A. G. Hultgren, three years; and the present pastor, Rev. John A. Anderson, who has served seven years.

The present trustees of the church are: John Sundeen, Albert Bromen, Charles Johanson, Ole Elgstrom, Adam Sandqvist, A. G. Wickstrom, Frank Johnson, Louis Nelson and Svan Anderson. The church is in fine condition numerically and financially, and it is with enthusiasm that the coming celebration is undertaken. The congregation and pastor feel that Providence has been good to them, and wish to return thanks.

GRADUATED WITH HONORS.

The graduation exercises of St. Clement's school at Twentieth avenue west and Third street, took place last evening, and the hall of the school was filled to overflowing. A very creditable showing was made in the eighth grade, which was graduated, and the affair of last evening would reflect credit on any institution of learning. The feature of the program was a short drama enacted by members of the graduating class, assisted by several members of the seventh grade. The title of the piece was, "Kathleen, or the Cost of a Promise." It was well given and some considerable talent was shown. Recitations of the lower grades were given between each of the five acts, each recitation being given with effect.

Blanche Chisholm was valedictorian and spoke of the pleasures of school life, complimenting the teachers of the class which was leaving the school. Diplomas were presented by Rev. Augustine Breckmeyer, O. S. B., and the following pupils received them: Ethel Phillips, Blanche Chisholm, John Schlitz, Harold Phillips, Mary Nolan and Minnie Kreymer.

West End Shortrails.

John Eckman has gone to his old home in Cokato. While there he will act as best man for an old school mate who is about to be married.

The kirmess given last evening and the evening before at Lincoln Park Auditorium, by St. Luke's Episcopal church was a very decided success on both evenings and the dances were very greatly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Swedberg returned today from their honeymoon trip.

Work on the Oneota Missabe dock at Thirty-fourth avenue west is being delayed by a scarcity of the required timber.

Your prescriptions are compounded, true to your doctor's formula at the Lion Drug store.

Rev. A. Edstam, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, has gone to St. Paul to attend the annual conference of that denomination. On Sunday morning the pulpit will be filled by A. Thoren and in the evening John Hurtig will preach.

If you are in need of medicine you need the best, go to the Lion Drug store.

Phenomenal Success Is Attending the # Great Sale of Tailored Suits at 1/2 Price

In all Duluth there has been nothing like this half price sale of suits. In the first place, it is not an ordinary riddance of passe styles, but a closing out of the very best of the present season's productions in faultless Etons and box and fitted coat suits. Secondly, the prices which we have cut squarely in half, have been conspicuous all the season, as being the lowest to be found anywhere in the city. A few days of as heavy selling as yesterday's and today's will soon play havoc with sizes. Don't wait.

The sale includes every woman's and misses' tailored suit in the store—none reserved. Where alterations are necessary a charge will be made, according to the work required.

CAME FROM THE NORTH?

German Professor Has New Theory on Origin of Human Race.

Berlin, June 15.—Prof. Wilser of Heidelberg, one of the highest authorities on natural history, has just written an interesting article on the original home of the human race. He concludes that not only the larger apes, but also the most ancient hordes of human beings made their wall across the European continent. The point at which their ways divided or the center from which they were distributed can only be looked for in the extreme northern latitude.

Prof. Wilser's opinion coincides with that of Dr. Schlosser that mighty migrations of the brute kingdom preceded that of man. The continuous cooling of the North sharpened the struggle for existence. It is not true, Prof. Wilser says, that the tropical sun has power to develop the human germ. All progress has come from the North and the new, highly developed races had their origin there.

Prof. Wilser points out that nothing is known of the original home of all those great groups of mammalia which spread themselves with man all over the world. He comes to the conclusion that the home of all mammalia, men included, is to be found in those inaccessible regions now buried in ice.

GAMES TODAY.
Duluth at Calumet.

(The game as Billy Baxter might have seen it.)

Dear Jim: You remember those Courtney girls from Chicago? Well, yesterday I walked into their arms as I stepped out of the hotel, and when I got my breath back each had a strangle hold on one of my mits and was wringing it as if I was the long-lost brother home from the Klondike with a few sacks of the yellow lumps.

They had on all their joyous duds, and their outfits couldn't have set the old man back less than a couple of centuries apiece.

Well, now you know, Jim, I never was a piker, but the sum total of my finances was just four silver dollars and a two-bit piece, and that won't go far toward entertaining a couple of silk upholstered queens like the Courtney sisters. So I made a clutch at the ball game, like a fellow grabs the ice pitcher the morning after.

"Girls," I said, "I was just starting for the ball game. Do you think you could exist another afternoon without seeing an exhibition of the great national sport."

They thought it would be a lark. Anything that costs less than ten bucks is a "lark" to those girls, so we hailed a sardine box and blew out to the grounds.

Say, Jim, I thought I was a ball fan, one of the good old faithfuls, but these Duluth people have got the microbe bad this year. When he got to the grounds, the stands were packed tighter than a Roosevelt family in a Harlem flat. We annexed some cushions, some sacks of peanuts, and a score-card and took to the tall timbers at the back of the stand, where there was a narrow fringe of vacant seats left.

I don't believe those girls had ever been nearer to a ball game than to witness the Yale-Harvard boat race from one of these brass and leather trimmed private yachts that their father screwed out of the people packing pork, but they took to baseball like a millionaire's son takes to chorus girls, and by the second innings Grace was squeezing my arm and begging me to assure her that Duluth would win, while Frances was spoiling about $8 worth of lace umbrella in her efforts to add to the row the fans were kicking up. On the level, Jim, those girls went dippy over the game, but I couldn't blame them. It was a corker.

Duluth has a Gibson boy named Treadway with curves like a branch of the Rock Island road where it hits the gay picturesque in the Rockies, and there was a guy named Grimes from Calumet who was pitching pretty fuzzy ball himself. But they only got to Treadway for three lonesome little hits, and he had them faded at all stages of the game. When it comes to warm propositions as a pitcher, he is the bell cow of the herd. He sure is the sincere pitcher, all right, all right.

Well, for six innings these boys had it out, and it looked as if it would go the limit. Grace asked me if I didn't think the umps ought to be hung up by the thumbs, but I said they were saving him to boil him in lard after the game, and at that, Jim, the guy was working nice, and not giving either side the best of it.

When the gong sounded for the seventh, I saw there would have to be something doing pretty immediately, or I was going to be stung for three suppers at the cafe, which would make my remaining two cases look like a pair of dirty deuces against an ace full.

But in the seventh, with one down, the Gibson boy got safe on an error by the second baseman, and then a boy named Livingstone drew a pretty two-bagger. The next man up, Summers, beat out an infield nit, while the fielder was trying to hold Treadway at third, and the bases were full. Then O'Dea, the captain, draws the prettiest single you ever saw, and two of them trots home.

Say, Jim, you ought to have seen that crowd. I thought the place would be pinched. Grace got a half nelson on my neck, and Frances was batting me over the head with the fragments of her parasol. I broke away just as she aimed a short arm jab at the second button of my vest, which would have got her the money.

Well, I got them cooled down a little in the next two innings, which passed uneventfully, and led them out, as good as new. I met Johnny Hathaway, my old pal, on the way out, and flagged him while the girls weren't looking. I got to him for a ten spot, and finished the thing up right.

But say Jim, if you ever take the Courtney girls to a ball game, wear a suit of armor, or take out some accident insurance.

FIGHT FOR FIRST PLACE

Duluth Team Leaves Home Close Second in League Race.

Won Ten of Thirteen Games Played on Home Grounds.

The White Sox did not manage to crawl into first place before leaving home, but they are so close to it that the series begun today in Calumet will give the fans there some nervous tremors.

O'Dea's men are just one notch behind the leaders, having lost one game more than Calumet, and if they win today they will move up into first place.

The home series just finished was a most successful one for the White Sox. They won ten games out of the thirteen played on the home grounds, and took a majority of the games in every series, losing one out of three to Hancock, one out of three to Lake Linden and one out of three to Fargo. They won three straight from Houghton and one from Calumet.

The team plays today, tomorrow and Sunday in Calumet, and returns home on Monday for a week's stay, during which three games will be played with Winnipeg and foru with Grand Forks.

The Winnipeg series on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday should be of interest from the fact that the Maroons have not yet been seen here this year, and also because "Spike" Anderson and Sam Menefee appear in the Winnipeg lineup. "Spike" should be given a royal welcome by the Duluth fans.

The team then returns to the Copper country for three games at Hancock, and two at Lake Linden, and once more comes home for two games with Lake Linden and four with Fargo, playing two games here on July 4.

Following the Fargo series, the Sox will take a swing around the western end of the circuit, and be away for a couple of weeks.

The showing made by the team since it returned from the West has silenced the knockers, and if the present pace is maintained there is no doubt but that it will be in at the finish. The series with Calumet which begins today will go far toward settling the question of supremacy between the two leading teams, and from the showing made yesterday, the Sox need have no fear of being outclassed by their rivals from the Copper country.

RETURN TO MICHIGAN

Copper Country Ball Teams Back on Home Grounds Again.

Calumet and Hancock Nines Are Received With Open Arms.

Houghton, Mich., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Copper country baseball teams of the Northern-Copper Country league are home again, and the fans are settling themselves to watch the coming series with the western clubs of the league. In Hancock and Calumet especially the teams were received with open arms. Calumet, in retaining its place at the head of the league, despite the handicap of playing on entirely strange grounds, has done something for which the fans of that town are extremely grateful, and any doubt of the ability of that aggregation to make a good run for the flag has been dispelled.

Calumet has had a marked advantage all through the season. It has been firmly organized. Starting with a team of known stars, most of whom have played together before, the Calumet management has had a finished ball playing machine, which, with a fair portion of baseball luck, should be able to stay in the first division all through the season, and count in the final run for the pennant. Calumet is blessed with a good pitching staff, and as many hard hitters as may be expected on any team, and if any Copper country team is to land the pennant, the Aristocrats are looked upon as the likely winners.

The work of the Hancock aggregation in the West, has been the big surprise of the trip. Starting from the Copper country in the basement position, by gilt edged ball playing, the Patriots have placed themselves in fifth place, and would undoubtedly have been in the first division on the homecoming, had it not been for the numerous injuries to players, working to the disadvantage of the team. When Hancock left for the western division, the anvil chorus was raising the echo in approved style, and hardly a fan could be found in the little city who would dare to express the belief that Wreath's men would win a majority of the games played while away from home. Not only did the Patriots win a majority of the games, but they landed two-thirds of them, and that with a badly crippled team on the greater part of the trip.

The Lake Linden hoodoo has relentlessly pursued the team, it seems, for the Hopefuls have by no means come up to the expectations of the fans in the smallest town in the league. They have dropped games with alarming rapidity, and only in Grand Forks did they make a showing which would tend to give even the thirty-second degree fans a slight hope that their team might figure in the pennant race. While most of the other teams have been rounding out their proper form, Lake Linden has seemingly deteriorated and, it is very likely that the axe will be swung in several directions before the month of June is over. True, the Lakes have returned home in the same position in which they started, but better things were expected of them.

The Knockers' club has been a very active organization in Houghton for some days past. Since the team dropped three straight to the White Sox, the ardent fans have come to the conclusion that the Giants were not as invincible as their name would suggest, and there have been serious thoughts of changing the non de plume under which the team is playing. The drop from second to fourth place has been heartrending to the Houghton fans after the fine ball the team was playing in the Copper Country, and the enthusiasm with which the fortunes of the team has been followed is on the wane.

But better things are hoped and looked for. Now that the Giants are back on their own stamping grounds with no series ahead with the White Sox, which may well be looked upon as a hoodoo, there is strong hope of the team strengthening itself in the first division and, perhaps going up a notch. The close race all around lends much to the interest with which the fortunes of the teams are watched, and good weather will mean big crowds and two weeks of good baseball in the Copper Country.

DEAD BODY IS GARNISHEED

Papers Read to a Corpse in the Morgue at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., June 15.—An episode without parallel in the Northwest, it is believed, took place here yesterday, when Police Officer Kent served garnishment papers secured in municipal court by Joseph Lacoretti on a corpse in a local morgue. The enshrouded body, that of Philip Debretto, a young Italian repairer, was ready to be carried away to the grave when the officer came to the morgue with the documents and read them according to legal procedure.

The story has its beginning in an unfortunate accident at the Drake & Stratton stripping operations at the Fayal mine. Last Saturday night Debretto was struck by a dinky engine while working at the pit. The accident was due to the victim's ignorance of flag signals and inability to understand English. Though the engineer shouted to him and signalled, Debretto failed to get off the track and was badly crushed before the engine could be stopped.

Debretto suffered agonies until last Monday, when he died. The body was taken to the Gleason morgue. Deputy Coroner Gleason, after an inquest, rendered a verdict that Debretto came to his death through ignorance of the English language.

Before the interment of the body Joseph Lacoretti, keeper of a boarding house where Debretto lodged, went into police court and secured from Judge Vivian Prince a garnishee on the dead man for $23. Nicholas Kent, police officer, couldn't see how he could very well serve such papers on a corpse, so referred the matter back to the court. Judge Prince instructed the officer to serve the papers, as had been requested by Lacoretti.

Thus it happened that the officer, armed with a garnishee went to the morgue and with befitting solemnity read the paper to a man whose ears had been closed to all sound by the grim reaper.

CANALLI CAPTURED.

Fugitive Italian Caught on the Road to Bear River.

Hibbing, Minn., June 15.—Pietri Canalli, wanted at Chisholm on a charge of having murdered Abel Soport during a quarrel on the high road near the Monroe location Tuesday night, was captured yesterday afternoon and placed in the municipal jail here. He will be taken to Chisholm today and given a hearing.

Canalli was captured on the Bear River road near Sturgeon lake, sixteen miles north of here. Last night he admitted that he plunged a knife into his victim's abdomen, but said he did not realize he had administered a fatal blow. Canalli was armed with a loaded shotgun, and all his pockets were filled with shells when in the road, but his captors got the drop on him and he made no resistance when placed under arrest.

Canalli was first seen on the road by Michael Danahy, a farmer living near Green Rock. Danahy was driving southward when he met the fugitive Italian. Danahy hastened to Hibbing and at once telephoned to Chief Wring, telling him he had seen Canalli. Chief Wring at once informed President McNeill of Chisholm, who asked Wring to go at once in pursuit as Chief Connors was not at home. The latter was endeavoring to find some trace of Canalli. Chief Wring at once set out on horseback to overtake the fleeing criminal. Several miles north of here he met Charles Benning and C. P. Verring, cruisers, who had met Canalli on the road after Danahy, and being armed, made the capture and were bringing their prisoner to Hibbing. They got the drop on Canalli and he was taken into custody without resistance.

AFTER AN EMBEZZLER.

Sheriff Gonyea of Polk County Starts for Wyoming.

Crookston, Minn., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Gonyea of Polk county passed through the city last evening on his way to Lander, Freemont county, Wyo., where he will secure the person of Alexander E. Moran, who stands charged of the embezzlement of several hundred dollars last winter from the Heileman Brewing company, with headquarters at this place.

Moran is one of the well known characters of the Northwest, holding forth in such places as East Grand Forks and Minot, at which latter place he has run for years one of the most successful "blinds" in Dakota. From Minot he came here and was placed in the employ of the brewery company in the offices. He was one of the best workers.

He lost his luck and, as a result, is said to have embezzled about $600 from the company's treasury. The police for the past five months have been scouring the Northwest and the vicinity of his old home near Valparaiso, Ind. Only about a week ago they obtained a clew as to his locality through information conveyed to them secretly. It is said that he will come without requisition or trouble of any kind.

FRED W. EDWARDS
Over Gidding's, First Avenue West and Superior Street, Duluth.
UP-STAIRS
Room 217 Truax Block, 1024 Tower Avenue, Superior.

A pretty home wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown of Fourth avenue west, when their daughter, Miss Emma Brown, became the bride of William R. Hallam of Superior. The rooms were decorated in green and white, the walls being hung in white cloth, making a gleaming background for clusters of laurel leaves fastened at intervals. A canopy of smilax and palms from which depended a wedding bell of white roses formed the arch under which the wedding ceremony took place. The service was read at 6:30 o'clock by Rev. M. S. Rice of the First Methodist church. The bride was unattended. She wore a dainty gown of white embroidered batiste, and carried lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, covers being laid for eighteen guests. White roses and carnations formed the centerpiece, and with smilax and crystal candlesticks, the scheme was further carried out. A reception was held from 8 to 10 o'clock, a large number of guests calling.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallam left for a wedding trip last evening. The bride's going away gown was of gray. After their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hallam will be at home at 1119 Hammond avenue, Superior.

Reception.

Sullivan, president of the corps, and the past presidents receiving were: Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. A. N. McGindley, John T. Armstead, Mrs. Van Baalen and Mrs. W. G. Bonham, formerly president of a Dakota corps.

What Retail Markets Offer

Melons, 20 and 25 cents each.
Tomatoes, small baskets, 40 cents.
Wisconsin strawberries 15 cents a box.
Broilers, $1.60 a pair.
Beef roast, 20 cents a lb.

The canteloupes are getting a little cheaper, and hope is held out to the people with a taste for this delicious thing the first thing in the morning that soon everybody will be able to have them for breakfast.

Tomatoes are getting firmer, and the price remains about the same. The first of the Wisconsin berries are in the market, but the announcement brings little joy to the housewife who has waited for them, for the best of the berries to preserve are not going to be plentiful, nor cheap, so predicts the market man.

Beef roast and broilers, crabs and lobsters, are offered in the meat department, and the choosing of Sunday supplies ought to be an hour of joy tomorrow morning for every housewife.

The Evening Story.

HOW THE TWINS SAVED THE DAY

A SEA STORY.

By James Barr.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

In the long history of the British navy there cannot be found another such mortifying episode, yet the British empire broke into a broad grin when all the circumstances became known.

As the Cunard liner Emilia threaded her way down the intricate St. Lawrence with the prince and princess of Wales on board, peace was being rapidly metamorphosed into war.

When the Emilia was off the east coast of Anticosti a wireless message announced actual war between England and France. Commodore Samson, in command, wired that he would take the Belle Isle route, and make direct for Blacksod bay, Ireland.

The French had this advantage: they decided on war while yet the English were feeling for peace. This gave Lieut. Odette his chance. His destroyer, the Serpent, lay at Brest, and twenty-four hours before the certainty of war was known in London he slipped to sea under cover of night. Heading due west, he held to that course.

On his outward journey Odette gave the coast of England a wide berth. His plan was to run the curve of search on the Emilia, when the time came, which would not be for some days yet. That his prey would take the northern route from Canada he felt convinced.

Two o'clock in the morning two days later the Serpent hung just below the horizon, running parallel with the Emilia and her cruisers. A haze, funnel high, lay thick on the face of the water.

Suddenly from the crow's-nest of the Emilia something looked as if, out there in the haze, three stove-lids were off, allowing the flames of a fierce fire to lick and overflow. The bluejacket on the lookout was not at a loss, even for the fraction of a second, to account for the apparition. "Destroyer astern!" he began to call out.

Before Commodore Sampson realized the import of the tidings, alongside swept the dark shape, so close he could have tossed his gloves upon its quivering decks. Odette held a megaphone to his lips.

"Hard a-port!" he bawled. "Hard a-port."

The order was obeyed as though it had been given by the commodore himself.

When the Emilia had come to a ponderous pause, Odette kept way on his craft, circled around and around his prize, and ordered the commodore to lower away his boat, as he wished to put an officer and a few men aboard the liner. This was done, and Lieut. Langlois with half a dozen bluejackets were rowed aboard.

Lieut. Langlois made direct to the bridge. There he was met by Commodore Samson.

"I have not my sword, and therefore cannot offer it to you, sir,' said the commodore, looking the young lieutenant unflinchingly in the eye. "By heaven, if it were not for the passengers I carry!—" he could say no more.

"You are a British sailor, sir, and I fully understand why it is that I have the honor of standing on this bridge with you," said the Frenchman. "As for your sword? I hope never to see it but when it hangs by your side."

"I thank you," said the commodore, with genuine warmth.

"Fortune fought against you. You have done what no one but a brave man would do or could have done."

"Nothing!"

"That was the only sane thing to do. A weaker man would have attempted something, and —"

"Gone to the bottom with all on board."

"We would have been obliged to torpedo you—" The lieutenant shrugged his shoulders.

"I am at your disposal," said the commodore.

Lieut. Odette made up his mind to lose no time. It was by no means his intention to take the most direct route to Brest, his mission being mostly spectacular. He would mortify that haughty, domineering island people in a way that they and theirs would remember for ever.

Late on the evening that followed the morning of capture, Odette fell in with the six cruisers which had been slipped to escort the Emilia.

In line abreast they rode the swells, their prows pitching high like the heads of war steeds impatient to be up and at their enemy. Odette passed within a mile of their great guns.

Then followed a long and, to the people of the empire, exasperating cruise, while the whole rest of the world won expansive grin.

Odette took his captive slowly past Bantry Bay; he lolled across St. George's channel, stood close in to Land's End, as if to give the great gathering of Cornish people who crowded the rocks a good view.

Off the Lizard, a small fleet of newspaper boats joined the melancholy procession, keeping well astern, and every mile of the progress was reported to Fleet street.

The newspapers called on the admiralty to do something, reminding my lords of the amount of money lavished on the fleet; but what could my lords do? They were not wizards, royal lives were at stake, and the Frenchman's torpedo tubes were loaded.

Then, when the Emilia had come full in view of the grim units of the channel and home fleet, the British flag, which all this time had been allowed to fly over the Emilia, was hauled down and the French flag bent on above it and run to the masthead.

Thousands beheld this done, for it would seem that all England had rushed to the south coast, and there were many wet eyes. After this final touch, Odette swung around and made direct for Brest.

Dinner was over when a tap came at the commodore's door and Lieut. Langlois entered with a genial smile on his face.

"I was obliged to read it, you know, sir—a message for you—and, having read it, perhaps you will allow me to felicitate you on your anniversary. I shall be delighted to send any reply you desire to Madam Samson and the fortunate twins."

He handed a message to the commodore. Samson took the paper and read:

"Have you forgotten the birthday of the twins? They send their love, and wish you were with them, even though they were obliged to embrace your French fellow-voyagers.

"From your wife, "CONSTANCE."

The bronzed face of Commodore Samson flushed. He ran his fingers through his hair.

"You had forgotten?" laughed the lieutenant.

"I—I had, indeed; I had indeed," stammered the commodore. "I should have remembered, but, but—"

"Ah! Madam did not forget."

"With your permission, I will think over the wording of my reply to hide the stupidity of forgetting."

The lieutenant bowed, and having accepted a proffered cigar, departed.

The commodore sat staring at the message. "Now, what the devil does it mean?" he muttered. Then he sent a discreet messenger for Commander Frazer.

Frazer folded the message carefully, and, placing it on the table, pressed it flat with the palm of his hand as he said in a low voice:

"You have neither wife nor twins?"

The commodore shook his head.

"This is from the admiralty. Has it anything to do with 'The Twins' rocks off d'Ouessent?"

"By heaven, you're right!" said the commodore, his eyes blazing like fire. He snatched up a pen and wrote:

"Beloved, I will think of you and the twins all the rest of the night."

He personally gave this message to Lieut. Langlois, saying that he thought he had successfully evaded answering the question put to him in the message. Then he stealthily sent for Lieut. Tarry.

Commodore Samson sat back in his chair and allowed Commodore Frazer to do the talking.

"Lieut. Tarry, you know 'The Twins' off d'Ouessent?"

"I have passed them scores of times, sir, running from Southampton to Bordeaux."

"You are certain of their position?"

"I think I could clear them on a dark night with my eyes shut, sir."

"This time we want you not to clear them; we want you to put us right over them."

"Wreck the ship, sir?"

"No, not if the trick can be done without. What we hope you can do is to put the Frenchman on the rocks, but we want you to know that if, in trying to wreck him, you lose this ship, nothing in the way of reprimand will be said to you, and nothing held against you. The Frenchman has all along allowed us the navigation, himself content to stand off at two cables' distance. At our present rate we pass those rocks at between 3 and 4 o'clock tomorrow morning. Borrow clothes from a bluejacket, and be ready to take the wheel when I call you."

At 3 o'clock the next morning the Emilia and Serpent were slapping through the waters at 20 knots an hour. Commodore Samson paced the bridge. The French lieutenant, one hand in his pocket to make sure of his telegraph key, stood in an angle of the bridge, laughing at the tales Lieut. Farrington, especially selected for the duty, was telling. Alongside to starboard was the Serpent, the sleepless Odette on the bridge.

Half-past three. Samson turned and scanned the waters ahead. Yes, a patch laid on the face of the water like a great globule of grease, as if some marine monster lolled underneath. The commodore snatched up a megaphone and bawled out to the Serpent. Anything to distract attention from what was ahead.

"I do not think, sir," he said to Lieut. Odette, "that you have the right to take me into Brest with the flags flying as they are."

Odette came to the end of the bridge nearest the Emilia.

"What are the grounds of your objection, sir? I will give them consideration," answered Odette.

"They are these, sir, loosely stated; if you wish it I will put them in writing. I am not a prize in the ordinary sense, you know. It is only because of my passengers that you can coerce me to follow you."

Close behind him a hoarse, loud cry sounded. Langlois had suddenly stepped to the bridge and beheld the awful "Twins."

"What's amiss?" bawled Odette, instantly sounding an alarm aboard the destroyer.

"Nothing's amiss here, but if you'll glance—" began the commodore, all excitement, but before he could finish the sentence the cry of the man at the destroyer's helm rivetted the lieutenant's attention. Odette flung himself toward the wheel, but before the Serpent even commenced to obey her helm she was done.

In an instant she piled herself up, a shapeless, quivering mass upon the "Twins," while past the rocks, unharmed, swept the Emilia.

Ten minutes more and through space to the admiralty sped the message:

"The Twins have the Frenchmen. God bless the Twins."

HUGE GRAIN CANAL NOW A CERTAINTY.

Ottawa, Ont., June 15.—The Georgian bay canal, a project which James J. Hill indorses as the most practical solution of the problem of transporting grain cheaply from the Great Lakes to the head of ocean navigation at Montreal, will be constructed either by the Canadian government or by a company whose undertaking will be guaranteed by the government. Surveys now in process of completion indicate that the entire waterways can be canalized and rendered navigable to vessels drawing twenty feet of water, for about $100,000,000.

The charter of the Montreal-Ottawa & Georgian Bay Canal company has been extended by the railway committee of the commons. The company is now authorized to increase its capital from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000 and to issue bonds to the extent of $100,000,000. By its amended charter the time for commencing work is extended to May 1, 1908, and the time for completion to 1914. A provision inserted in the charter at the instance of the administration provides that the government may take over the work at any time and recoup the company for its outlay up to the date of transfer. The promotors of the company are English capitalists.

The canal, when completed, will make the route from the head of the lakes to Montreal as short as from Duluth to Buffalo, thus saving the delay and cost of transportation around by the Welland-St. Lawrence canals.

HOW MRS. CONGER SOLD A $90 RUG FOR $7,000.

Des Moines, June 15.—The story of how Mrs. E. H. Conger, wife of former Minister Conger, purchased a rug in China for $90 an dsold it in Chicago for $7,000 was made public by friends here today. Mrs. Conger purchased the rug under the protest of her husband, shortly before their return from the orient, who declared that she would get cheated.

Mrs. Conger had her own way, however, and a Chicago man, hearing of the rug, asked to see it and made an offer of $7,000 for it, which was accepted. With the money Mrs. Conger erected a new home in California, where the family will permanently reside.

STRONG MEN NEEDED.

The Republican state convention is now over, and there will be a comparative lull in politics for a while. A little later there will be a Democratic state convention that will put in the field a state ticket headed by Governor John A. Johnson, and then the state campaign will proceed vigorously.

But in the meantime, up here in Northern Minnesota, it must not be forgotten that while it is important to have a good governor, one that will be a credit to the state both at home and abroad, it is still more important to the vital interests here at home that there should be a good state legislature, one responsive to the wishes of the people and determined to do their will.

The governor cannot enact legislation. He can suggest it, and veto it if he thinks it is not right, but his are the executive functions, not the legislative, and he can work only upon such laws as the legislature may furnish him with.

Therefore, if there is to be state development in Minnesota, a state development that will stop the tendency toward decreased population in some of the older portions of the state and that will add vigor and rapidity to the growth of the population of the newer parts, a legislature must be elected that will bring it about.

If there is to be fair play between the corporations and the people, not only must the governor and officials under him fairly and fearlessly execute the laws, but the legislature must devise new ones where their need is shown.

If there are to be liberal appropriations for drainage of state lands, for good roads, and for advertising for settlers to come to the state, a legislature must be elected that will make such appropriations.

In other words, as The Herald has several times suggested, the need in Northern Minnesota, and in all other parts of Minnesota as well, is of strong men as candidates for the legislature. There has never been a time when a legislative career offered so many possibilities for honest and capable citizens to be of noteworthy service to their state and their fellows. The pay is small in money, but it should be large in the esteem and gratitude of a people that know what they want, and mean to get it.

Push your strong men out in all parts of the state, and pick from the field that is offered you the most honest, capable and representative citizens as your choice for legislative positions.

COMMONPLACE HEROES.

A hero died in New York the other day. He died bravely doing his duty in the face of danger and discomfort. He laid down his life as a heroic sacrifice to duty.

No, he did not die in the forefront of battle. He did not dash in front of a mad runaway team of horses to rescue a fair damsel. He did not even lose his life fighting fire. He was a ditch digger, and he died digging ditches.

His name was Patrick O'Malley. He died of gas poisoning in the bottom of a shallow trench. The work was necessary, but the stench of escaping gas made it uncomfortable and unpleasant. His companions quit and got out of the trench, but he persisted in his work, not only because work was his habit but because it was his necessity. He had a wife and family in Brooklyn to feed, and the only way he knew to feed them was to keep on digging.

He was making a connection between an underground cable of an electrical company and a building on Washington avenue. With assistants he began to dig, and as they delved the odor of gas came up thickly.

The deeper they got the more gas there was. Dizzy and sick, they kept on working until finally O'Malley's companions had to give it up and stagger out. One of them fell unconscious in the street while O'Malley kept on digging.

A little later O'Malley dropped dead across an exposed gas main, his shovel in his hand.

This is rather a sordid tale of heroism, perhaps. It is a far cry from braving danger on a battlefield to digging dirt in an ill-smelling ditch. But O'Malley died doing his duty, just as surely as any soldier ever did. He was in charge of the work, and though his companions might stop, pride in his work kept him going until he died.

Not all the heroism in life is illumined by the halo of romance. There are men who are as truly heroes as any of these in the stories, but of whom the public never hears. Their devotion to duty, to the duty of doing good work and of caring for their families, keeps them at work in the face of danger and discomfort when men of less heroic mould would quit. The only difference is a change of environments: from the hurrah and excitement of the battlefield to the grime and monotony of daily labor. And the difference makes the obscure heroism, without its compensations of glory and exaltation, much more truly heroic.

PURE LIQUORS.

The National Liquor Dealers' Association has been meeting in Louisville, and in the course of its deliberations it adopted a motion to issue an address to the people of the United States expressing the belief of its members in temperance, obedience to the law and the usefulness of the liquor business.

Incidentally, the association declared its belief "that wines and spirits are blessings per se intended by an all-wise Providence to bring health and happiness to mankind."

If that was the intention, however, it has been sadly defeated. It is very questionable indeed whether wine or spirits, in any form, ever brought real happiness to anybody. Not long ago their use for medicinal purposes was rather generally admitted, but of late the tendency has been more the other way, so that many hospitals have abandoned their use altogether, and all hospitals have curtailed it materially. And if it be conceded that the use of wine and spirits has brought some slight "health and happiness", which not everybody will admit, on the other page of the ledger is an appalling account of sickness, unhappiness and misery that the use and abuse of strong drinks have entailed.

While it may be admitted that moderate amounts of pure wines, spirits and malt liquors do little harm, if they do any, it cannot be denied that the immoderate use of any of them is exceedingly harmful, and demoralizing to body, mind, soul and pocketbook. And the great trouble is that the appetite for these commodities so often grows by what it feeds upon, and that the moderate drinkers of today are the drunkards of tomorrow.

All this refers to pure liquors, but no defense can be made of impure liquors. Yet pure liquors are almost impossible to find in this country today, and impure brands abound. In Duluth alcohol, water and coloring matter are mingled into different forms, strengths and colors, and labelled as whisky, claret, port, sherry, etc., and most of them are rank poisons which break down the minds and health of the misguided persons that consume them with terrible certainty.

A pure food bill is pending before congress that will, if it is enacted, stop this poisoning of the public. It is being delayed by the liquor interests. It would sound better if the National Liquor Dealers' association had declared for pure liquors, and had endorsed that section of the pure food bill designed to ensure them.

REVISION AND RECIPROCITY.

The recent Republican state convention declared its belief that the time for tariff revision has arrived, and if it has influence enough with the Republican senators and representatives from this state to induce them to see it the same way and to act, the announcement is worth while. That is the only way it can be made worth while, however, for nobody on the state ticket that the convention nominated will have a word to say about whether there is tariff revision or not.

The convention, however, undoubtedly voiced the sentiment of the people of this state, regardless of politics, when it declared that the time has come for tariff revision. It has been here some time, but the real powers of government have been so far successful in delaying it. Not only is tariff revision needed in the interests of the people of this country who are compelled to pay unfair profits on American manufactures that are sold abroad much cheaper, but in the interests of American trade reciprocity treaties must be made with the leading nations if we do not want them to cease buying from us.

Eugene Foss, the well known Massachusetts reciprocity advocate, has recently returned from Europe, and he is a strong advocate of the maximum and minimum tariff idea. He says that there is trade trouble ahead for this country if we do not provide some orderly system to give preference in our markets to such countries as extend the like favor to us.

Mr. Foss says that Chamberlainism—which is protection—is developing irresistibly in Great Britain, and that the revision of our tariff in favor of that empire is the only thing that can stop the final triumph of Chamberlainism.

He says also that trouble may be looked for with Germany. Her maximum tariff was to have gone into effect against us in March, but a postponement of a year was ordered at the last moment. Next March, he says, the blow will surely fall. If it does not Germany will be in the position of giving us good terms for nothing, a position inconsistent with her commercial relations with other countries. At the same time, Germany's delay of a year was not due to consideration for us, but for herself. She needs our foodstuffs.

But nevertheless, if this country expects to keep trading with others, it will have to adopt a policy of give and take. It cannot expect to be always receiving without occasionally giving something in return.

In short, the stupid adoration of high tariff regardless of consequences will not only take away from the masses what they now have to give it to the favored monopolies, but it will bar us out of many profitable markets.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Have you got a pair of opera glasses I can borrow?" asked a guest at the McKay, approaching the clerk. It so happened that there was an article of the kind required behind the desk, and it was handed out forthwith. There wasn't a show of any kind in town and no very distant view was to be had from the immediate vicinity of the hotel. The guest didn't explain to what use he wished to put the opera glasses, and the clerk, who is used to such strange requests, didn't explain any curiosity concerning the matter.

Next to the ticket office man at the Union depot, the hotel clerks hear more foolish questions, and have more surprising demands made upon them, than anyone else in town. They soon learn never to be surprised at anything that visitors may propound in the shape of a question or a request. Some men, and women, too, appear to go on the principle that if they pay for their board and meals, the hotel should furnish them with everything else they need free of charge. They are liable to ask for anything from a needle to a shotgun.

Umbrellas are asked for more frequently than anything else, and a man will often become really angry if the clerk refuses to produce one on a rainy morning, despite the fact that a dozen others may have made the same request in the preceding half hour, and this with a sign reading "Umbrellas to rent" at the news stand on the other side of the lobby. The guest always swears that he will return the borrowed article in five or ten minutes, and when his request is granted the chances are that he will remain away most of the day. If the clerk himself wishes to venture outside, he has to borrow an umbrella from someone else, or else go unprotected.

"A fellow asked me not long ago if he could borrow a pair of my trousers," said a local clerk, in discussing the subject. "He said he would send them back by express as soon as he got home. It appears that he brought only one pair along with him, and in some way or other these were torn across the seat. Another individual asked for the loan of a hat until he got home. His had been lost on a lake excursion. He lived in a country town in Western Minnesota, and vowed he would be under lasting obligation, and would return the headpiece, if I gave it to him.

"Still another came in one morning and said he had left his laundry until it was all dirty, forgetting to send it out to be washed. He asked if he could borrow a pair of socks. Every once in a while we get requests for collars and neckties. During the hunting season they want to borrow guns, and in fishing season they ask if we have any fishing tackle we would be willing to lend. A hotel desk is looked upon as a general utility and information bureau, and we never know what to expect next."

* * *

"When some folks wish to tell of extreme tenacity of purpose, they speak of it as being of the bulldog variety," said S. M. West of Grand Rapids, Mich., at the St. Louis. "I don't do this, for I believe that for general tenacity of purpose the English sparrow has the bulldog rubbed off the landscape.

"A pair of sparrows began to build in one of the gutters of my house, and I removed their building while it was in process of construction. Again they started to build, and again I removed their home. To stop their construction work I nailed some shingles over the place where they had been so busy.

"Meanwhile those sparrows perched on a nearby tree and watched me and cursed. Next day I discovered that they had pried their way past one of the singles and had again begun to build in the gutter. They were promptly evicted, and stood by watching and swearing while the process was going on. For two days I heard nothing of them, and then when I began to use the pump in the back yard I pumped out a nest they had built somewhere in its internals. They stood by and watched and swore some more. About an hour later I saw them going in and out of that pump through the opening just above the handle, carrying in bits of grass and feathers. I chased them out, and as a reward for their persistence cut a hole in the end of a yeast foam box and put it on top of the wooshed, where their process of house building afterwards went on without any objections being raised on my part."

"I was reading an editorial in some paper the other day about the need of pawnships in our cities which are not run entirely to satisfy private gain, and the idea struck me as a good one," said T. J. Vicker of Cleveland, Ohio, at the Lenox. "The editorial went on to tell how the pawnship was something in the nature of a hospital rather than an ordinary business enterprise.

"It is there that those in direct financial straits attempt to mend their broken fortunes, or to secure such means as will enable them to tide themselves over until better times. Manifestly such people are not in a position to bargain successfully. They must accept what is offered them, for their need is immediate. Yet these persons, who are just as much in need of help as those taken sick or maimed to a public hospital, are left to the tender mercies of men who in many cases see in distress but a better chance to make a greater profit.

"In Europe the unwisdom of having pawnshops entirely in the hands of men whose only motive is gain, has long been recognized, and in practically every important city, it is said, the municipality has entered into the business, and by conducting one shop or more on a basis of fair remuneration, has forced its private competitors to do likewise. In America, where we are slower to permit the government to enter the business, this field is one that should appeal particularly to charitable organizations.

"So far as some people are concerned, they would be a good deal better off if they were not allowed to pawn their possessions at all, for with them visiting the three-ball sign becomes a habit, and whenever they need money, or think they need it, they trot down to the pawnshop and put their watch or rings in soak. Then they pay interest on them two or three months, perhaps, before they take them out."

THE WEATHER.

It was threatening this morning, but that was about all there was to it. The wind had moved from the northeast and was coming warmly from the westerly quadrant. The sky was cloudy at times, but frequently the sun burst through and bathed the world in its light. Last night's lowest temperature was 48 degs., and although yesterday seemed almost hot at times, the highest was 68 deg.

A year ago today after a fine morning, it clouded up and threatened rain, which came later in abundant quantities.

Mr. Richardson thinks the fair weather should continue tonight and tomorrow, with variable winds. Says he: "Areas of low barometric pressure are central this morning over Saskatchewan, the Southwest and the far Northwest, and over Lake Michigan. Light rains have fallen during the past twenty-four hours over Oregon, South Dakota, Western Kansas, Eastern Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and South Atlantic states. Temperature changes have been slight."

A Bold Champion.

Washington Post: Since the death of Nelson Dingley, John Dalzell has been the ablest champion of the dogma of protection in the house of representatives, and his speech of last week is one of the strongest even he has ever made on the subject. Mr. Dalzell believes in protection for protection's sake. He would demand a high tariff if the government needed not one cent of revenues, and he would lay ten thousand taxes that he never intended to collect.

Mr. Dalzell has no doubts. He defends the custom of selling American manufactures abroad cheaper than they are sold to domestic consumers, but in his discussion of that proposition he somewhat lurches and hedges, as Sir John Falstaff called it—he confesses, avoids, and denies, all in the same speech.

But the great protectionist on whose shoulders is the mantle of "Pig Iron" Kelley, does not adequately meet the question. Why is not the surplus of our manufactories offered to American customers at as low prices as it is sold abroad? Mr. Dalzell says it is because the American market is already fully supplied. That is true—fully supplied at the bigger price; but everybody, unless it is Mr. Dalzell, knows very well that cheapness encourages and causes consumption. He says that the surplus is shipped abroad and dumped in order to keep our mills running. Grant it. Why not dump the surplus here? It would be snatched up. Besides, there would be no surplus to dump anywhere if the trusts would practice a little moderation. "Why, oh, why, will they not put up with a reasonable profit!" used to exclaim Nelson Dingley, as he wrung his hands in despair.

It is quite plain why they will not. Theirs is the opportunity to extort. Given the opportunity to extort, and man that is born of woman will extort. That is why protectionists are separated into standpatters and revisionists. The fight between them is on, and it is a fight to a finish.

We cannot but think that Mr. Dalzell was too severe on the Wilson bill, the metal schedule of which was pretty stiff. For instance, under the Wilson bill imported iron and steel, and manufactures thereof, paid a duty of 38.80 per cent. Under the Dingley law they pay a duty of 38.20 per cent. So that it was not Democratic free trade in the Wilson tariff of August, 1894, that made the financial panic of June, 1893, after all.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Good intentions never seem to learn to walk without help.

The danger of study is it might spoil a good college athlete.

It costs a lot of money in drinks and cigars to think you are popular.

A girl would have to have curly hair not to mind looking thinner than she is.

Saving money is very profitable for the people who get you to invest it with them.

Worth While.

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song;
But the man worth while is one who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong;
For the test of the heart is trouble;
And it always comes with the years;
And the smile that is worth the praise of earth
Is the smile that comes through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent
When nothing tempts you to stray;
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away;
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered today;
They make up the item of life.
But the virtue that conquers a passion,
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth,
For we find them but once in a while.

—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Moorhead Independent: A good many people who have been attracted to the Canadian Northwest by the glittering advertisements would now be willing to be shown how to get home again, and are perfectly willing to stay in Minnesota—if they can get back again.

Virginia Enterprise: We had visible evidence of Virginia's prosperity the day before yesterday. We saw a man light a cigar with a two-dollar bill, and he is not a man who is classed as a millionaire, either. But he could afford to do it, for it was a bill for $2 we had sent him for subscription.

Long Prairie Argus: The paper trust is "busted," so we are told, but the price of paper remains the same. The tariff on wood pulp and paper must come off.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: It used to be that you could fool part of the people part of the time, but you couldn't fool all the people all of the time. Then it got so you could fool the people any old time, but the time is fast approaching when the people will fool the bosses all of the time. Governor Cummins down in Iowa is demonstrating to the people that when they want to they win.

McIntosh Times: Some men and some newspapers go along through life and scarcely ever offend anybody, for the reason that they never express an opinion of their own on any subject. Such men and newspapers are of little or no use to the state or community, as neither can do their duty without offending some one.

Red Wing Republican: Now look out for a boom in peanuts. They are recommended by vegetarians as a substitute for high-priced meats.

Hibbing Tribune: We seem to have returned this year in a measure to the good old days they tell about when the office sought the man. Despite his reluctance to again enter public life, there has for months been a steady and growing demand upon Hon. W. E. Culkins to file for the Republican nomination for congress to succeed J. Adam Bede.

Princeton Union: The Ripple Compass says that "the key to political favor still resembles a corkscrew." An impression has always been entertained by us that it resembled a bungstarter to broach a barrel.

Anoka Union: When a few men get together and make up a list of delegates in each ward, and the voters go to the caucus and don't know who a single delegate favors for governor or any of the state offices, he is apt to conclude that it would be the right thing if the primary election law applied to state offices as well as to the minor ones.

Lake Crystal Union: If the people could elect about fifty new congressmen, who are not afraid to vote and do a little talking, at the coming election, there would be a wonderful change for the better in that body.

Eveleth Star: If investors are looking for easy money, let them buy land in Northern St. Louis county.

Austin Transcript: It is stated that whitefish have almost disappeared from Lake Ontario because, in former years, seining was allowed in shallow water near the shore, and millions of small fish were wantonly slaughtered. There are a few people in Minnesota who are fighting the game law. They want the glorious old privilege of killing at random in the woods and waters, and throwing away what they cannot use.

The Man With the Hammer.

Oh, what is the use of these stories of old, of deeds that were daring and hearts that were bold?
Come, let us have at 'em with hammer and mace; let's rip 'em and slash 'em till never a trace
Remains of their glamor, their glory and pride; to ashes reduce them and scatter them wide.

Ho-ho for the tale of young Mr. Revere, a tale to the schoolmarm and pupil so dear!
Ha, ha for his horse that came clattering by, foam-flecked from his bit to his nethermost thigh—
Revere couldn't ride on a three-legged stool, and I know for a fact that the nag was a mule!

Ha, ha, for the story of Washington's ax that showed his devotion to plain, simple fax—
That cherry tree tale is too silly by half and would bring a broad smile to the lips of a calf.
The tree was a sapling of turpentine small, and Washington never went near it at all!

And Barbara Frietchie, threescore and gray haired, who bade Stonewall Jackson to shoot if he dared,
At which Jackson didn't, but passed on his nag, with never a shot at that beautiful flag—
The story's the veriest, totalest bosh; the thing she hung out was old Barbara's wash!

And so they run on in a ne'er ending stream—tales flimsy and idle and vain as a dream.
Old Put and his hill and Bill Jonah's big whale—fish stories like that have the steadiest sale;
Sir Walter, Queen Bess, and the puddle and cloak—the garment was old and Sir Walter was broke.

I'm after them all with my hammer and tongs, and I'll bring each one down just where it belongs.
I'll smash 'em and slash' em, I'll cut 'em all down; I'll whack 'em and crack 'em and do them up brown;
For I am the Man with the Hammer of Steel, who doesn't want much, but must have it real!

—JOHN KENDRICK BANGS in New York Sun.

One Excellent Result.

New York World: One result of the beef trust exposures will be to encourage local butchers in the smaller towns to do their slaughtering for themselves, as it was done in the days before the trust. And it will not be as easy to kill these small competitors by rebates as it was before.

LAUGHING GAS.

New York Sun: Knicker—What proof have you that meat is injurious?

Booker—Well, aren't the meat eaters of Queen Elizabeth's time dead?

Philadelphia Ledger: "I wonder," said the young wife, as she mixed the dough, "why they call this an 'angel cake'?"

"Probably," replied her husband, "because anyone who eats the cake is in immediate danger of becoming one."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Did the judge give him a long sentence?"

"No."

"I thought he said, 'Ten years.'"

"Well, you don't call a sentence long that has only two words, do you?"

Milwaukee Sentinel: "Senator, how does it seem now that you have attained wealth and influence?"

"Well," replied Senator Badger, with a far-away look in his eyes, "it's relieved me of a lot of worry, but it's getting mighty tiresome trying to make a fork take the place of a knife."

Washington Star: "What did you think of your daughter's graduation essay?"

"I didn't permit myself to think much about it," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I simply did my duty and admired it."

Chicago Tribune: The Hessians at Trenton had surrendered.

"Ah, well," they said, "think how much more disastrous it might have been if we had had to make a hurried retreat."

Later, as if to verify their words, came the Hessian fly.

The Old Times.

"Those were good times," he used to say;
"It's not like those times nowaday."
And sadly would he shake his head;
"No times like those today," he said.
Then sat and mumbled absently;
"The world ain't what it used to be,
For times were good, I tell you, then—
I wish we had 'em back again."

His eyes were dim, his hair was gray;
"The old times were the best," he'd say.
"Why I remember when——" and he Would ramble reminiscently.
"It's not the same," his plaint he'd raise;
"It's not much like the good old days
When I was young, and I can see
The world ain't what it used to be."

"It's not the same," and he would look
Out where the idly winding brook
Curled on along its shallow ways
And babbled of those better days.
"It's not the same; it's plain to see
When I was young," and murmured then
"I wish we had 'em back again."

So thin and feeble and so old
He was, and tremblingly he told
Of all those better days: "To me
The times ain't what they used to be.
Why, I can remember when——" until
His saddened eye would brim and fill
With tears that Sorrow brings and lays
Upon the bier of other days.

"Those were good times——" until one day
I stood beside him as he lay
With such a peaceful smile that seemed Brought from the days whereof he dreamed.
"Those were good times; they were in truth,"
I whispered for the days of Youth
Are always fair—and I knew then
He had the old days back again.
—J. W. FOLEY in the New York Times.

To the Great American Traveler.

Oh, Bill,
You are the Peepul's will,
The calm, still
Absence which, not yet, but soon
Will burst into a triumphant tune
Of resonance which will resound
From Lincolnneb to the Whitehouseground.
Oh, Bill,
The Peepul's will
Cries loud for you,
The only simple, pure and true.
Democratic spirit from
The present time clear back to Tom.
Gee,
Bill,
When presently you strike this land
And raise aloft your guiding hand,
The sail will tremble to your boom
And other stars will sneak for gloom.
The North, the South, the East, the West
Proclaim you now as Bill the Best;
And later they will ask you that
As Most Distinguished Democrat
You'll be their leader in the fight,
As matchless as electric light.
The past is done;
16 to 1
No longer is the silver sun
That glows and guides. A newer gleam
Irradiates your party's dream.
And, gee whiz,
Nobody knows what it is;
But, Bill,
You are the Peepul's will;
And the Parkers and Belmonts and Hornblowers,
Who formerly thought they were It,
Must hide in the cave of the castoffs
And write on its pediments: Nit!
Wow, Bill;
Wow!

DOES NOT SUIT THE PRESIDENT

Thinks House Meat Inspection Bill is Entirely Inadequate.

Washington, June 15.—A careful examination of the substitute prepared by the committee on agriculture of the house for the meat inspection amendment of Senator Beveridge in the animal inspection bill was made yesterday afternoon by President Roosevelt. The president, it can be said, is opposed to the house substitute in its entirety. He may not go so far as to veto the bill, if it should be enacted by congress with the house amendment attached, but he has made it clear that he does not deem the house provision at all adequate.

Representative Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the house committee on agriculture yesterday submitted to the president the substitute for the Beveridge amendment agreed upon by the committee, and sought his opinion. The president told him frankly he could not approve it. In fact, the president told Mr. Wadsworth he disapproved it absolutely. The president pointed out that the failure to provide for inspection at all hours, either of the day or night, was a defect which he could not pass, and he emphatically disapproved also of the court review clause of the substitute.

The president did not lay special stress upon the proposition of the committee that the government should pay the expenses of the inspection, although he feels that if the government is to pay the inspection, the provision will render the law less effectiv.

After the conference with Chairman Wadsworth, President Roosevelt wrote a letter to him stating in a definite and formal way his objections to the substitute for the Beveridge amendment, drafted by the house committee, in order that his position might be distinctly understood, and be on record.

It is regarded as possible by the president that congress may enact the meat inspection law along the lines marked out by the house committee. If such a measure should be enacted the president does not say he would not approve of it, but if he should sign it, he would append to his signature a memorandum which would indicate definitely and unmistakably to the country that he regarded the law as inadequate and unsatisfactory.

After careful reflection, Chairman Wadsworth of the house committee on agriculture, has decided that he will not discuss in any manner the objections of President Roosevelt to the meat inspection amendment as reported by the house today. He will, however, refer the matter to his committee at a meeting to be called without delay, when the details of the objections which the president is understood to have pointed out will be considered.

FEMALE DAVID

Shies Rocks at the Goliath of Her Intense Wrath.

Glenwood Springs, Col., June 15.—J. Wulssohn is not a believer in the statement that a woman can't throw a rock and hit a mark. He has personal reasons for doubting that statement. He got hit in the head with a rock which three seconds before had been given speed by the hand and arm of Mrs. Susie Schwarzman. It must be said, however, that this is the third time Mrs. Schwarzman has practiced the sport of throwing rocks at Wulssohn. It must also be said that she knocked out all of the windows, the door and transom of Wulssohn's store with previously thrown rocks before she succeeded in landing on his temple.

Wulssohn and Mrs. Schwarzman's husband are rival dry goods store proprietors. Their places of business are right across the street from each other. Mrs. Schwarzman maintains that Wulssohn has been indiscriminate in the use of the English language as applied to her. Wulssohn maintains that his rival and his rival's wife are attempting to blackmail him.

Some time ago Wulssohn installed a phonograph as a business getter. Mrs. Schwarzman practiced throwing rocks at the phonograph, and finally succeeded in spoiling its voice. On a recent morning, as Wulssohn was coming down town, Mrs. Schwarzman attacked him with a curtain rod pole. She struck him twice over the head with it, and he got tired of the affair, and took the rod away from her, and went on down the street. She followed, and gathered all the rocks she could find, and had them stacked in her apron ready to begin operations when he reached his store.

When he began to unlock his store, she was about twenty feet behind. Steadying herself on one foot, with the apron full of rocks as a balance, she swung her right hand three times and let go. She knocked the transom out of the door eight feet above his head. Satisfied with the fact that she had hit something, she picked another rock, and this time taking it in her left hand, tried again and smashed a side window, and also disfigured a dress pattern on the inside.

Wulssohn was becoming agitated, not because he feared he would get hit, but because he was wondering who would pay the damage. She tried again, and the window on the other side was turned into a ventilator. Dropping the rocks that were in her apron, she picked one that was just the right size, and steadying herself, she is alleged to have thrown at a sign over the stairway to the right. This time her hopes were realized. Wulssohn had no idea that she contemplated throwing at the stairway, and as a result was taken unawares, and the rock hit him squarely on the temple. The wound produced is slight. During the afternoon he swore out a warrant for her arrest.

NO ONE TO TAKE PLACES OF PAST GREAT MEN.

London, June 15.—Interviewed upon the lack of great men during these latter days, Sir W. B. Richmond, R.A., the famous artist, made many interesting points. Among other things he said:

"Fashion is too subtle, too overpowering to overcome by words. One does not know the why and the wherefore of changes of front, changes of sympathy, changes of taste. There are too many elements which combine together to point out one of them.

"Hurry, newspapers, cheap literature not of the best, facilities of locomotion, commercial enterprises, the money market, unstable religious opinions, ignorance of the past, absence of chivalry with regard to the future, personal vanity, a lack of really great men, the power of mediocrity, the democracy of taste, individuality against ideals—are not all these acting together so that it becomes impossible to put one's finger upon the one spot?

"Is it not always the case that after a strangely vigorous epoch, a century which made Macaulay, Hallam, Mill, Gladstone, Disraeli, Wagner, Brahms, Keats, Shelley, Tennyson and Browning, Turner, Watts, Millais, Rossetti, Leighton and Burne-Jones there should be a lull?

"Nature asks to repair herself. The fever is over; we are in a state of convalescence, suffering from a plethora of past great men, with no one to take their places.

"Mediocrity surely always follows exceptional greatness. There is a lull, that is all. The old never comes back."

AUSTRIA TO WORK FOR UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE.

Vienna, June 15.—An expression of the views of Prince Hohenlohe, the new prime minister, will be found decidedly interesting. Among other things he makes the statement that the first measure dealt with by the government will be electoral reform on a basis of universal suffrage.

This, he said, should not only give citizens equal rights, but should also reform parliamentism and furnish a stable basis for national and international tranquility. If, the premier continued, an agreement could be reached between the national parties on the question of electoral reform, one might have grounds for hoping that an agreement might be reached on other matters of national concern.

For this reason the government would use every effort to bring to a successful issue a scheme of electoral reform. Referring to Hungary the premier assured the house that the government would safeguard Austrian interests with the greatest energy, being firmly convinced that a compromise fully satisfying both parties could be attained if both sides strove to this end loyally and willingly. But the agreement must cover all points at issue. Modifications in the present state of things detrimental to Austria's interest were rigidly excluded. The government expected to be loyally supported in this matter in the chamber and would not take any step without the sanction of the house.

In regard to internal administration, the government would support the legitimate economic and social demands of all nationalities.

The premier re-affirmed the government's intention of straining every nerve to bring about a compromise between the parties regarding electoral reforms, for the sole aim of the government was to consolidate Austria from a national and social point of view.

AN INJUSTICE DONE PACKERS

Committee From National Manufacturers Report on the Stockyards.

Chicago, June 15.—The committee of the National Association of Manufacturers appointed to make an examination of the packing establishments at the Union stock yards yesterday completed their work and will present their report to the national association. The committee consisted of P. R. Van Cleve of St. Louis, president of the association; D. M. Parry, vice president of the National Association of Indiana, and Eland Durand of Chicago, vice president for Illinois. All are practical business men and familiar with the general conditions of factory work. They say in their report that with no announcement of intention, they presented themselves before the packers, and requested to be allowed to make an investigation on their own account. They were given the freedom of the plant, single or collectively, with guards or without, as they might elect.

The committee, in summing up, decided that the reports which have gone out regarding the packing establishments had been grossly exaggerated, and that a great injustice had been done, as well as an irreparable damage to the greatest industry of the country. Also, that while many details of a trivial nature might be improved upon, the general conditions, involving sanitation, general cleanliness and a production of wholesome food were far better than the average hotel kitchen, or even the kitchens of a large percentage of private residences.

The sanitary conditions for workmen in the summer time, while not perfect, were all that could be expected, where so many are congregated in close proximity.

TRAIN BADLY WRECKED BY SPIKE IN THE RAILS.

Marietta, Ohio, June 15.—The southbound passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad, which was due in this city at 7:30 p. m. last night, jumped the track at Elba, eighteen miles north of here, while going forty miles an hour. The engine, baggage car and tender all went over an embankment, and the balance of the train rolled on the side. Engineer Vaughan was badly scalded, and may die, and Fireman Shackles was internally injured and will die. J. J. Maroney of Marietta, Ohio, was badly cut with glass. The smoking car, with sixty passengers, was overturned, but no one was seriously injured. The ladies' coach left the track, but no one was hurt. An investigation shows that a spike had been driven into the rails, which was the cause of the accident.

INDIANA WOMAN

Saw a Vision of a Double Tragedy In Colorado.

Kokomo, Ind., June 15.—When Mrs. Millard Ashburn of this city was informed that her sister, Mrs. Weldy C. Baldwin, had been killed by her husband, who, in turn, had killed himself, at Canyon City, Colo., she burst into tears and exclaimed: "I knew it would happen! I knew it would happen! I saw it all in a dream only a few nights ago. I saw Baldwin kill poor Margaret and saw the people who broke into the house cover her with a sheet. I told my husband all about it, and he laughed at me—but I was sure Margaret was going to be murdered."

Weldy C. Baldwin was a prosperous young farmer, living near Russlaville until two years ago, when he went to Colorado, thinking a change of climate would improve his health. A few months later Mrs. Margaret Hodges of this city went to Colorado. She and Baldwin met in Canyon City and were married. Her maiden name was Margaret Jackson. Several years ago she married Frank Hodges of Indianapolis, from whom she was divorced three years ago, coming immediately afterwards to Kokomo.

Information reaching relatives of the dead man and woman in regard to the occurrence at Canyon City is very meager. The dispatches from the authorities say the couple recently had been heard quarreling. Baldwin, it is said, reproached his wife on account of attentions she received from other men. It is believed he became insanely jealous and killed her and then ended his own life. His father, J. J. Baldwin, lives in Russlaville.

Weldy C. Baldwin was respected by the people here, and all his acquaintances were shocked when they learned he had killed his wife and then taken his own life.

WAS KILLED BY A WILD ELEPHANT IN SUMATRA.

Geneva, June 14.—Mme. Stroun has just received details of the death of her husband, Dr. Stroun, the Swiss scientist and explorer, who was killed by an elephant in Sumatra. The doctor and the natives who accompanied left Palemburg for the interior of the island, and had just entered the interior of a great forest when an enormous bull elephant rushed at them.

Dr. Stroun and a servant who was leading, mounted on an elephant, fired, but apparently without effect, as the animal continued on its career. It attempted to crush against a tree the elephant upon which they were riding, and then flung the driver into the air and attacked the scientist.

The doctor was lifted and thrown to the ground with such violence that his rifle was broken into several pieces and he was finally trampled to death.

ROSTAND HOLDS SERVANT IS A MAN OF HONOR.

Paris, June 15.—The interesting views held by M. Edmond Rostand, the famous dramatist, on the relations of master and servant, came out recently in the Bayonne court, where his coachman, whose name is Rondoni, is charged with assault.

A man named Cazalis had insulted Rondoni, who had in consequence boxed his ears to provoke a duel.

He produced a letter from M. Rostand, who stated that in his opinion there could be no distinction between masters and servants in the matter of honor and that the coachman had as much right to provoke a duel with a man who insulted him as his master could have.

"My servants are looked on as friends of the family," continued the dramatist, "and I think Rondoni was quite right to treat Cazalis as he did, for Cazalis called him a 'liveried menial' and no man of honor need put up with such an insult as that."

TAKEN FOR A BURGLAR

Drunken Man With Leather Pipe Case is Fired Upon.

Poor Marksmanship of Store-Keeper Saves His Life.

Mistaking a drunken patron for a burglar, and an empty pipe case for a revolver, J. W. Johnson, who keeps the small confectionery store and pool hall opposite the car barns, was saved from committing manslaughter, early this morning, only by his poor marksmanship.

Mr. Johnson was just closing up his store, about 2 o'clock this morning, when a stranger entered. He held in his hand something that resembled a revolver, and Mr. Johnson instantly leaped to the conclusion that it was a burglar. He grabbed his revolver from behind the counter, and fired point blank at the stranger. Five times he pulled the trigger, but only one cartridge exploded. After the shot the man staggered into the rear room and fell down beneath the billiard table.

Horrified at the thought that he had killed a man, even in what he supposed was self-defense, Mr. Johnson rushed to a telephone and called up the police department.

"I have killed a man out here," he told the operator at headquarters, who had already learned of the shooting from the men at the car barns, who had telephoned the station that a shot had been fired across the road.

Sergeant Gillen and Officer Sass were sent to the scene, and on arriving at the store they found Johnson pale, and shaking with fear, waiting for them. In the rear room they found a man, named William Blair, sprawled on the floor beneath the billiard table, and sleeping off a very noticeable jag. He was unharmed, and lying beside him was a leather case for a pipe, which he had drawn from his pocket with the intention of having a smoke, just as he entered the store.

Blair had been around the store earlier in the evening, in an intoxicated condition, and Mr. Johnson had put him out. He had come back just as Mr. Johnson was closing up, and nothing but a miracle saved him from at least a serious wound, as the revolver was fired point blank, from a distance of only six or seven feet. That Mr. Johnson happened to miss his aim at that distance seems almost incredible, and Blair undoubtedly owes his life to one of the most unusual strokes of good fortune.

Blair was placed under arrest on the charge of intoxication, and was this morning fined $10 and costs by Judge Windom, in the municipal court.

What would have been done with Mr. Johnson if his shot had taken effect is a matter of doubt, but thanks to his lucky miss, he was not even placed under arrest. He was completely unnerved by the incident, and was shaking and shivering like a leaf when he told his story to the police.

RECORDS OF REGICIDES.

Peter of Servia Retires Choice Gang of Cutthroats.

Belgrade, June 15.—The five regicide officers whom King Peter retired from the army on full pay in order once more to establish diplomatic relations with Great Britain, and also to account for his own fears, participated as follows in the horrible tragedy of three years ago:

Col. Popovitch, who was apparently devoted to King Alexander and Queen Draga, worked for two years drawing young officers into the plot. He drew up a detailed plan of action and took a train from Nish to Belgrade on the night of the murder, arriving just as the deed was accomplished. He immediately took the lead in the slaughter.

Col. Mashin was Queen Draga's brother-in-law. He had fallen into disfavor and joined the conspiracy. He assisted at all the meetings of the conspirators, donned a uniform on the night of the murder and presented himself at the fortress as the new commander. He led the troops to the palace. When he arrived there the king and queen and Gen. Petrovitch, the commander, had not yet been discovered. With his help they were found and murdered.

Lieut. Col. Mishitch had long been suspected as being a malcontent. The minister of war had overlooked him for promotion and although King Alexander made amends by summoning him to the palace and personally conferring upon him the rank of lieutenant colonel, Mischitch never forgot the slight and took the most active part in the crime and assisted at the death scene.

Lieut. Col. Lazarevitch was frequently in disgrace under the former regime and only remained in the army through the influence of his relatives. He played a sanguinary part in the tragedy and with his own hands stabbed both the king and queen.

Capt. Kostitch was the commander of the royal guard. He had been loaded with favors by King Alexander, but having failed twice in the examination for the rank of major, joined the conspiracy to better his prospects.

WALTZ FOR WHOLE WORLD.

Dancing Masters Would Fix Rules for Style in All Nations.

Boston, June 15.—A proposal to attempt to codify the rules of the waltz, so as to make the dance the same the world over, was taken up by the National Association of Dancing Masters, in convention in Winthrop.

The association plans to publish a book in which the laws of the waltz shall be set down as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. However, when the matter was brought up there was trouble right away, for it came out that there are as many systems of waltzing as there are dancing masters, say about a million.

"What is the use of talking," said Prof. Jamieson of Texas. "A discussion of systems in waltzing is a waste of time. Each man's system is the best. All are excreable except my own."

On this point all were agreed, but each dancing master was anxious to see the other fellow's system demonstrated.

One such was President Duryea of New York, whose system is based on a triangle which melts into waves of dancing motion. He said there is only one way to dance correctly, and his is the way.

"Mine makes a diamond-squared figure, and is dead against the square figure. How can anybody dance that gracefully? You don't dance in squares—you dance in a wave line."

The "square-headers" called the innovation "heresy," but nevertheless its grace and efficacy made many converts. President Duryea said in counting the steps in the waltz it should be 1, 2, and the "and" finishing the third step and preparing the other foot for the next move. In the two-step the count was 1 and 2, the heel coming down on the "and." The two-step also is to be codified into a book, notwithstanding the plans of the dancing masters to put it out of business. They referred to it as the "so-called two-step."

The discussion waxed hot, and one professor demanded to know the difference between gliding and sliding.

"Snow slides down a roof, and a pencil glides over the paper," Prof. Sampson of Lynn explained.

With that Mr. Sampson took a slide of eighty feet, which landed him into the lap of a dancing mistress.

One of the most interesting delegates is Louis Kretlow of Chicago, who has been a dancing master forty-nine years, and still can step as gracefully as many a younger man.

A SILO FOR SEBENIUS

Well Known Local Cattle Fancier in Favor of It.

Will Have One on His Place in Near Future.

Among those owners of cattle in this part of the state who are considering the use of the silo to provide winter feed for their herds is J. Uno Sebenius, who is a most enthusiastic cattle breeder, and who has a fine herd of cows on his London road place.

"It has been clearly demonstrated," said Mr. Sebenius, today, "that the silo is practical, and owners of cattle in this part of the state are gradually coming into full realization of the fact. The dairying business is becoming a most important factor in the growth of this part of the state, and the silo is sure to be one of the means of success.

"There is no question but that many small dairymen have a very hard time of it just now. Owners of larger herds are under a great expense, too. Many of them do not have any land under cultivation to furnish them with feed for their herds, and as a result, they have a hard time making both ends meet. They buy their feed, and there is the dealer's profit to be reckoned on.

"In older communities, farther south, all the dairymen raise their own fodder, and it can be fed to the cattle at cost. Fodder corn can be raised successfully in this part of the country, and the thing for dairymen to do is to grow some, wherever they can, and establish silos to keep the product of their fields green and nourishing to the cattle during the cold, winter months. The cattle become very fond of the green stuff which has been kept in the silo, and not only that, but cows flourish on it.

"Cattle must be carefully looked after, if they are to be made a profitable investment. Dairymen must exercise a great deal of care over their herds, for when the milk they sell becomes poor, their customers drop them and seek other dealers. The silo certainly goes a great way toward keeping the cows in good condition and, once erected, there is little expense attached to it.

"As soon as I can make arrangements, it is my intention to build a silo on my place. I am contemplating other improvements, which I shall let other cattle fanciers know about in due time."

PLAYED FOR MANY HOURS

When Dud Pomeroy Cleaned Out Fourteen Men at Denver.

Late Senator Wolcott Was Among Those Who Sat In.

Denver, June 15.—W. H. Milburn, known from coast to coast, became reminiscent and recalled the famous forty-hour poker game, known all over Colorado as Dud Pomeroy's game, because in it Pomeroy cleaned out fourteen men, including the late Senator E. O. Wolcott, of everything they had with them but their clothing.

"That game," said Milburn, "was played in Cliff Bell's gambling house at Sixteenth and Laramie streets twenty-one years ago. It began one morning at 11 o'clock and lasted forty hours.

"About ten of the players sat it out, while three or four dropped in and lost all they had and quit. Among those who dipped in and got cleaned were Nat Goodwin, the actor; Pat Sheedy and myself.

"Those in the long play, so far as I can remember, were Senator E. O. Wolcott, then state senator from Georgetown; Jim Sampson, a Denver gambler; Charley Sampson, who was a gambler in Denver for thirty years, and played poker ten years on Mississippi river boats before coming to Denver; Jim Moon, another gambler, who was shot fifteen years ago here in Denver; Johnnie Murphy, a sporty young fellow who made Denver his home; John Sherman, who was killed in Deadwood in '88; Tony Delaney, known at that time as 'Denver's handsome boy,' and Dudley Pomeroy, a professional gambler, who died of consumption last December while on his way to Colorado from Cincinnati.

"What made the game famous was the fact that Dud Pomeroy cleaned every single man who sat in it. He did it without slipping a cog backward, too.

"At that time Senator Wolcott was not a wealthy man. He was a dead game sport, though, and would bet $1,000 on the turn of a card if he had the money.

"He dropped in Billy's place by accident and found half a dozen or so of the sports and gamblers there. Somebody suggested a game and the rest agreed.

"Dud Pomeroy won the first pot and that started him on his road to wealth. When he got up he had all his pockets full of money, watches, cuff buttons and shirt studs. In all he cleared up about $20,000 on that game.

"Wolcott soon began to bet heavily, and it didn't take long for him to get down to his last hundred. That last hundred he bet on a bobtailed flush and Dudley called him with a couple of little pairs.

"Wolcott then began cashing bank checks. After he had been up and down for about thirty hours the crowd declined to accept any more of his checks, and he was forced to play along gingerly.

"He never recovered far enough to get a good start and quit cleaned clear out. He couldn't wear his collar home because Dud Pomeroy had the buttons. But when he left the place he patted Dud on the back and smiled.

"'Dud,' he said, 'I'm mighty glad you did it. I don't mind what I lost. I'll get some more.'

"Then he sauntered out with his coat collar turned up, whistling a tune. Next day he redeemed his jewelry, as did most of the other fellows.

"Tony Delaney was the owner of a thriving cigar store when he sat in the game and received his first cards. When he got up he had no more cigar store than a rabbit. Dud Pomeroy owned the store. He also owned Tony's watch and cuff buttons, which the 'handsome boy' valued at $300.

"Nat Goodwin was showing in town then, I think. At any rate he was in Denver, and he heard of the game. Everybody in town heard that the game was going on and dozens of people dropped in to look on.

"Goodwin was a spectator about three minutes. Then his palm got to itching for cards and he sat in.

"It took him about three hours to lose $300 cash, his watch and his sleeve buttons.

"Then he wanted to play on his personal checks, but the bunch didn't know how good they were. Actors didn't look like millionaires to prosperous gamblers in those days and Nat's checks were refused. So he had to drop out. He didn't care, though, and left apparently satisfied with the fun he'd had.

"Pat Sheedy, if I recollect correctly, dropped $500 in cash in about three hours. That was all he had, so he, too, made a polite getaway. As for myself I lost all I had, but it wasn't much and it didn't take me long.

"When the game was over Pomeroy, with half a dozen watches, $10,000 in cash, and sleeve and collar buttons a-plenty, arose and put on his hat. Turning to the busted gang he said earnestly:

"'Boys, I've been pretty lucky. I didn't mean to be, and I can't say I'm glad I was. I'd like to hand you back all this pawnshop junk, but I know you wouldn't take it. It'll be here, though, any time you want it.'

"Dud meant every word he said. He knew that to offer any of the boys his jewelry would be nothing less than an insult. There was one thing he could do, however, and he did it. He spent $100 or about that for drinks for the crowd. Then he staggered out of the place and went to bed.

"When Dud left I turned to Delany.

"'Tony,' I said, how on earth did he do it? Was it luck?

"'Luck, no,' replied Tony. 'It was his nerve. All through the game I'll bet he didn't hold more than threes more than half a dozen times.'

"It turned out so. Dud admitted next day that he had made his big haul on his ability to bluff."

"CHICAGO RED" IS ARRESTED

Young Man With Damaging Record is in Toils Again.

"Chicago Red" is in the clutches of the law once more.

"Red's" right name is Lawrence Cannon, and his record is by no means an enviable one. He was released after serving a term for grand larceny in Stillwater, a little less than a year ago. Shortly after his release the bartender at the Metropole hotel had a valuable gold watch stolen. Cannon was in the city at the time, but the police did not connect him with the robbery, until a short time ago, when they claim to have secured some positive evidence of his connection with the theft. He was accordingly placed under arrest this morning, and will probably be arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon or tomorrow on a grand larceny charge.

SOME FADS OF FASHION.

Women of England Undeterred by Edict Against Killing Birds.

London, June 15.—New York dispatches to English newspapers would seem to suggest that New York girls are pursuing their avocations in costumes of almost Godiva-like simplicity. These lurid reports of peekaboo blouses have caused anxious eyes to be cast at the costumes of British girls. The result is a report that what used to be known here as the pneumonia blouse is practically extinct. High collars with less and less transparency below seem to be the order.

This momentous investigation brought other facts to light. Despite the queen's pronouncement of disapproval of the destruction of birds in the interest of millinery, especially aigrettes, the most fashionable nights of the opera at Covent Garden have shown their aigrettes and birds of paradise plumes which seem to grow larger every day are the most conspicuous feature of women's head dress. The paradise plumes are frequently worn attached to a gold or silver fillet and are worn quite to one side of the head. The empire style is also in vogue.

The longnette, which so long held undisputed sway, has been dethroned by the maisette, a shade which has been taken up by the young queen of Spain. The maisette is made like a longnette save that a tortoise shell shade takes the place of glasses which, however, can also be attached to shade the eyes from the glare of the sun and electric light. The latest departure in parascls is so tiny as to resemble a doll's sunshade. They are intended for use especially by lady motorists in the park and while shopping. It is called the automobile umbrella. It has a folding stick, and may be tilted any direction.

For mere man is told that the Panama hat is dead, and the silk hat is dying fast. One arbiter of fashion prophesies that Ascot on Tuesday and Thursday will see a bare majority of top hats. On Wednesday and Friday they will be considerably in the minority, as they have been on the cloth lawns at Kempton and Sandown this season.

GIVES HIS FEE TO PRISONER

Witness Says Latter Will Need it After His Release.

Feeling sympathy for the man against whom he had testified, William Curtis, engineer at one of the elevators, this morning asked the clerk of the municipal court for permission to turn over his witness fee to the prisoner, Harry Lemont, a waiter, who was arrested for stealing a large brass gong worth about 30 from the elevator building.

Lemont was arraigned on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, and bound over to the grand jury after having a preliminary hearing.

"If he doesn't need it now, he will when he gets out," said Mr. Curtis, as he turned the warrant for the money over to Capt. Resche to give to the prisoner.

RAILROADS

OFFICERS SELECTED

Annual Meeting of the Minnesota Transfer Railway Company.

Two-Cent Railroad Fare Might Injure Western Lines.

The annual meeting of the stockholders and directors of the Minnesota Transfer Railway company was held in St. Paul yesterday. The directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

D. Cunningham, superintendent of the La Crosse division of the Burlington, succeeding George P. Lyman, assistant general freight agent of that road; H. B. Earling, assistant general superintendent of the Milwaukee, succeeding E. D. Sewall, former assistant general superintendent of that road; C. H. Hubbell, general superintendent of the Rock Island, succeeding H. S. Cable, also general superintendent of that line, and C. S. Stickney, vice president and general manager of the Great Western; A. W. Trenholm, general manager of the Omaha; L. F. Day, vice president and general manager of the Soo; H. J. Horn, general manager of the Great Northern, and H. F. Whitcomb, president of the Wisconsin Central, the seven last named being all elected to succeed themselves.

These seven directors are really chosen by the railroads which they represent, all of the railroads holding stock in the Transfer company.

The directors elected officers for the year as follows: President, C. S. Stickney, succeeding E. D. Sewall; vice president, H. J. Horn, succeeding George P. Lyman; secretary and auditor, L. A. Robinson, controller of the Omaha, re-elected; H. P. Upham, president of the First National bank, re-elected; solicitor, W. H. Norris, counsellor of the Milwaukee at Minneapolis, re-elected.

THE 2-CENT FARE BILL.

Claimed It Would Seriously Injure Some of the Western Roads.

Local railroad men are showing a good deal of interest in the bill providing for a universal 2-cent railroad fare and the issuance of mileage books of from 1,000 to 5,000 miles at 2 cents a mile, introduced in congress Tuesday by Congressman Sherman of New York.

Local railroad men assert that the bill is an unreasonable and unjust one. Officials elsewhere say they expect more harm to result from the agitation that the measure may arouse than from the possibility of its adoption. The Chicago Record-Herald says:

"While several railroads operate under the regulations of a 2-cent fare law in Ohio, it is pointed out that these lines traverse a densely populated territory, and that passenger rates cannot suffer such a blow as would be dealt the Western railroads crossing sparsely-settled country and where the cost of operation apreciably reduces the gross receipts. Many of the officials contend that certain roads could not maintain the excellent service demanded by the traveling public if they were compelled to operate under such regulations."

Cheap G. A. R. Rate.

Minneapolis, June 15.—Announcement that the Central Passenger association members have individually granted a 1-cent rate for the round trip to the G. A. R. encampment at Minneapolis is the good news that Secretary W. G. Nye received yesterday by wire from the chairman of the association. This fixes the rate from all points East at 1 cent and will result in an enormous travel from beyond Chicago that might otherwise have been diverted, particularly from Ohio, Indiana, Southeastern Illinois and Michigan.

PUTS ON NEW EQUIPMENT

Nine New Cars Placed on Park Point Line.

The Interstate Traction company has purchased nine new cars for its line on Park Point, increasing the total rolling stock to twenty cars.

Three of the new cars are equipped with motors. These arrived yesterday and were taken over to Park Point last evening, tracks being laid on the aerial bridge and both approaches connecting with the city street car line and the Minnesota Point line.

The other six cars are of the open trailer style and will be placed in commission tomorrow.

Beginning tomorrow the Interstate Traction company will inaugurate a 10-minute service on Park Point and will maintain it right through the summer season. With twenty cars in service it is expected that there will be plenty of rolling stock to more than take care of the largest crowds that the Point is likely to have at any one time this season.

THE PRESIDENT IS NOT AT OUTS WITH WILSON.

Washington, June 15.—Definite denials is made at the White House of stories that have been published of differences or friction between President Roosevelt and James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. The rumor that Mr. Wilson is to retire from the cabinet is declared to be absolutely without foundation.

Mr. Roosevelt considers Mr. Wilson one of the most valuable members of his cabinet, and it may be said for the secretary that his relations with the president are absolutely cordial and that he has no intention of resigning.

COURT HEARS MANY EXPERTS

Much Testimony is Adduced in McAlpine-Millen Case.

In the trial of $150,000 civil action brought by John McAlpine against John Millen it was expected this noon that Mr. McAlpine would have practically all his evidence in by evening. For several days he has been introducting expert testimony as to the "run-over" in pine logs, scaling and prices of the various grades of lumber.

It is understood that Mr. Millen, in his defense will also have a considerable amount of expert testimony, but that he will not call as many witnesses as Mr. McAlpine did. One of the features of the defense will be the $25,000 counter claim that Mr. Millen has against Mr. McAlpine for money alleged to have been advanced the latter and which Mr. Millen claims has never been paid back. The case will probably be submitted to Judge Dibell about the middle of next week.

APPOINTMENT OF INSPECTORS

Under Proposed Meat Amendment May Give Commission Trouble.

Washington, June 15.—The civil service commissioners are disturbed over the provision in the meat inspection bill prepared by the house committee on agriculture, regarding the appointment of the inspectors to be employed. As drawn, the bill makes it mandatory for the secretary of agriculture to appoint the inspectors from time to time, but there are no restrictions placed upon the secretary as to the character of the inspectors to be appointed. The qualifications of the inspectors are not set forth.

Commissioner Greene said today: "If the bill passes in that form, forty-five persons now on the civil service eligible list for appointment as meat inspectors in all probability will go unappointed, inasmuch as it is fair to presume that political pressure will have weight in filling the places. An examination is scheduled for June 25, and already many inquiries are reaching the commissioners regarding it. I am speaking conservatively when I say that as the result of that examination from fifty to seventy-five additional eligibles will be obtained, and that the commission can furnish inspectors as fast as the agricultural department can use them."

Commissioner Greene said further that the examinations of the commission are extremely practical, and that those who pass them are thoroughly qualified for the work.

DOES NOT NEED BABCOCK.

Washington, June 15.—Representative Babcock of Wisconsin, received a letter today from District Attorney Jerome of New York, stating that Mr. Babcock's testimony will not be required before the grand jury in the pending insurance cases. He was asked some time ago by Mr. Jerome to throw light on certain campaign contributions.

AIRSHIP HAS TROUBLE.

Berlin, June 15.—Major Von Parseval's airship made its fifth ascent today. There was no wind blowing, and after describing a wide course, the ship became unsteerable, owing to a tube used in the inflation flying loose and becoming entangled in the screw. The descent was easy, and the machine was not damaged.

HIS MIND AFFECTED

Illness and Homesickness Undermines Reason of Austrian Boy.

Came to America Recently With Army Deserters.

Health impaired by sickness, homesick and lonesome, Frank Herle, a 17-year-old Austrian boy, has been brought from Hibbing to Duluth to be examined for insanity.

The county authorities were notified yesterday that Herle was at Hibbing showing signs of mental derangement, and with no means or friends to take care of him. Sheriff Bates went after him, and he was placed in the jail at Hibbing last evening for safe keeping. During the night Herle became quite violent, and tore off every stitch of his clothing.

Since that time he has been quieter, but his actions clearly indicate that he is suffering from some derangement.

From some of Herle's acquaintances at Hibbing, portions of the boy's history were gathered by the authorities, and there is believed to be enough evidence to warrant the county authorities in calling on the United States officials to deport Herle as an alien.

According to the story told, young Herle has been in this country only a few weeks. He went to Hibbing direct from New York, and was employed in the construction of a schoolhouse when he contracted a heavy cold that brought on his sickness.

It is said that Herle left his father's home in Austria last spring to assist some deserters from the Austrian army to reach a port from which they could ship for America. When he left home he had only a dollar in his pocket, and had no intention of going away, but the deserters induced him to cast his lot with them, and they either paid his fare over, or in some way smuggled him over on the steamship Philadelphia.

Unable to speak or understand English, and having no acquaintance among his own countrymen, the Austrian boy, as soon as he became sick, became despondent, and brooded over his troubles until his mind became affected.

Unless an insane person has resided within the state a year, neither the state nor the county authorities are compelled to take care of him. Under the laws the United States government is required to take charge and deport all insane or diseased aliens, and it is likely that Herle will be taken to New York, and the same steamship company that brought him to this country will have to take him back to the port he left in Europe.

COLE'S PHYSICIAN SENDS HIM TO BED

Nominee Will Not be Available to Visitors for a Week.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. L. Cole, the Republican nominee for governor, has been instructed to keep in bed by his brother and physician, Dr. A. B. Cole, and word given out that he will not be available to visitors for a week. He is at the Ryan hotel.

"My brother must have rest," said Dr. Cole today. "He has been on his feet for a week, almost night and day, and it has aggravated a malady from which he suffers occasionally. It is not a nervous breakdown, as some are telling around."

Mr. Cole is of a nervous temperament, and it was given out more than once at Duluth that he had practically collapsed under the strain, but he generally could be found hard at work. His managers say these stories have been circulated for a purpose. He was to have had a conference with the candidates today relative to the makeup of the next state central committee, but that will now be delayed until probably week after next.

SUMMER OUTINGS.

Y. M. C. A. Members Have Plans for Picnic and Outing Parties.

Saturday morning members of the boys' department will begin their Saturday outings. The boys will leave the boys' building at 10 o'clock, taking the car to West Duluth, and from there will hike to Proctor, where they will visit the Proctor Y. M. C. A. and the car shops. Each boy will include in his lunch two slices of bacon and an egg; the boys will cook their dinner along the way, returning to the city by 6 o'clock.

The Knights of Sir Galahad picnic will take place Monday. The members will leave the building at 10 o'clock, take the car to Lakeside, and walk from there to Lakewood. The day will be spent in playing baseball and various athletic sports.

DREYFUS CASE AGAIN.

Paris, June 15.—The supreme court today began consideration of the results of the inquiry which has been going on for the last twenty-seven months relative to granting Alfred Dreyfus another trial. The hearings are secret. The private sessions will last four days, after which the public arguments will be made. A decision is expected at the end of the month.

La Crosse, June 15.—Burglars last night broke into the three largest churches at North La Crosse and carried away everything of value, the churches being completely stripped of decorations and gold vessels. Two of the churches robbed were Catholic and one Lutheran. Several thousand dollars' worth of plunder was taken, and the interior of the buildings torn to pieces by the vandals.

MORGAN THINKS THE CANAL WILL PAY WELL.

Washington, June 15.—Senator Morgan expressed the opinion in the senate today that the Panama canal will prove a paying investment. The statement was made in connection with the reading of a letter written him by Gen. George W. Davis concerning the profitable character of the Suez canal. In that letter Gen. Davis said that the stock of the Suez enterprise commands a premium of 900 per cent on the Paris bourse. "Let us get rid of the idea that we are going to give away a great deal of money in connection with the canal," said the Alabama senator. "I believe that if it were a stock concern the stock would be worth $500 on the $100 within a few years after its completion, notwithstanding I fully appreciate the physical difficulties in the way of building a canal at the place decided upon. Let us, therefore, put away all hysteria and despair on the financial feature of the canal project. The figures on the Suez canal are reassuring on that point."

ASSIGNED HIS FIRE INSURANCE

Local Concern Sues Company That Insured a Debtor.

Whether a fire insurance company has a legal right to go ahead and make a settlement with a policyholder in event of a loss, when the policyholder has assigned all rights and claims to a third party, is a question that will come up for the courts to decide in the action brought today by the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company against the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance company of Springfield, Mass.

According to the complaint filed for the local concern by W. J. Stevenson, its attorney, J. W. Clark executed to Harvey Wing, July 2, 1903, a promissory note for $225, payable in a year at 7 per cent interest. It is claimed that Mr. Wing assigned the note to the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company, and that Clark never paid more than $100 on the note.

It is further claimed that Clark insured his stock of merchandise at McGregor for $1,500 with the Springfield insurance company heretofore mentioned, under the form known as the "Minnesota Standard Policy."

The stock of merchandise was destroyed by fire Jan. 28, 1905, and Clark is said to have furnished all the proper proofs to the insurance company, but had effected no settlement when, to secure the note held by the Wright-Clarkson company, he assigned to that concern all his rights and claims under the policy, for a valuable consideration. The Wright-Clarkson company claims that Feb. 2, 1905, before any settlement had been attempted, it notified the insurance company of the assignment by Mr. Clark, but that at a subsequent date it went ahead and settled with Clark for $1,200, although the loss was more than $1,500. The mercantile company claims that it has demanded payment of the fire loss under the assignment of the policy, but that it has been refused and has never been able to collect on its collateral security. Judgment is asked for $163.85.

ROBBED EXPRESS COMPANY.

New York, June 15.—Louis Grossman, a 19-year-old helper on a wagon of the United States Express company, was arrested in this city today, charged with having devised and operated a system whereby he and his brother, William Grossman, robbed the express company of nearly $10,000 worth of goods. William was also arrested.

FRANKLINS WIN PENNANT

All Games in School Baseball Schedule Are Not Played.

On account of the wet weather and the short school term, the interscholastic baseball schedule was not fully carried out. A number of the boys on the teams, as soon as school was over, left the city, and others went to work.

The Franklin school won four games, and took the other two by forfeits, standing first in the league. The Madison school came second, having only lost one game. The pennant will be made of silk, and suitably lettered, and will be presented to the Franklin school at the opening social of the boys' department in September.

* * *

The boys' department has organized a baseball team, which will go by the name of the Triangle Baseball club. Henry Swensen was elected manager, and will have his men ready for next week. Following is the line-up: Louis McAdams, center field; Alphonse Walters, right field; David McLeod, catcher; Robert Knox, pitcher; Henry Swensen, first base; Perellous Landfald, left field; Sam Jones, short stop; Walter Ushrud, second base; George Anderson, third base.

Challenges can be sent to H. Swensen, care of boys' department Y. M. C. A.

LOWER COURT IS REVERSED

In the Case of Julius Koschman vs. Charles R. Ash.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today reversed the finding of the lower court in St. Louis county in the case of Julius Koschman vs. Charles R. Ash, in which the plaintiff was given a verdict for injuries. The case rested on the condition of a sledge hammer, and the supreme court held that the duty of ascertaining the condition of the hammer rested on the employe.

The Carleton county court decision, in the case of Charles Mattison, administrator of the estate of Willie Mattison, deceased, vs. the Minnesota & North Wisconsin railroad, was affirmed. This was an action to recover for the death of Willie Mattison. The supreme court ruled that it was for the jury to decide whether there was contributory negligence on the part of the parents.

Other cases decided were:

Meeker county—Frederick Lockwood vs. G. S. Geir et al, reversed and new trial granted.

Swift county—R. R. Johnston vs. Town of Clontarf et al, affirmed.

Cities cannot vacate streets for private corporations with impunity. If they do, they must pay for the loss suffered by property owners. With this view the supreme court, in an opinion filed today, reverses the Hennepin district court in the case of W. H. Vanderburgh, appellant, vs. the city of Minneapolis, and Chicago & Great Western Railroad company, respondent.

The company is let out of the cause of action, but the city must pay. The suit was one to recover for property damaged by the closing up of a street.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Retail Grocers' Association Holds Its Annual Meeting.

The Duluth Retail Grocers' association held its annual meeting Wednesday evening and elected officers for the coming year, listened to speeches by officers of the State Association of Grocers and made preliminary arrangements for the grocers' picnic, which is to be held some time in July.

About 125 members of the association were present and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

The following officers were elected: President, George H. Schulenberg; first vice president, Charles Kauppi; second vice president, A. Borgen; secretary, Burt Holcomb; treasurer, W. B. Logan; board of directors, Simon Clark, J. G. Ostby, M. B. Rush, J. E. Roos, H. J. Oppel, John Moir and A. H. Donald.

Interesting addresses were made to the members of the association by J. J. Ryan, secretary of the Minnesota Retail Grocers' association; T. J. Cummiss, a director of the state association, and A. C. Clausen of Crookston, president of the American Biscuit company.

The association intends to make the grocers' picnic this season a record-breaking event and the preliminary steps toward it were taken at the Wednesday evening session by the appointment of a committee on arrangements, with Burt Holcomb as chairman. This committee is authorized to select the date and place and make any and all arrangements as may be considered necessary to make the affair a successful one. The committee will meet within a few days and take action.

IS ARRESTED IN NEW YORK

Washingtonian Goes to Gotham and Lands in Prison Cell.

Friends Exaggerate Story to Humiliation of the Victim.

Washington, June 15.—There is a citizen of the District of Columbia, a man of more than average good behavior, who is going about declaring that he is firmly resolved upon two things, namely, that he will never again, under any circumstances, visit New York city, and that he will never again drink anything stronger than unfermented grape juice.

"For the following excellent and sufficient reasons,' he explains, in a voice tremulous with wrath, humiliation and penitence. "A bunch of horse bugs got me to promise to go over to New York with them to see the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont park.

"I had to stick to my desk, cleaning up a lot of work, till within 15 minutes of train time, and I didn't have time to take any luncheon. I made the train by a whisker, and as soon as I got my wraps disposed around my chair, I started for the buffet car to get a chicken sandwich or so, and a bottle of something soft and carbonic, meaning to dine after reaching New York.

"A number of the Moquis of my party went out to the car with me, though I tried to sidestep them; I could foresee trouble if I sat with that crowd, without having any luncheon to sustain me in my high resolves that I might have made. But it was no use.

"They tossed that 'be a good fellow' gag at me, and, anyhow, they were just going to drink a little teenchy bit of a toast to a friend of all of us, who was being married that day in Philadelphia. I said mine would be vichy and milk. They remarked that that would be pretty cold-blooded, drinking vichy and milk to the married happiness of an old pal.

"There was no fanning them. I tried to give the no-luncheon excuse, but they derided me as being childish. And so I had to string along and let them do the ordering—no, I didn't exactly have to, but I was idiotic enough to look at it that way.

"Well, we toasted the married couple quite a few times. At Baltimore an amateur violinist of high repute over there, and a good fellow, got aboard. He had his fiddle with him.

"We all knew him. The gang dragged him into the buffet car, and, after some more of that toasting thing, they made him get out his instrument and play things.

"No use of dwelling upon this buffet car part of the story. It's painful. Those ruffians, anyhow, had all had their luncheons and I hadn't.

"So that by the time the train pulled into Jersey City I was spiked some and I knew it. I stood at the front of the ferryboat in crossing the river to get the cool air, but it wasn't much use.

"We were all going to the same hotel on upper Broadway and we went up in the elevted train. When we got off at the Thirty-third street station I met a fellow on the platform whom I knew.

"I stood for a minute and talked with him, while the other fellows went on to the hotel, only a couple of squares away; so that I was a detached member of the party when I started down the elevated steps. I had that common, onnery, good natured feeling that follows an afternoon on a buffet car that I was far from being acute.

"At the bottom of the elevated steps a rollicking, sharp faced chap noticed me laboring under the burden of my heavy grip.

"'Let's carry that luggage for you, pal,' he said, clamly taking the bag from my hand. 'Not going far, are you?

"Yes, I was imbecile enough to let him take the bag. He went ahead of me after asking the name of my hotel, and I stopped for half a minute to buy some evening papers.

"When I got through buying the papers the rollicking looking chap was gone. Of course he was gone. I had been a plain, every day come on, and I knew it.

"I went over to the hotel to see if, by any chance, the fellow had taken my bag there. I don't need to say that he hadn't.

"There was nothing very valuable in the bag, only clothes, but I was sore over having tossed it away so foolishly. So, without looking up the other fellows to have them guy me about it, I got into a cab and went to a police station to complain of the way my bag had been separated from me.

"Do you know what the man at the desk did? He just smiled at me in an indulgent, patronizing sort of way, and he said:

"'Oh, I guess your bag will be all right; we'll just take care of you for a little while, pardner.'

"But this familiarity wasn't the worst of it, not by a blamed sight. He nodded to the door man and the door man led me to a cell, and may I never see another sunset over the Virginia hills if I didn't find myself locked up in that police station as an individual incapable of caring for myself.

"Well, I spent four hours trying to get my friends at the hotel to the station, but the reports came back to me every time that they couldn't be found. They had gone off from the hotel to dine somewhere else, and after that they went to the theater and there was absolutely no chance to get into communication with them.

"I sent out about $12 worth of messages to New York friends, but none of them could be located—out for the evening, all of them. I offered to leave all sorts of currency collateral, but they only smiled amiably at me and said:

"'No, chum, y'd only get touched for your wad if we turned you loose. Better take it easy and you'll be out in the mornin'. Nothin' goin' t' happen t' you in here. This ain't no court case. We're just takin' care o' you so's you won't be rolled f'r your bundle.'

"And that's all there was about it. I had to spend the night there and fume and cogitate damage suits for millions of dollars against the city of New York.

"At dawn the ruffians with whom I'd gone to New York on the buffet car came tearing to the station in cabs, and they danced around in front of my cell, making hobgoblin faces at me, treating me as a horrible example and making terrifying comment on the awful evils of the bowl. Then I went with them to the hotel, and I slept for sixteen hours.

"See the Metropolitan handicap? See nothing! I didn't want to see it. What I needed was rest and a chance to cool out against the city of New York, and it was the little white bed for me.

In the meantime those fellows had taken in the Metropolitan and started back for Washington immediately after, and when they got here they industriously spread the report that I had run amuck on Broadway, with a bolo in each hand, and that it had required eight large, beefy policemen of the Broadway squad to sit on me and hold me down on my way to the station in a patrol wagon.

"Yesterday afternoon a couple of Washington detectives, friends of mine, strolled into my office with serious countenances.

"'Too bad, old man,' one of them said to me, 'and of course, you fully understand how we hate to do it. But these things happen, you know. Afraid we'll have to take you along with us. We haven't any idea that you did it, but you can explain all that to the chief.'

"I couldn't penetrate their infernal gravity, and I became alarmed. They said that a jewelry robbery had occurred at an Atlantic City hotel a couple of days before, and that the robbery had been traced to a man occupying a room at a certain hotel.

"The suspect had escaped so hurriedly that he'd left his valise behind him. The valise bore my name and Washington address, written on a slip pasted on the inside of the bag.

"Those two detectives kept it up until, feeling pretty shaky, if I didn't look it, I'd got my hat and stood ready to accompany them, and then they broke into a roar, and one of them went out into the hall and brought in my bag. The sneak thief who had taken it from my hands had really been captured at an Atlantic City hotel.

"All too shattering experiences of that kind. Hot little old Washington for mine. I used to think the stories of those traps and pitfalls of New York were exaggerated, but now I know different—I've been shown!"

IMPOSSIBLE TRINITY.

Los Angeles Times: Francis Wilson, at the Players' club, was narrating reminiscences of the stage.

"In early youth," he said, "I went upon the road with a stock company. There were only eleven members of the company, yet we often produced plays involving twenty-five or thirty characters. Hence a doubling-up process; even at times, a tripling-up process, if such an expression may be used.

"Our repertory embraced nearly a hundred plays.

"One night the manager came to me and said:

"'Get ready to rehearse "The Adventuress" for next week, Frank. I'm sorry for you, but you are cast for three parts in this piece—Mannering, Grandpa Vane, and Diamond Dick.'

"I laughed scornfully.

"'It's quite impossible for me to take the three parts of Mannering, Grandpa Vane and Diamond Dick,' said I.

"The manager frowned. He was a strict disciplinarian.

"'Impossible?' Why is it impossible?' he growled.

"'Well,' said I, 'it is impossible because in Act IV, Scene II, Mannering and Diamond Dick get into a fight, and Grandpa Vane rushes on and separates them with a club.'"

AUTO LANGUAGE UNDERSTOOD.

Boston Herald: His automobile had balked, as automobiles will, and even if he was Robert Lee Morrell of the Automobile association, he couldn't persuade it to go. Fruitlessly he labored, with oil can and monkey wrench, until he was hot, dirty and disgusted, and only the presence of a crowd of children prevented him expressing himself as the situation demanded.

But at last he must speak or explode. Near him was a sweet little maiden with golden hair and deep blue eyes.

"Run away, little girl," he said, "there are a few things I would like to say."

"Go right ahead," said the child, "my pa has an auto, too."

PESSIMISM PROFOUND

Situation in Russia is Strained to the Breaking Point.

Agitation Among Workmen is Increasing Everywhere.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—The press is unanimous in its profound pessimism over yesterday's events in the lower house of parliament. The situation is strained to the breaking point. The attempt of the military procurator, Gen. Pavloff, in behalf of War Minister Rudiger to shift the responsibility for the military executions to the minister of the interior is a palpable evasion of the issue raised by the house and has echoed throughout the country. The result is that a storm of indignation has been aroused and is being augmented by a cool attempt of the government and its demand for the expulsion of Mutianoff. Whether the government dares follow up legally the refusal of the house to expel M. Utianoff and its flaunting of Procurator Pavloff is now the question. Unless the government is definitely resolved to give battle, the Goremykin ministry must fall into the chasm between it and parliament, which is now unbridgeable. M. Aliadin, leader of the peasant workmen group, openly boasted from the rostrum yesterday that the death of the ministry would be the country's reminder of the government's refusal to abolish the death penalty.

Some of the papers believe that yesterday's events foreshadow the government's intention to dissolve parliament and they emphasize the military conspiracy of the officers of the guard regiments, which is progressing unchecked before everybody's eyes, at the capital. It is significant that the Novoe Vreyma hitherto a thick and thin supporter of the government, is silent today. The Rech and the Strana, which of the liberal papers, best keep their heads in times of stress, sadly comment on rapidly waning chances of an understanding being arrived at between the emperor and parliament. They consider that the only hope now lies in the emperor discarding his evil advisers immediately and trying the experiment of surrounding himself with representatives of the people.

The agitation among the workmen here is increasing, and several strikes are already in operation. At a meeting of 5,000 Social Democratic workmen last night, it was declared that parliament had engaged in futile talk for a month, and had done nothing, and that the workmen must have recourse to a general strike. Representatives of the bakers announced that bakeries would be closed in a few days, and that the city would be without bread.

The trial of fifty-two deputies and workmen charged with attempting to set up a republic during the disturbances of last fall, has been fixed for Aug. 1.

Tula, Russia, June 15.—The flour mills and grain warehouses here are burning.

Moscow, June 15.—The agitation among the workmen here is general, and the strike is in full progress. Largely attended meetings of a revolutionary character are held nightly in the industrial sections, and big demonstrations are made in front of the prisons. In the resolutions adopted, support is pledged to parliament only so long as it persists in its fight against the bureaucracy.

Kursk, Russia, June 15.—Thirty peasants who were charged with devastating the estate near here of M. Stickinsky, minister of agriculture, have been acquitted by the jury, owing to the testimony furnished regarding the extreme harshness of the superintendent of the estate.

Tvor, Russia, June 15.—Cossacks and dragoons have been dispatched to two districts near here where the peasants, losing patience at the inaction of parliament, are taking possession of lands.

Mohilev, Russia, June 15.—The proprietor of an estate in this vicinity, who refused to distribute his land to the peasants, has been killed.

Novgorod, June 15.—Several proprietors of estates in this province have been beaten and driven off by the peasants.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY.

Los Angeles Times: David Willcox, the well-known coal operator, told at a dinner in New York a story of amateur photography.

"There was a certain police captain," Mr. Willcox said, "who had bought a camera, and become deeply interested in developing, toning, enlarging, reducing, and the various other photographic processes.

"Shortly after he had embarked on this new hobby, the police captain got an order for the arrest of a man who had fled to a neighboring town. Along with the order came the man's photograph. The captain hastened with the photograph to his studio, and there he copied it, developed the negative, and made six prints.

"Writing the terse order, 'Arrest this man' on the back of each print, he sent them immediately to the neighboring town, whence, the next day, he received the following dispatch:

"'Have arrested five of the incriminated men, and hope to land the sixth before nightfall.'"

REACHES HIGHEST OFFICE.

George W. Buck Exceptionally Honored by Advanced Body of Masons.

George W. Buck of Duluth yesterday was unanimously elected imperial sovereign of the Knights of the Red Cross of Constantine at Chicago. This is the highest possible office in the order and it is a great compliment to Mr. Buck personally and to the Masons of the state of Minnesota.

The Knights of the Red Cross of Constantine is one of the highest orders of Masonry. To become one a Mason must be both a Knight Templar and a thirty-second degree Mason, and then it is only by honorary election that a Mason holding both of these degrees can become a member of the Red Cross of Constantine going into battle convinced of victory because of seeing a red cross blazing in the sky.

Mr. Buck is one of the highest Masons in Minnesota. Aside from the honor just conferred upon him at Chicago yesterday, he is a thirty-third degree Mason and is a past grand commander of the Knights Templar of the state.

"Small service is real service—while it lasts;" and Herald want advertising is real advertising—and for a thousand purposes, ample advertising.

MARINE.

CRESCENT CITY AWAY

Released Wreck Starts for Lake Erie With Mariposa.

Tug to Catch Her at Two Harbors to Steer.

The steamer Crescent City left here in tow of the steamer Mariposa this morning, and will be taken to some shipyard on Lake Erie for repairs. It is expected that she will be in commission before long. The Crescent City was wrecked at Lakewood last November, and was released this spring. She went in charge of Capt. W. W. Smith, marine superintendent of the Pittsburg Steamship company.

At present she is lying at Two Harbors, and this afternoon the Union Towing & Wrecking company will send a tug there to help steer her down as far as the Sault, after which other arrangements will be made for the lower lakes.

TWO LAUNCHINGS SATURDAY

Big 600-Footer to Drop in Water at Chicago.

Two freighters will be launched at the yards of the American Shipbuilding company. The steamer William G. Pollock, named for the well-known iron man, will be dropped into the water at the yard, Cleveland. The Pollock is building for the Valley Transit company, of which W. H. Becker is manager. The Pollock will be christened by Mrs. W. H. Becker.

The steamer Henry H. Rogers, the second of the four 600-footers building for the Pittsburg Steamship company, will be launched at the South Chicago yard at noon tomorrow. Miss Marion H. Rogers of Chicago will christen the big freighter in honor of her uncle.

The new boats will be ready to go into commission in about thirty days.

PARTY ON ROBBINS.

Visiting Duluth Just Now---Captain Changes Boats.

A party of Columbus people, who came up on the steamer Francis L. Robbins, are in the city today. They are: H. C. Beeson, secretary of the new Pittsburg Coal company; Dr. L. M. Early, Thomas E. Glenn and H. G. Huston.

The Robbins is sailed by Capt. H. G. Haybarger, who, while one of the youngest masters on fresh water, is one of the few men sailing the Great Lakes who is licensed to sail salt water. He will probably complete his service with the Robbins on this trip, as he is scheduled to sail the steamer W. G. Pollock, which will be launched at Cleveland tomorrow.

KAFFIRS DIED OF POISONING

After Eating Canned Meats That Had Been Thrown Overboard.

London, June 15.—A fresh lot of questions relating to the Chicago meat packing disclosures are being prepared for presentation in the house of commons next week. Michael Hicks-Beach, son of the former chancellor of the exchequer, will ask War Secretary Haldane to inform the house of the quantity of Chicago canned meat supplied to the troops in South Africa, during the late war and what proportion of enteric deaths ought more properly to have been described as due to "ptomaine poisoning."

Another question is based on the discovery in the dining room of the house of commons of a box marked "Armour's (St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City) Chickens." Frederick W. Smith, Unionist, will inquire what portion of the food supplied to the house comes from Chicago. There was an incidental mention of canned meats in the course of today's inquiry into South African war stores scandals. Evidence was given to the effect that army officers sold 20,000 cases of canned meats, including the Armour brand, Helmet brand and Mitchell's brand, to a contractor for two cents a pound. The contractor complained that the meats were bad and returned the cases. The officer who sold the canned meats testified that he subsequently ordered the "filth to be dumped into the sea" and much of it afterwards floated ashore and was picked up by Kaffirs who ate it, with the result that a number of them died of ptomaine poisoning.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Philadelphia, June 15.—Rev. Edward B. Hodge, secretary of the board of education of the Presbyterian church and president of the Presbyterian Publishing company, died today of a shock following an operation performed yesterday.

St. Louis, June 15.—William A. Hodgden, 81 years old, superintendent of music in the St. Louis public schools, dropped dead yesterday while talking to a pupil in the board of education building. He is survived by a widow and two children.

LEST HE GO HUNGRY.

Los Angeles Times: Missionary S. Anthony, who is continuing the work of her distinguished sister, the late Susan B. Anthony, said recently, apropos of marriage:

"It is selfishness, boorish selfishness, that more than anything else, lies at the root of unhappy unions. Sometimes it is the wife who is the selfish one. Sometimes it is the husband. I think you'll agree with me, though, that it is the husband more often than the wife.

"A happening of a day or two ago presents a vidid and sad picture of too many marriages.

"An old couple came in from the country with a big basket of lunch to see the circus.

"The lunch was heavy. The old wife was carrying it. As they crossed a crowded street the husband held out his hand and said:

"'Gimme that basket, Hannah.'

"The poor old woman surrendered the basket with a grateful look.

"'That's real kind o' ye, Joshua,' she quavered.

"'Kind?' grunted the old man. 'Gosh! I wuz afread ye'd git lost.'"

OLD-TIME STAGE DRIVER.

Kansas City Journal: William Hamilton, probably the last of California's old time picturesque stage drivers, died not long ago in a San Francisco sanitarium. He had been known on the Pacific coast for over half a century, and had made and lost more than one fortune. For the last dozen years he had been cared for by men who in the past had learned to value him for his honesty and courage.

COULDN'T REMAIN SILENT.

Kansas City Journal: One of the most ingenious methods known of keeping the letter of a bet and breaking its spirit was that of a New Yorker who wagered that he would not speak to a human being for a month. He lost his wager, and before many days passed his loneliness began to pall. At last he hit upon the device of expressing his sentiments by addressing his remarks to his dog.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD ST. PAUL GIRL IS KIDNAPED.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eva Kellar, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mabel Kellar, 216 Summit avenue, was kidnaped by two men in a buggy today while playing in the front yard of a neighbor. The two men drove off at a gallop down Smith avenue, and then turned down Sixth street and were lost to view before an alarm could be given. The little girl continuously screamed until one of the men stilled her cries with his hand.

Mrs. Kellar was divorced a few months ago. Since that time she has been living with her mother, Mrs. Stocker. Mr. Kellar's residence is unknown. The police think he stole the child, either for spite or to get custody of her, which the courts would not grant.

RICH LAND GIVEN AWAY

Uncle Sam to Offer More Than Two Million Acres.

Indians Will No Longer be Extensive Land Owners.

Washington, June 15.—The last Indian lands of great importance and value will be thrown open to white settlement this summer. Uncle Sam is to give away something more than 2,000,000 acres of land belonging to the Crow, Shoshone and Flathead tribes, as announced previously in these columns. When these rich lands have been distributed among the lucky winners of the gigantic land lotteries the glories of the Indians as extensive land owners will have departed, for there will be little more property in their hands worth the white man's trouble to appropriate.

About 1,000,000 acres will be thrown open in the Crow reservation in Southern Montana and the same amount in the Shoshone, or Wind River, reservation in Wyoming; several hundred thousand acres will be opened in the Flathead reservation, near Missoula, Mont. It is estimated that from one-half to two-thirds of the acreage will offer opportunities for irrigation and the rest will be available for grazing purposes.

Of course irrigation works willhave to be course irrigation works will havo to be constructed, but all three reservations are well watered, and the government has begun extensive irrigation projects which will reclaim a large portion of the land not irrigable at the present time.

The largest of these government projects on the reservations is at Huntley, on the ceded strip in the Crow reservation. Here the government has been at work for a year or more, and thousands of acres of the lands to be thrown open will be converted into productive ranches within a few months from the time of the opening.

The land that is reclaimed by the government will have the actual cost of the reclamation work added to the amount paid by each homesteader. This charge will be comparatively small, the homesteader gets his land practically free and pays a nominal sum for a perpetual water right on a government canal.

The Shoshone reservation will doubtless be the first to be opened. It was to have been thrown open for settlement on June 15, but congress postponed the opening until August. This was done for the better accommodation of homeseekers, as it would allow time for the completion of the branch of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad from Casper to Lander, Wyo.

Lander is the point nearest the reservation, and will make the best point of registration. Work is being rushed on the railroad, and it will be completed in time to accommodate the thousands who will rush to get the valuable prizes in the great land lottery.

The Shoshone reserve is one of the largest in the country, containing nearly 3,500 square miles. It is surrounded by mountain ranges, which shelter the reservation from severe storms. It is one of the best watered reservations in the country.

Nearly all the land in Wyoming is rich and needs only the magic touch of water to make it bring forth immense crops. Wyoming holds the world's record for the largest yield of potatoes on one acre, and of late sugar beet experts have been turning to the state. The soil is the same as that of Colorado, which produces the finest sugar beets in the world.

This reservation is in charge of Superintendent H. E. Wadsworth. The agency is at Fort Washakie, named for the greatest chief of the Shoshone Indians.

There are about 1,500 Indians on the reservation, equally divided between the Arapahoe and Shoshone tribes. All are peaceable, owing to the work of Superintendent Wadsworth in stamping out whisky trading.

Only a few days after Mr. Wadsworth assumed office a pitched battle with bootleggers occurred in Fort Washakie, resulting in the death of two whisky traders. Since then there has been little or no whisky sold, and the condition of the Indians has improved.

Most of the lowlands, along the river bottoms, has been allotted to the Indians, each member of the tribe having his choice of a homestead before the lands are thrown open to the whites. The tablelands are the best for agricultural purposes, however, the Indian invariably selecting natural grass land in preference to a homestead that requires irrigation.

Registration points will doubtless be established at Lander and Shoshoni, the latter being a new town on the Chicago & Northwestern's new line. Shoshoni sprang up in a night, but within a few weeks boasted a newspaper and three banks. Other registration places will be established, and will be made known by presidential proclamation before the lands are opened.

It is estimated that there will be at least 400,000 acres of good farm land available for settlement in the Shoshone reservation. The climate is ideal, there being about the same percentage of sunshine as in Colorado.

The Crow reservation in Southern Montana is only a few hundred miles distant from Shoshone reservation and is just such a land of promise. It, also, is splendidly watered, and the climate is about the same as that of the Shoshone reserve.

The Crow reservation is under Superintendent C. G. Reynolds, who has brought the Crows out of their wild life and has put in effect a farm system which, if pursued for the next five years, will put the Crows among the self-supporting and wealthy tribes. Under the direction of boss farmers who are assigned to different districts, the Crows have made progress in agriculture—so much so that for two years they have given an annual fair at which the display of farm products would be a credit to white ranchers.

The Indians have demonstrated what can be done with the rich lands of the Crow reservation. Even under inexperienced hands immense crops are grown. Under systematic cultivation by white men the Crow reservation will become one of the great agricultural districts in the West.

The Flathead agency is near Missoula, Mont., Jocko being the headquarters of the agent, W. H. Smead. The lands that will be thrown open on this reservation are particularly well adapted to the raising of hay, wheat and oats. The Indians have raised much alfalfa. This reservation is also the center of the Montana fruit belt. There are only a few hundred Flatheads and the tribe is dwindling rapidly.

None of these reservations will be opened by a rush for the choicest lands. The injustice of this system was shown in the opening of Oklahoma, when "sooners" got much of the best land, and when the rest went to the men with the swiftest horses.

The last reservation to be opened with a rush was the Southern Ute reservation, in Southwestern Colorado, in 1899. Since then the government has opened all reservations under a system which is a lottery, but gives all an equal chance.

All names of persons properly registered are put in a huge box, which is shaken up until the slips of paper are well mixed. Then a blindfolded person—usually a child—draws out he numbers. The registered person who has the first number gets first choice of the land, and so on until all the available homestead sites have been given away.

It is estimated that the first choice on any one of the three reservations to be opened this year will be worth anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000, and any of the numbers in the first new hundreds will be worth nearly as much. The lottery is under direction of government officials.

In order to keep the element of speculation out of these affairs the government has decreed that no transfers of numbers shall be made.

The homesteads are divided into tracts of 40, 80 or 160 acres, according to their location for irrigation purposes. Irrigated land requires such care that not so much of it can be farmed as land that is watered by nature. In return, however, a well irrigated tract of forty acres will yield far more than a farm of four times that area in the rain belt, and there will be absolutely no chance for crop failure.

The rules are practically the same as those which have always applied to homesteading. The settler can prove up on his claim in five years, thus getting his ranch for nothing if he has made his residence there for that length of time; or he can commute or buy the property at the end of fourteen months' residence for $1.25 an acre. Exception is made of the land under government irrigation systems, each settler paying his pro rata of the actual expense of buildign the canals, dams, etc.

The many imitations of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve that are now before the public prove it the best. Ask for DeWitt's. Good for burns, scalds, chaffed skin, eczema, tetter, cuts, bruises, boils and piles. Sold by all druggists.

AIRSHIP UNDER FULL CONTROL

Of the Operator, Flies Over the City of Washington.

Washington, June 15.—An airship, under complete control, flying over Washington, was the spectacle witnessed yesterday. Thousands turned out to see the novel sight and cheered the navigator as he skilfully directed the craft.

The ship started from a point three miles from Washington on the Virginia side and was steered directly for the Washington monument. A slight mishap to the machinery caused the navigator to descend, the ship being safely landed close to the monument. In a half hour the ship again was in flight, and the navigator, after twice circling the monument at a distance of 400 feet, steered for the White House. He landed about fifty yards from the south portico. Mrs. Roosevelt was at the window when the descent was made and exhibited great interest in the strange-looking structure. After remaining on the ground for a short time, the navigator made another ascent, carrying the ship over the three newspaper offices, and then took a straight course down Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol, where it was received by thousands of people and also by senators and representatives and the employes about the building. The quorum in both houses disappeared, and all manifested great interest in the machine. The navigator passed over the capitol south of the great dome and then circled around and around over the plaza on the east front of the navy building, bringing his ship to the earth directly in front of the middle steps of the capitol. The large crowd cheered as he descended, showing absolute control of the machine.

After remaining about a quarter of an hour at the capitol, the navigator again set sail and, passing over the building north of the dome, started back to Virginia.

BABY COVERED WITH SORES

Would Scratch and Tear the Flesh Unless Hands Were Tied—Wasted to a Skeleton—Awful Suffering for Over a Year—Grew Worse Under Doctors—Skin Now Clear.

WOULD HAVE DIED BUT FOR CUTICURA.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh.

"He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My Aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. So great was her faith in it that she gave me a small piece of Soap to try and a little of the Ointment. I took it home without any faith, but to please her I tried it, and it seemed to dry up the sores a little.

"I sent to the drug store and got a cake of the Soap and a box of the Ointment and followed the directions, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since.

"He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for your most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. (signed) Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D., No. 1, Woodville, Conn, April 24, 1905."

IS NEARLY THREE MONTHS OVERDUE

Capt. Bernard Gilboy's Ship May be Earthquake Victim.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 15.—Relatives of Capt. Bernard Gilboy, bith in this city and Oakland, Cal., are greatly disturbed at the mysterious absence of the captain and the ship of which he was in command when last heard from. Capt. Gilboy is a native of this city, although he has been here at short intervals only since he was quite young. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gilboy.

Hankering after a life on the sea, Bernard Gilboy left Buffalo when about 17 years old, and he has since been sailing the oceans, most of the time making long voyages in the Pacific and to the Orient. He is now 50 years old, and is widely known on the Pacific coast as a sailor of ability, and his failure to reach Oakland and the fact that his vessel is long overdue have given rise to the fear that his ship and its crew may have been lost as the result of earthquake or other disaster.

For several years Capt. Gilboy has been in command of a steamship owned by the Charles Nelson company of San Francisco. The vessel is 325 feet long, 35 feet beam and has but 13 feet depth of hold, consequently in a severe hurricane or upheaval of the water she would more easily be a prey to the elements. Capt. Gilboy and his steamship, the Centennial, left Muroran, Japan, on February 24, with a cargo of 1,500 tons of sulphur bound for San Francisco. Under ordinary conditions, the vessel should have reached San Francisco on March 15.

Nothing has been heard of the Centennial, and a steamer was sent out two weeks ago in search of the ship. She is now nearly three months overdue. The officers of the company think that possibly her engines became disabled and that Capt. Gilboy under sail may have reached some out of the way port to make repairs. He must be at some port, however, where there is no telegraphic communication with the Pacific coast or he would have undoubtedly have notified the company and his family at Oakland of his safety.

Last September, Capt. Gilboy, several times ran the Spanish blockade with supplies for the Russians, but was finally captured by the Japanese, while trying to get into Vladivostok. After considerable delay, the war having ended, his steamship was released.

The first time he left Buffalo as a youth, Capt. Gilboy remained away ten years. He has now been on the coast for twenty-three years, with the exception of two or three brief visits to this city. He has a family consisting of four sons and a daughter residing in Oakland.

AMERICAN BOOT FACTORY TO BE STARTED IN DUBLIN.

Dublin, June 15.—At the last meeting of the council of the Dublin Industrial Development association W. J. Braugan, the secretary, informed the council that he had a communication from William Hayden, who has been commissioned by Mr. Hegarty of Boston to form a company for the establishment of a boot factory on American lines in Dublin. Mr. Hayden informed him that he had already secured substantial support from many people, and he had not the least doubt that it would be successful. The council expressed the opinion and the hope that the industry, when started, would be successful.

In a return just issued by the department of agriculture and technical instruction for Ireland some interesting statistics concerning banking and railways in Ireland are given.

According to this the deposits and cash balances in the joint stock banks at the close of December, 1905, stood at $227,000,000, as compared with $220,000,000 in the corresponding period in the year 1904. The amount of deposits and cash balances, which are compared by half years, show an increase in December over the figures in June.

On Dec. 31 last the estimated balances in the postoffice savings bank in Ireland amounted to $50,000,000, as compared with $49,000,000 in 1904. The accumulation of deposits in the postoffice savings bank show a steady increase in each half year.

In each year since 1884 there has been an increase and the balance in savings banks on Dec. 31, 1905, was nearly treble the amount to the credit of depositors at the close of the year 1885—the first year for which statistics are given. The total of the balances in the savings banks is the highest amount of which there is a record. The number of depositors has more than trebled in the course of twenty years.

Grandfather's Cure for Constipation

GREAT medicine,—the Sawbuck.

Two hours a day sawing wood will keep anyone's Bowels regular.

No need of pills, Cathartics, Castor Oil nor "Physic," if you'll only work the Sawbuck regularly.

Exercise is Nature's Cure for Constipation and,—Ten-Mile walk will do, if you haven't got a wood pile.

* * *

But, if you will take your Exercise in an Easy Chair, there's only one way to do that, and make a Success of it.

Because,—there's only one kind of Artificial Exercise for the Bowels and its name is "CASCARETS."

Cascarets are the only means to exercise the Bowel Muscles, without work.

They don't Purge, Gripe, nor "upset your Stomach," because they don't act like Cathartics.

They don't flush out your Bowels and Intestines with a costly waste of Digestive Juice, as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel, Jalap, or Aperient Waters, always do.

No,—Cascarets strengthen and stimulate the Bowel Muscles instead.

These are the Muscles that line the Food passages and that tighten up when Food touches them, thus driving that Food on to its finish.

They are the Muscles that turn Food into Strength through Nutrition.

* * *

Well,—a Cascaret acts on your Bowel Muscles as if you had just Sawed a cord of wood, or walked ten miles.

That's why Cascarets are safe to take continuously in health; and out of health.

Because they move the Food Naturally, digesting it without waste of tomorrow's Gastric Juice.

They thus work all the Nutrition out of it before it decays.

The thin, flat, Ten Cent box is made to fit your Vest Pocket, or "My Lady's" Purse.

Carry it constantly with you and take a Cascaret whenever you suspect you need one.

Thus you will ward off Appendicitis Constipation, Indigestion, — and other things besides.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERANS

Decline to Take Canadian Congregation Into United Church.

St. Paul, June 15.—Yesterday's session of the United Norwegian Lutheran church conference was enlivened by a discussion on the first installment of the committee report on applications of new congregations desiring to join the united church. A congregation in Canada, which had a clause in its constitution which did not make confirmation compulsory, was the cause of the discussion. The committee did not report favorably on the application. A few were in favor of sending the report back to the committee. After some discussion a vote was taken which resulted unfavorably to the Canadian church.

The following congregations were admitted: Salem, Todd county, Minn.; Black Earth, Dane county, Wis.; Dodgeville, Iowa county, Wis.; Bethlehem, Iowa county, Wis.; North Otter Creek, Iowa county, Wis.; Castlewood, Castlewood county, S. D.

Twenty more congregations have already applied, but their applications have as yet not been acted upon. Most of these will, in all probability, be admitted.

The Inheritance Tax.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Now that the two great political parties are about to appeal to the general public for suffrage, would it not be well to ask, one or both of them, to insert a plank in their respective platforms promising the speedy repeal of the monstrous law, known as the inheritance tax law. Of all the vicious and unjust laws placed on the statute books of the state of Minnesota, there is no doubt but that this inheritance tax law is the worst. It is bad because it is unjust; it is bad because it is avoided by wise investors, it is bad because in driving capital away from our state, it lessens our ability to cope with other states having no such law; it is bad because it has enabled trust and stock companies to secure the best property in our cities at low prices; it is bad because one cannot invest his surplus money in the state of Minnesota for the benefit of his heirs without the confiscation of a percentage of it.

It has depreciated the value of real estate and of all property which can be levied upon. Capital is slow in going into a state that is not content with collecting taxes for legitimate purposes upon all taxable property, but levies a tribute of 5 to 10 per cent on property on the death of the owner, often imposing great hardship on the heirs.

Hence it is that in Wisconsin and Minnesota, both farm land and city property is cheaper than it is in Montana, Washington, Idaho, California, Illinois or Iowa. Here in Minnesota farm lands and city property have no fixed value, and one cannot depend on any given price per acre or per foot for city property. All seems chance work as to whether a purchaser can be found or not. And why? Simply because Minnesota has ceased to be attractive to outside investors. We offer to sell you some farm land or city property, but in addition to paying us what the property is worth, you will have to insure your life or make other provisions to raise money to pay from 5 to 10 per cent to the state on the value of your property at your death. This is to be paid in the shape of an inheritance tax. This is really what it amounts to and outside capital does not come in; the real estate dealers make but few sales; improvements are slow; the mechanic is forced to go to another state and the property owner to sell cheap and go to a better locality.

And who buys? It is the trust and stock companies. Stock companies today own nearly all the best properties in our large cities and the inheritance tax laws does not affect them. And why? Simply because the stock is transferable on the books of the company, which are, perhaps, kept in New York; perhaps in Europe, and the company never dies. Therefore the state of Minnesota gets nothing. So the net result is that two pieces of property next door to one another are both taxed alike, but at the death of the individual owner the family pays the state from 5 to 10 per cent inheritance tax on one, but the company, which never dies, pays nothing on the other.

This law was put through the state legislature under the guise of labor protection as against the rich, and in order to pull the wool over the eyes of the people, an exemption of $5,000 was made with the supposition that labor had no higher ambition, but labor is just and wise and sees the injustice of the case, and realizes that it was a master- stroke on the part of large corporations to depreciate the value of our property. Hence it is that the value of the best business property today in Minnesota, St. Paul and Duluth, is about $1,500 per front foot, while in Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Spokane, all over the coast down to Denver, Omaha, Sioux City, New Orleans, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, etc., the value of property ranges from $1,000 to $7,000 per front foot, where building and other improvements are going on, labor gets good prices and enjoys general prosperity. Farm land in this state as well as in Wisconsin, is cheaper than it ought to be, compared with other localities.

To illustrate: Farming lands in Gellotin valley in Montana today sells up to $300 an acre; in the Paloose valley in Washington, up to $500 per acre; across the Cascade and on the other side of the Rockies, all the way from $300 to $500 per acre. Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, $100 to $500 per acre, whereas here in Minnesota, the so-called granary of the world, outside of city limits, $30 to $50 per acre. Now at this moment this matter is in the hands of the people. The politicians are a part of the people, but unless the people as a whole demand justice, the politicians can and will do nothing. So let this be the by-word of all voters: "Do away with the inheritance tax law first, and then legislate on other matters."

MAN WHO GREW WEALTHY ON $5,000 A YEAR SALARY.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 15.—The retirement of Robert Pitcairn as resident assistant to President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania recalls the fact that eSnator C. L. Magee once introduced Pitcairn at a dinner as a man who had worked for one corporation all his life, never, at that time, at a salary of more than $5,000 a year. Still, in that period, he had managed to accumulate property whose value is estimated at $20,000,000.

Pitcairn is interested in many corporations, principally mining and manufacturing, and is said to be the largest individual stockholder in the Westinghouse Airbrake company, outside of George Westinghouse.

Just as Mr. Magee said, Mr. Pitcairn's salary, until four years ago, was not greater than $5,000. At that time, however, he was made resident assistant to President Cassatt at $25,000 a year. He will receive half of that sum annually for the rest of his life. Pitcairn entered the service of the Pennsylvania in July, 1856, as telegraph operator, in Altoona, after having served as a messenger boy with Andrew Carnegie, for the old Atlantic and Ohio Telegraph company.

From the position of operator he was appointed ticket agent at Altoona, and then acting superintendent of the middle division of the Pennsylvania road, and in January, 1865, he succeeded Andrew Carnegie as superintendent of the Pittsburg division. In 1902 he was made resident assistant to President Cassatt.

Pitcairn's last day in office was spent in receiving friends. Among the letters was one from Andrew Carnegie. Pitcairn said it was lengthy, and contained much personal matter, which prevented him making its contents public.

YOUNG BRIDE IS HELD ON CHARGE OF BIGAMY.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 15.—Upon the advice of Prosecutor Lloyd, Jeanette Miller, 16 years old, of Camden, was held in $800 bail by Judge Barr on a charge of bigamy. She will have another hearing.

The complaint was made by Wesley Monroe, 21 years old, of South Carolina, who claims to be her first husband. He alleges that they were married by "the Rev. Paul H. Greeson" of the Apostolic Holiness Mission, in June, 1905. The second marriage, it is alleged, was performed by the bride's father, the "Rev. H. A. Miller," who claims to be an evangelist or a local preacher, on Dec. 2 last.

According to the story told to the justice of the peace, Greeson, in order to appease the anger of the bride's father, wrote the following, which he thought he had the right to do:

"The marriage I performed between Wesley N. Monroe and Jeanette B. Miller is hereby declared void.

"PAUL H. GREESON."

Monroe said that he met Miss Miller in 1905. In June they went to one minister, who refused to marry them unless they had their parents' consent. They then went to Mr. Greeson. He had never performed a marriage ceremony, not being a regularly ordained minister, but made inquiry at the city hall as to his authority and was told that the law was liberal. He then married them, after they had assured him that they were of legal age.

The girl's father sanctioned the second ceremony, in which Roy L. Quian was the bridegroom. It is asserted that Greeson did not record the first marriage, but Monroe says that Mr. Miller knew of it.

S.S.S. EXPELS BLOOD HUMORS

Itching, disfiguring eruptions, rashes, boils, etc., as well as pimples, black-heads and rough, scaly skins, show the presence of some irritating humor in the blood. These acids and humors with which the blood is filled are being constantly thrown off through the pores and glands, and the skin is kept in a feverish, diseased and unsightly condition. Nothing applied externally can change the condition of the blood or prevent the outflow of poisons and acids; only constitutional treatment can do this. The countless washes, salves, lotions, etc., that are used cannot reach the humor-laden blood and are, therefore, useless, except for the temporary comfort and cleanliness they afford. The acid poison in the blood, which is the cause of the trouble, must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. is a real blood purifier, possessing all the requirements to neutralize and remove the humor from the circulation. It completely eradicates every trace of the poison and restores this vital fluid to its natural state of purity S. S. S. cools the acid-heated blood so that instead of pouring ont acrid matter on the skin it feeds and nourishes it with health-sustaining properties, and the eruptions and diseases of the skin pass away. # WHEAT IS STRONGER

Prices Up on Continued Absence of Rain in Southwest.

Flax Is Quiet But Closes Stronger in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 15.—The American wheat markets closed stronger today because of continued lack of rain in Kansas and Nebraska and light Argentine shipments. Prices were considerably over those of yesterday during the latter part of the sessions, but fell off somewhat at the close. Liverpool closed ⅝d to ½d higher, Paris, ¼c lower to ½c higher, Antwerp unchanged to 1¼c higher, Berlin 1⅛c lower and Budapest ⅝c higher.

The Modern Miller is bearish this week. It says: "Better reports are received generally from the winter wheat states, Nebraska excepted, where the crop has further deteriorated because of the long-continued drought where the plant has headed. Many of the heads are reported to be blighted by the lack of moisture. Otherwise prospects have improved as a result. Most advices state that the heads on short straw have filled out well with plump berries. With favorable weather for harvesting, a good yield of unusually fine quality is probable."

The July option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅛-¼c in Chicago, ⅛-⅜c in Minneapolis, ¼c in New York, ¼c in St. Louis and ⅜-⅝c in Kansas City. The September option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and St. Louis, ½c in Chicago, ⅜-½c in Minneapolis, ⅝c in New York and ¾c in Kansas City. The October option closed ⅝c higher in Winnipeg.

Corn was stronger in Chicago, closing ½-⅝c up. It closed ¾d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅞c higher in Chicago.

September wheat opened ¼c higher at 82⅝c, advanced to 83⅝c, fell off to 83¼c, rallied to 83⅝c, fell off at the close to 83c, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. It is expected that the stock of wheat in store at Duluth will decrease 410,000 bus. this week.

Flax was quiet but prices better. Hull and Antwerp closed ⅞c up. Argentine shipments of flax were 368,000 bus, as compared with 296,000 bus last week and 464,000 bus a year ago. It is expected that the stock of flax in store at Duluth will decrease 80,000 bus this week. July flax opened ½c higher at $1.13¾, advanced to $1.14, fell off to $1.13⅜ and ranged between that and $1.14⅝ during the rest of the session, closing at that price, a gain of 1⅜c over yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Continued Absence of Rain in Kansas Gives Wheat Strength.

Chicago, June 15.—Continued absence of rain in Kansas and Nebraska was one of the chief factors that contributed to a strong tone in the local wheat market today. Other factors were small. Argentine shipments and firm cables despite the decline here yesterday. Shorts and commission houses were active bidders, but offerings were light. July opened 1⅛@⅛c to ⅜@½c higher at 82⅞c to 83c and sold up to 83¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 196 cars against 163 cars last week and 265 cars a year ago.

For July the highest point of the day was reached at 83⅜c. Late in the day the greater part of the gain was lost on liquidation by local longs. The market closed about steady, with July up ¼c at 82¾@¾c, the lowest point of the day.

Corn was in active demand by shorts and commission houses, and the tone of the market was strong. The urgent demand was largely the result of the continued drought over the great portion of the corn belt. July opened ¼c to ⅜c up at 52¾c to 53¼c and advanced to 53½c. Local receipts were 473 cars with 193 of contract grade.

Later July sold up to 53⅝c. During the last hour the market reacted somewhat and closed fairly steady, with July up ½@⅝c at 53¼@¼c.

In a wild scramble among shorts to cover oats for July delivery, that option today sold at 41¾c a bushel, an advance of 1½c over yesterday's highest price. The sharp advance brought out considerable profit-taking but the tone of the market held decidedly strong. Prediction of clear weather for the oats belt was the cause of the activity among shorts. The July option opened ⅝c to 2¼c higher at 40c to 41½c, sold at 41⅝c and then reacted to 40½c. Local receipts were 113 cars.

Trading in provisions was quiet but the tone of the market was firm. September pork was up 5c to 7½c at $16.65 to $16.67½. Lard was up 5c to 9c. Ribs were 5c higher at $9.27½.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Wheat at the close showed gains of ¼c for July and ½c for September. Last prices were at a reaction of about ⅜c from top point of the day. We regard this action of the market as healthy, because it shows that the trade is not going hotheaded on the buying side without taking profits in a liberal way as they go along. Such reaction as the market had at the close today invites buyers because there is unmistakable bull sentiment, and no end of supporting influences in the news, both home and abroad. Liverpool had light offerings of Manitoba wheat, and this, with the very light Argentine shipments, pushed the market higher, following our break of yesterday. Kansas and Nebraska are still dry and the forecast is for fair weather the next 36 hours. The Kansas crop is practically made, and rains now, instead of helping the yield, may injure the harvest. Union Pacific officials concede that the yield of the state may be under 60,000,000. Fresh bilght reports come from Nebraska. The most reliable people in that state claim that the prospects is only 50 to 60 per cent of a crop. Relieve wheat can be bought on all soft spots.

Corn—The forces under the corn market have not changed from previous days. The country oeffrs little corn, no matter how high the bids. The markets started today with a good volume of buying by the public. Offerings by cash people on the opening bulge were easily absorbed and the highest prices of the day were made later when the September price touched 53¾c. The close was ½c under the top. Large local receipts appear to have no bearish effect.

THE UNTIDY AFGHAN.

Los Angeles Times: A San Franciscan was praising Gen. Funston.

"A wonderful man," he said. "With such energy and zeal and fire as his, it is no wonder he achieved such quick success. "Gen. Funston is a great stickler for cleanliness among soldiers. I once heard him make a little speech on military cleanliness, in the course of which he told a story about an Afghan.

"He said that in one of the lesser Indian Hill wars, an English detachment took an Afghan prisoner.

"The Afghan was very dirty. Accordingly two privates were deputed to strip and wash him.

"The privates dragged the man to a stream of running water, undressed him, plunged him in, and set to upon him lustily with stiff brushes and large cakes of white soap.

"Well, after a long time, one of the privates came back to make a report. He saluted his officer and said disconsolately:

"'It's no use, sir. It's no use.'

"'No use?' said the officer. 'What do you mean? Haven't you washed that Afghan yet?'

"'It no use, sir,' the private repeated. 'We've washed him for two hours, but it's no use.'

"'How do you mean it's no use?' said the officer angrily.

"'Why, sir,' said the private, 'after rubbin' him and scrubbin' him till our arms ached, blamed if we didn't come to another suit of clothes.'"

Sound Opinions Favorable.

We have the opinion of two attorneys, that the litigation which tends to reflect upon the Ophir Tunnel title, is based upon a trumped up claim, and that there is no serious cloud upon the title. There is no reason why the Cliff Mining Company should not carry out its agreement in reference to the Ophir Tunnel stock.

We venture the prediction now, (notice the date,) that an investment in Ophir Tunnel stock, at present prices, will net larger returns, within six months, than the same amount invested in any other stock on the market. If you agree with us, buy Ophir stock now while it is cheap, and hold it for the advance, which may be reasonably expected within a few months.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

At the Close But at Rally From Low Point.

Liquidation, Led by Reading, Brought About Severe Break.

New York, June 15.—Opening dealings in the stock market today were active and widely distributed, with some large transactions in individual stocks. Changes as a rule were small, and mixed between gains and losses. Delaware & Hudson and Colorado Fuel opened down 1¼ and Northern Pacific a point. Reading opened unchanged and then ran off 1¼. United States Steel opened a shade higher, but the preferred fell ½. Virginia-Carolina Chemical gained 1¼.

Before a half hour had elapsed, the market had rallied to fractionally above yesterday's close. A number of stocks sold as much above last night as they had previously below, especially St. Paul, Amalgamated Copper, Northern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson. When Reading reached 138⅝, large selling orders were executed, causing a break of 2 points. The general market dropped to about the opening figures but rallied feverishly when Reading began to be supported. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred gained 1, United Railway Investment preferred ½ and Northwestern preferred 3. Americal Car preferred fell 1¼ and Great Northern preferred and Anaconda 2.

Another selling movement carried prices lower than before, most of the prominent stocks being affected. Great Northern preferred was carried down 3¾, Northern Pacific and Reading 2½, American Tobacco, Metropolitan Service 2, Minneapolis & St. Louis 1¾, St. Paul and Smelting 1½, Union Pacific and Illinois Central 1¼, and Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Copper and others a point. Prices were heavy at noon.

Bear operators extended their lines considerably when call money rose to 4½ per cent. The successful drive against Reading shoved out enough stock to drop it 4 points to 131½ and bring about a general fall to between 1 and 2 points. Some short covering helped a few of the leading stocks to the extent of a point later, after which the market became very dull. Extreme losses reached 6 in International Power, 5½ in Great Northern, 4 in Anaconda, 2¾ in Northwestern, 2½ in Smelting, 2 in St. Paul, Union Pacific, Colorado Fuel, Pressed Steel Car, 1⅝ to 1¼ in New York Central, Pennsylvania, Louisville & Nashville, Texas & Pacific, United States Steel preferred, Locomotive, Sugar and Brooklyn Transit.

Traders who brought around the low figures took profits and the market weakened again. Reading was the only important stock to establish a new level at 131½. Moderate buying orders appeared after a while and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Copper and several others rebounded 1, and Reading 2 points.

The covering of shorts proceeded to some length with resulting rallies in Great Northern preferred of 2¾, Reading 2½, Northern Pacific, 2; and St. Paul and D. & H., 1¾. Prices weakened sharply again late in the day, but did not get back to the low level. Michigan Central sold at an advance of 6¾ and Rock Island preferred fell 2. The closing was rather irregular and very dull.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed generally lower, though at a rally from the low point. Liquidation led by Reading brought about a severe break, Reading at one time being fully 4 points under yesterday's close. Conditions making for an easier stock market and forcing liquidation seemed to be plain enough for those who will read the signs. First of all, the money situation does not warrant a bull campaign. We are approaching the period of semi-annual disbursements, and after that has passed, bankers will be obliged to husband their resources for crop-moving purposes. Stocks are held by pools, and the action of the market would indicate that the load is getting burdensome. The market does not act well. All things considered, we doubt if advances in the stock market can be maintained at this time. On the strong spots we would sell stocks.

• • •

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was weak and the liquidation heavy. Traders caught a great many stop orders and lightly margined account suffered. At one time it looked as if there was going to be a very big break, but London came in and bought stocks and with short covering prices braced up a little. We look for a fairly good bank statement tomorrow and this may have the effect of causing short covering.

The Cotton Market.

New York, June 15.—The cotton market opened steady with the old crop unchanged and new crop months 3 points lower to 2 points higher. This was about due on the cables and at first the market acted steady to firm on the continued dry weather in the Southwest and reports of further rain in the Eastern belt. After firming to a net advance of about 2 points all around, prices eased off under realizing and local bear pressure but after declining about 3 points from the top held around the closing level of yesterday during the middle of the session. Trading was quite and mostly in the way of evening up.

Cotton, spot, closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.25; middling gulf, 11.45; sales, 865 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: June, 10.65; July, 10.64; August, 10.45; September, 10.38; October, 10.34; November, 10.33; December, 10.29; January, 10.43; February, 10.44; March, 10.51.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

A REPEATOR.

Los Angeles Times: John Weaver, the reform Mayor of Philadelphia, was recently congratulated by a delegation of clergymen on the clean administration that he has given the Quaker City.

In the course of his reply Mr. Weaver said:

"I am glad to tell you that things with us have improved. Take, for instance, the matter of elections. A Philadelphian, some years ago, was running for a small office, and on election day he went from poll to poll, cheering his supporters on.

"As he left a certain poll, a shabby individual approached and shook him by the hand.

"'I trust, sir,' said the candidate, 'that you are one of my supporters?'

"'One?' chuckled the shabby individual. 'Why, bless your heart, I'm seven of 'em.'"

NOT LIKE OUR TROOPS.

Los Angeles Times: Corporal James Tanner, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was praising the bravery of a private who had fallen at Gettysburg.

"But all were brave," he ended. "Privates and officers were alike in their terrible bravery."

He paused.

"They were alike in their bravery," he said, "as certain Greek troops were alike in their prudence during the war with Turkey.

"A year or so after that war was ended, a Greek general was leading a procession through the streets of a populous village, when a young man ran to him, and, seizing his hand, kissed it.

"'Thank you, my friend,' said the general, leaning down from his saddle.

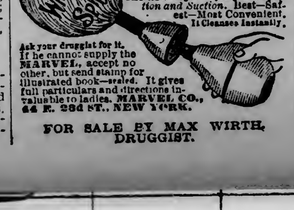

"'Thank you,' answered the young man. 'Thank you, my savior. For you, general, saved my life.'

"The general, smiling, said:

"'Your face is unknown to me. Tell me how I saved you?'

"'Why, sir,' said the soldier, 'I served under you in the terrible engagement of April 7, and when you ran away at the beginning of the fight, I followed close behind. Otherwise I should most certainly have been killed.'"

"In prosperity prepare for a change—in adversity hope for one." In either case, advertising will make it a change for the better.

NEW YORK'S PITFALLS

Here is a Man Who Thought They Were Exaggerated.

There is a citizen of the District of Columbia, a man of more than average good behavior, who is going about declaring that he is firmly resolved upon two things, namely, that he will never again, under any circumstances, visit New York city and that he will never again drink anything stronger than unfermented grape juice, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Sun.

"For the following excellent and sufficient reasons," he explains, in a voice tremulous with wrath, humiliation and penitence. "A bunch of horse bugs here got me to promise to go over to New York with them to see the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont Park.

"I had to stick to my desk, cleaning up a lot of work, till within fifteen minutes of train time, and I didn't have time to take any luncheon. I made the train by a whisker, and as soon as I got my wraps disposed around my chair I started for the buffet car to get a chicken sandwich or so and a bottle of something soft and carbonic, meaning to dine after reaching New York.

"A number of the Moquis of my party went out to the car with me, though I tried to sidestep them; I could foresee trouble if I sat in with that crowd without having any luncheon to sustain me in any high resolves that I might have made. But it was no use.

"They tossed that 'be a good fellow' gag at me, and, anyhow, they were just going to drink a little teenchy bit of a toast to a friend of all of us who was being married that day in Philadelphia. I said mine would be vichy and milk. They remarked that that would be pretty cold-blooded, drinking vichy and milk to the married happiness of an old pal.

"There was no fanning them. I tried to give them the no luncheon excuse, but they derided that as being childish. And so I had to string along and let them do the ordering—no, I didn't exactly have to, but I was idiotic enough to see it that way.

"Well, we toasted the married couple quite a few times. At Baltimore an amateur violinist of high repute over there, and a good fellow, got aboard. He had his fiddle with him.

"We all knew him. The gang dragged him into the buffet car, and after some more of that toasting thing, they made him get out his instrument and play things.

"No need of dwelling upon this buffet car part of the story. It's painful. Those ruffians, anyhow, had all had their luncheons and I hadn't.

"So that by the time the train pulled into Jersey City I was spiked some and I knew it. I stood at the front of the ferryboat in crossing the river to get the cool air, but it wasn't much use.

"We were all going to the same hotel on Upper Broadway and we went up in the elevated train. When we got off at the Thirty-third street station I met a fellow on the platform whom I knew.

"I stood for a minute and talked with him, while the other fellows went on to the hotel, only a couple of squares away; so that I was a detached member of the party when I started down the elevated steps. I had that common, onnery, good-natured feeling that follows an afternoon on a buffet car, and was far from being acute.

"At the bottom of the elevated steps a rollicking, sharp faced chap noticed me laboring under the burden of my heavy grip.

"'Let's carry that luggage for you, pal,' he said, calmly taking the bag from my hand. 'Not going far, are you?'

"Yes, I was imbecile enough to let him take the bag. He went ahead of me after asking the name of my hotel, and I stopped for half a minute to buy some evening papers.

"When I had got through buying the papers the rollicking looking chap with my bag was gone. Of course he was gone. I had been a plain, everyday come on, and well I knew it.

"I went over to the hotel to see if, by any chance, the fellow had taken my bag there. I don't need to say that he hadn't.

"There was nothing very valuable in the bag, only clothes, but I was sore over having tossed it away so foolishly. So, without looking up the other fellows to have them guy me about it, I got into a cab and went to a police station to complain of the way my bag had been separated from me.

"Do you know what the man at the desk did? He just smiled at me in an indulgent sort of way, and he said:

"'Oh, I guess your bag will be all right; we'll just take care of it for you a little while, pardner.'

"His familiarity wasn't the worst of it, either by a blamed sight. He nodded to the doorman, and the doorman led me to a cell, and may I never see another sunset over the Virginia hills if I didn't find myself locked up in that police station as an individual incapable of caring for myself!

"Well, I spent four hours trying to get my friends at the hotel to the station, but the reports came back to me every time that they couldn't be found. They had gone off from the hotel to dine somewhere else, and after that they went to the theater and there was absolutely no chance to get into communication with them.

"I sent out about $12 worth of messages to New York friends, but none of them could be located—out for the evening, all of them. I offered to leave all sorts of currency collateral, but they only smiled amiably at me and said:

"'No, chum, y'd only git touched f'r your wad if we turned you loose. Better take it easy, and you'll be out in the mornin'. Nothin's goin' t' happen t' you in here.' This ain't no court case. We're just takin' care o' you so's you won't be rolled f'r your bundle.'

"And that's all there was about it. I had to spend the night there and fume and cogitate damage suits for millions of dollars against the city of New York.

"At dawn the ruffians with whom I'd gone to New York on the buffet car came tearing to the station in cabs, and they danced around in front of my cell, making hobgoblin faces at me, treating me as a horrible example, and making terrifying comment on the awful evils of the bowl. Then I went with them to the hotel, and I slept for sixteen hours.

"See the Metropolitan handicap? See nothing! I didn't want to see it. What I needed was rest and a chance to cool out against the city of New York, and it was the little white bed for mine.

"In the meantime those fellows had taken in the Metropolitan and started back for Washington immediately after and when they got here they industriously spread the report that I had run amuck on Broadway, with a bolo in each hand and a machete in my teeth and that it had required eight large, beefy policemen of the Broadway squad to sit on me and hold me down on my way to the station in a patrol wagon.

"Yesterday afternoon a couple of Washington detectives, friends of mine, strolled into my office here with serious countenances.

"'Too bad, old man,' one of them said to me, 'and, of course, you fully understand how we hate to do it. But these things happen, you know. Afraid we'll have to take you along with us. We haven't any idea that you did it, but you can explain all that to the chief.'

"I couldn't penetrate their infernal gravity, and I became alarmed. They said that a jewelry robbery had occurred at an Atlantic City hotel a couple of days before, and that the robbery had been traced to a man in a certain room at the hotel.

"The suspect had escaped so hurriedly that he'd left his valise behind him. The valise bore my name and Washington address, written on a slip pasted on the inside of the bag.

"Those two detectives kept it up until, feeling pretty shaky, if I didn't look it, I'd got my hat and stood ready to accompany them, and then they broke into a roar, and one of them went out into the hall and brought in my bag. The sneak thief who had taken it from my hands had really been captured at an Atlantic City hotel.

"All too shattering, experiences of that kind. Hot little old Washington for mine, and the cider cart, now and forever. I used to think the stories of those traps and pitfalls of New York were exaggerated, but now I know different—I've been shown!"

THE POPCORN TRADE.

ndustry Dating From the Invention of the Corn Popper.

The newest of the many forms in which popped corn is now put up for sale is an ear of corn, which is made up in a machine whose operations requires the service of five persons, says the New York Sun.

The popped corn is first moulded into the shape of an ear of corn, which is covered with a wrapping of waxed paper. Then over this waxed paper cover is placed a wrapping of crepe paper in leaves, in color and shape resembling corn husks and covering the ear as real corn husks cover a real ear while from the tip of this popped corn ear extends a tassel of paper for the corn silk.

It is a sightly popped corn package, this popped corn in the ear, and the manufacturer says of it that here is popped corn that a lady wearing kid gloves can eat without mussing her fingers.

One wouldn't have to be as old as Methuselah was when he died to remember a time when corn was popped at home in frying-pans, then more commonly called spiders, with a tin pot cover over the spider to keep the popping corn from flying out; and then, because with that cover on you couldn't see the corn and because you didn't dare to take the cover off till the popping was all over, you were likely to have left a lot of unpopped burned kernels.

Then some able genius invented the wire corn popper, now made in various sizes, for commercial as well as for domestic use, and the manner of popping corn was revolutionized in a jiffy, and with this new popping facility popped corn became more popular than ever, and the popping of it a pastime, blessed with certainty of results, rather than a trial, with possibly failure at the end.

Whereas in the spider days the corn had to be popped in the kitchen on the kitchen stove, with the wire popper it could be popped over a grate fire, or in the parlor or the sitting room, in any of the old fashioned cylinder stoves, where visitors, as well as the members of the home circle, could see and perhaps participate in the popping, and see and hear the corn kernels pop and pop until the corn that at first had formed but a thin layer that just covered its bottom had popped into a fluffy, fragrant mass of tender popped corn that filled the popper completely, to the great delight of all.

It is probable that few minor inventions have contributed more to the peace and happiness and innocent enjoyment of the household than the wire corn popper; and from its invention really dates the modern popped corn industry, the greater development of which, however, has come within years comparatively recent.

In those early days they did have, indeed, and it was even then a standard form of confection, the popcorn ball. At candy stores and fruit stores that children patronize you saw a pile of oranges and a pile of popcorn balls, and even then popcorn balls were more or less an article of special sale on festive occasions like that, when people, as it were, blew themselves off; purely local and incidental production, purely local and incidental production, and of comparatively small consumption, and the farthest they ever got with it in the way of variety was to make some of the corn balls pink in color, and they were all liable to get dusty if the sale was slow and they were long exposed.

Now popcorn is an article of factory production, made in establishments devoted to popcorn exclusively, and turning it out in many special forms, in brittles, bars, crispettes and pancakes, and so on, culminating, for the moment, at least, in popcorn by the ear, as described. Popcorn is now an article of country wide sale, at parks, summer resorts and carnivals, and by street men, and at theatre candy stands and elsewhere, and is sold in the aggregate, in these various forms, in enormous quantities.

To the vast quantities thus sold is to be added that sold by the popcorn privilege men at summer resorts and fairs who pop corn and mould it into various shapes on the spot. The lesser quantity, but by no means less interesting popcorn that is in these days sold by popcorn venders, who go about the streets with glass sided popcorn wagons specially designed for the use, in which they pop and from which they sell popcorn to the passerby.

And so popcorn, once a small side issue only, has come to be, as one manufacturer put it an article as staple as flour.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS ARE SATISFIED WITH NOMINATION OF COLE

Those on the Inside Declare That Jacobson Was "Jobbed".

Fine Work of Tom Shevlin Visible in the Result.

Spurned Combinations That Might Have Saved the Day.

St. Paul, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Was Jacobson sold out for a mess of pottage? is the question which everyone is now asking, and they point to Thomas H. Shevlin, the millionaire lumberman, as the man who dished up the pottage. One dip into the flesh pot of Egypt, it is asserted by those who know, was enough to start the stampede for Cole.

There was something prophetic in the following statement in the St. Cloud Journal-Press, Alvah Eastman's organ, and unlike most political forecasts, it came true:

"Republican voters of Minnesota, remember this: The only way in which J. F. Jacobson can be prevented from receiving the nomination for governor at Duluth on June 13 is by the use of corporation money. If the corporations and the politicians keep their hands off he will be nominated by acclamation. He is the choice of the people."

Tom Shevlin is a pastmaster at putting up jobs and it is asserted on good authority that he induced Diment to stay in the race when that gentleman was about to retire. Diment's strength would have gone to Jacobson. Lord's friends wanted the combine to be made on him, but Shevlin would not stand for him, believing him hostile to the lumber interests of the state, because of his record in the state legislature. Another barrier to the Lord combination to defeat "Jake" was the fact that Cole's strength would have gone over to Jacobson rather than to Lord and nothing could be done that would have stemmed the tide. Lord's friends were few, but tried and true, and they could be counted on to stick by Lord through thick and thin, so that Cole was the only logical candidate around which the combine could be built up.

Up to the time that Mr. Shevlin arrived in Duluth late Tuesday, Jacobson sentiment had been so far in the ascendant that the other candidates were stumped at prospect of defeat, and even the ultimate victor, Cole of Walker, was disposed to withdraw in the early hours of Wednesday. Mr. Shevlin, however, was busy after his arrival, and wherever he had been there was apparent a strengthening of the anti-Jacobson sentiment. Some of this can be seen in the sudden change of sentiment on the part of counties which had sent Jacobson delegations, but which ultimately voted for Cole.

Red Lake county, for example, while instructed for Stephens, sent a delegation of men who favored Jacobson for second choice, avowedly and concededly. These men never did vote for Jacobson, but on the final ballot, strangely enough, are found in the Cole column instead of in the Jacobson column. Mr. Shevlin has important lumber interests in and about Red Lake county, which may have helped.

Becker county, which had sent a split delegation, including friends of Jacobson as well as of Cole and Stephens, is also found lined up solidly for Cole at the finish.

Some influence was strong enough even to break into the supposedly solid Jacobson delegation from Swift county, where, although uninstructed, the delegation consisted of neighbors and friends of the Lac qui Parle man; but Cole got part of Swift.

Hennepin's delegation, which claims the glory of deciding the battle at its crisis, was royally banqueted after the convention in a cafe on Superior street. They had every room in the place. Wine ran like water, and it wasn't the California article either. Gossip has it that the tab Mr. Shevlin met early in

BIG COMPANY TO WITHDRAW

Delaware Will Pay Losses on 75 Per Cent Basis.

San Francisco, June 16.—The Examiner says: The latest addition to the list of insurance companies that have decided to withdraw from business on the coast is the Delaware of Philadelphia. The Delaware is an old established concern, organized in Philadelphia in 1835, and has done business in California for a number of years. It announces that while it is the company's intention to adjust all losses, it will not pay more than 75 cents on the dollar in any instance.

J. W. Brooks, manager of the Western department of the Delaware, is here from Chicago and is in charge of affairs. He makes no concealment of his company's intention to withdraw and discount losses.

The thirty-two insurance companies that rejected the suggestion of a 75 cent compromise put forward by sixty-one of their associates in the underwriters' bureau, have received two additions to their number. The Insurance Company of North America and the Niagara of New York have announced that they will pay up dollar for dollar on their losses.

LINCOLN'S LOG CABIN

The Center of Attraction of the Day In Louisville.

Many of Kentucky "Home Comers" Are Leaving City.

Louisville, June 16.—Although the home coming week is scheduled to continue over Sunday, many of the returned Kentuckians today turned their backs for the second time on their native state and started for their present places of residence. It was felt that after the crowded program of yesterday, with its two gorgeous parades, its sham battle, and last night's ball, there could be nothing to surpass what had already transpired. Thousands of people left here on the early trains for Frankfort, to attend the ceremonies at the laying of the corner stone of the new capitol.

The exercises in Louisville today centered around the log cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born and which during the week has been standing in Central park. Music, and addresses by Adlai E. Stevenson, ex vice president of the United States, and Henry Watterson were the features.

LONGWORTHS TO SEE RACES

Will Be Present at Kiel During the Great Events.

Kiel, June 16.—The presence of Congressman Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Lonworth, who are due to arrive here June 23, will be the principal feature of interest for the Americans in the regatta, which begins June 20. The report that Mr. and Mrs. Longworth were to visit Kiel was only confirmed a day or two ago. Ambassador Baron Speck Von Sternburg, it is understood, has arranged with the foreign office for their presentation to Emperor William. Ambassador and Mrs. Tower are not coming here, as there is no official necessity for their attendance, but Lieut. Commander William Howard, the United States naval attache at Berlin, will be at Kiel during the entire yachting period. Some American cruising yachts are expected, among them being Allison V. Armour's Utowana, N. Y. Y. C. Herman Ridder of New York will arrive here toward the end of the week to see Prince Henry of Prussia, who leaves this port, June 19, for Trondjhem. The prince will not return before June 27, thus missing most of the sport. The emperor left Berlin yesterday, and will travel leisurely to Kiel, stopping at Hamburg to act as godfather for the son of Capt. Von Grumme of the Hamburg-American line's board of directors. Thence he will go to sea on the steamship Hamburg, which has been fitted up as an imperial yacht until the Hohenzollern can be replaced by the yacht now building. From Hamburg the emperor will go to Heligoland to witness the finish of the Dover-Heligoland race, and he will arrive here about June 21.

HOUSE PREFERS A LOCK CANAL

Also Wants All Material Purchased in United States.

Washington, June 16.—By a vote of 110 to 36, the house yesterday at the end of a two hours' debate on the appropriations for the Panama canal, decided that the canal should be of a lock type. After listening to the speech of Mr. Burton of Ohio in favor of the local canal, and consuming an hour in the discussion of the amendment defining the type as presented by Mr. Littaur (New York), the house in committee of the whole expressed its opinion in favor of a lock canal. By a decisive vote the house refused to sanction the purchase of materials in the market of the world for the Panama canal, the general position of the Republicans being that as the canal was to be built by American tactics the American workingman and the American manufacturer should have the advantage.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE.

St. Louis, June 16.—When George T. Kollas, a member of the house of delegates of the municipal assembly, returned to his home after a session of the house last night, he found the dead body of his wife in the cellar, covered with a shawl and a hose attached to a gas jet clinched firmly in her teeth. Members of the family say they can assign no reason for the act.

THE PRESIDENT ADDS ANOTHER CHAPTER TO THE MEAT CONTROVERSY

Publishes His Letter to Chairman Wadsworth in Full.

Admits an Error in First Statement on House Bill.

Still Insists However, That the Measure is Worthless.

Washington, June 16.—President Roosevelt has added another chapter to the literature of the meat inspection controversy. It was not through any desire of his that the correspondence between himself and Representative Wadsworth, chairman of the house committee on agriculture was published in its entirety. Inasmuch, however, as Chairman Wadsworth deemed it desirable that the letters should be published and gave them to the public, the president regards it as proper to complete the correspondence thus far exchanged by the publication of his reply to Mr. Wadsworth's letter.

In his letter, the president, while admitting his error in stating that the house substitute contained no provision for the making of inspections of packing houses at all hours of the day or night, says the substitute still is inadequate to meet the requirements of the situation. The president says that, after a conference with Representative Adams of Wisconsin, a member of the agricultural committee, he is convinced Mr. Adams will accept the suggestions made to him regarding the bill. He says that Mr. Adams, in each case, "stated that he personally would accept the alterations proposed." "These changes include the elimination of the court review proposition and a dozen other alterations. In the opinion of the president, the suggested changes would make the house committee substitute "as good as the Beveridge amendment." The president adds that he is not concerned about the language of the amendment, but with the accomplishment of the object in view, "a thorough and rigid, and not a sham, inspection."

Following is the text of the president's leter to Chairman Wadsworth:

"The White House, Washington, June 15, 1906.—My Dear Mr. Wadsworth: In the first place, I wish promptly to acknowledge the one portion of your letter in which you are in the main right. I was in error in the statement, which I accepted from Senator Beveridge, that there was no provision for making the plants accessible at all hours to the inspectors. The provision was put in another place, but it is not as good as the original provision. The court provision is the one to which I most object; although by no means the only one to which I object; it is one of many. As regards this I wish to repeat that if deliberately designed to prevent the

WORKINGMEN TO HOLD CONVENTION

Assemblage Will Be Held July 20 to Name Ticket.

St. Paul, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new "Workingmen's party" seems assured in Ramsey county and legislative politics this fall.

At a meeting of the representatives of nearly all the labor unions in the city at Federation hall, Friday night, it was decided to call a delegate convention July 20 to name a ticket. Each trades union will be entitled to one delegate for each twenty-five members, or two delegates if it has less than that membership.

The nominees are to be put on the ticket by petition.

The officers of the temporary organization are John F. Krieger, chairman; John Gieske, secretary.

KILLED HER ADMIRER.

Barron, Wis., June 16.—Elva Aney, aged 21, killed Albert Hewitt, aged 50, eight miles east of Chetek, Wis. Hewitt, who has been married three times, was infatuated with the girl, and insisted she must marry him. She and her grandmother were home alone. Becoming frightened, she took a shotgun, telling him to leave or she would shoot. He started toward her, and she fired. The coroner's jury found he was killed by the girl in self-defense. She is in jail.

DR. FORCE IS SENTENCED

Former Insurance Man to Serve Three and Half Years.

Found Guilty of Larceny of Funds of Company.

Minneapolis, June 16.—Dr. Jacob F. Force, former president of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company of this city, was today sentenced to serve three and a half years in state's prison, by Judge Brooks. Mr. Force was convicted two weeks ago of grand larceny in connection with the company at the time he was president. This is the first conviction in connection with the recent local insurance scandal here.

WIDESPREAD MASSACRE OF JEWS SEEMS IMMINENT; THE RESIDENTS OF KISHINEF IN A STATE OF PANIC

DESTROYS TON DAILY

Many Canned Goods Reaching Stepney, England, Are Rotten.

None of the Bad Products Comes From United States.

London, June 16.—The report of Dr. Thomas, the medical officer of the borough of Stepney, to the local government board shows that his department during the last five years has destroyed over a ton of rotten tinned foods daily at the Stepney wharves. These, he adds, were not American goods, as practically no canned goods from American concerns are imported through the Stepney wharves, but were colonial meat, fish and fruit. The medical officer says he found New Zealand raspberries treated with sulphur in order to preserve them.

Dr. Thomas incidentally asks what becomes of the tongues of great numbers of horses slaughtered yearly in London. He says he has never seen a horse's tongue exposed for sale and labeled as horse tongue. He urges that increased powers be given to the public health departments.

WOMAN FORGER IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Returns Verdict Against Anna Naeseth at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A verdict of guilty of forgery in the second degree was returned at 9:30 last night against Anna Naeseth, alias Annabel Lee, the jury having been out five and a half hours.

The defense will move for a new trial, and the argument will take place after a few days. The accused was tried in the district court on the charge of passing a $20 forged check, and other forged checks of smaller denominations while shopping in various stores in the city last spring.

She previously lived at Superior, Wis., Duluth and Minneapolis. A similar offense, some time ago, resulted in her serving a six month's term in prison.

SITUATION VERY GRAVE

Campaign For Armed Uprising Progresses Rapidly in Russia.

Demonstrations Occurring Daily in the Streets of Moscow.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The gravity of the general situation grows hourly. The Bourses of St. Petersburg and Moscow are in a panicky condition and the Social Democrats and Social Revolutionists, considering parliament to be a negligible quantity, are pushing their campaign for an armed uprising with increased vigor. Demonstrations are daily occuring in the streets of Moscow in favor of a general strike with which the proletariat leaders are trying to precipitate a conflict. The agitation among the workmen here has reached the boiling point, and patrols are again in heavy force in the industrial quarters. In the country the rural guards are throwing in their lot with the peasants, refusing to protect the landlords. The progress of the revolutionary propaganda in the army is seriously alarming the government and to add to the popular excitement comes the massacre of Jews at Bialystok.

While the reports conflict as to the immediate responsibility for the outbreak the authorities here cannot escape responsibility for the provocative "Black Hundred" telegrams which they caused to be printed throughout Russia, appealing to the worst passions of the mob against the Jews as the enemies of the country. The government is undoubtedly frightened at what has occurred.

Martial law has been declared at Bialystok and troops are being rushed to the scene, but according to the latest reports the hunting down of unfortunate Jews continued unabated yesterday afternoon and night, accompanied by indescribable horrors. The commission dispatched to Bialystok by parliament can be relied upon to make a pitiless exposure to the country, of any dereliction of the authorities.

The leaders in the lower house of parliament are convinced that it is the present intention of the government to prevail on the emperor to order a recess of parliament and they have taken the important resolution not to obey the imperial order. This amounts to open defiance and is a purely, revolutionary step. The plans of the leaders were secretly formulated but it is known that if the government turns the lower house out of Tauride palace, the leaders contemplate an attempt to continue the sittings independently. In other words they will try to seize the reins of power. The eternal parallel of the French revolution which keeps recurring is thus again in evidence. The members would probably be required to swear as did those of the French assembly at the tennis court, to meet wherever circumstances require it until a constitution is established on a solid footing.

YACHTS SAIL FOR EMPEROR'S CUP

Six Get Away on the Annual Dover-Heligoland Race.

Dover, Eng., June 16.—Six yachts started this morning in the annual Dover-Heligoland race for Emperor Williams' cup. With a fair easterly breeze blowing, the boats got off in the following order:

The American-built yawl Navahoe, owned by George W. Watjen of Bremen.

The British cutter Ailsa, owned by Mrs. A. H. Lewis-Hill of Southampton.

The British-built schooner-yacht, yacht, Clara, owned by Max Von Guilleaume of Cologne.

The British schooner-yacht, Sunshine, owned by Arthur H. Solom of Glasgow.

The German yawl, Amagard, owned by C. A. Von Brocken and G. Seebeck of Travemunde.

The British yawl, Betty, owned by Ian Hamilton of Cowes.

The Navahoe allows the Ailsa 45 minutes, the Clara 2 hours 7 minutes, the Armagard 2 hours 40 minutes, the Sunshine 3 hours 15 minutes and the Betty 3 hours 45 minutes.

HAZING IN MONKEY CAGE LIKE COLLEGIANS DO IT.

Chicago, June 16.—A new student who matriculated in Lincoln park Monkey college yesterday was duly hazed by the other Simians, after it had been placed in the big cage with them.

It was cuffed and jostled and bitten until it sought refuge in a corner and allowed the other monkeys to pelt it with pieces of carrots and celery.

"He'll get acquainted in a few days," said Keeper De Vry. "In the meantime he must submit to torment. This is an incident showing how near the monkey comes to being a college student."

Hastily Close and Barricade Their Stores and Houses.

Slaughter of the Jews at Bialystok Still Continues.

Rumors in Circulation of Outbreaks in Other Cities.

Odessa, June 16.—The Jews at Kishinef are in a state of panic in view of reports that Jewish massacre is threatened. They hastily closed and barricaded all their houses and stores at noon today and the town is now patrolled by cavalry, while pickets of infantry are stationed at strategic points.

Messages from Yelisabethgrad and Krementchug report anti-Jewish excesses are also apprehended there.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—(4:10 p. m.)—Unconfirmed rumors are in circulation to the effect that anti-Jewish outbreaks have occurred at Brest-Litovsk and Vilna.

It is also reported that a Catholic priest has been torn to pieces at Bialystok, but this is officially denied.

Berlin, June 16, 5:10 p. m.—A dispatch to the Tageblatt from Bialystok, dated today, says: "Plundering and murdering continue. The garrison here and from several neighboring places is in possession of the city, which is on fire. Further fires are continually breaking out. The situation is frightful. A few Jews, through high payments, have been allowed to escape."

St. Petersburg, June 16, 2:35 p. m.—M. Vinaver, a Constitutional Democratic member of the lower house, has received the following dispatch from Bialystok dated 2:45 this morning:

"The rioting proceeded throughout the day, with unabated fury, and is still continuing, with no signs of cessation. It is impossible to send particulars of the horrors."

Warsaw, June 16.—The latest messages received here from Bialystok, say the looting of Jewish houses and shops accompanied by conflicts in the streets between the mob and the troops continued until late last night. Many Jews, Poles and Russians, civilians and soldiers were killed or wounded. The suburb of Bojary was totally burned, and eight streets at Bialystok were completely sacked. The rioting is said to have extended to Lihy station on the St. Petersburg railroad, and to Slamsiele station on the Southwestern railroad. At both places the Jewish shops were looted, and Jews were murdered or beaten.

A mob devastated the Jewish shops in the town of Chermayawiez, the first station out of Bialystok, on the line to Grodno.

In Moscow two police sergeants were killed, and another policeman was wounded by terrorists, and a policeman who pursued the assassins was shot and killed by a passing woman.

Odessa, June 16.—Instructions have been issued to the effect that all the infantry regiments and army reserve men in the Southern and Southwestern provinces are to be temporarily placed on a "home war footing," in view of the possibility of the peasants rising against the nobles. The Cossacks are to be mobilized into flying brigades.

It is stated that similar instructions have been issued to the provincial commanders-in-chief in Central and Northern Russia.

LEFT HUNGRY, SHE SAYS, MAY YOHE SEEKS DIVORCE.

New York, June 16.—With her cheeks flushed, May Yohe, who has unexpectedly arrived on the steamship Meraba of the Atlantic Transport line, declared dramatically that she would immediately institute proceedings for divorce against Putnam Bradlee Strong, whose adventures have attracted public attention upon several occasions.

"He has deserted me, four times and left me to go hungry," she said, "but this is the last. I will have nothing more to do with him."

The young woman, who was the former wife of Lord Francis Hope, appeared to be in great earnest.

"He left me in the Majestic hotel in London without a penny," she continued, "and had it not been for my faithful Japanese maid, who has stuck by me through thick and thin, I don't know what I should have done."

The maid, who is Yeon Konatsu, showed her white teeth as her mistress praised her. Miss Yohe asked where Captain Strong was and seemed disappointed when nobody was able to tell her.

CHICAGO POLICE SEEK WOMAN PORCH-CLIMBER.

Chicago, June 16.—A "Climbrine" or a "climberess" is the latest thing in a police way out south, where Hyde Park detectives are looking for a woman burglar, who is believed to have stolen diamonds and jewelry valued at $1,500 from the residence of William Lederer, having entered the house by way of an upper story window. The only description the police have of the supposed thief is that she wore a blue sailor hat with a white feather. She was seen by several children in the neighborhood, walking rapidly from the home of Mr. Lederer.

TOM DUNN'S RECEPTION

Star of Hope Mission Superintendent Observes Anniversary.

Friends Rejoice With Him at Little Bowery Rescue Hall.

Three years ago yesterday, Thomas L. Dunn entered the Star of Hope mission on West Superior street, and a new life, and last evening at that religious meeting place many of his friends celebrated with him the third anniversary of his conversion.

When Mr. Dunn entered that mission three years ago, Rev. John Callahan was in charge, and it was to him that the present superintendent of the little rescue hall in the heart of the Bowery gave credit for his up-lifting, during the talk that he gave to his friends last evening.

Since Callahan went to New York and to a larger field of endeavor, Tom Dunn has been in charge at the Star of Hope, and this fact made all the more enjoyable the little birthday party last evening, for it permitted Mr. Dunn to look back on his struggles from a position which he worked hard to attain for 1,095 long days.

There were several short talks last evening, but perhaps that given by Tom Dunn himself was most interesting.

"When I first came into this mission, I had been living the wrong kind of a life," said Mr. Dunn. "Others are living it now, and it is to save them that this mission is kept open. I had tried Christianity before, but I had been a miserable failure; I was too weak to keep to the straight path. I told John Callahan that I was a failure, but he said: 'You better stay, Tom, I know God wants you.' So I prayed with John Callahan and stayed. I gave up drink and all other vicious habits I had, and for three years, I think I have been a Christian. For a year and a half I handed out cards in front of this mission. It was very hard sometimes. I often became discontented and could not see that I was doing much good, and often the temptation to leave was great, but John Callahan told me to stay, and I did. And after a time, I no longer was discontented; I was greatly interested in the work. I am glad I stayed."

As Mr. Dunn arose to speak the congregation sang, "Blessed Is the Tie that Binds."

Rev. R. J. Mooney of St. Luke's Episcopal church, paid a neat tribute to Mr. Dunn. He said:

"Everyone looks with profound respect at any man or any woman who can stand up and tell the world that they have accepted Christianity in its fullest meaning. Duluth should have more men like Tom Dunn."

W. C. Whitton of Minneapolis, gave a forceful talk. He is a prominent member of the Gideons, who call themselves "the Christian traveling men." "We have no time nowadays for wishy-washy Christians; we want men who are not afraid to stand up and admit that they are Christians. Such a man is Tom Dunn. Every time I am in Duluth, I come down to this little Star of Hope mission and I always find him here. Sometimes he does not hear me when I come in on my rubber heels, but I find him in his little back room, reading, not trashy stuff, but the Bible."

Rev. Thomas Grice, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, West Duluth, gave a scripture reading and said a few kind words about Tom Dunn and his work. Rev. W. E. Barber told of meeting men on the range who spoke feelingly of the good that had been done them by Tom Dunn at the Star of Hope mission in Duluth.

Phil Bevis, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., said: "This is a little testimonial gathering to show our regard for you, Tom Dunn, but it is nothing to the reward and welcome for which lies beyond for you." Rev. J. W. Robinson, pastor of Grace M. E. church, and H. A. Sedwick, chairman of the meeting, also spoke briefly. Rev. Mr. Robinson gave the invocation. Rev. Charles Fox Davis said: "If Christ should come to Duluth, I think he would establish a church right here on the Bowery and I think he would place Tom Dunn in charge of it."

Vocal numbers were given by Alma Ulsrud, Vennie Fawcett, the Havdal sisters and J. J. Moe.

The hall was crowded with friends of Mr. Dunn, from every part of the city.

remedying of the evils complained of, this is the exact provision which the friends of the packers and the packers themselves would have provided. It is absurd to assert that any such provision is needed. Why have you not put such a provision in the postoffice law, as it affects fraud orders; in the law as it affects fraudulent entries of homesteads, etc.?

Congress cannot take away the constitutional right of the packers, or of any one else, to the protection of the courts. But such a provision as that under consideration does not represent a desire to secure the constitutional rights of any man. It represents, doubtless, in some cases, an honest, though wholly mistaken conviction; in other cases it represents a deliberate purpose to interfere with effective administration by trying to provide that the courts shall in reality do administrative which they would be the first to assert their inability to perform. If the bill as you reported it from the committee were enacted into law, you would have the functions of the secretary of agriculture narrowly limited so as to be purely ministerial; and when declaring given slaughterhouse unsanitary, or a given product unwholesome, acting on the judgment of the government experts, you would put on the judge, who had no knowledge whatever of the conditions, the burden of stating whether or not the secretary was right. In Chicago, for instance, you would make any judge whom the packers chose to designate, and not the experts of the department of agriculture, the men to decide on any question of any kind which the packers thought it worth while to dispute. You may possibly remember the recent judicial decision in Chicago in which the packers were concerned. I wish to repeat that this proposition is, in my judgment, one which, if enacted into law, will nullify the major part of the good which can be expected from the enactment of this law. You assert that the packers insist upon having a rigid inspection law passed. If they sincerely desire a rigid inspection, they will insist on this provision being taken out. Leaving it in is incompatible with securing a properly efficient law.

"To so much of your letter as speaks of my having made innuendos about a committee of the house, or of your knowledge of the English language, etc., it is not necessary to make any answer. You state that if I or my advisers will point out specifically wherein the bill fails to accomplish my purpose, 'it would be promptly remedied.' I am happy to tell you that I have today seen a member of your committee, Mr. Adams, seeing him by request of the speaker, and I went over with him, together with Mr. McCabe and Mr. Reynolds, the various points in which the bill, as you have reported it, fails to accomplish our purpose, and made the specific recommendation necessary in each case to remedy the failure, and in each case Mr. Adams stated that he personally would accept the alterations we proposed. He agrees with me that the court review proposition should be excluded. He agrees as to the dozen other changes which we think should be made. If these changes which Mr. Adams says he thinks should be adopted are adopted, your amendment will become as good as the Beveridge amendment—in Mr. McCabe's opinion, somewhat better than the Beveridge amendment is, unchanged. I care not a whit for the language of the amendment. What I am concerned with is to have it accomplish the object I have in view, namely, a thorough and rigid, and not a sham, inspection. In my judgment the amendment as reported by you fails to accomplish this object, whereas, the Beveridge amendment and the house amendment, with changes which Mr. Adams has stated he will gladly accept, both substantially accomplish the purpose I have in view. I will accordingly gladly accept either, or accept any alteration of either or of both which will accomplish this end.

Yours truly,

Hiram F. Deukelling, a farmer living one mile south of Zion City, died Friday, and his wife and daughter, Hazel, aged 20 years, are seriously ill, as the result of eating corn meal muffins. # LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Examination of Captain Smitham on Charge of Murder Begins.

Houghton—The examination of Capt. William J. Smitham of the Globe mine, on a charge of murder in having caused the death of George Quayle was started before Justice Brand at Houghton. There was a large number of witnesses. The examination was not concluded, being adjourned until Monday. Mrs. Clark, sister of the deceased, testified that Quayle had been drinking the night of the shooting. Mrs. Mary Quayle, widow of the victim of the tragedy, also was placed on the stand. All the evidence, other than that of the relatives of the deceased, tended to show that Capt. Smitham had killed in self-defense. Quayle had been discharged from the mine that day, and had gone to Siller's hotel, in Palmesdale. There, the evidence shows, he drank considerable beer, and four men who were in the hotel at the time swear that he wanted to bet his watch against a dollar that Smitham or he would be killed before the next morning. Smitham testified in his own behalf, describing the shooting. Mrs. Smitham testified that Quayle had called at their house and had made threats against her husband. The adjournment was taken until Monday in order that the testimony might be transcribed before receiving the signatures of witnesses.

Marquette—John Black, who claims to be a woodsman looking for work, filled up with red liquor, Wednesday evening, and attended the performance at the Marquette opera house. During the course of the evening he became noisy, and finally precipitated a quarrel with the man sitting in an adjoining seat, with the result that Black was promptly knocked down. Officer Humes arrested Black and took him to the city jail. He was given a fourteen-day sentence in police court.

Ironwood—The "ild" is on at Bessemer, and apparently it is on tight and fast. At the instance of Rev. J. G. Rutledge, the new pastor of the Methodist church, the laws regulating the saloons are being strictly enforced. No liquor is being sold on Sunday, and in addition the ban has been declared against basebal on the first day of the week.

Mr. Rutledge is a brother of Rev. C. H. Rutledge of Ishpeming, Upper Peninsula representative of the Anti-Saloon league, who for months has been conducting a general crusade in Northern Michigan, and is evidently a follower in his footsteps. He intends to regulate the village of Wakefield as the next step in his campaign of reformation, and it is assumed he will soon extend his operations to include all of Gogebic county.

Hancock—John Mack, a stranger believed to be a grafter, was taken to Ishpeming by a sheriff's officer of Marquette county, charged with crookednes in conection with a suit club for which he was presumably the agent. He was arrested in Hancock Wednesday evening.

If there is one member of the human system that will pay you back in full measure for all the injury you do it, it is the teeth. Neglect is no worse than experimenting with worthless Dentifrices. Both will hasten the day of bitter regret.

Stand by SOZODONT and your teeth will stand by you.

WILL ORGANIZE LOCAL SOCIETY

Duluth People Asked to Help Fight the White Plague.

Dr. Livingston Farrand of New York city and Dr. H. M. Bracken, executive officer of the Minnesota board of health, are in the city to take steps toward the formation of a Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. It is intended to make the local organization a branch of the national society as soon as practicable. The national society has already done a great deal in the way of securing a rational view of tuberculosis on the part of the general public, and has advocated to advantage some ideas as to the best methods to prevent the spread of the dread disease.

Dr. Farrand is what might be termed an expert in matters pertaining to tuberculosis and its prevention. He has made a special study of the disease for years.

Dr. Bracken is a director in the national society for the prevention of tuberculosis.

The work of the societies for the prevention of tuberculosis is largely educational. They undertake to disseminate information as to the best methods to check the disease and prevent its spread in every locality. They also cooperate with public authorities, and encourage more adequate provision for consumptives in the way of hospitals, sanitariums, etc. Dr. Bracken will direct the organization matters.

First Class Cigar Store Opened.

One of the finest cigar stores in the city is the Segar Store, 521 West Superior street, which was opened for business yesterday. Mr. W. L. Bhitcher, the proprietor, has spared no expense in equipping this elegant place, having set in the finest oak fixtures, especially made for this place. Nowhere in the city can there be found a better or more select line of fine high grade cigars and tobaccos. Although a little out of the way for the fine trade, we earnestly solicit your patronage, knowing we will please you.

SAYS PARTNER PERSUADED HIM

John McAlpine Gives Testimony in His Damage Case.

Judge Dibell sat in the McAlpine-Millen damage case today, in order that Mr. McAlpine might get the remainder of his testimony in without any breaks caused by adjournment of the regular term of the court from Friday evening until Monday morning.

The principal testimony yesterday afternoon was that given by Mr. McAlpine in his own behalf. The witness was determined that the court should understud the full import of the evidence that he had to give, and his replies brought forth many objections on the part of Mr. Millen's attorneys. Mr. McAlpine's determination to answer the questions in his own way resulted in several lively brushes between himself and Mr. Fryberger, counsel for Mr. Millen.

Mr. McAlpine denied selling any of the lumber cut at the Scott-Graff mill, or any of the lumber cut from the timber purchased of Richardson & Avery. He claimed that he wanted to sell the lumber, but that Mr. Millen demurred, and that he finally gave in, and let Mr. Millen have his own way about the disposal of the stock.

Mr. McAlpine claimed that he had opportunities to sell the timber for $325,000, which would have made a profit of $200,000, but that Mr. Millen insisted that everything be left to him, and it would come out to the advantage of both. The witness claimed that Mr. Millen had figured out a profit of $200,000 on the lumber, $100,000 for himself and $100,000 for McAlpine.

Monday the defense will begin introducing some evidence pertaining to logging and lumbering operations.

When the Doctor says "it's coffee, stop it if you want to get well."

Oh dear, what a mean doctor, but then plain facts are best to know, so we may cut out the things that hurt.

About 4 years ago a Cin. man went to Germany for his health and to consult one of the famous physicians in Berlin.

The Dr. found him a nervous wreck suffering from loss of sleep and constipation and about 50 lbs. off his usual weight.

But let him tell his own experience:

"The Dr. surprised me very much by asking at once if I was a coffee drinker and on my telling him I used it two or three times a day he said 'It is poison to some persons'.

"After carefully examining me he told me there was nothing the matter with me whatever but what could be entirely cured in 30 days by letting coffee and other stimulants alone and dieting.

"So I put back home and wife got some Postum Food Coffee for me.

"The first trial didn't please me but we found it hadn't been boiled enough. The next meal it was fine.

"I seemed to begin to get well at once and kept it up until I gained back my 50 lbs. and all the old sick times from coffee left for good. Now I am in prime health, fine appetite, and sleep like a boy."

HAS MEANS OF RELIEF

Fire Department Can Run Along Without Cutting Down Force.

Revenue From State Tax Could Be Diverted to Maintenance.

Some of the city officials have discovered that there is a way for the fire board to get out of its present difficulties, without closing any of the fire halls, cutting down the force, or transferring some of the bills to next year's account by manipulating the funds.

The remedy will be considered by the finance committee of the council, and perhaps presented to the council for discussion Monday evening.

The present state laws provide that two per cent of all insurance premiums collected in the state, shall be paid over to the state. This money is later divided among the municipalities in proportion to the amount of insurance in force.

In Duluth, last year, somehting like $500,000 was collected in premiums. Two per cent of this amount yielded a revenue of approximately $10,000 a year, which was paid over to the city.

Under sections 1652 and 1653 of the new code, it is provided that this revenue shall be used in one of three ways. If there is a pension system in force it may be applied on the pension roll, for the benefit of men grown old in the service.

If there is a relief fund and a duly organized relief association, the money may be paid over to this association for the benefit of sick or injured firemen.

The third alternative allowed under these sections of the code is to permit the money to be used for the "purchase of equipment or maintenance" of the fire department.

In Duluth, last year, somehing like for firemen in vogue, and up to the present time the money has been turned over to the Firemen's Relief association. The association is now in a most prosperous condition, having a fund of approximatery $70,000 invested in interest bearing securities. The money has been accumulating quite rapidly, and the association has an income larger than the outlay. The money can be used only for caring for sick or injured firemen, and for looking after their families, if the latter are left destitute on the fireman's death.

With matters in this condition, the officials who have hit on the matter think the appropriation might be directed this year for the maintenance of the department, without causing any actual hardship to the Relief association. The amount of money received would be just about the sum required by the department to make up the shortage, and would enable it to run the remainder of the year without cutting down the force or closing any of the fire halls.

The plan would doubtless arouse opposition from the Relief association, but it is claimed that the board would be acting fully within its rights in taking such action, and would be using the money in one of the ways prescribed by the state laws, without embarrassing the Relief association, or leaving it handicapped in fulfilling the purpose for which it was organized.

The whole matter will probably be taken up by the council Monday evening.

SHAW HAS LOST GRIP ON IOWA

Mistakes of Present Campaign Said to Have "Queered" Him.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 16.—It may be predicted with all the certainty that may appertain to a political prophecy, that Leslie M. Shaw will not be a will not be a candidate in 1908. He will not be a candidate for the presidency for the reason that recent event, culminating in his clash with President Roosevelt, have made it impossible to secure the indorsement of his own state and without this he cannot enter the campaign.

As a matter of fact, it has been known to Iowa friends of Secretary Shaw for some months that he has been withholding the formal announcement of his candidacy for president for the sole reason that he wanted to know whether he could expect the support of his home state. And, now that a series of blunders, largely made by himself, has made the renomination of his dearest enemy, Governor A. B. Cummins, a certainty, that formal announcement will in all probability never be made.

The first mistake made by Secretary Shaw was his attempt, through a zealous friend, to secure a complimentary reference to himself in the resolutions of the congressional convention of his own district at Fort Dodge two months ago. This attempt resulted in a flat refusal by the resolutions committee to report the indorsement, and, as a consequence, Shaw, instead of receiving a nice little bost for his candidacy, received a lot of bad advertising all over the country.

The second serious mistake credited to Shaw is the Fred Kretschmer deal. Kretschmer had the naming of the delegates from Senator Allison's home county, Dubuque, Kretschmer having won control in the county convention as the Cummins candidate for secretary of state, and after a contest in the county along Cummins and anti-Cummins lines. Then Ed Hunter, manager of the Perkins campaign, got in touch with Kretschmer and made a trip to Washington, and Kretschmer astonished the state and infuriated the Cummins followers by withdrawing as a candidate for state treasurer, and naming an anti-Cummins delegation from Dubuque county.

Third in the list of Shaw's mistakes in Iowa was his speaking tour through the state in opposition to Cummins.

But most unfortunate of all of Shaw's blunders, from a tactical standpoint was his attempt to bring President Roosevelt into the Iowa campaign.

Only Iowans understand the intense feeling that exists between Cummins and Shaw. Close friends of Governor Cummins vouch for the statement that he would not even vote for Shaw if he were the party's candidate for president. This explains why Shaw was willing to risk interference in the Iowa campaign. He recognized that defeat of Cummins would be almost necessary if he were to secure the indorsement of Iowa.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

A Demand That all the Undesirable Immigrants Be Excluded.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The Republican newspapers like to boast that the great increase in immigration to the United States is a sign of prosperity. If they would stop to consider the class of immigrants or the largest portion of them, they would doubtless look at this matter in a different light. It is not the number of immigrants that come over here but the class that ought to concern us the most. There is no problem confronting the people of the United States which deserves more earnest attention and careful consideration than the immigration problem. It involves questions which not only reach the homes and the farms and the industries of our country, but also the welfare of the people, and the degeneracy or elevation of the human race in our country. I admire the sentiment that in this free country we should welcome the people of the world, and that America should be the home of the liberty-loving and downtrodden and oppressed of all nations. I should like to add also the plain but expressive words that America should be the home of the worthy and that undesirable immigrants should be kept out and the desirable should be welcomed. If the immigrants coming to our country are to be a menace to American civilization, should we not do all in our power to separate the worthy from the unworthy. To do justice to the desirable immigrants and do our duty to our home people, we should exclude the objectionable class and encourage the kind we want who come here to stay and who are healthy and resolute and industrious, and who appreciate American institutions.

In the year ending June 30th, 1905, there came to the United States 1,026,000 aliens, being a greater number than came here during the 160 years of our colonial life which intervened between the first settlement of Jamestown and th Declaration of Independence and more than came here between 1800 and 1840. The statistics show since 1820 that 22,931,184 aliens came to the United States. Since 1880 the flow of undesirable immigrants began to come. Immigrants from England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Germany, France, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Switzerland, and countries in Northern Europe have always been welcome. The whole number of immigrants coming here from 1820 to 1905, from England, Ireland and Scotland, amounted to 7,586,443. In 1851, these countries sent us 272,471, but the immigration since that date has fallen off 40 per cent. From Germany 5,187,092 immigrants came from 1820 to 1905, while 215,000 Germans came in 1854, but German immigration has since that date fallen off 30 per cent. Scandinavians, consisting of Norway, Sweden and Denmark in 1882 furnished 105,232 and in 1902 only 19,228.

The largest number coming from France in any one year was in 1850, when 20,126 arrived, but not one-half that number come now. I call attention to the figures I am about to give, gathered from the same source, on the undesirable class. In 1905 immigrants from Austria-Hungary, Italy, Poland and Russia were about one-hundredth of the number from England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany and Scandinavia; in 1880 about one-tenth; in 1894, nearly equal to it; in 1901, the number from Austria-Hungary, Italy, Poland and Russia was three times as much as from the other countries above named. During the past year the greatest number came from Austria-Hungary, which sent 275,093, or 27 per cent of the whole number; Italy sent 221,479, or 22 per cent, and Russia sent 184,897, or 18 per cent, and Asia sent 26,186, or 4 per cent, so that Austria-Hungary, Russia, Italy and Asia sent last year nearly three-fourths of the 1,026,000 which landed here. It is claimed, and the claim is well founded, that the reason for the falling off in the immigration from the countries that have in the past furnished us with so many worthy and desirable immigrants is because so many undesirable immigrants are allowed to come.

Another proof that this class of immigrants that represent the undesirable class, and the three-fourths part, are not here for the purpose for which we wish them to come, namely, the settlement and development of the public lands. We find, of the number of immigrants coming here last year, that 315,511 were destined to New York, 210,708 to Pennsylvania, 72,159 to Massachusetts, 72,779 to Illinois, 57,258 to New Jersey and 49,351 to Ohio. It appears from these figures that 777,748, or 76 per cent of the 1,026,000 immigrants that came here in 1905, went to six states, and the West got 43,572 and the South 46,348, or 4½ per cent. According to statistics taken from the commissioner general of immigration, 44 per cent of the crime committed by white persons in the United States is charged to the native element and 56 per cent to the foreign element, and in 1850 the number of native-born whites in penitentiaries was 12,842 and the number of foreign or foreign parentage was 15,568, or 54 per cent of the total, or, in other words, the foreign white element, which was two-fifths of the total, furnished three-fifths of the white criminals of the United States. At that time the same census shows that, not counting the feebleminded and idiots, 33 per cent of the insane of the United States were of foreign birth, as compared with 28 per cent in 1850, and although the foreign-born constituted in 1880 only 14 per cent of the total population, they furnished two and one-third times their share of the insane, and comparing an equal number of the foreign element and the native element of the year 1906, the foreigners furnished three times as many paupers as the native element.

In 1905 the total number of inmates in our criminal and penal institutions was 340,885. Of this number 97,074, or 28 per cent, were of foreign birth, and the foreign-born population of the United States is only 14 per cent of the whole population. In other words, while the foreign element furnish about one-seventh of our population, they furnish one-third of the criminals. The number of illiterates in 1905 was 239,091, an increase over the preceding year of 66,223. The Republicans can harp about protection to American industry and labor, but if this ratio of immigration keeps up, the increase of immigration here and the absence of them from the countries from which they come will soon bring the wages to a level, as the wages will increase in foreign countries to the extent their workmen go abroad, and ours will sweep correspondingly as the laborers increase.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

School Girl Neither Absent Nor Tardy in Twelve Years.

West Union, Iowa, June 16.—Edna Adams, who has just graduated from the Volga City high school, has made an exceptional record for punctuality and attendance. During the entire twelve years of her school life she has not once been absent or tardy. Miss Adams is the daughter of C. S. Adams, formerly a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul engineer, now a merchant at Volga City.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Settlers Are Making Grand Rush to Morton and Hettinger.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—Since the definite location of the line of the Milwaukee road through the southern tier of townships in Morton and Hettinger counties, the land office in this city has been besieged by homesteaders seeking to file on land in that vicinity. Thursday and Friday about 100 filings were made at the office, and the hotels are filled with newcomers seeking homes in that vicinity. The land is very fine in that part of the country, and has been left open to settlement on account of its distance from a railroad.

At the present rate two months will see the vacant land all taken up. It is outside the Northern Pacific railroad grant, and therefore every quarter can be homesteaded, so the country is bound to be thickly settled.

Alex Larron, who was recently released from the penitentiary, where he served three years for horse stealing, and was afterwards arrested and tried for extradition, at the request of the Canadian authorities, but escaped only to be arrested by the McLean county sheriff on a charge of grand larceny, was brought to trial at Washburn yesterday. His attorney asked and was granted a change of venue to this county. Larron was then arrested on a charge of bringing stolen horses into the United States, and all kinds of trouble seems in store for him. It is understood the Canadians are behind this last charge, and will again endeavor to extradite him.

Flag day was generally observed in this city, all the stores being decorated and private houses displaying the national colors.

Ellendale—Rhineholdt Ruttke, who is charged with the murder of his stepfather, waived examination and was bound over to the next term of court, which convenes June 26.

Starkweather—J. W. Beemer of Dixon, Ill., has purchased the Moen farm, 640 acres, without buildings, for $20,000 in cash. Possession will be given in the fall after the crop is taken off. Mr. Beemer will build modern farm buildings this summer.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—In the case of the American Copying company vs. the Eureka Bazar company, Presiding Justice Fuller holds that no action can be maintained to enforce any contract entered into, or recovery be had in this state, by a foreign corporation, unless such corporation has previously complied with the statute requiring it to file a copy of its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, and appointed a resident agent upon whom service of process may be had.

The case is one of widespread importance, touching as it does on all business transactions of corporations without the state with business firms or individuals within the state. Many corporations have complied with the provisions of this statute, but hundreds either do not know of this provision, or, knowing, have failed to comply with it.

The state assessment board decided that the assessment of telephone companies has grown to such importance that it will consider that class of property in a meeting by itself to be held on the regular date set for such work, July 23. It has been the custom to adjourn this meeting to the date of the regular meeting in August.

Governor Elrod has appointed as game wardens Joseph Zelinske of Springfield for Bon Homme county, and Thomas Freeman of Flandreau for Moody county.

Aberdeen—A movement is on foot to begin at once the work of preparing for the celebration of Aberdeen's silver anniversary. Next April this city will be twenty-five years old, and it is the intention to have a big celebration on a date to be determined by the city council. As soon as possible, a committee will be organized to take charge of the affair, and it is intended, among other things, to have a reunion of old residents of the city.

Milbank—The G. A. R. encampment for the Northern district of South Dakota closed at Sisseton Friday. One of the interesting features was a reunion of twenty old government scouts who in the sixties were detailed with the troops operating against the Indians in Western Minnesota and Dakota territory. Their experiences in the Indian uprising were thrilling. There was a good attendance of old soldiers at the encampment. Eli Babb of Wilmot was chosen commander, and Wilmot was selected for the next encampment.

Rapid City—Little Tom-Afraid-of-Thunder, aged 9 years, died at the Indian school of tuberculosis of the brain after a short illness. After trying in vain to reach the father by telegraph, Superintendent House dispatched one of the older boys, Red Bull by name, who, on his Indian pony, rode eighty-five miles across the country to carry the news of the little fellow's illness to the tepee on the Cheyenne agency, where the parents live.

Old Afraid-of-Thunder and his wife came as quickly as they could with their little wagon and ponies, but despite their haste, did not reach Rapid City until the child was dead.

The funeral took place just at twilight, and the chorus of Indian boys and girls sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul." The father, though uneducated, is one of the progressive Indians on the agency.

A BAD CASE OF SECRET REBATES IN DULUTH.

Among the accounts on our Petty Ledger, which we purchased from Mr. Burrows a year ago, is one against a local plumbing firm for nearly a hundred dollars. This firm refuses to settle, claiming that the amount was due them for rebates on orders for merchandise with which they sent their workingmen to the Burrows store. Mr. Burrows, as will be remembered, made an occasional hard fight in the newspapers against this Rebate Abuse and in favor of the One-price System. He claims that he had discontinued giving rebates before these orders were filled by him. The plumber, however, says, that he never received notice to this effect and that in at least one case an employe had found out about the custom and had insisted on getting the benefit of the 10 per cent rebate for himself. Furthermore, we were told that they would be pleased to continue sending us orders if we were willing to grant the rebate.

Like all such offers—and we've had a good many—we refused, because we believe that the moment a store has two prices, it must needs say good-bye to honest values and moderate prices. We prefer to do a clean-cut business, charging everybody the same low price and purchasing the best goods obtainable in the land. And we are not losing by it, for our business grows bigger from week to week, surpassing Burrows' palmiest days, when he had half the competition. It goes to show that the people appreciate our way—and we do not have to "manufacture" special sales, either, to pull them to the store.

There is still a good deal of this rebating done in the city, and while we are the last ones to worry about it, we would like to know what the workingmen of Duluth think of it.

ACCUSES LOVER OF A MURDER

Girl Declares That He Slew and Buried Her Father.

Mineola, L. I., June 16.—Looking her former sweetheart unuflinchingly in the eyes, Gertrude O'Hara, on the witness stand in the trial of Grover Cleveland Poole, on a charge of murdering her father, calmly told of her success in getting the young man to commit himself specifically, even while she permitted him to make love to her.

The girl, who is only 19 years old, admitted that she kept the secret of the murder until the dead body of her father was found on Sept. 21 last, nearly two months after he had disappeared. She gave no reason for her long silence except to say:

"I was engaged to Cleve and loved him then, and I just couldn't make up my mind to tell."

Poole, who was employed on Howard Gould's big estate, Castle Gould, near Port Washington, showed no nervousness as the girl recounted his alleged admissions. Once or twice when she spoke of her former affection for him he even smiled. He appeared to be indifferent to the fact that Miss O'Hara's testimony appeared most damaging to him.

The girl gave Poole's alleged description of the shooting as follows:

"As soon as I shot him, Jim fell forward and he said, 'What have I done that you should do this to me?' Then he grabbed hold of my hand and he was holding on to it when he died. When he was dead I dragged the body into the woods. He shook hands as he lay dying and he said he couldn't understand why I shot him.'"

The witness said that Poole warned her not to say anything to her mother or to anyone else, "unless she wanted to get the same dose."

She said that Poole went out the next night and did not return until 10 p. m.

When he came home he told her he had buried her father's body five and a half feet under ground—"just as all Christian people are buried." The morning after the shooting she said, Poole had gone to Castle Gould and worked as usual.

On the night of the murder when he returned home, the witness said, Poole wore no outside shirt. The district attorney showed her a shirt with stains on it that was found by a constable near Castle Gould, and it was identified as belonging to Poole. The witness also identified the clothing worn by her father on the night of the murder. She said Poole slept that night in all his clothes and with his hat on.

WILL LEAVE THIS CITY

Rev. Harry White Resigns Pastorate of Unitarian Church.

Rev. Harry White, pastor of the Unitarian church in this city for the past eight years has tendered his resignation and will preach his farewell sermon, Sunday, June 24. He will leave shortly afterward for Worcester, Mass.

Rev. Mr. White's leave-taking is much regretted by his church and congregation, as he has built up both to a considerable degree since coming to Duluth. When he came the church was in debt and did not own the ground where the building now stands. Rev. Mr. White entered into his work with energy and with good business qualities with such success that the church society has paid off its mortgage and has a clear title to its property.

Rev. Mr. White tendered his resignation a year ago, but at the earnest request of the congregation, he withdrew it for a year and renewed it recently.

LOSES HIS CLAIM.

General Land Office Decides Against Jacob Lampi's Appeal.

Word has been received from the general land office in Washington that the Duluth land office has been endorsed in its decision against Jacob Lampi, a cancellation case. Robert J. Gillon of Duluth, filed a contest after Lampi had commuted his homestead claim and paid $1.25 an acre, claiming that Lampi had not fulfilled the law. The Duluth office after hearing the case held the entry claim proof for cancellation.

Lampi appealed to the general land office but gets no relief. The claim involved is the west half of the southeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter and lot 6, of 18-60-9.

FEW VASSAR 'GRADS' IN LINE FOR MARRIAGES.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—Out of the class of 194 students that graduated from Vassar college, only ten of them have pleaded guilty to being engaged. This is considered remarkable, in view of the fact that this year's class contained an unusually large number of pretty girls.

The roll call took place at the senior dinner in the gymnasium of the college. It is at this dinner that the engaged girls disclose the secret, if they have really kept their engagement such, and much merriment is the result.

The call of the roll was done with much mock dignity, and after each name was called there was a pause, so that none of the young women could say afterward that she was not given an opportunity to enter her plea. With the last named, only ten guilty girls were discovered, and there were exclamations of surprise on all sides.

IN GRAVE OF SISTER SHIP

Steamer Grecian of Steel Fleet Sinks in Lake Huron.

Temporary Repairs on Her Evidently Gave Way Suddenly.

Detour, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Grecian, which left here yesterday for the dry dock at Detroit, foundered in Thunder bay, Lake Huron, last night. The crew of the lost boat were rescued by the steamer Bessemer, which left for Lake Superior at 7 o'clock this morning. All had succeeded in escaping from the ship before it went down.

The Grecian, which had a cargo of coal for Detour, struck a rock a few days ago while trying to make this port in a fog, and sank in shallow water. The steamer was soon raised and brought here, where temporary repairs were made, and then it was started for Detroit. Evidently some of the temporary work gave way on Lake Huron.

The lost boat belonged to the United States Steel corporation, was built in Cleveland in 1891, and measured 2,348 tons. A sister boat, the Norman, was lost in nearly the same spot as the last resting place of the Grecian. It was valued at $110,000.

A revised edition, in colors, of the chart of L'Anse and Keweenaw bay, Lake Superior, has just been published and is for sale at 15 cents per copy by the United States lake survey, 33 Campau building, Detroit, Mich.

The tug Superior went to the Apostle islands yesterday, where she caught up with the wrecked steamer Crescent City, which is being towed down the lakes by the Mariposa. The Superior took the stern line of the wrecked steamer as far as the Sault. There arrangements for the lower lakes will be made.

The tug Zenith, which handled the stern line of the Manila as far as the Sault, returned today. She made the trip up in thirty-five hours.

ARE VICTIMS OF BAD TREATMENT

Italian Immigrants Are Made Slaves by the Padrones.

New York, July 16.—The Italian immigrants and other laborers sent to the South and West by New York padrones are the victims of cruel treatment and repression, is one of the statements made by License Commissioner John N. Bogart in his annual report submitted today to Mayor McClellan. Mr. Bogart reported:

"The padrone has practically instituted the slave system among his countrymen. He hires the immigrants by the hundreds to go out of the city to work on contracts and obtains from the employing corporation what is known as commissary privileges; that is, he furnishes the workmen with food and lodging, deducting the cost from their wages.

"As the padrone is the sole arbitrator of the cost of these necessaries, it can be imagined how much the immigrant gets as the net result of his labor. It was recently shown that hundreds of Italian immigrants who believed they were going to Philadelphia or Pittsburg, were really landed in the swamps of Florida and the wilds of North Carolina, where they were kept on railroad construction work until they became too sick to be of value, when they were turned loose to make their way back to New York as best they could."

MACCABEES ENTERTAIN.

Give Reception For Mrs. Dalson, Who is to Leave.

Duluth Hive, No. 1, L. O. T. M., entertained at a banquet Friday afternoon at the lodge rooms in Maccabee hall, in honor of Mrs. Mary Dalson, who is soon to leave for Winnipeg. Mrs. Dalson is a prominent member of the hive, and always took an active part both as an officer and on committee work, and her absence is deeply regretted by the members.

D. S. C. Barton, in behalf of the hive, presented her with a beautiful cut glass tea set and finger bowl as a token of the esteem in which she is held.

Another feature of the Friday afternoon meeting was the consolidation of Welcome Hive No. 87 with Hive No. 1, Mrs. Barton having charge of the ceremonies, which were very interesting.

SURVEY OF HARBOR.

Resolution For Duluth Will be Sustained by Committee.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The river and harbor committee this morning agreed to sustain a resolution authorizing the examination and survey of Duluth harbor with a view to further protecting vessels in or entering the harbor from storms. Representative Bede will draw the resolution and probably introduce it today.

The house today passed a bill to establish a sub-port of entry at Superior, Wis.

RAILROADS

TO ARRANGE FOR EVENT

G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Club Will Hold Meeting Sunday Morning.

Annual Convention Will Open in Duluth Next Tuesday.

Duluth members of the Get As Much Business As You Can club will hold a meeting tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the city freight office of the Milwaukee road, when arrangements for the convention, of the organization, in Duluth next week, will be further discussed.

The annual meeting will be held here next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 19 and 20, and members who will attend it, will begin arriving tomorrow. By Monday night it is expected there will be between 150 and 200 of them here from all parts of the Middle West and Northwest. The Twin Cities and Chicago will send a good many, for these three cities are the headquarters for most of the traveling agents who make the Northwest territory.

The Union depot and city ticket and freight offices will be decorated for the occasion, and officials of the organization suggest that business houses along Superior street make some effort to decorate also. The visitors who will be here are traveling through the West most of the time, and have it in their power to do Duluth a lot of good. Aside from this they are good fellows, all of them, and deserving of the best there is.

Headquarters and a bureau of information will be established at parlor X, Spalding hotel. Members will report here on their arrival and register their names and secure badges. The meeting is for pleasure alone. It will begin Tuesday morning with a boulevard drive, carriages leaving the Spalding hotel at 10 a. m. In the afternoon there will be an excursion on the lake at 3 o'clock, on the steamship America, with a planked whitefish dinner served on the boat. Music will be furnished by the Third regiment band.

Wednesday morning a special train will be run over the Missabe road to Hibbing for the benefit of the members, with lunch served on the train. A 6 o'clock dinner will be served at the Spalding hotel on the return of the party.

BOOTH LINE SCHEDULE.

Close Connections for Isle Royale and North Shore Points.

Local railroad men have been notified that tomorrow the schedule of the Booth line for the summer season will go into effect, to remain in force until Sept. 12. W. H. Northmore, district freight and passenger agent of the line, is busy getting the schedules distributed, and in commenting on the features of the time table, says he believes the runs are the best and most effective ever arranged for the line. The schedule is so arranged that a person can make the Isle Royale trip without the expenditure of much time, if he wants to make it a short excursion.

There will be boats for Port Arthur and intermediate points, including the Isle Royale stops, Sunday, Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and boats returning from Port Arthur via the same route, arriving in Duluth Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Sunday and Wednesday boats from this city will go via Port Arthur to Isle Royale ports, while Sunday and Thursday there will be a boat for the south shore ports to Sault Ste. Marie and Mackinac Island, which will touch all Isle Royale ports direct. The boats returning on this route will leave Mackinac Island Sunday and Wednesday and arrive here Wednesday and Saturday.

For Duluth, Ashland, Ontonagan and the Copper country ports, boats will leave here Tuesday and Friday, going through to Houghton, leaving that Port Wednesday and Sunday for the Head of the Lakes. From the foregoing it may be seen that the list of runs and the ports embraced are unusually complete.

RACE FOR BOUNDARY.

Rainy Lake and Great Northern Roads Rushing Preliminary Work.

International Falls, Minn., June 16.—The race for the international boundary between the two railroads continues with unabating vigor. The engineers of the Rainy Lake line have effected a crossing at the Rat Root river, and their camp is now established three miles and a half southwest of town.

A preliminary line has been run to Pether's Point, where the road will cross the Rainy Lake river. That the town of Pether's Point is not merely a paper proposition is evidenced by the fact that already the promoters have sold 165 lots on contract.

The report of the preliminary survey of the Great Northern line was satisfactory to the officials, the land being level and little grading necessary. There is no heavy grade on the entire line between Dewey and the Falls, a distance of seventy-seven miles. Chief Engineer Eddy is now engaged on a resurvey from the Falls to determine the actual roadbed. Another crew will be started from Dewey.

It is expected here that both roads will have trains running to the Rainy river before next spring.

Work on Alborn Branch.

The Alborn branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road is now finished to within two miles of Bovey, Minn. T. F. Cole, president of the railroad company, visited the work in a special car this week. The train arrived at Bengal over the Great Northern, and ran from there over the new line to the Holman mine. It is expected that it will be from thirty to sixty days before the extension to Bovey is completed.

Railroad Notes.

V. L. Freeland of Cincinnati, the new general agent of the Wisconsin Central in Duluth, arrived in the city yesterday to assume charge of his new duties. He is registered at the Spalding. His family is expected to arrive here within a couple of weeks.

It is understood that the Duluth & Iron Range road will build a new depot at Two Harbors. The structure will measure 100 feet by 40 feet, and probably will be located directly west of the present depot.

TOWNSITE OF BROOKSTON

Favorable Decision Rendered By Commissioner of Land Office.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative J. Adam Bede today received a letter from the acting commissioner of the land office relative to the townsite of Brookston. He advises Mr. Bede that he has rendered a decision in this case, hold that the proof offered in support of the townsite claim is sufficient in all respects except for the absence of satisfactory proof of the official character of the judge who seeks to make the entry, on behalf of the town occupants. The decision of the acting commissioner allows sixty days from notice in which the desired proof may be furnished.

In the examination of the record in this case it was discovered that, in view of the failure of the tract book to show the pendency of the townsite claim, a certain bid submitted on Nov. 15, 1904, by the St. Louis River Logging company for timber standing upon one of the legal subdivisions embraced in the townsite, was accepted by the department on Dec. 7, 1904. In view of the right so acquired by this company to cut and remove timber, the decision above mentioned holds that when the townsite entry shall be allowed and patented it shall contain a clause reserving to the company the right to remove timber agreeably to the terms and conditions of its purchase. It is not believed that such recognition of the company's rights in the premises will in any wise embarrass the townsite's occupants.

Begins Sunday Excursions.

Resplendent in her newly painted exterior and enameled and decorated interior, the steamer Newsboy will begin tomorrow to run her regular Sunday excursions up the river to Fond du Lac. The present spell of fine weather has turned the attention of a great many to the popular up-river resort and picnic grounds, and it is expected that the Newsboy will carry a large crowd Sunday.

COPPER STOCKS WEAK AND DULL

Session Quiet One and Prices Go Down Some More.

The copper market was weak and very dull today. North Butte opened at $88.75, declined to $88.50 and closed at $88.25 bid and $88.75 asked. The total number of sales was 145 shares. Amalgamated opened at $104.87½, declined to $102.62½ and closed at $103.62½ bid and $103.87½ asked.

Anaconda opened at $259.50, declined to $252, rallied to $258.50 and closed at $250 bid. Butte Coalition sold at $30 and closed at $29.50 bid and $30 asked and Calumet & Arizona closed at $110 bid and $112 asked.

The Bisbee Consolidated stock had a weaker tone, selling at $18 and closing at $18 bid. Calumet & Pittsburg closed at $30 bid and $32 asked; Junction at $26 bid and $27 asked; Lake Superior and Pittsburg, $30 bid and $32 asked, and Pittsburg & Duluth, $20 bid and $21 asked.

ARGUE MOTION FOR DISMISSAL

Property Owners Oppose Petition of New Power Company.

Judge Cant was hearing the arguments for and against the motion of the St. Croix Lumber company and other land interests for a dismissal of the Minnesota Canal & Power company's petition in condemnation proceedings. The power company recently amended its articles of incorporation to suit the ruling of the state supreme court on its first petition to condemn certain lands for canal and reservoir purposes. The second condemnation suit was filed in the district court a short time ago and the persons and corporations who own lands that come under the proposed proceedings have asked that the court dismiss the petition with costs.

The Minnesota Canal & Power company maintains its right to have a commission appointed to appraise the land on the grounds that while the statutes have been changed since the first action was started, the demand of the company has been made to conform to any and all changes, in the second case.

WALKER DEFEATED.

Akeley Team Adds Another to Long String of Victories.

Akeley, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Akeley baseball team defeated the Walker nine yesterday afternoon by the score of 10 to 7. It was the first defeat that the Walker team has sustained this season. Akeley has won six games this week.

HAS MENTAL AILMENT.

Mrs. O. H. Miller of New Duluth is Examined.

Mrs. O. H. Miller, one of the pioneer residents of New Duluth, was to have been examined for insanity before Probate Judge Middlecoff this afternoon on information filed by members of her family. Mrs. Miller has resided at New Duluth for the past thirty-five years, and has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who regret her mental ailment. Her husband is in the employ of the Northern Pacific Railway company as section foreman at New Duluth.

It is believed that her advanced age has much to do with Mrs. Miller's mental condition. She is said to have steadily refused to speak to or take any notice of any member of her family for some time past.

HIS DEBT PAID, SPIERS JOINS CHURCH AGAIN.

Sterling, Ill., June 16.—Twenty years ago Adam Spiers, at that time a prominent manufacturer of this city, left the Reformed Mennonite church of this city because he could not be a Christian and be heavily in debt. The reason for his heavy indebtedness here was due to the destruction of his immense wagon plant in this city, and owing to the rules of the church he could not insure it. For twenty years he struggled. He built a plant in Clinton and later went to Abingdon, Ill. At the end of twenty years he paid off a debt of $50,000, and then rejoined the church of his early life.

He is now 70 years old. At 50 he began the struggle to pay a debt of $50,000, and succeeded. Yesterday he was baptized into the Mennonite church of this city. During the time that he was heavily involved, Mr. Spiers did not use the bankrupt laws, declaring that he would pay off his indebtedness cent for cent, and he did. He will now retire from active work.

COREY, ENGAGED, TO GIVE WIFE DIVORCE.

Braddock, Pa., June 16.—There will be no sensations in the divorce suit of Mrs. Laura Cook Corey against W. Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation. Corey will not offer defense, allowing her to get a decree by default.

It is understood by the friends of Mr. Corey in this little town, where he met and married his wife, who was his father's servant, that he is going to marry again.

Mr. Corey is not going to marry Mabelle Gilman, the actress. It is announced by his friends here that the second Mrs. Corey is a woman now resident in New York, who has announced that if the name of any woman appeared in the trial of this divorce suit it was all off with her. So Mr. Corey insisted that co-respondents should be cut out of the case. Mrs. Corey agreed to this and brought the suit on the ground of desertion.

In consideration of agreeing to keep out the names of the women it is stated Mr. Corey has placed in escrow for his wife a sum between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, to be paid over to her when the divorce is granted. He is also to settle all court costs and her attorney's fees and they will probably be well up in the thousands. The only child they have been blessed with will be with the mother.

MORGAN'S SHIP TRUST NOW SHOWS EARNINGS.

New York, June 16.—There were two features of interest at the meeting of the stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine company. One was the retirement of James H. Hyde from any further connection with the company, and the other was the announcement that the deficit, amounting to $2,039,150 in 1904, had been turned into a surplus of $2,890,848. This meant an increased profit of $4,929,998.

It is the first time in the five years that Mr. Morgan's great ship trust has been in existence that it has made anything like a favorable showing.

HAS ALWAYS BEEN ELIJAH

So Dowie Tells Court at Hearing on Zion City.

Chicago, June 16.—John Alexander Dowie, on the witness stand today in the United States district court, during the hearing of the Zion City controversy, was asked:

"Are you Elijah, the restorer?"

"I have always been."

"When did you first become conscious of the fact?"

"It gradually grew. I resented the revelation as it were and for years was grieved and angry if anyone suggested that I was Elijah. I am not a visionary man. The first time it came to my attention was in Melbourne, or Sydney, Australia, while at the head of a Bible society. One night I was asked to preach a sermon. I went to supper and ordered two meals which I forgot to eat. I had been thinking over my subject and could not get beyond Elijah. I was thinking of his remarkable career, and my supper got cold. One of my deacons told me I had a message from God. I laughed and said: 'You go away and let me alone.' He said: 'I want to tell you, you are Elijah.' He said that three times and walked away. I was much distressed, for he could not have known I had been thinking of Elijah for an hour. I spoke and my last idea was that I was Elijah. But, as God is my judge, the thought that I was the second embodiment never entered my mind. After the sermon one member said to me, 'I feel like saying "You are Elijah." I said, "I am not—don't get that bee in my bonnet." For years I would not think of it, but in after years I had to come to it. They were all right. The first open revelation was that night."

A number of alienists were in attendance at court while Dowie was on the stand.

M'GONAGLE TO MEET THEM.

Will Discuss Depot Improvement With Business Men of Eveleth.

W. A. McGonagle will hold a conference in the near future with the members of the Business Men's association of Eveleth for the purpose of discussing plans for better depot facilities for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road at that place.

Among the plans that have been suggested is one for a union depot at the south end of Grand avenue in Eveleth, where it could be seen from almost every part of the business section. It is understood that the business men of the range city are very anxious to see this plan carried out.

When approached by a delegation of Eveleth business men, the officials of the road seemed willing to undertake some sort of improvements in the station at Eveleth.

GIVEN MAXIMUM.

William King, Colored Chauffeur, Pleads Guilty to Petty Larceny.

William King, the young colored chauffeur who eloped to Minneapolis with a woman named Cleo Kellogg and about $40 worth of jewelry, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of petty larceny.

He was formerly arraigned on a grand larceny charge, but this was dismissed, and he entered a plea of guilty to the petty larceny charge. Judge Windom imposed a fine of $100 and costs, with the alternative of ninety days in jail. The case against the woman was dismissed.

King was represented by a colored attorney from Minneapolis.

Canada's Coming Navy.

An arrangement has been made with England, whereby a number of trading ships will be kept in Canadian waters and Canada is to pay the cost of maintaining them. Heretofore England has borne the cost of defending Canada with forts and guns and ships of war. The best and least expensive way to defend the system against attacks of disease is to keep strong and well fortified by an occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For 53 years it has been proving its wonderful merit as a health maker and keeper, so that you need have no hesitancy in taking it, as the weakest stomach can easily retain it. It is a specific remedy for poor appetite, sour risings, flatulency, heartburn, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, female ills or malaria, fever and ague. Don't fail to try it.

With a frontage of over 1700 feet on the River, half way between the great Bridges which join New York and Brooklyn, the Arbuckles' establishment is one of the show sights of New York. In millions of homes in every section of this country Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee is the only coffee used, almost the only drink except water; consequently the name of "Arbuckle" has been most familiar to the people during the last 37 years, there being no other trade-marked article so widely distributed or in such universal demand. From a small beginning the sales have grown to exceed the combined sales of every other packaged coffee in the United States—and why? Because Arbuckles have given the people the greatest coffee value for their money all of the time, and have sold their ARIOSA Coffee in sealed packages for the consumers' protection, to insure their actually receiving what they paid for, both in quality and in weight. The sales of ARIOSA demonstrate the common sense and appreciation of the American people, and ARIOSA has contributed to their development and prosperity by giving them their money's worth of coffee that increased their power and ambition to work and placed them foremost among the world's greatest nations.

This is the same old ARIOSA and the same old firm that introduced it 37 years ago.

The test of superiority has taught the careful mother that buying ARIOSA Coffee not only means money saved but that she is actually supplying the best coffee for the coffee drinkers of her family.

By the original "Mother's" process patented by this firm, the pores of the coffee are hermetically sealed after roasting with a coating of fresh eggs and granulated sugar which holds the "goodness in," and preserves for you intact wherever you may be, the delightful aroma and flavor due to our skilled blending and roasting which are not to be compared with crude and primitive methods on a smaller scale.

Buy a package, take it home and grind it as you want to use it. That is the way to get the best results. Coffee deteriorates after being ground or exposed to the air, two reasons why you should refuse to take loose "scoop" coffee—and there are others of importance. Warming ARIOSA slightly makes the grinding easy.

If your grocer tells you he has no Arbuckles' ARIOSA, send to us direct. For $1.80 we will send 10 lbs. in a wood box, transportation paid to your freight station. Price of coffee fluctuates and cannot be guaranteed for any period. The coffee will be sent in the original wrappers bearing the signature of Arbuckle Bros., which entitles you to presents. New Book with colored pictures of 97 presents will be sent free if you write for it. 4,000,000 presents given away in 12 months.

IN POLITICS.

The 1906 Republican state convention is now a thing of the past. Satisfaction over the results appear to be universal, among Republicans and Democrats alike. Of course, there were some disappointed candidates. With from three to eight candidates in the field for every office, this was to be expected, but on the whole there is a greater feeling of friendship among the defeated for the victorious than is usually the case, and all say they will turn in and help the winners in their campaign for election.

The Democrats are not at all frightened at the prospect of A. L. Cole of Walker, as a candidate for governor in opposition to Governor Johnson, or don't appear to be, at least. They are confident that Johnson will be the next governor, and say Senator Cole will be as easy to defeat as any of the seven candidates who might have been selected. The advice of the Republicans to such remarks as this is to wait and see, but few of the latter party can be found who are not willing to admit that Governor Johnson is a hard man for any one to beat this year, with his record in office and his great personal popularity to back him up.

It was not very many days ago that Jacobson backers were setting up the cry that if their candidate were defeated in trying for the nomination of governor on the Republican ticket, it would be through the influence of the corporations. They said nothing but the corporations could beat him. Jacobson was defeated, and now wonder is being expressed as to whether the many Republicans who were making the cry will be able to convince the people, for whose benefit the statements were made, that there was no truth to them. If the voters really believed the corporation story in the first place, will they be open to conviction between now and November that there was nothing to it?

The delegates were satisfied with the results, and they were delighted with Duluth as a convention city. For a few days, Duluth, always busy and active, took on the appearance of another city, so far as the people to be seen on the streets were concerned. In the neighborhood of 2,000 outsiders were here to attend the big event, and as their forces were concentrated around the St. Louis and Spalding hotels, in the main business section of the city, the number of strange faces in a given area was so great as to give a person the feeling of being in a strange city. But with all the visitors who were here, everybody was well taken care of. All found accommodations, and they were pleased at the treatment they received, and did not hesitate to say so. The Minneapolis Tribune had the following good words to say of the way in which the convention was handled:

"The hospitality of Duluth to the convention delegates brought out a universal expression of good feeling. Duluth entertained the convention and the delegates excellently. The manner of accommodation for out of town visitors was especially well taken care of. An agreement between hotel managers was reached, through which no increase was made in regular hotel rates.

"The Commercial club provided accommodations for all who could not be taken care of by the hotels. Excellent quarters in private houses near the center of the city were provided by the club and there was no delay in assigning of delegates.

"The arrangements at the convention hall were perfect and aided materially in allowing the convention to finish its work in a single day."

Ernest R. Jefferson, candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of senator from the Fiftieth district, is feeling elated over the fact that the Republican state convention adopted a platform embodying substantially the same principles as were set forth in his own platform, as published in The Herald a couple of weeks ago. Mr. Jefferson's announcement and the convention document covered practically the same ground.

"While Odin Halden lost out in his attempt to land the nomination for state auditor at the convention this week, his campaign was of benefit to Duluth and St. Louis county," said a local political leader yesterday, in speaking of the political events of the week. "Twice now he has been defeated in his race for the same office, and while his candidacy hasn't done Mr. Halden himself any particular good, it has brought Duluth and St. Louis county into great prominence in the eyes of the remainder of the state, and from the standpoint of advertising, was certainly of benefit.

"The St. Louis man's candidacy has done much to do away with the old feeling of prejudice and antagonism against this section of the state, and did much to bring Northeastern Minnesota into closer relationship with other parts of the commonwealth. The giving of eight votes to Jacobson by the St. Louis county delegation did more than anything else to promote a greater feeling of friendship between St. Louis county and Southern Minnesota. The votes were given against the earnest wishes of several members of the St. Louis county delegation, but the result shows the action to have been a wise one."

C. F. Macdonald, editor of the St. Cloud Times, has for the past few weeks been freely talked of for the position of lieutenant governor on the ticket with Governor Johnson. Mr. Macdonald has been commander of the G. A. R., and president of the Editorial association. It is generally believed that he could have the Democratic nomination for the office without much of an effort on his part, but, according to an editorial statement in a recent issue of his paper, he will not be a candidate. The editorial appears in response to the numerous friendly and complimentary notices which have been appearing in the state press, Republican and Democratic alike, and is to the effect that the St. Cloud man is not a candidate, and would not accept the nomination if it were tendered him. Under one of these complimentary notices from the Rochester Post-Record (Rep.), Mr. Macdonald says:

"The above and similar kindly notices have appeared for the past few weeks in our state exchanges—our Republican brothers being especially complimentary in their allusions to the editor of the Times. We have not alluded to the subject matter referred to, as we regarded references to ourself as the personal expression of brother editors whose good will we esteem beyond the possession of any political office. But, as the items referred to have created the impression that the editor of the Times is, or will be, a candidate, we mention the matter now to state emphatically that we are not a candidate, will not be a candidate, and would not accept a nomination."

"For their very complimentary expressions, we heartily thank our brothers of the state press, whose good will we regard as beyond price."

The Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal says it is authorized to announce that A. J. McGee will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative from the Fifty-first legislative district. Mr. McGee is an old resident of Two Harbors, and the Journal says there is no doubt that he will make a strong candidate. Harry G. Skinner is another Two Harbors man who is a candidate for the same office. A tacit agreement has existed for several years between Duluth and the remainder of the district, to the effect that one representative should come from Lake county, while the senator and other representative should come from Duluth. The question is, which of the two will it be?

There are well defined rumors afloat to the effect that Charles Kauppi of West Duluth, county commissioner, will become a Republican candidate for the nomination for sheriff. So many are already in the field for that particular office that a few more or less should make no particular difference. Mr. Kauppi has a large acquaintance, both in the city and on the ranges, and should prove a strong candidate, if he decides to get into the game.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis, a member of the house, was one of the first men in Duluth to make a stand for A. L. Cole for governor. In The Herald, several weeks ago, he was quoted as strongly favoring the Walker man, and predicting his election. He has served in the legislature with Cole, and for several years has been a close friend of his. Ever since the senator got into the gubernatorial contest the Duluth man has been an active worker in his behalf, and in case of the formers' election, Capt. Lewis, it is said, will stand very close to the governor, and will likely attain some little prominence as a result.

The Saturday Evening Post, in its "Men and Women" page, devotes nearly two columns of space to Congressman J. Adam Bede, speaking of him as the humorist of the house, and giving his photograph, which, by the way, is a very good likeness, a prominent position at the top of the page. Below is given an extract from the article:

"Bede is not only a pretty fair funnyman, but a beneficent Creator mapped him out physically for the part. He is a small man, with a wrinkled-apple sort of a face. He looks like an anecdote. The fun bubbles out of him naturally. It is mostly of the true American style. He is lavish with exaggerated similes. His metaphors are grotesque. He makes some excellent epigrams, and, with it all, he sees the bright side of everything and talks about it. The sun is always shining for Bede.

"He is an Ohio product. After he finished school he worked in many states as a reporter. He finally landed in Duluth, and has had various newspapers there. He was a Republican in his early days, but, being versatile, he went to the Democratic party in the first Cleveland campaign. This transference of political fealty got him a United States marshalship from President Cleveland, and he hung on to the Democratic party until the money issue arose. Then he shifted back to the Republican party, and, as he says in his biography in the Congressional Directory, 'decided to come to congress as a Republican.' They twitted Bede about that when he was making his first important speech in the house.

"'Haven't you been a Democrat?' John Sharp Williams asked him.

"'I have,' Bede responded promptly. 'I want to say finally that I voted the Democratic ticket a few times, and I know how hard it is. My first vote and my last vote were Republican, but in the meantime I voted the Democratic ticket—and it is necessarily the mean time when you do a thing like that.'"

Joel P. Heatwole of the Northfield News is another outside newspaper man who has taken occasion to tell through the columns of his paper of the advantages of Duluth as a convention city. He also made the discovery while here that Duluth is not run by the steel trust. The News says:

"The hospitality shown by Duluth during the Republican state convention this week was in marked contrast to the indifference usually exhibited by St. Paul or Minneapolis. There was nothing to criticise—on the contrary there was much to commend. The hotels charged the regular rates and no attempt was made to take advantage of the situation and charge abnormally high prices. Taken altogether Duluth has won the right to occupy a prominent place among the convention cities of the Northwest. While there was some inconvenience, as there always is where there are great gatherings, the absence of accommodations was no more conspicuous than in the Twin Cities during a like gathering. Duluth certainly did everything it had promised and is to be congratulated upon the easy and comfortable manner in which the convention was handled.

"We might say in passing that a visit to Duluth, and inquiries into the situation, reveals the fact that the great Steel Trust has not so completely embraced and enmeshed the city as is notoriously supposed. The influence which yields to the dictation of the Steel Trust is largely located in the range towns and does not find such a responsive sentiment in the city of Duluth. It is true that the general offices of the trust for the Northwest are located in Duluth, but a very considerable body of workmen are without the city limits."

Mr. C. M. I had no appetite or ambition and began to lose flesh rapidly. I was thirsty, feverish and weak. My brother-in-law advised me to take Warner's Safe Cure, which I did. I did not feel any radical change until I had taken the second bottle, when I found I was not compelled to get up so often during the night. I feel and look better than I have for years and have no further trouble from my kidneys, thanks to your valuable medicine."

During the week just ended the annual convention of the State Federation of Labor was held at Stillwater, and a number of important matters were discussed. Among other things the Union Labor party was launched, a state central committee appointed, which will in turn appoint county committees, these will appoint city and town committees, and thus the machinery of the party will be established. It is proposed to put labor candidates in the field for the legislature this year, and gradually work up sentiment for the party, so that they can, after a while, put full tickets into the field. The platform adopted by the state federation, which the party is to stand for, declares for an extension of the primary election law to state offices, and for the initiative, referendum and recall. This was made a particular feature of the platform. The platform also declares for a compulsory education bill, for an 8-hour work day, a complete and proper inspection of sanitary conditions in workshops, home rule for local governments and municipal ownership of all public monopolies, a division of labor in state penal institutions, so that their product shall not interfere materially with those of free labor, state free labor bureaus, co-operation of union labor and farmers, the admission of women to full citizenship, and the passage of a law compelling redress from employers for accident to employes, regardless of contributory negligence on the part of fellow employes.

Alderman William E. McEwen of Duluth was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the state federation. Only twenty-five votes were cast against him.

* * *

The annual convention of the Blue Label league followed the federation convention meeting, and the Duluth delegates to it were Joseph Shartel and M. Ettinger. Joseph Shartel was elected first vice president of the organization, and is also on the executive committee. The other officers are: President, John Kirby of Minneapolis; second vice president, L. G. Colson of Mankato; third vice president, L. R. Porter of St. Cloud; secretary-treasurer, E. G. Hall of Minneapolis.

Considerable business was transacted by the league, and the meeting was considered a very important one.

The Federated Trades' assebly will meet next Friday night, and it may be that some votes of unions will be reported on the proposition to buy ground for picnic grounds and build a pavillon. If so, they will be an indication of sentiment on the matter.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Steps Taken For the Formation of a Minnesota Society.

St. Paul, June 16.—Steps were taken at a dinner at the Minnesota club yesterday, given in honor of Dr. Livingston Farrand of New York, by Dr. C. L. Green of St. Paul, toward the formation of a Minnesota society for the prevention of tuberculosis. It is the intention to become in time a branch of the national society which has done so much in the past in securing a rational view of tuberculosis on the part of the laymen and in bringing about many of the ideas now in vogue relative to the manner in which it ought to be restricted. Dr. Farrand left for Duluth last evening with Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, and a director of the national association. It is the intention to start the movement in Duluth and also in Minneapolis, so that at some date in the near future, representatives from the various cities can get together on permanent organization.

J. H. Skinner of St. Paul, was named as chairman with authority to appoint a committee of five to meet with other similar committees through the state to perfect a state association. There were more laymen at the dinner than doctors, as it is the desire to interest as many non-professional men as possible, for upon them will devolve the carrying into effect the object of the association.

The work of the state association will be largely educational. The dissemination of information concerning tuberculosis and to start investigations into the prevalence of the disease will be a part of the work. The members will also attempt to secure legislation for the relief and prevention of tuberculosis. They will co-operate with public authorities and will encourage more adequate provisions for consumptives, such as the establishment of sanatoriums, hospitals, and dispensaries. Dr. Bracken, who has been interested in the work for many years, will direct the organization of the state organization.

BAPTISTS ARE IN CONVENTION

At Bemidji and Nearly One Hundred Visitors Present.

Bemidji, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Baptist association is holding its annual convention in Bemidji. Nearly 100 visiting Baptists from other towns in the north half of the state arrived in the city up to Friday noon and more are arriving by every train. The Ministerial association of the convention met Thursday night, when Dr. Riley of Minneapolis delivered a powerful address. At the conclusion of the doctor's address, the following officers were elected: Rev. C. C. Markham of Crookston, chairman; J. G. Wirth of Laporte, clerk. Friday morning a short prayer service was held and Rev. P. Millikin of Park Rapids, Rev. E. M. Atwood of Little Falls and Rev. W. L. Riley of Detroit, were appointed as an educational committee. A. P. Garrett spoke on "The Baptist's Relation to Inter-Church Federation," and J. G. Wirth also spoke on "Our Distinctive Denominational Mission." A. C. Amundson of White Oak was ordained, after which Rev. L. Oliver spoke on "The Educational Needs of the Busy Pastor and How We Can Meet Them." In the afternoon, addresses were delivered as follows: "The Heretical Sects Problem and Its Solution," by Dr. I. N. English; "The Problem of the "Interregnum Between Pastorates," by Rev. W. E. Wrapp; "The Pastor as an Evangelist," by Rev. E. M. Attwood. The convention will last through until Sunday evening. There are present pastors and laymen from Battle Lake, Brainerd, Crookston, Detroit, Guthrie, Laporte, Little Falls, Mevic, Minneapolis, Mizpah, Osage, Parkers Prairie, Park Rapids, Staples and St. Cloud, and it is expected that there will be many more here for the Sunday meeting.

Christ Hanson, a bad man, living at Nymore, has been given three years in the penitentiary, by Judge Spooner, for stealing some silk from the Bazaar store. Hanson confessed the theft and was sentenced by Junge Spooner, as provided by the new code. County Attorney McDonald presented his case so strongly to Hanson that the later immediately confessed his guilt.

On Sunday the local ball team will play a game on the grounds here with a team picked from the four clubs that are now playing in Crookston. This will be the last game on the old grounds, as the new park will be completed next week and all future games will be played there.

MANY MINES RESUME.

Pittsburg, Kas., June 16.—For the first time since April 15, the whistles at all of the Cherokee and Pittsburg coal and mining companies shafts in this vicinity blew for work last evening. Shots will be put in the mines today and the hoisting of coal will begin here Monday. Practically the same conditions obtain at all the union mines in Missouri, other parts of Kansas, Indian territory and Arkansas.

CONGRESSMAN GETS BAD FALL

Rufus Lester of Georgia Goes Through Skylight In Hotel.

Washington, June 16.—Representative Rufus E. Lester, was last night seriously, and probably fatally injured by falling through the skylight of the Cairo apartment house, on Q street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets northwest, where he has apartments. Mr. Lester had gone to the roof of the building shortly after 8 o'clock to look for his two young children, and apparently missed his footing, falling through the skylight, about thirty feet to the eleventh floor. In the fall he sustained internal injuries, and both legs were broken, his right leg being crushed fearfully. He was picked up by those who rushed to where he lay when they heard him fall, and carried him to his rooms. There was a consultation of physicians, and it was admitted that there was very little chance of his recovery. The doctors stated that it might be twenty-four hours before the outcome could be determined.

Mr. Lester has not been in good health for some time. He was partially paralyzed several years ago. Mr. Lester is 68 years old. He has represented the Savannah district since the beginning of the Fifty-first congress, serving through most of this time as one of the Democratic members of the rivers and harbors commission. He is a Confederate veteran, and had served as president of the Georgia state senate, and as mayor of Savannah.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

David Bellile Thrown Twenty Feet By An Ore Train.

Ashland, Wis., June 16.—David Bellile, a half-breed Indian, residing at Court Oreilles, but who has been pitching for the Odanah baseball team this season, was struck by a north bound ore train yesterday morning and received injuries from which he died six hours later.

Bellile, in company with George Shelafo, was in Ashland Thursday night, and shortly after midnight started to walk back along the railroad. Near Bear Trap they met a north bound ore train, and both being intoxicated, did not heed its approach until it was right upon them.

Sefalo staggered from the track just as the train rushed by, but his companion was struck by the pilot and knocked twenty feet. He was picked up and brought to Ashland.

Bellile was a graduate of the St. Thomas Indian school at St. Paul, and was a member of the college football team for two years.

WALLED UP ALIVE.

London, June 16.—A dispatch from Tangier to a news agency here says: "According to advices from Marakesh, the cobbler Mesfewi, who has been convicted of the murder of thirty-six women whose bodies were found burled under his shop and in his garden, has explated his crime. Instead of being crucified as had been intended, at the last moment it was ordered that he be walled up alive. Previous to the final act in the tragedy Mesfewi was subjected to daily floggings. While the masons were working they were surrounded by a mob who jeered Mesfewi. The first two days of his entombment the cobbler screamed continuously, but the third day the living tomb gave forth no sound."

FIRE INSURANCE PROFITS.

The fire insurance companies have been laying much stress upon their losses in San Francisco, and much talk has been heard about their intention to increase rates to reimburse them for these extraordinary drains upon their resources.

In the first excitement of the calamity that overtook the Golden Gate city some of the fire insurance people said they would pay in full, and that earthquake losses would be considered as fire losses, so that everything would be arranged for the best interests of the losers of San Francisco. This was in entire accord with the outburst of sympathy and generosity that the country was experiencing, and everybody thought how sad it was that the insurance companies had been hit so hard, but how glad it was that they should be so generous.

Now that the widespread spirit of generosity is over, however, or rather now that it has subsided into a quieter form, the insurance companies are more coldblooded about it, and some of them are talking about paying 60 per cent of the losses instead of paying them in full, and most of them have been talking about increasing their rates to make up their losses.

But it must not be overlooked that fire insurance must be a profitable business, else none would follow it. It must be remembered that with the exception of one or two big fires, they have got off pretty easily in past years, and that there should be some resources arising from their profits to enable them to withstand the loses at San Francisco.

In this connection, it should be noted that one Connecticut company has paid average dividends of 17½ per cent in the past ten years on a capital of $4,000,000, and at the same time has added $3,286,000 to its surplus. Another company located in the same state, with a capital of $1,250,000, was able to pay average dividends of 34 per cent and carry nearly $2,000,000 to its surplus. A New York company in the same time paid 13½ per cent on a capital of $500,000, and increased its surplus by $1,332,290.

All of which shows that fire insurance stock, in some instances at least, must have been profitable stuff to have. And at the same time it might be suggested that if anybody is to be assessed to make up these losses it should be the stockholders who have profited from the business, and not the public, through increased premiums, or the unfortunate sufferers of San Francisco, through a scaling down of their awards.

CIVIL SERVICE PENSIONS.

The plan proposed for retiring and pensioning superannuated government employes in the bill by Representative Fowler, recently introduced in the house, is the only proper way of solving this problem. That it is a problem, urgently calling for solution, there can be no possible doubt. In the government employ are many ancient servitors, bowed with years but still working and drawing pay. While up to a certain point the long experience of these men—and women—makes them valuable, beyond that their value decreases with great rapidity, until finally they become mere pensioners. Harsh as it seems to say it, they are not worth their hire to the government, and the service would be better if their places were filled with younger people. Yet no government official has the heart to tackle the disagreeable task of discharging them.

The only humane way is to pension them. It would not be proper for the government that has paid them well during their active years to pension them, since they should, like persons in private employ, make their own provision for the dependence of age. But the Fowler bill provides a way whereby they can make provision for themselves, with the government acting merely as treasurer and disbursing agent of their pension fund. This is the correct way to dispose of this problem, and it is the only correct way.

The bill provides for withholding 5 per cent of the pay of each government employ in the classified or civil service list. Retirements are to begin three years after the first deductions are made, and the age limit is fixed at 70, when employes are to go upon the retired list. Retirement, after ten years of service, either continuous or cumulative, is provided for when the employ becomes incapacitated, mentally or physically, from performing his duties.

The bill provides for a civil service retirement board of three members, to be appointed by the president from persons already employed in the classified civil service of the government. Officers or enlisted men of the army and navy, retired upon half-pay or pensions, are not included in the provisions of the measure.

This bill was framed by the association that has been formed among government employes to bring about a pension system. It obligates the government to no expense whatever, all costs being paid for by the employes themselves. It is a reasonable and a humane measure, and it should by all means be passed.

CARELESSNESS.

Analysis of statistics regarding fires never fails to show that a very large portion of them are due to carelessness. Either slovenliness has been shown in constructing the buildings that are burned, or somebody's neglect or almost criminal carelessness has been responsible for starting the blaze in a very large proportion of cases. Of course the most recent large conflagration, that of San Francisco, cannot be attributed to anybody's carelessness, but in that respect it is a conspicuous exception.

Figures recently issued showing the number of fires in New York city last year prove this pretty clearly. In the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Richmond there were 7,750 fires last year, with a total loss of more than $5,250,000. This was an increase over the previous year of 201 in number and in the average loss of $80. While the causes of these fires are not fully traced in the statistics, here are the causes of about half of them: Carelessness with matches, 757; children playing with matches, 244; carelessness with lighted cigars, etc., 404; overheated stoves, stovepipes, etc., 444; chimney fires and defective flues, 439; bonfires and brush fires, 476; carelessness in the use of candles, etc., 256; gaslights in contact with curtains, 217; explosions of kerosene lamps, 165.

Of course this leaves a lot of fires unexplained, but probably a majority of these could be traced to carelessness, since very often the cause of a fire is covered up in the destruction it creates, and the person guilty of carelessness is not likely to tell about it of his own initiative. Practically every one of the causes given here is negligence in some form, and negligence appears to be a national failing.

In proof of this Harper's Weekly compares London and New York in 1905. Against New York's 7,750, London, with half again as many people, had only 3,511 fires, and doubtless London's buildings, on the average, are more flimsy and inflammable than ours. Insurance Engineering figures the annual fire bill of this country at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, and says that in the last six years property worth $1,000,000,000 has gone up in flames. This amounts to an annual tax of $25 on every family in the land. And in addition there is the loss of human life, which was 7,000 in 1904. All this in the face of the fact that we have the most effective fire-fighting apparatus in the world.

LUCK.

Next to a winner, the world loves a good loser. Nothing succeeds like success, it is true, but nothing falls flatter than a whining failure.

Recently young Jay Gould was defeated at tennis by the English champion, E. H. Miles. His spirit in defeat was admirable, and forms an example to be remembered and followed.

"I tried my best to win," he said, "but Mr. Miles was too good for me. As for luck, it always goes to the better player."

"As for luck, it always goes to the better player."

Don't you realize how true that is? If you analyze the successes you have known, and that you have thoughtlessly and perhaps bitterly attributed to what you call "bullheaded luck", you will find that most of them were due to hard work, to close application, to superior knowledge, to preparedness, or to some other equipment or quality that is the result of real work, high purpose and the faculty of keeping everlastingly at it.

As a rule it is the failure who talks about luck. It is pretty hard to make the man who has failed believe that it is due to anything but pure luck. He thinks he had bad luck, and that the other fellow has had good luck. Well, that is a salve to his bruised soul, and it might be cruel to take it away from him, but just the same hard work, persistence and that capacity for infinite pains which is genius can be matched against any kind of good luck and it will win out in the end every time.

There may be such a thing as luck; in fact there are very often cases that seem to prove that there is. But while the world, that guesses at nearly everything it thinks it knows, jumps to the conclusion that it is pure luck, it may be nothing but a faculty for seeing an opportunity and the possession of enterprise enough to seize it. Opportunity comes to every man. Even the failures in life can look back at times when, as they can see clearly in the light of subsequent events, the door of opportunity stood wide open to them, and they did not enter.

It is as true in the real business of life as it is in tennis or baseball or any other game, that "luck always goes to the better player." The player that loses very often blames it upon his bat, his tennis racket, the wind, the umpire or the imp of ill luck. The man that fails in life blames it upon everything but himself. But in most cases luck had nothing to do with it at all. It was poor playing, or it was blindness to opportunity or lack of energy to accept it when it offered itself, that led to defeat and failure.

THE BACHELOR TAX.

The plan of taxing bachelors as a punishment for their failure to assume the normal duties of maintaining families has often been discussed, but usually the discussion is not more than half serious, and often it is much less than half serious.

But San Francisco has a citizen who takes it seriously. Raphael Weill, a rich merchant of that city, has voluntarily imposed upon himself a bachelor tax of large proportions.

He has agreed to furnish complete outfits of clothing for 500 women. Surely this is amply generous. The New York World, in telling about it, says that it is also unselfish, and there seems to be some warrant for that view. But if he does it to appease his conscience for not having married one woman and given her the price of the 500 outfits to buy one great and glorious outfit for herself, the possibility of selfishness enters even here.

It is a handsome price to pay for the privilege—if it is not transgressing to call it that—of bachelorhood. Of course it was not necessary. Weill could have remained a bachelor and used his wealth selfishly upon himself, and nobody would have missed the 500 outfits if he had not thought about it first. If every rich bachelor would do the same thing there would probably be less poor bachelors, because the women who received the outfits would undoubtedly get themselves up so fetchingly that hardly anybody but the most confirmed woman-haters could help falling into the net of matrimony.

And possibly this conscience contribution of Mr. Weill will in the end, in that way, work toward the promotion of marriage, since when 500 women are enabled to outfit themselves attractivly it is a pretty certain thing that at least 75 per cent of them will find husbands quickly.

There is something inherently fair about the bachelor tax, whether it is voluntary or involuntary. The bachelor, particularly when he has means, is very likely a bachelor from choice. If it is his choice, it must be because he likes it. If it is worth having it is worth paying for, and therefore the bachelor tax is nothing more than fair.

However, there is no probability that it will become a legal institution n this country, at least until the women vote.

POOR ECONOMY.

The house of representatives recently voted to cut the salary of the minister to Japan from $17,500 to $12,000. Propositions to make more suitable arrangements for American ministers abroad have been met with bitterest opposition. The plan to buy houses for them, instead of compelling them to spend their entire salaries for rent, as some of them do, was laughed at by many.

All of which is the very poorest and silliest kind of economy. There is a certain class of statesmen, more suited to the legislature of a backwoods state than to the national lawmaking bodies, that consistently opposes anything savoring of display in government representatives, either at home or abroad. It is this class of congressmen that keeps this country paying $8,000 a year to cabinet members that are compelled to oppose men that the trusts are glad to pay $50,000 or $100,000 a year.

In the case of ministers and ambassadors, it has reached a point where none but rich men can possibly accept such positions. The salaries do not begin to pay even ordinary expenses, and a representative abroad who kept within his allowance from the government would be a disgrace to this country in the eyes of those with whom he must come in contact. It is entirely natural to judge a country and its people by their representatives, and from the European point of view an economical simplicity that might be admired in this country would seem niggardly and cheap.

This is particularly true in Japan. Display carries more weight there than it does even in Europe. A cheap embassy in Japan would certainly mean that the Japanese would consider us a cheap people. Japan is going to forge into a leading place in world affairs, and it is likely to serve us in good stead to have her good opinion and respect. We are not likely to get it by such a move as that of the house of representatives.

It would be less open to criticism, perhaps, if it were honest economy. But it cannot be that, when the same house will vote millions to waste on unnavigable rivers and unnecessary public buildings merely that they may use government money to buy political influence at home that will keep them in office.

THE PASSING SHOW.

It doesn't promise to be a very exciting campaign.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I see congress has appropriated $100,000 for the importation of parasitical insects to devour the gipsy moths," said F. H. Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, at the Spalding. "Now the question arises whether another appropriation will not be needed to import something to rid us of the parasitical insect. It may be the story of the English sparrow over again.

"If less money were spent in importing experiments, and more were rationally devoted to protection of our native birds, hundreds of thousands of dollars would be saved to the farmers. Out of thousands of birds native to North America, scarcely half a dozen have proven to be injurious instead of beneficial. The cuckoos, warblers, chickadees and many of our other common birds have proved to be invaluable as destroyers of the gipsy moth.

"Now we are told that even the hated chicken hawk destroys so many snakes, insects, mice and other small living troubles, and so few chickens comparatively, that it is a benefactor rather than an enemy to the farmer, while the amount of corn the crow destroys is more than offset by the vast number of insects he eats."

"No person living in Duluth has reasonable grounds for kicking on the weather," said L. S. Putnam of Des Moines, Iowa, at the St. Louis. "I have spent quite a lot of time in Duluth, and know well enough what your northeasters are, but the quality of weather you have here when the northeasters are not in session makes up for all other deficiencies. Even at that, the average man would rather wear an overcoat on the streets than broil in his shirt sleeves, as the people of the inland cities are probably doing at the time your coldest winds are sweeping off the lake.

"A week of such weather such as Duluth has been enjoying since last Sunday is enough to make up for fifty weeks of storms, almost, and when one comes to think of all the fine weather you will have here from now until November, he cannot but help think any one who kicks when a storm does come along is a chronic kicker, and just wants to have something to growl about. Transport him on one of your coldest and stormiest days to a place where the thermometer registered 90 degrees in the shade, or even a few degrees less, and I'll wager he would get back to Duluth as fast as circumstances would permit, provided he had enough money to get him here."

"I believe that I was the first to discover indications of iron ore on the Mesaba range," said G. B. Goff of Saginaw, Mich. at the Spalding. "I was cruising on the Mesaba range in the year 1882 looking for pine timber, when I found ore indications. I became interested at once, and when I was in that country the following year I kept a close watch for iron. I located the Rust and Cyprus mines in that manner, and am one of the fee owners in these mines.

"In the spring of 1887 I met O. T. Higgins of Olean, N. Y., in Duluth, and made a deal whereby I was to explore what is now the Mesaba range for timber and mineral. Higgins, who is now dead, was the father of the governor of New York. I spent the entire summer in the range country. I located between 22,000 and 23,000 acres of land that looked good to me from the standpoint of mineral, and which carried enough timber to make the investment safe.

"For some reason Mr. Higgins did not close the deal for the lands. Many of the tracts have since turned out to be valuable mines."

Ezra Rust of New York is also registered at the Spalding. The two men leave for the Mesaba range today on their annual tour of inspection.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A billionaire can afford to be hated.

Getting up in the morning is harder than being a Christian.

It would be awful hard on the bugs and things if nobody kept gardens for them.

Some of those open work shirt waists would be more modest if they came off altogether.

It's a good deal cheaper to buy theater tickets and suppers for all the unmarried girls you know than to support the one you are married to.

Educating Her Conscience.

New York Evening Post: "Contrary to common experience, my conscience is more tender now than when I first went into business," said a young woman who is employed downtown. "Then I did not mind working for any kind of fakir. Now I strongly object. One of my first jobs was for a man who was sending out a lot of letters containing tips on racing. One day when I was in the thick of the work another customer read one of the circulars.

"'I wonder,' he said, 'how many poor devils will lose every cent they have in the world by being drawn into this cut-throat scheme.'

"'I don't know,' said I, 'and, anyway, that it not my lookout.'

"'Then your conscience doesn't trouble you?' he asked.

"'Not in the least,' said I. 'It is purely a matter of business with me. They will have to look out for themselves the same as I do. There is one thing sure, I shan't lose anything.'

"So I went ahead and wrote the letters. There were so many of them that my bill amounted to $25."

"I wonder," put in a listener, "if many people really did lose?"

"I know one that did," said the young woman, sadly. "That was me. I never got my $25."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

The St. Louis county Republican convention convened at the courthouse this afternoon, to elect delegates to the Fifth district Republican convention, to be held at Brainerd on June 30. R. C. Mitchell, chairman of the county committee, called the convention to order. R. S. Munger was elected chairman and J. A. Manheim secretary. The following delegates were elected. J. B. Sutphin, R. S. Munger, E. Morcon, D. G. Cash, H. C. Kendall, C. F. Johnson, John Lundberg and J. R. Meyers. B. Silberstein introduced a resolution expressing confidence in Congressman Knute Nelson, but after considerable discussion it was withdrawn. The delegates are understood to be opposed to the re-election of Mr. Nelson and will strive to secure the nomination of a Duluth man.

Louis Beaurivage departed this morning for a visit to his old home in Quebec.

B. F. Marshall, a druuggist of Moorhead, is in the city and may conclude to embark in business here.

Louis Murray and brother left today for a visit to Ontario.

The Duluth National bank building, which is to be erected opposite the Exchange block, will be the handsomest block in the city. It is to be 30 by 140 in size and at least five stories high, and probably seven. Brown and Kasota stone, together with red pressed brick, will be used in its construction.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded:

Mathias Romback to A. N. Selp, lot 9, East First street, First division, $2,000.

J. D. Ray to Harry Pearson, lot 12, block 63, Portland division, $250.

D. E. Little to J. E. Smith, lot 358, block 13, Second division, $900.

William Swain to James and H. Steel, lots 81 and 83, block 95, Third division, $225.

Allen & Parkhurst to Whitcomb & Root, block 168, Third division, $1,100.

Hattie Brown to S. Y. Beck, part of lot 9, block 8, London division, $200.

J. R. Carroll to J. Smith, Jr., lot 287, block 56, Second division, $450.

E. A. Oswald to L. V. Copperwall, east ½ lot 13, West Superior street, $1,500.

At the village council meeting last evening, Poundmaster Fletcher tendered his resignation, but the council, apparently entertaining the idea that a better man could not easily be found, voted unanimously that the resignation be not accepted.

John Lettau is dangerously ill with consumption, at his home on Washington avenue.

W. W. Robertson has been appointed head usher at the Grand Opera house.

The Pendleton block on the corner of First avenue west and Superior street has been vacated by H. D. Eaton, who has moved his stock across the street. The building settled three or four inches and the tinners refused to work on account of the danger.

THE WEATHER.

This is real summer, the kind we have been waiting for. Yesterday and today were warm and sunny and cheerful, and today was even warmer than yesterday, though not for a moment did it become oppressively so. Yesterday afternoon a northeast breeze sprang up and made it cooler, but last night it died down, and this morning it had disappeared. Last night's lowest temperature was 54 degrees, and yesterday's highest was 76 degrees. The weather man expects the fine weather to hold over Sunday.

A year ago a stiff northeaster, with rain, mist and fog on the side, was in progress.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The atmospheric circulation continues in rather stagnant condition generally. A very shallow barometric depression overlies the Lake region, causing some showers there and in the Ohio valley and eastern states. The disturbance north of Montana remains about stationary, but it has caused light rains in Saskatchewan and most Pacific districts. The barometer continues high in middle states, resulting in southerly winds and high temperatures in the central valleys. Indications favor a continuance of partly cloudy skies and rather warm weather in this locality tonight and Sunday.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Does your son graduate this month?"

"Oh, no. He has another year on the track team."

Philadelphia Ledger: The jokesmith had returned from a convention of his kind.

"Catch onto anything new?" asked a friend.

Saturday Night Talk

The World and the Graduate.

How insignificant the one, how imposing the other these June days! I doff my hat to the young women and young men, the boys and the girls who in their Sunday clothes and wearing their brightest smiles occupy the center of the stage. Whittier in his apotheosis to the barefoot boy incidentally remarks "I was once a barefoot boy," and perhaps it will help me to gain your attention for a minute to confess that I also once stood, and so I know the thrill and uplift of these great moments. Over the years I recall the hot, stuffy town hall, crowded to its doors to hear the music of the brass band and see again the forms of the dignified committee men and remember how I swelled with pride when the high school graduation diploma was ceremoniously placed in my hand, after a few of us fresh young things had discussed learnedly on the perils confronting the republic and the glories of the search for truth. A few years later, the same sensations were repeated, though on a larger scale, when I filed on to the platform to receive my little "A. B." and heard the stately, serious president of the college in sonorous Latin declare to us fledglings that we had completed our assigned courses and were worthy now to become the possessors of our sheepskin, for which, if I remember rightly, we were duly charged $5 apiece.

Ah, well, these are memories well worth retaining and for you, fair Almira, and sturdy, ambitious John, these Commencement festivities stand for an epoch, a turning point. Tomorrow, the glamor may all fade away from you and instead of being one of the "bright, young graduates," you will just be the plain Almira and John whom everybody in the neighborhood knows. You will take your place with the rest of us common people, and though you may frame your diploma and put it on your walls, it won't in itself butter your bread or carry you up the slope of the still difficulty which you are sure to have to climb some day. But, after all, the best thing is to take your place, as thousands of graduates have before you, in God's great working world and do well your part there.

And while you are in the commencement mood, you may point out some places that are awaiting your coming. The question of a job is the all-absorbing one to the average graduate. I happen to know of several, indeed of a large number. Let me tell you what they are. There is a job awaiting you in your home; perhaps your studies and school friendships have closed your eyes to it, and may be your parents, brothers and sisters are hungering for a little more of your time and interest. My what a big place, you, with your learning and experience, can fill in the family circle! You John know already that your small brother thinks that everything you do is just right, and you, Almira, that your small sister imitates your dress and even your very walk. Resolve that you will fill this place in the home circle, assume your share of domestic duties, contribute your quota to the family welfare.

There is a job in the community waiting for you. Can you fill the place which a well-educated young person ought to fill in the ranks of loyal public-spirited citizens? Who is going to purify our town and city politics, improve the outward appearance of streets and squares, look after the sanitation, let light and air into the slums unles the men and women of learning and culture rise to their task?

I offer you, too, positions in the church. It is none too well supplied with quiet, capable workers. Don't scorn it as an institution behind the times. Go in and help it realize its best ideals, take a Sunday school class; in hardly any other way will your personal influence tell for more.

I confess that there are no fat salaries connected with these positions, but there are a great many perquisites and rewards and if you assume them modestly, not as if you were going to reconstruct matters from top to bottom in a moment and if you give your heart to the performance of the duties connected with these positions in home, society and the church, you will find life rich and zestful and you will be putting your education to the best possible use.

But here comes the final number on the program and I will detain you only to say, "with all my heart, God bless you," brave young graduates as you go out into your world.

THE PARSON.

June.

June is here, the month of roses,
Month of open waists and hoses;
Month of graduates and brides,
Palm leaf fans and auto rides,
Welcome, June, with all your lugs—
How's the early crop of bugs?

June is here with gardens pretty,
Dusty streets throughout the city;
Gentle breezes June now brings us
And the bumblebee that stings us.
Welcome, June, with all your lugs—
How's the early crop of bugs?

Did you ever shake hands with Jerry Howe of Brainerd? If you haven't you have missed a whole lot, that's all.

Jerry Howe is one of those old-line hand shakers. When he gets through with one of your wage earners, you feel as if it would never get well.

Of course, Jerry was here during the Republican convention. He would not think of staying away. There are still a few men in the state who have never met the man from Brainerd, and these were carefully steered up to him by thoughtful friends during his entire stay at the Head of the Lakes.

The Highways man was lured to the slaughter the night before the opening session of the convention. He had been warned against Jerry's powerful right hand, but there was no use backing out. A fellow might as well put on a bold front and try not to wince when one of Jerry's forty-horse power paws closes on one of your own.

After the Highways man had extracted his once good right hand from the Howe vise, and massaged it carefully to make it look something like it had before, he stood around and watched with grim pleasure the meeting of the powerful Jerry and a couple of more innocents.

Mr. Howe is not a very big man—but, oh, my!

Several years ago, when the Howe grip was several volts stronger than it is now—if that is possible—some wags in the state capitol arranged for a meeting between Jerry and Gen. W. D. Washburn of Minneapolis, who was then seeking the office of United States senator.

The unsuspecting candidate for senatorial honors beamed affably at Jerry, and extended his right hand. Jerry grabbed it in his, and began the squashing process. Gen. Washburn saw that he was up against it, and tried hard not to look discomfited during the hand-shaking. But at the conclusion of the exercise, he drew a sigh of mingled pain and relief, and observed:

"You certainly have a strong grip, Mr. Howe."

"Yes," admitted the Brainerd man, "I do when I am working. I am not doing any thing just now, though."

"Well, I hope I may never meet you when you are in good condition, then," said the general, as he counted his fingers to see if they were all present.

Even greater preparations were made by the wags at the capital for the meeting between Mr. Howe and E. R. Johnstone, the editor and Associated Press correspondent, who was then on the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

It was arranged that a large audience be on hand when the event took place. Still, it was not possible to have as many as would like to have attended. It would have looked too much like a put-up-job to let every one look on.

Johnstone is a tall, rather well built man with red hair and a temper to match. When he was introduced to Mr. Howe, he was adorned in complete afternoon dress, including a frock coat, silk hat and gloves. He smiled pleasantly when a mutual friend introduced the man from Brainerd, little suspecting what lay in store for him.

Inasmuch as the promulgators of the match had waited a long time for its consummation, Jerry proposed to give them their money's worth, so he did not give the newspaper man a grip that was lukewarm in any sense of the word.

The smile of Johnstone's face froze solid as Jerry's fingers began their work, and the editor's red hair seemed to become even more erect than it is ordinarily. When his glove cracked and the bones in his hand began to crunch, he opened his mouth as if to emit a moan. Some historians say that he did moan and drop to his knees, but that may be a garbled report—the incident occurred many years ago.

What Johnstone said when his hand was released and dropped back to his side was unfit to print, even in Town Topics. It is said that some of the politicians paled, while others gave looks of envy while the quaint, picturesque and forceful oaths fell from the lips of the enraged newspaper man.

Some who know about Jerry's fondness for handshaking try to come back strong enough to prevent any great

"My dear," said his wife, "were you elected?"

squeezing, but most of them are unsuccessful. The majority of his friends are very chary about shaking hands with him.

There may be others who are just as adept at this Sandow-jiu jitsu method of handshaking as Jerry, but none has attained his fame.

The delegate crawled onto an East end car and told the conductor to wake him up when he reached his corner. He was dog tired. He finally got into the house.

"Well, dear," said his wife, "were you elected?"

"I was not running for any office, and besides this wasn't an election, it was merely a nominating convention," replied her husband.

"Well, I think it was real mean of Mr. Millar not to give you some office. I think it would have been awfully nice to have you secretary of state, or something like that."

The delegate laughed harshly, and took himself off to bed.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS ARE SATISFIED WITH NOMINATION OF COLE

the morning ran well up toward $10,000. But he paid it with a smile.

On top of this lavish entertainment the St. Paul Dispatch, a Jacobson supporter, openly charged in its issue of Thursday night, that the "interests" opposed to Jacobson "arranged the deal by which Jacobson was defeated," and it adds:

"It was a matter of generalship, of finesse, of strategy, or whatever one pleases to term it."

• • •

Prominent leaders of the state Democratic party declare that they are satisfied at the way in which the Duluth convention came out. They are of the opinion that enough soreness was created among the Jacobson supporters to weaken to a certain extent the candidacy of Cole. In other words, the Democrats who have been talking things over here think that Jacobson's supporters now realize that they were "jobbed" by those whom they thought were their best friends. Grimshaw and Dunn riding the same band wagon for Jacobson on the eve before the election has caused many to sit up and look.

Those who were really on the inside declare that Jacobson was really a victim of the "glad hand." The federal gang sent the word along not to disclose their hand, but to boost Jacobson's game for all that there was in it. Bill Rich started the Jacobson talk at the Merchants hotel, Monday evening, as the Southern county delegates poured through to Duluth. He predicted that Jacobson would be elected on the first ballot. The federal machine spread the same talk at the Spalding, and just before retiring to his room Monday evening, Bill Grimshaw, the Hennepin county boss, declared that it would be a landslide for Jacobson.

Steering committees called on Jacobson and, smiling in their sleeves, congratulated him on his nomination in advance, declaring that it would be on the first ballot in the interests of harmony. Jacobson talk was fairly poured into the Twin City press representatives to the extent that some wired that it was cinched for Jacobson. One representative was so smitten with the apparent zeal of Jacobson's foes and friends that he announced that Jake would win, and that the combinations hinging, it was believed, on his nomination, would land Halden and Lemon.

Jake was serenaded by Halden's Norske singers, and while Jacobson stood in their midst and heard the songs of the land of his nativity, there was cheering for "Jake." He had the best quarters in the Spalding, the biggest crowd of admirers, and the loudest noise issued from his headquarters. While "Jake" was having sand thrown in his eyes by the effusiveness of his pretended friends, combinations were busy at work. Jacobson, sure of his nomination, disdained to combine with anyone. He wanted to land at the head of the ticket on one wave of harmony and free himself of any combinations that might embarrass him after nomination. He had the nomination "cinched," according to the statement of his friends and foes. Why should he fear? He went to bed quite early on that evening, while Alvah Eastman presided over his headquarters and figured out how it was a landslide for "Jake."

Not so with Cole. Far from the popular eye he was busy closeted with his leaders. Rumors were floating about the rotunda that he had decided to withdraw. Jacobson admitted a few hours before retiring on the night before the convention, that he had heard that two or three candidates were about to withdraw. Reports were brought to him from what appeared to be authentic sources. He had good reason to believe them. It was the second chapter in the drama. After bolstering him up with false hopes, they began to strengthen them more by bringing reports that several candidates were on their way to secure front seats in the Lac qui Parle band wagon before the option ran too high. Jacobson was wafted to sleep by the sweet strains of that Madison band which was to have blown forth through the streets of Duluth the clarion notes of victory.

Dunn predicted a landslide for Jacobson. Grimshaw, usually opposite in all things political to the Mille Lacs man, seconded the prediction, although the unanimity on Jacobson did not make the two men any the more friendly. No one could see that it served to reconcile them. Everyone is asking who was sincere in the "Jake" preconvention talk, Grimshaw or Dunn? Fidelity to Nelson, whose candidacy Jacobson would hurt, is one factor which might be used to find the solution of the problem if anyone desired to run the matter down.

With friends and foes holding an alleged harmony feast over his nomination, Jacobson's followers went wild with excitement. The Stearns county delegation, headed by Eastman, even felt inclined to feel friendly with Dunn and bury the hatchet.

Cole worked on, while stories were circulated at every juncture disparaging his chances. He was the candidate without a following among those preconvention prognosticators who have the state all drawn in advance. If rumor can be believed, a conditional combination was framed up between Cole and Block, in which it was decided that Hennepin, marshaled by Grimshaw, should hide the hand of that delegation by voting solid for Block. When the time was ripe Block's supporters were to get busy and turn the day, for Cole if he developed more strength than Block and vice versa if the trick turned in favor of Block. Either combination to beat Jacobson.

The federal machine, headed by Grimshaw, and aided by the Hennepin county delegation which was out to beat "Jake;" joined in a common cause and started the break for Cole as has already been chronicled. Washington county, headed by George Sullivan, attorney at Stillwater for the Lowry interests, started the rush for the band-wagon which was well in progress, when Blue Earth threw what was an orderly procession to the band-wagon into a stampede for that vehicle.

Jacobson spurned combinations which might have saved the day for him and proved to be true, the reports brought in to him on all sides. Everyone during the week has advanced a theory for his defeat, and after weighing the facts here reviewed in the light of the past, the prevalent opinion is, that he was "jobbed."

• • •

Martin county, the home of F. A. Day, cast ten votes for Cole. There may be a hoodoo for Cole in that.

• • •

The press of the state, with a few exceptions, is unanimous on the wisdom of Cole's selection and there appears to be greater harmony in the ranks than there has been for many a year. What will happen when the smart of defeat strikes deeper than the epidermis is still a subject of speculation.

• • •

Tom Shevlin's mission to Duluth was misunderstood. It was thought that he went to hang a "23" sign out on Iverson's back, but he was there to do things to Jacobson. If any man but Cole had been used as an instrument by which to secure the defeat of "Jake," it is likely that he would have gone after Sam's scalp also, but he could hardly land two nominees on the ticket from the North. Block would have served the purposes of the anti-Jacobsonites better, as it would have given them a chance to stand by Halden and see him through also, but "Jake" evidently was feared more than Iverson. Their dealings with Iverson have passed the experimental stage, it is said, and they know what to look for, but "Jake," it was declared, would be an enigma and his eccentricities might start trouble where they were least looking for it.

• • •

Mille Lacs county was real naughty when the rising vote was taken on Nelson. They kept their seats and looked sulky. Few can solve the delicacy of this lack of etiquette. Some are thinking of addressing the Princeton Union's notes and queries column for an answer.

• • •

The Swedes must content themselves this fall with one office which is popularly regarded as insignificant because there is such a brief tenure connected with it as well as small compensation. It is understood that the Swedes are satisfied with the office.

• • •

Candidates recently nominated at Duluth will likely meet at the Merchants' next Tuesday to select a chairman for the state central committee. C. H. Warner, who managed Cole's campaign, is being mentioned for the place. Cole will likely take a short vacation and then enter the campaign with a vim.

• • •

There are some Republicans in Ramsey county who think that the way the Ramsey county delegation allowed itself to be played horse with will help to supplant some of those patriarchs who have been making the Ramsey delegation look like a band of ligit comedians in a company of strolling barn stormers.

• • •

The Ramsey county delegates have been looking at the negative way in which they were ordered to cast their votes, and the after thoughts are not the pleasantest. It is generally agreed that Ramsey, with its sixty-four votes, made as weak a showing as Cook county with its six votes. That combination 10, 9, 9, 9, 9, 9, 9, on the gubernatorial balloting, ought to spell "skidoo" for some of the leaders. The St. Paul Dispatch expresses its opinion of the Ramsey county delegation's action thus:

"Lemon was slaughtered in the house of his friends by the same old tactics which for years have made the Ramsey delegation the scoff and sneer of state conventions. There had been a hope, however slight, that the delegation, with its ponderous strength, would be a power, a force, in the convention. All hope was dissipated when, on the very first ballot, the strength was wasted by the pusillanimous division equally among the candidates—a piece of moral cowardice, thinly disguised as diplomacy, which thereafter left the delegation without power or weight—left it, as might have been expected, to crawl in under the tent and sheepishly hang upon the tail-gate of the band-wagon, instead of to sit upon the front seat, whip in one hand and reins in the other."

• • •

Now that the dust of the battle is over, and the politicians are viewing the battlefield o'er, one striking feature is the harmony displayed by the Hennepin county delegation. The ninety-nine votes did not scatter much on any of the ballots, which is remarkable. It is true that the caucuses of the delegation broke all precedents, in that they were not executive, but on the floor of the convention. Few can recall, without smiling, that ring formed, with City Assessor Minor on a chair whipping his delegates into line. It looked at times like a game of "Ring Around the Rosey." There was a separate caucus on the floor for each ballot. Hennepin, as usual, knifed Ramsey. It went, it is understood, to start things, as it had no ax to grind except to beat Jacobson or Iverson, or both. It is understood now that Tom Girling, Sjoblom and Capt. Osborn were not acknowledged as candidates for secretary of state, because the Hennepin county delegation wanted to enter the convention untrammeled by any combinations.

• • •

F. A. Day has called a meeting of the Democratic state central committee for June 21 at the Merchants hotel. It is expected that a convention will be called during the latter part of August or the first week in September. St. Paul seems to be the choice for the convention, which, in the nature of things, will be largely perfuctory. There may be some discussion as to the adoption of a platform which is the only source from which anyone expects anything interesting. Young and Start will be endorsed.

• • •

Duluth has come in for great praise for the way in which the convention was handled and especially for the brand of hospitality which was dispensed on all sides. Politicians and others who congregate periodically at the capital declare that it was genuine and nothing was left undone that could be done to make the brief visit to Duluth any more comfortable. There was a glad hand for everyone, but, unlike the usual glad hand, there was a lot more behind, and everyone left Duluth full of praise for the reception which was received.

• • •

Block came up to the scratch nobly and helped to turn the tide for Cole in the interests of harmony. He only got 19 votes in the final ballot, but it was because he willed it. He hoisted the signal for his delegates to switch for Cole.

• • •

Lemon, a defeated candidate for secretary of state, had a recalcitrant delegation to handle from his own county. It now transpires, according to a story told here, that Lemon directed his county to get on the band-wagon, but that they sent only five of their votes to Schmahl and six to Nelson, who had no show at all.

• • •

Workers for Iverson have announced that two days before the convention they figured out his strength and placed it at 696 votes, just one more than he got. Their calculations by counties did not jibe with the final results, but they are quite flattered that they came out all right in their general conclusions.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

BIG BATCH OF CONSULS

Nominated By President and Sent to the Senate.

In Most Cases the Appointments Are Promotions.

Washington, June 16.—The president yesterday sent to the senate the nominations of 61 consular officers, probably the largest number of such nominations ever submitted in one day. The list was the result of many weeks' work by Secretary Root and Wilbur Carr, chief of the consular bureau, upon the general proposition to provide by executive action against the failure of congress when it enacted the consular reorganization bill to provide for a regular system for promotion in the service. Therefore nearly all of the nominations of yesterday are really promotions.

All of these promotions were made upon the effiency record of the consuls, thereby carrying out Secretary Root's original idea that the higher places in the consular service should be reserved for the reward of consuls in the lower grades who had proved their merit.

In the case of the list submitted, it happens that there are but two original appointments. Mr. Haywood nominated to be consul general at Seoul, Korea, was a confidential clerk in the state department, and afterwards consul general at Honolulu. Because of the tact which he exhibited in dealing with certain delicate diplomatic questions connected with the treatment of Japanese in Hawaii and Seoul, where the Japanese are practically in control.

Chapman Coleman, named to be consul at Roubaix, France, was formerly secretary of legation at Constantinople, and has rendered much valuable service recently as head of the reciprocity bureau of the state department.

Another class of nominations is that of officers whose places were abolished by the reorganization act. These places were mostly in Canada and new offices have been created for the incumbents in other countries. The nominations follow:

VIRGINIA "SLIVER" CASE.

Argued Before the State Supreme Court and Submitted.

St. Paul, June 15.—The famous Virginia "sliver" mining case, in which is involved the title to iron ore on state lands now under lease, the value of which is estimated at $100,000,000, was yesterday argued and submitted to the state supreme court.

The attorneys for the state argued against the constitutionality of the law authorizing the private leasing of state ore lands, under which a state contract was given to Mabel Evans for the $1,000,000 "sliver" tract in St. Louis county.

The state constitution requires that all lands be sold at public auction. The state's attorney yesterday argued that the granting of a private lease was not a public auction, and therefore unconstitutional. The attorneys for the leaseholders replied that the granting of the lease is not a sale of state land, in that it only gives the right to remove the ore on a royalty payment, with the title to the tract mined always remaining with the state. Hence the basic question for the court to decide is, is the sale of ore at twenty-five cents a ton from state property a sale of state land?

If the court holds that it is, then all the lease-held mines of the great Steel corporation must again revert to the state, and be redisposed of at public auction.

AMERICA'S DEBT TO MUSICAL GERMANY

Something About Dr. Karl Muck, Whom the Kaiser Has Lent for a Year to the Boston Symphony Orchestra---Many Eminent Germans Have Assisted the Cause of Good Music in This Country.

Boston, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The next office in importance to the presidency of the United States, in the view of many Bostonians, is the directorship of the Boston Symphony orchestra, and there are some Americans of musical tastes in other cities who feel much the same way. Among these folk there is now great rejoicing because Germany, this time in the person of its strenuous kaiser, has once more put musical America in its debt and will very shortly send to these shose on one year's leave of absence, Dr. Karl Muck, conductor of the Royal Opera in Berlin, who will for a time direct the concerts of the most celebrated American musical organization. For some months past a representative of the Boston banker, Maj. Henry L. Higginson, who has done so much to promote the cause of good music in the United States, has been looking over the musical field of Europe for just the right man and he finally fastened upon Dr. Muck.

This selection of a German is strictly in accordance with American musical history. Other nations have helped the cause of harmony in this country—Italy with its opera, Great Britain with its hymns and cantatas, the modern Frenchmen with their highly colored tone poems. But Germany—Lieber Gott!—that's where the bulk of our music has come from, after all. The students in our best music schools are trained for the most part by German methods, and so effectively that the younger generation no longer has to go to Germany to study. The Fatherland has taught us the game. Even the little German bands that perambulate our streets deal out a superior order of technical performance. Even "Yankee Doodle" is said to have been based upon an old German song. "To Thee, Oh Country," was of Teutonic origin, and the music of "Hail, Columbia" was written by a German American.

It's a very long story of indebtedness all the way through. The whole hearted Teuton has always stood ready to help the new Anglo-Saxon land to appreciation of the music in which modern Europe has expressed its complex feelings. Did not Beethoven himself readily agree in 1823 to write an oratorio for the Handel and Haydn society of Boston? True, he never did write it. But he intended to do so; only financial difficulties held him back.

Of more direct assistance were German musicians who early settled in this country, and taught a nation that had heretofore expended all its energies on nasal psalm singing to understand the Teutonic classics. Thus there was Gottlieb Graupner, expert oboe player of Hanover, who came to Boston about 1800, founded the first orchestra in this country and for many years gave all the time he could spare from running a little music store in Franklin street to generous promotion of the musical arts in his adopted country. Most of the organizations whose history dates back beyond the middle of the nineteenth century present long series of German names. Such is New York's Philharmonic society, founded in 1842 and directed successively by Theodor Reisfeld, Carl Bergmann, Dr. Leopold Damrosch, Theodore Thomas, Adolph Neuendorff, Anton Seidl, Walter Damrosch and Emil Paur. Again, Boston's Germania orchestra, conducted in its early days by Carl Lenschow and Carl Bergmann, was young musicians who fled from the Fatherland after the revolution of 1848, and who sought to make a living in the new country by giving concerts. What such associations were up against in the United States of 1850 appears in the well known story of another association of German players in New York who were pelted with eggs because they insisted on rendering selections from Haydn when the audience wanted "Yankee Doodle" with variations.

The Harvard Musical association, out of which the present Boston Symphony orchestra grew, was composed originally of German radicals who felt it was a pity that the public should be devoted so entirely to the ancient classics and should hear so little of the really great music that was being produced in the nineteenth century in Germany and other countries. The Boston Symphony, which Maj. Higginson founded in 1881, has always been composed in the main of German trained players, though there are a number of French men among the brass-wind and wood-wind performers. The directors have been successively Georg Henschel, Wilhelm Gericke, Arthur Nikisch, Emil Paur, Wilhelm Gericke, for the second time, and now Dr. Karl Muck.

Similarly in every American city Germanic names predominate in the musical organizations, as in Chicago, where Theodore Thomas built upon one of the finest of modern musical societies; in Cincinnati, where Franz Van der Stucken has for years exerted a truly national influence and in Philadelphia, the residence of Fritz Scheel, who in face of some adverse circumstances has done remarkable things with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra. In all the smaller cities, too, wherever there is a German population, there is found good music.

Above all, the native Americans who have taken up music professionally and become performers and teachers acknowledge a common indebtedness to the Germans, just as nearly all painters and sculptors acknowledge their indebtedness to the French. The older men studied in Germany, the younger ones, some of whom have been able to complete their education on this side of the water, since our conservatories have become as strong and well equipped as any in the Fatherland, still accept German traditions and methods. For many years Prof. J. K. Paine, a pioneer among the Americans who, in the middle of the last century, studied German conservatory methods under Kotzschmar, Hauptl, Wieprecht and Teschner, made of his department at Harvard university a little seminary of German musical scholarship, and the lines laid down by Prof. Paine are now being carried on by his successors in the department which has lately become affiliated with the New England Conservatory of Music, and has acquired a unique position among college musical courses through its combination of theoretical and practical instruction.

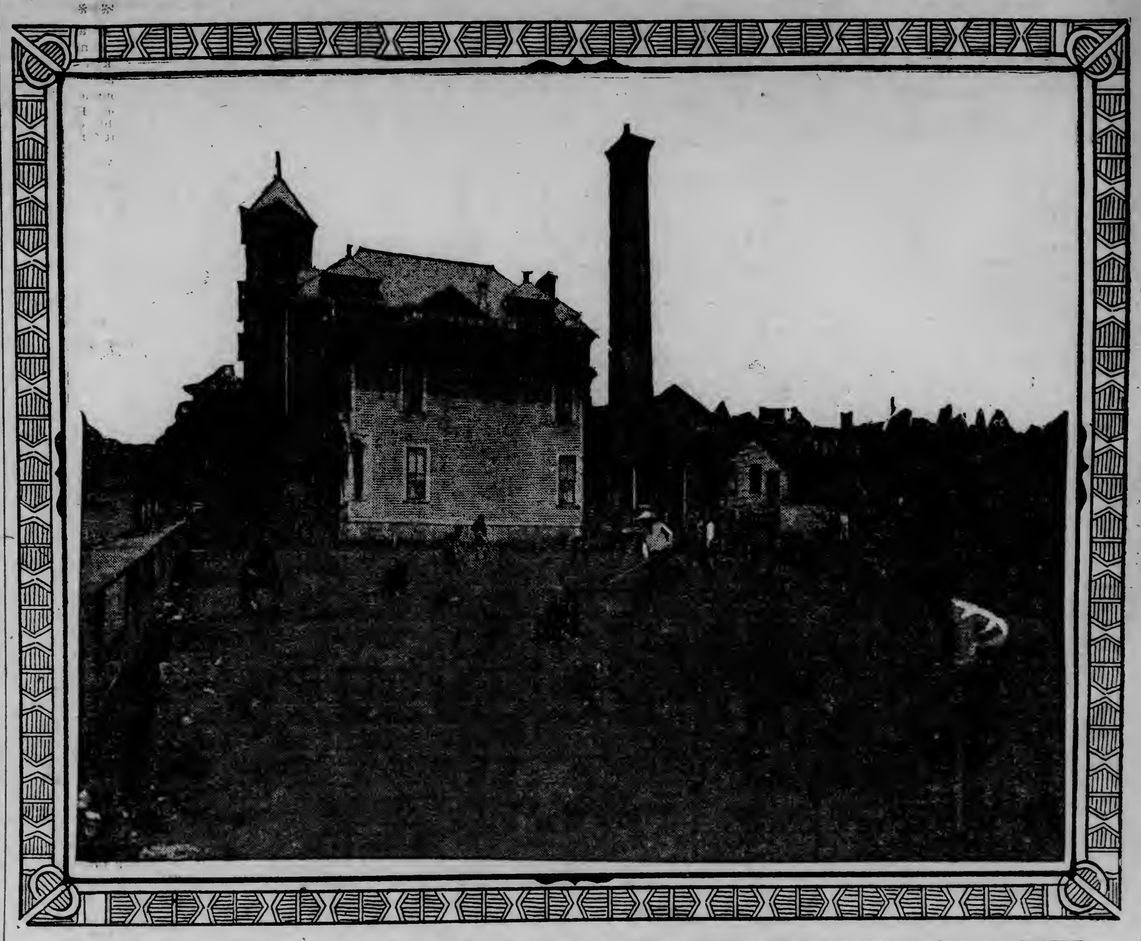

Again, the director of Boston's famous conservatory, George W. Chadwick, who ranks as one of the three foremost American composers, was a pupil of Jadassohn at Leipsic and Rheinberger at Munoch. He has kept in constant touch with the most recent musical happenings of the land of the kaiser, and has lately been invited to superintend productions of his own work in Germany. At least a dozen of his associates in the faculty of the conservatory have German names, and of the Americans a large proportion were trained in Germany in the days before American musical institutions had been brought to its present high plane.

Under Rheinberger at Munich, whither they were sent by their American teacher, Mr. Chadwick, a number of other American composers have studied, amongst them Horatio W. Parker of New Haven, author of the celebrated "Hora Novissima;" Frederick S. Converse, assistant professor of music at Harvard and instructor at the New England conservatory, and one of the most talented of the younger men; Wallace Goodrich, who has lately introduced an entirely new spirit into American organ music.

So that among the large class of persons who are specially interested in music, the choice of director of an organization like the Boston Symphony orchestra has naturally been a matter of more than passing interest. Under Wilhelm Gericke the big organization has been so well drilled that it has generally been pronounced the most perfect in the world. To the 10,000 or more students of music who find in Boston advantages that no other city offers, the Symphony is more important than the United States senate or the interstate commerce commission. Out of its ranks come a number of their teachers who give instruction at the conservatory, and who play in company with their young associates in the conservatory orchestra. Above all, the Symphony performances, year after year, embracing everything that is interesting in modern and classic music, constitute one of the most essential features of the students' musical education. No portion of the American public will give Dr. Muck such close attention, or will get so much from whatever excellencies of conducting he has to show, as will the young people who expect to make music their profession.

Dr. Muck, by virtue of his standing in the quartet of the world's most famous conductors—the others being Weingartner, Mottl and Nikisch—will next year be by far the most impressive musical figure in the United States. He is a man of 47 years of age, and got his start as conductor of an orchestra in Prague. His first appearance in Berlin was in 1891, when he was "guest" conductor at Lessing theater, and when he made so deep an impression that he received forthwith an offer of the conductorship of the Royal Opera. In that post his colleagues have been Richard Strauss and Felix Weingartner. In recent years he has conducted special symphony concerts in London, Paris, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Brussels and Madrid, and has conducting the Philharmonic concerts in Vienna. He is given one year's leave of absence by the German emperor, during which he will be, so to speak, much in the public ear.

DULUTH'S SCHOOL GARDENS FOR THE BOYS

BOYS OF WASHINGTON SCHOOL AT WORK ON THEIR GARDEN AT FIRST AVENUE EAST AND SECOND STREET.

The second year of the cultivation of school gardens has been inaugurated in Duluth by the Women's Council of the city, and by the enthusiasm which has been shown, the gardens will be even more helpful and successful than those of last year. School gardens conducted during the summer for the boys of school age who are unoccupied during the vacation months have been established in Eastern communities, where the keenest thought is given for the protection of these young citizens, who might otherwise get into mischief through the long known, but ever new, condition of idle hands.

Last year when the summer cooking school for girls was established by the Council, provision for the boys was made by school gardens. The right to use vacant lots adjoining the Emerson, Washington, Franklin and Longfellow schools was secured, and with the exception of the last named school, the gardens will be continued this year. The work will be easier than the first year, as the ground has been prepared by one year's cultivation, and the boys are most enthusiastic over the work.

The gardener in charge this year is William Elliot, a high school student who has had years of practical experience on a farm, and who is devoting his entire time during the summer to the instruction and help of the young boys. Nearly 100 boys were engaged in the gardening last year, but the list will be less this year, because of the smaller number of schools. In addition to the boys who are actively engaged in the work of the gardens, there is a waiting list of boys who are anxious to work. At the signs of lagging interest or neglect, a successor is appointed for the one whose interest and energy is on the wane. This will insure well kept gardens, and will stimulate the interest and attention which is given them.

Each boy has a good-sized garden bed for his own, with the exception of a few cases where brothers work together. Vegetables are planted in the individual beds, and a flower garden flourishes in the central bed. In the garden of the Washington school, at First avenue east and Second street, special care is devoted to a picturesque appearance, and later in the season vines will overrun the fence, and with the neatly cared for rows of vegetables, and the blazing flower garden in the center, the school garden is an improvement that might be welcomed in any neighborhood.

The committee of the Council in charge of this work consists of Mrs. H. S. Ely, Mrs. C. M. Rice, Mrs. L. J. Hopkins, Mrs. L. Barrows and Miss McHugh, and each garden is visited once each week by some member of the committee to encourage the young workers. Exhibits will be held in the autumn, and prizes awarded. Before the close of school terms the committee arranged for several talks at the different schools to stimulate interest in the gardens. The speakers at the different schools were: Mrs. William S. Bishop, Prof. R. E. Denfeld, Watson S. Moore and A. H. Crassweller.

Although the work at the Longfellow school is not under the direction of the Council, Mrs. J. A. Keyes of West Duluth has evinced an interest in the work, and the ground will be devoted to raising potatoes, the work being done by the school boys.

The accompanying picture is of the Washington school, and shows a number of the young gardeners.

WILL TRAIN STUDENTS IN NEWSPAPER WORK

Wisconsin State University Gives New Course in Preparation for Journalism---Practical Training for Newspaper Reporters---Special Lectures by Prominent Editors.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—The training of students for newspaper work is a new field of activity which the University of Wisconsin has entered upon during the past year, and which is to be developed and extended next year. While there have always been a number of students in the university preparing for journalistic work no particular provision has been made for giving them practical training in the details of newspaper work until the beginning of the present year. At that time a course in newspaper writing was offered in the English department, and was elected by some thirty students interested in journalism. As a result of the enthusiasm manifested by the students in this new work, a University Press club was organized with a membership of fifty. For netx year a four years' course has been outlined for students preparing themselves for a journalistic career.

The course in newspaper writing offered this year by Prof. Willard G. Beyer, who has had experience in newspaper work, has been designed to give the students practical training in reporting. The members of the class have been assigned to "cover" local events of various kinds and have turned in the reports to the instructor to be edited and criticized. The students have been given practice in reporting everything from football games to political speeches, and from weddings to fires. The members of the class were required to interview student members of the faculty, and alumni on such timely topics as the football situation and the honor system at Wisconsin, and to prepare these interviews for publication.

The news reports of interest were published from time to time in the Daily Cardinal and local papers. The course also included the preparation of special articles on interesting subjects connected with university life, suitable for publication in magazine sections of newspapers. After the best of these "feature stories" had been criticized and revised, the students submitted them to the editors of daily papers of the state, and a number of them were published, some with illustrations made from photographs secured by the student reporters. By these means all the aspiring student journalists were able to see som of their best work in print.

In order to give the students insight into the workings of a newspaper office, the class was organized as the staff of a daily newspaper in the fall, and prepared for publication a four-page paper with ten columns of reading matter. One of the students acting as city editor, made the assignments on the preceding day, and the reporters appeared at the office with the material for their stories at 9 o'clock the following morning. After each reporter had been told by the editors how much of a report was desired on the topic to which he had been assigned, he proceeded to prepare his "story." These reports were edited by the copy-readers, who wrote headlines, and prepared them for publication. At noon all necessary copy had been set up, and the managing editor and his assistants proceeded to make up the paper, "The University of Wisconsin News," as it was called, which, in addition to news reports and several editorials, contained a cartoon.

A numbers of the seniors in the course who graduate next week, have secured positions on newspapers in this and neighboring states, while other students who have not completed their course have found places on newspapers for the three months of the summer vacation. During the college year several of the members of the class in newspaper writing have been employed as university correspondents for the Chicago, Milwaukee, Madison and Wisconsin papers, and others have been engaged as editors and reporters on the Daily Cardinal with view to giving all members of the class an opportunity to become thoroughly familiar with al lthe details of newspaper making from the time that the copy is written to the appearance of the complete paper.

An important part of the course in newspaper writing has been a series of special lectures by practical newspaper men. Among them were Malcolm C. Douglas, managing editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, who spoke on "The Beginner in Newspaper Work;" Henry C. Campbell, managing editor of the Milwaukee Journal, on "What Is Required of the Newspaper Reporter;" Henry E. Legler, on "Election Night in a Newspaper Office;" Col. William J. Anderson, Madison, on "The Ethics of the Profession;" Frank W. Skinner, New York, editor of Engineering News, on "Technical Journalism," and William J. Wiedig, formerly of the San Francisco Examiner, on "Getting a Position as Reporter." The list of special lectures for next year, which is now being prepared, includes a number of editors of national prominence.

The new course which has been outlined for students preparing for journalism includes both this technical training in methods of practical journalism, in connection with the work in newspaper writing, and also instruction in political science, political economy, sociology, history, philosophy, psychology, and literature. Although, in accordance with the elective system of the university students preparing for journalism are not restricted to a fixed course of study, but are permitted to elect any studies which they are qualified to pursue, a course has been arranged containing these studies which bear most directly on journalistic work. In political science there are courses in government and politics in the United States and administrative problems; international government in the United States and Europe; the law of the press; international politics; and international law. The work in political economy embraces labor problems; social and economic statistics; industrial evolution and its problems; transportation; problems in taxation; the elemens of public finance; money and banking; financial history of the United States; and charities and corrections. The students are given thorough training in American history, including the history of the South, of the West, of New England, and of the diplomatic relations of the United States, as well as courses in English, mediaeval, and modern European history. Social and political ethics, history of modern philosophy, and general and abnormal psychology constitute another interesting group of studies.

Before taking up the work in newspaper writing the students study the principles of composition and help their application and analyze the eelments of good prose style, accompanied by much practice in writing. In literature the course includes surveys of the history of English and American literature, a study of English essayists, and a consideration of the history and development of the drama, novel, and short story.

Interest in journalism among the students resulted in the organization this year of a University Press club. The membership includes fifty students preparing to take up some form of journalistic work after completing their college course. Bi-weekly meetings have been held, at which editors of the city and state have addressed the club on topics relating to their profession. The officers chosen for next year are: President, Edwin C. Jones, '07, Portage; vice president, C. M. Gillett, '07, Superior; secretary, William J. Goldschmidt, '08, Milwaukee; treasurer, Alva H. Cook, '07, Milton Junction.

IN THE LAND OF ROMANCE

The Sentimental Side of the Jamestown Exposition---Canoe Trail and Lovers' Lane Are Features.

By FRANK EBERLE.

Norfolk, Va., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sentiment will play an important part in the Jamestown Exposition and comercialism will not be as prominent as at former expositions. As a great military celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in America, this exposition will be possessed of many historic and romantic features that appeal more to the heart and the eye than to the purse. There will be industrial features, showing the progress of the world during the past three centuries, but soldiers and sailors, great warships, guns and banners, marching armies, gaudy uniforms, glittering gold lace and brass buttons will occupy the center of the stage at the Jamestown Exposition.

The very foundation of the first English settlement at Jamestown in 1607 had its sentimental side and a pretty romance was connected with the little incident in which figured Capt. John Smith, the rugged English adventurer, and Pocahontas, the Indian maiden, who saved his life by her passionate plea to Chief Powhatan, the powerful Indian ruler of the vast territory of Virginia. The romantic infatuation of Pocahontas for Capt. Smith saved the colony from destruction, for the death of Capt. Smith, the dauntles leader of the colony, would have meant the complete annihilation of the entire party or their abandonment of the settlement and return to England disheartened.

Passing on through years of trial, hardship and anger, to the revolutionary period, sentiment, patriotism and valor played their part in Virginia until the surrender of Lord Cornwallis and Great Briton's abandonment of the field to the colonist. During the war between the states, nearly a century later, sentiment again played a prominent part in making history at the interesting point where the Jamestown Exposition is to be held next year.

With the army and navy there is always a chivalrous sentiment, and at the Jamestown Exposition the armies and navies of the great nations of the world will be very much in evidence. The finest ships and soldiers of the age will be present, to participate in the exposition manuevers, and the best bands in Europe and America will furnish music for the occasion. A thirty-acre drill plain has been prepared for the military movements and the warships will have the waters of Hampton Roads for their naval manuevers.

Just beyond the big drill ground, where the pride of the world's great armies will be on dress parade, are the little gardens of a hundred school children, where the products of life are peacefully growing, from seeds planted by these children under the guidance of their teachers, to instruct them along the lines of practical gardening. Still further on stands a historic old live oak tree which has stood the storms of several centuries. It is supposed to be nearly one thousand years old. It was a large tree when the great Indian chief, Powhatan, used it as a shelter from sun and rain three hundred years ago. Now, three centuries later, when America has become famous, and an international exposition is held to commemorate the events of three centuries progress and advancement, this old oak still stands like a majestic sentinel, to welcome visitors to the exposition.

A winding trail through the exposition grounds is called "Lovers' Lane," or "Flirtation Walk." It passes through shady glens and pretty groves, an ideal place for sweet sentimentality. Near this inviting walk runs a waterway, called the Canoe Trail, where small boats may sail or steam into the grounds from the bay. Many boats will ply this stream and many a sweet sentiment will doubtless be inspired along its tortuous course. A million pretty flowers and shrubs scattered over the grounds, furnish beauty and fragrance to inspire more sentiment.

Near the exposition grounds, just beyond Pine Beach and six miles from Norfolk is the scene of the great naval battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac during the Civil war, when iron clads first met in deadly encounter.

The buildings to be constructed by the various states of the Union at the Jamestown exposition, along the seashore, will contain many cherished relics and souvenirs of old colonial days to which cling sentimental memories of bygone days. The exposition will bring together the things of three centuries and show the progress which time has wrought. The industrial features of the past and present will constitute the only semblance of commercialism at the Jamestown exposition; everything else will be based upon sentiment.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Usual Summer Reduction in Business Is Not So Great.

New York, June 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: A moderate reduction in commercial activity is to be expected at this time of the year, but confidence in the future is so great that there is evident reluctance to assume seasonably quiet conditions. This attitude is not pronounced in the industrial world, preparations for fall and winter distribution being on an unprecedented scale, and several leading producers announce that the customary summer shut down will be entirely omitted or curtailed to the extent necessitated by repairs. The heavy movement of merchandise is attested by an increase in railway earnings thus far reported for June at 11.3 per cent over the same period of 1905, and commerce of this port for the last week shows a gain of $1,870,015 in imports and a decrease of $671,000 in imports, as compared with the movement a year ago. All classes of farm staples, except cotton, were exported more freely in May than in the same month last year, and the loss of almost $1,000,000 in cotton failed to prevent a gain in all exports of $6,755,718, while imports showed an increase of $12,423,069 over the corresponding month in 1905. There is no diminution in the activity of steel mills and iron furnaces, and the consumption keeps pace with production, and new business holds the date remote at whihc shipments can be made at most departments.

Primary markets for textiles have the support of a good attendance of buyers, who state that the dry goods trade throughout the country is most satisfactory, and there is every reason to anticipate a continuation of prosperity.

New England footwear manufacturers are receiving many sample orders for spring lines from the West and South. Leather is quiet and steady, at the recent advance, but the disposition to delay purchases is occasionally pronounced. That hides will probably maintain their strong position is indicated by contracts covering the entire output of four large packers during the balance of the year for speedy native steers, at full prices. Foreign dry hides are sold to Europe at higher prices than are offered by domestic tanners.

Failures this week numbered 183 in the United States, against 229 last year, and 15 in Canada, compared with 25 a year ago.

PRISON IS GOOD ALIBI

Penitentiary Records Establish Innocence Of "Chicago Red."

Shows Court He Was Convict When Offense Was Committed.

"That's about as good an alibi as a man could have, unless it could be proved he was dead," said Judge Windom this morning, when Lawrence Cannon, alais "Chicago Red," stated that he was serving a sentence in Stillwater at the time the theft of a watch, with which he was charged, was committed.

One year ago last October, Cannon was arrested on a grand larceny charge for an offense committed at Chisholm and given a term of fifteen months in Stillwater. He was given a maximum allowance for good behavior, amounting to about eighty days, and was released last December.

The offense for which he was arrested in the present instance was the charge of stealing a watch from the bartender at the Metropole hotel, which was committed last August.

Cannon denied all knowledge of the crime, but the evidence was sufficient to cause his arrest and arraignment for a preliminary examination on the charge of grand larceny.

County Attorney McClintock produced sufficient evidence against Cannon to warrant binding him over to the grand jury, if it were not controverted, and it looked as if the young man was due for another trip over the road.

"I don't need to take the stand," said Cameron, after he had been placed under oath. "All I have got to say is that I was serving time in Stillwater when the watch was stolen."

The announcement came as a surprise to the prosecuting attorney, who had in some manner overlooked this fact, and the records were looked up. Cameron's statement was found to be true and the case against him was promptly dismissed.

"I haven't been getting mixed up since I got out," said Cannon. "I've been working up on the range."

The evidence against Cannon was that he had pawned the watch, which he stated he had secured from a woman friend, to whom he had applied for a loan of some money one day when he was broke. When he placed the watch in pawn, the police discovered that it had been stolen and traced it to him.

VIRGINIA TEAM FOR CASS LAKE

List of the Firemen Selected to Go to Tournament.

Virginia, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following named compose the team that will represent Virginia at the firemen's tournament, to be held at Cass Lake, June 20 and 23: Joe Deering, captain; O. H. Griggs, E. F. Johnson, A. Schoenleber, Iver Hawkinson, Christ Johnson, Ole Berg, Henry Ole, Peter Mechtafts, A. E. Bickford, Joe Williams, Leslie Reid, Martin Nelson, James Stickney and Chief Peter Gimse. Capt. Deering is putting the team through their different stunts each evening and they are showing up to good advantage. The boys are anticipating that they will bring back some trophies from the tournament.

Paul Sevenich has been promoted to the position of chief train dispatcher for the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway. Six years ago he arrived from Finland and three years ago began his service with the road as a station helper.

The work of tearing down the ruins of the burned barn and warehouse of the Fitger Brewing company, in order to make way for a new structure, is in progress. The total loss was about $3,500, with no insurance, the company carrying its own fire losses.

The "Pirates," the well known fishing club, departed Thursday for their rendezvous on Gold island, Lake Vermilion. The Virginians who are with the party are Landlord B. F. Smith, W. B. Pratt and James Lavlolette. There are several traveling men and Evelethites in the party. Arthur Talboys is chaperoning the bunch and will show them where the best fishing is.

The board of equalization for the city of Virginia will hold a session on June 25. City Assessor Rinnert announces that he will have the tax rolls ready at that time and any who have complaints to make or suggestions for alterations in the rolls should make them on that day.

Ed Lozo, a young man employed as brakeman at the Wacotah mine, was badly and perhaps fatally injured Tuesday morning last. While engaged in coupling dump cars he was caught between the bumpers and so severely squeezed that his life is despaired of. He was taken to the Lenont hospital, and last night it was reported that his condition was unchanged, with but slight hopes for his recovery.

P etro Canalli or Peter Cenelli as he is sometimes called, was brought down from Chisholm today and lodged in the county jail to await the action of the September grand jury on the charge of murder. He was a bricklayer, and was working around the boilers. He evidently got into a gas laden current of air from a break in the pipe, for suddenly he keeled over and had to be dragged out. It was reported that two men were overcome, but this proved untrue.

DOWIE VISITED SPIRIT WORLD

Tells About Seeing Angel Gabriel and the Virgin Mary.

Chicago, June 16.—John Alexander Dowie, testifying in the hearing of the Zion City controversy in Judge Landis' court, yesterday afternoon, told of an instance when his body and soul became separated, and in his spiritual being he distinctly saw his own dead body lying beneath a shoud. It occurred, he said, while he was fighting the liquor traffic in Melbourne, and was regarded by him as a divine warning that he was about to die. At another time, the witness asserted, his spirit left his body, and the angel Gabriel and the Virgin Mary were present in the realm visited by his spirit. The queer narration of life and death was brought out by Attorney Newman during cross-examination of Dowie. Following the vision, the witness continued, two acquaintances came to him and told him they had dreamed that he was to be assassinated. Then, while alone in that tabernacle, came a voice, warning him to "arise and go."

"I went," said Dowie, "and while on my way home I heard an explosion. The next day I found that my enemies had tried to kill me with dynamite. The back of the tabernacle had been wrecked."

Dowie denied that he had ever represented himself as Elijah, the restorer, subsequently qualifying the statement by saying that he told his people that he "came in the spirit and power of Elijah."

On Sept. 18, 1904, he said, he proclaimed himself the "first apostle," but when pressed for an explanation as to how he received the commission, he replied, "I can't tell you."

Dowie declared that he had received a direct command from God, on an occasion when he held a meeting of 4,000 persons, who had been cured of disease. A voice repeated three times the words, "Go forward."

FEW TRANSACTIONS IN REAL ESTATE MARKET

Convention Seemed to Monopolize Interest to the Exclusion of Realty—Dealers Expect Good Results From Visit of So Many People—Highland Company Issues Fine Advertisement of Duluth Heights.

Duluth has been entertaining a Republican state convention this week and the conditions of the real estate market have been of minor importance. Because of the interest in the convention, the presence of the delegates and general political excitement, the real estate market has been rather quiet, and sales have been quite light. The most of the inquiry came from the outside. Such conditions, however, are only temporary and the coming week is expected to see interest in the market stimulated to a greater degree. The 1089 delegates and 400 or 500 other visitors which have been here this week will have nothing but good words about Duluth to tell their neighbors. Good results have come from that sort of advertising before and are as likely to come again. It is safe to say that from a business standpoint alone the convention was a good thing for the city for it will help to spread the news that Duluth is a good place to make a home, that the climate is delightful and that real estate both in the city and in the country, near the city, can be purchased at reasonable prices.

* * *

Advertising is an art and the advertiser who can combine his sense of the artistic with the practical and put a proposition to the public in a way that appeals to the eye and the judgment is pretty sure of getting good results. In this day of real estate advertising there is a large quantity of literature scattered about that contains facts and figures that are valuable from a statistical standpoint, but now and then an advertiser gets into the field with something that seems to reach the general public, or certain classes of the public, as the intention may be, with a directness that is satisfying.

To that class of advertising the attractive little booklet just issued by the Highland company, setting forth the advantages of its home building plan on Duluth Heights, certainly belongs.

With the simple announcement on its handsomely illustrated cover of "A Home Within Your Reach," the booklet contains several pages of convincing conversational style argument why Duluth Heights offers inducemtnts to working men for home building that cannot be excelled if equalled by any other part of the city. Written and arranged by Norton Mattocks, supplemented by carefully executed cuts of Duluth Heights homes and streets, and excellent typographical work, the publication will undoubtedly bring some good results for the Highland company through its local agents, C. P. Craig & Co.

Among the arguments advanced for Duluth Heights as a logical location for working men's homes, is the fact that it is close to the docks, mills and the industrial center of the city; that it is reached by street car quicker than any other suburb in the city; that it is protected by the hills from the northeast winds and is usually above the fog line, and, finally, that the land as suburban property can be purchased for less money than land in any other outlying portion of the city. The advantages of car service, electric lights, and the water and gas system now being constructed are especially emphasized.

The Highland company prints a number of letters and short sentences from Duluth Heights residents, telling why they regard their portion of the city as the best home location, and presents its proposition to sell lots and build homes on the installment plan, a plan whereby persons desiring to buy homes can do so with less money than they have to pay rent in some other localities in the city.

The Stark-Bennett company reports the sale this week of the easterly 100 feet in block 15, East Fifth street, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues east, to H. S. Newell, who will build a home this season. This district has been receiving a great deal of attention of late as a residence district, and the company reports a number of other sales now under negotiation.

PRETTY FRAME COTTAGE FOR $3,600

CLYDE S. ADAMS, ARCHITECT

The above is a very pretty frame two-story modern style dwelling. The first floor contains a large reception hall, with alcove in the rear, livingroom, diningroom, kitchen and an out kitchen.

The second floor contains three good-sized chambers, all conveniently arranged and all supplied with closet space. With a few modifications you could make a library out of the kitchen and use the out kitchen for a permanent one. Another chamber could be added on the second floor over the out kitchen. The estimated cost is here shown with the interior finished in hardwood which will afford an opportunity for interior decoration.

ADAMS' TABLEWARE IS GIFT TO ROOSELELT.

Washington, June 16.—A plate and two old Saffordshire saltcellars belonging to the state dinner set used by President John Quincy Adams were yesterday added to the president's collection of china.

They were the gift of Miss Louisa Catherine Adams Clement of Newburyport, Mass., a great grand-daughter of President Adams. Her great grandmother was born in the White House during Adams' administration.

Another souvenir added to the White House collection is a handsome old rose silk sash worn by President Pierce during the Mexican war.

HUGE CANDLE REWARD FOR HUSBAND'S CURE.

New York, June 16.—Rassale Dellacroce, a native of Sicily, was taken ill with rheumatism in this city a year ago. His wife prayed daily to her patron saint, and at last vowed to offer the largest candles ever manufactured should her husband recover. He moved to Tampa, Fla., and there regained his health. By Mrs. Dellacroce's order the candle was shipped yesterday to Tampa.

Mrs. Dellacroce had vowed that the candle should weigh as much as her husband, and the one she ordered weighs 182½ pounds. It is 15 feet high, 18 inches in diameter at the base and 12 inches at the top. Upon it is painted a picture of the Madonna of the chair.

The candle cost $250 and, according to the manufacturers, it will burn a year and a half. It will be lighted in a Tampa church next Sunday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Continued Drouth Conditions In Kansas Hold Wheat Strong.

Chicago, June 16.—No relief from drouth conditions in Kansas and Nebraska was shown on the weather map today, and, in consequence, the local wheat market was strong. There was active demand by commission houses, but offerings were light and came principally from longs. Fresh damage reports were received and these tended to inspire additional buying. July opened ⅝@¾c to ⅞@⅞c higher at 83¼c to 83⅝c and sold at 83⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 223 cars against 211 cars last week and 156 cars a year ago.

Notwithstanding liberal profit-taking at various times, the market held strong the entire day. For July the highest point of the day was reached at 83⅝@⅞c. The market closed firm, with July up ⅝@⅞c at 83¾c.

There was an active general demand for corn and the tone of the market was strong. Absence of rain throughout the corn belt was again the main influence. Very little corn was offered for sale. July opened ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c higher at 53½ to 53⅝c and sold at 54c. Local receipts were 493 cars, with 221 of contract grade.

Sentiment continued bullish the entire day. The highest point of the day for July was reached at 54⅝@⅝c. The market closed firm, with July up ⅝@⅞c at 53⅞c.

Oats for July delivery made a new high record price for the season today, when 41⅜c a bus was paid for that option. Owing to the congested condition of the market, trading in July was of small volume. The September option, however, was traded in actively. Continued dry weather was the reason for the strength. July opened ⅞c up at 41½c and sold up to 41⅞c. Local receipts were 178 cars.

Provisions were steady in sympathy with a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. Trading was quiet. September pork was up 5c at $16.72½. Lard was unchanged at $9. Ribbs were also unchanged at $9.32½.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago.—Wheat—The wheat market showed good strength, both early and late, but on each good swell there was a general disposition to take profits. There is a little doubt that the highest prices of the day were made with the help of the strength in coarse grains. News for wheat traders was, if anything, a little more bullish than at any previous time, because the Canada and Kansas City messages claim that each day forces a reduction in the estimates for the winter wheat. Because wheat has not made much headway for a day or two the bears are inclined to fight the early advance, and a short interest was created. When the market really got hitched on to that runaway team, corn and oats, the shorts were again run in, and they paid nearly top prices to buy back what they sold early. July fell behind a little today because a fresh buying is going entirely into the September. If present conditions continue buyers of wheat will get over their timidity and will take on lines for the 90's.

Corn—Corn was "king" again today in the grain pits. Market was not quite so flightly as oats, but the volume of trade was much larger. The session opened with a large volume of buying orders in the hands of commission people. There is no doubt that the country is friendly to corn, regardless of the price. Bids bring small acceptances. The farmers are fixed in their ideas for fancy prices for reserves. Stock men are joining in the buying of corn, and claim that hogs are being sent to market unfinished because of the prospect of still higher prices for feed. Profits should be taken on long corn as they were today on the very strong spell, but keep an eye on the Southwestern weather, and if it does not improve, buy in on any break.

Oats—It was a great record of prices made in oats today, with July up to 42⅜c and the September climbing to 40c and contracts for next May made as high as 41¾c. This was the climax for the week and very moderate offerings sharp quite a reaction, from which there was partial recovery at the close. Country houses all had buying orders. Farmers in many states complain of dead pastures and slim oats prospects. There was even outside buying of May oats today. Shorts have no chance for their life. Outlook for oats crop is so serious that it may be well to keep in line with bull market and get in on any sharp dip in prices.

Provisions—There was a continuation of the improved feeling in provisions. Packers and other big holders rather favored the buying side. The market held a great deal of help from the strength in corn. Local traders were oversold and covered on the day's advances. Shipments of meats and lard are three or four times as great as a year ago and with hogs running lighter, the situation may develop strength with the grain.

* * *

W. H. Perrine of Kansas City wires: I saw the country from Hamilton to Kansas City on the C. B. & Q. this morning. Pastures are practically dead. Oats heading from six to ten inches high. Wheat now being cut very short, but heads well filled and wheat will be of god quality. Corn very backward and spotted, the best field not over eight inches high and a good deal is just coming up so it will take most favorable weather to mature the crop in this locality.

* * *

Chicago.—The Northern Grain company in a bullish circular on oats says: "The strength conditions as reported are not discounted by present prices. Oats can go a few cents higher, and still easily be worth the money."

* * *

Omaha—H. C. Miller, ex-secretary of Nebraska Grain Dealers' association, just in from extensive trip through Nebraska, says: "Wheat going backward daily and will be damaged 40 per cent more in another week without rain."

* * *

F. P. Frazier, Chicago—We have the following cable from Buenos Ayres: "New crop of linseed reported damaged by drought." Our own house cables from Liverpool that the linseed crop in the Argentine republic is much damaged by drought and frost. Now this comes from two sources, one direct from the Argentine and one from our own house in Liverpool and it looks as if there must be something in it.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, June 16.—A little better inquiry was reported today by millers. Buyers are taking hold better, although there is a tendency to go slow. The foreign inquiry also showed more interest in flour. Shipments 52,413 barrels. First patents, $4.65@$4.45; second patents, $4.20@$4.30; first clears, $3.80@$3.60; second clears, $2.45@$2.55.

The convicted man's mother collapsed upon hearing the son's sentence, but Kabat was not visibly affected.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Unfavorable Bank Statement the Cause of Much Selling.

Western Roads and the Metal Groups Were the Weakest.

New York, June 16.—The tone of the opening stock market today was thoroughly irregular. A number of specialties made sharp gains but the majority of prominet stocks was inclined to sag. The dealings were on a small scale. Reading and Northern Pacific rose about a point and Baltimore & Ohio and Locomotive 1¼. Consolidated Gas ran off ¾.

The declining tendency was resumed in force after the opening. The Western roads and metal groups were the weakest but nearly all of the important stocks gave way badly. Anaconda slumped 8¼. Great Northern preferred 3½, Northern Pacific 2½, Colorado Fuel 2¼, Smelting and Lead 2, Illinois Central, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago & Alton preferred 1⅝ to 1¾ and Reading, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Pressed Steel Car, Brooklyn Transit and Consolidated Gas 1 to 1¼. Some realizing followed by the market showed nervousness.

Ther was some covering by room shorts in the final hour but the level of prices sank again after the appearance of the bank statement. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis fell 4½, Northwestern 3½, Reading 3¾, Delaware & Hudson 3, St. Paul and International Power 2, Smelting, Colorado Ful and Lead 2⅜, Rock Island preferred and Union Pacific 1½ and Pennsylvania, Louisville & Nashville, Baltimore & Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Erie, New York Central, Wabash preferred and United States Steel 1. Anaconda dropped 11¾. The closing was quite active and weak.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The New York stock market today was very weak and towards the close there was considerable selling, due to disappointment over the unfavorable bank statement. It is generally thought that from now on money rates are likely to steady. There is no question but what the underlying business conditions in this country are very healthy, and the fact that the large interests control the bulk of securities, would seem to indicate that they have the market pretty well in control, but it would seem also as though they are adverse to a prolonged upward movement until the crops are assured. The professionals are considered bearish and from the present indications it would seem that stocks are destined to sell lower.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Massachusetts Gas was the only real active feature in today's market, selling at new high record of 64½. Coppers held fairly firm considering weakness in New York market and we do not look for much decline in better class of Boston stocks from this level regardless of weakness in New York markets. Would buy them on any further recessions. New York market closed weak and looks lower Monday.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The Boston News Bureau says: "The shares of the Butte Coalition company dropped to the lowest price at which they ever sold. Soon after the stock was floated, sales were made as high as 45, while yesterday with sales of 1,200 shares, the price dropped to 30. There are one million shares so that a difference of 15 points in the market prices mean an appreciation or a shrinkage of $15,000,000 in the market value of the property.

The statement recently filed in Butte covering the four months of February, March, April and May showed that from 145,101 tons of ore averaging $12.94 per ton, the company made a net profit of $441,298 which is at the rate of $1.32 per share per annum. The production of copper during the four months' period was at the rate of 30,000,000 pounds per annum. Plans are now in progress looking to a very much larger production but it will be some months before any substantial progress is made in this direction. The plans the managements have in mind is a production of 60,000,000 annually.

LAKE ERIE SHIP CANAL

Warmly Criticised by Senator Patterson When Bill Came Up.

Says That the Great Steel Companies Are Behind It,

Washington, June 16.—Senator Patterson today found in the bill incorporating the Lake Erie & Ohio River ship canal, an encouragement to the advocates of the ownership of the public utilities. He spoke on the measure soon after the senate convened, and quoted a pamphlet issued by the company as giving an explanation for asking a congressional charter, the fact that the government might ultimately become the owner of the proposed canal. He expressed confidence that the bill would become a law, and said that such a step would be a declaration that the government might at no distant day own and operate the canal for the benefit of the country, and he declared that it was not a great stride from the ownership of a canal to the ownership of a railroad. Patterson did not, however, regard this as the real reason for coming to congress for a charter. He found on the contrary that there was a financial reason for the move. They were preparing to go "wild catting" in the "jungle," and the senator predicted that in view of the transaction in the United States Steel corporation, the Pittsburg men said to be behind the company would not enter it with the prospect of securing less than four to one.

This statement aroused Senator Knox, who said that the Pittsburg people had not been responsible for the steel companies sale.

"I understand that the idea was conceived by eminent financiers of New York," he said, "and the people of Pittsburg were not foolish enough to take less than they could get."

Mr. Patterson contended, however, that "the millionaires of Pittsburg had been particeps criminis with those of New York in the origin of the United States Steel corporation conspiracy."

He added that they had succeeded in selling for a billion dollars property worth not more than $250,000,000. The remaining $750,000,000 representing wind and nothing more."

He expressed the opinion that steel companies were behind the enterprise; that their object to secure iron ore cheaper than before and by means of the tariff keep prices up and maintain their monopoly.

Mr. Patterson advocated an amendment to the bill that would forbid the sale of the canal stock for less than par, and Mr Knox said in reply that, while he had had a great deal to do with corporations, he had never known any "except-it-will-cut mining schemes" whose stock was sold for less than par. Mr. Patterson admitted that there were some wild-cat mining schemes, and that this was a wild-cat canal—far less excusable because its profits would be extorted from the pockets of the people at large. He thought the canal should be under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission. He asked Mr. Knox whether there were any millionaires among the incorporators, and the latter replied that there was among them one man who might be classed as a millionaire.

"The idea that a national charter is sought because the government may own the canal fifty or 100 years hence is too absurd to credit," said Mr. Patterson. He gave it as his opinion that the step was taken to secure an advantage in the disposal of stock and bonds, and concluded therefore that the point of government ownership was a mere subterfuge.

QUEER BASEBALL FOLKS.

Professionals Who Have Achieved Fame Noted for Eccentricity.

Baseball as a profession develops more queer characters than any other sport, says the Baltimore Sun. In the first place, it brings a great crowd of half-developed men into the limelight of publicity and affords the best opportunity to develop their cranks and conceits. Besides, they have plenty of spare time to accentuate their peculiarities.

It seems to me sometimes that the day of the "character" is past, and that never again will the game reproduce the unique figures that are historic. We have now no Mike Kelleys, no Brudder Bill Gleasons, no Dan Clarkes, One-Armed Dalys, Gladiator Brownings—or that kind of fellows. True, we have Rube Waddell—but where can the present game find the duplicate of Pat Tebeau, Bill Joyce, Bad Bill Egan, Tony Mullane, his catcher, Kid Baldwin, Tacky Tom Parrott, Dave Orr, Scissors Foutz, or Charles A. Fisher? In those days it seemed as if every player was an individual character, known both on and off the field, while nowadays a ball player is much like any other worker. He plays the game, dons his uniform, and little more is known of him until the next day.

Tacky Tom Parrott was one of the greatest characters that ever broke into the game. He could pitch some, and when he landed on the ball he ticketed it for the fence. One day in Cincinnati Tom caught a fast straight one on the piccolo and sent it into the corner of the lot for a home run. He completed the circuit of the bases before the ball came back into the field, but instead of stopping he started for first again, and still going at top speed went around the bases again. The crowd was howling when he finished the second circuit, so Tom started around again. Four times he raced around the bases and then one of his teammates caught him and led him to the bench.

Tom was a corner player—and a good one. When he was pitching for St. Louis one afternoon, Von der Ahe employed a female band to discourse sweet music between innings, and the plan made a hit with Tom. He would pitch the inning, then, after retiring his opponents, he would climb up in front of the stand, take his place in the band, and play a cornet solo, after which he would go out and pitch some more.

One night—at 2 a. m.—we were in the Galt house, in Louisville, when I was awakened by a great uproar. Curses, yells and imprecations filled the air, and above the others rose the notes of a cornet. Tom's room connected with mine, and, rushing into his room, I found him in his nightshirt, with his bare feet in the window and a cornet to his lips, playing away for dear life.

"I just remembered a tune I hadn't thought of for years," said Tom, "and I was fixing it in my mind.

Scissors Foutz was another odd one. He drank some, and also he played good ball. On one occasion this combination beat a crowd of San Francisco sports out of a big bunch of money. Scissors was pitching for a Louisville agregation wintering on the coast and he was carded to pitch against Chicago on the following day in Central Park. He got drunk during the afternoon and sat in a poker game that evening in the Baldwin hotel. He was still drinking, and late in the evening the story got out among the sports that Foutz was drunk and playing poker. So they began to bet heavily that Chicago would win, qualifying the bet with "if Foutz pitches for Louisville." As he was the star pitcher, many of the bets were snapped up.

At 7 o'clock the next morning Foountz still was playing poker and drinking, and the betting was lively. The game broke up shortly before 10 o'clock in the morning. The betting then was 3 to 1. Foutz went to bed, slept two hours, and that afternoon let Chicago down with two hits.

One-Armed Daly was a real character. His left arm was cut off just above the elbow, and he wore a leather pad, hollowed a bit, on the stump, and with it and his good hand he could catch fly balls and field grounders excellently. He was the greatest hitter that ever happened in the South during training seasons, and the negroes would go for miles to see the one-armed man pitch and field.

The trouble was that the stump on his arms was tender, and he hated to catch thrown balls, which was a source of constant trouble between him and his catcher, Tom Deasley, who always returned the ball hard.

"Arch 'em, Tom; arch 'em," pleaded Daly, but Deasley continued to put on the speed until one day Daly called him down into the diamond and swung the stump of his arm against Deasley's jaw, dropping him to the ground, and remarking, "Now will ye arch 'em?"

There are a million—more or less—Mike Kelly stories, but one that Frank Bancroft, tells is new. One day during the reign of Kelly's Killers in Pendleton. Kel was catching and poor old Yank Robinson was at short, so shaky from a long spree that he was on the verge of collapse. Bounder after bounder went toward short, and Robby kicked every one of them, messed over them, and gave the most horrible exhibition of fielding ever seen. He made six errors and was so bad the crowd was howling. Then some one drove a fierce liner straight over second. Robby saw it, made a short run, leaped, stuck out one hand, slid on his side across the base, and speared the ball with one extended hand, rolling over and over, but hanging to the ball.

In a flash Kel's mask and mitt were offand he was racing down through the diamond. He grasped Robby's hand, shook it again and again, and said loudly: "Good boy, Mr. Robinson. You always could play this game."

Pietro Gladiator Browning was one of the greatest characters that ever broke into baseball, and his last professional engagement terminated in his release for the oddest reason ever assigned. He was playing with Kelly's Allentown (Penn.) team, and one day Anson dropped off there with the Chicago club to play an exhibition. The Gladiator was back to life again, his old fire and spirit revived, and the way he hit and fielded that day was great. That evening, around the hotel, Kelly called the Gladiator over and remarked:

"Pete, I'm going to release you."

"What for Mike? Ain't I playing good ball?" asked the Gladiator.

"Yes," responded Kel, gravely. "You're playing such good ball you're showing all the rest of us up."

And he served ten days' notice on "Old Lampteenles."

THE SELLING OF MARMADUKE

By Fox Russell.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

How brightly the wintry sun shone out as I watched the detraining of my horse at Mudbury! Hunting in a strange country delights me; new scenes, other faces, everything fresh. I was tired of the old pack—no "go," no dash; above all, no pretty faces there.

So I thought a run down into the Blazington country might brighten me up. In the train I sat opposite a divinity in black—must admit that divinity rather scowled when I tried to open conversation by offering her my paper to read—who thrilled my too suspectible heart to such an extent that—but really, this has nothing to do with my story.

Before I had gone a mile on the road to the meet I was overtaken by Hixon, a man I knew living i nthe Blazington country.

"Oh, delighted to see you!" he exclaimed. "But how comes it that you've deserted your own pack? Good morning, Miss Clare." She broke off, as a very pretty girl trotted gently past, favoring Hixon with the sweetest of smiles. Hixon is rather an old fool about women. I don't like to see it in him, a man of a certain age. He is at least a year older than I am.

"That's Miss Clare, of Broughton; you must take care to—" But just then the lady pulled up and looked back at Hixon. Really, it was nothing to be concelted about; but he became positively insufferable when he saw the glance. I determined then and there to save him from making an ass of himself, if I could, so said:

"Hixon, you must introduce me!" and he had to do it.

"Miss Clare, allow me to introduce my friend, Mr. Marmaduke Amor."

Miss Clare bowed. Oh, what a bow! what grace! what abandon! what—but never mind. I at once attached myself to her, and commenced thinking out some scheme for "shaking" Hixon. Arrived at the meet, he fortunately began talking to a friend, and Miss Clare and I edged away together.

"Are you quite a stranger here, Mr. Amor?" she said so archly, so—but never mind.

"Quite," I answered, "but I'm not sure that I shall be in future."

I gave a way of expressing a great deal with my eye, and I turned it full on to her glorious face as I spoke.

"Now, will you, my dear Miss Clare, take pity on me, and act as my guide, philosopher and friend today?"

She replied that she should be delighted. Most fascinating girl this; quite eclipsed divinity in train.

Whilst hounds were drawing the first covert, Hixon, in his usual interfering manner, ranged up alongside, and whispered to me—awfully rude of the man to whisper—

"I say, my boy, take care! The lady knows a thing or two, and—" but I merely nodded distantly and resumed my tete-a-tete with Miss Clare.

We had been talking for about ten minutes, when some one rode round the covert, and said, rather pointedly.

"I wish you gentlemen would be a little quieter, or we shall never get a fox to break this way."

Now, I don't know how to sneer, but I did my best; and then that idiot Hixon asked me what I was "making faces" at.

Soon after this, we "found" and away streamed the pack out of the wood and across the lower end of our meadow.

"Toot, toot!" on the horn, and off we went."

We jumped two-foot-high rail and across the heavy arable we pounded slowly on, my charming companion at my side. Hounds had got well through a fair-sized post and rails, as we began gathering our horses together for the jump. Then Miss Clare turned bewitchingly to me, and exclaimed:

"My horse will be so disappointed; he loves jumping; but I'm really too great a coward to ride at this. Would you mind coming with me to that gate and opening it?

Would I mind! Ask Lancelot if he would mind riding alone with Guinevere!

The gate was some distance left-handed of the line which hounds were running, and the divergence lost us a great deal of ground; but we rode doggedly on, hoping for a check.

"Poor Marmaduke!" sighed Miss Clare; he is really too bold for a timid rider like me. I'm afraid I must sell him and hunt my old cob again. You wouldn't be ashamed of piloting me, even then, would you, Captain—Captain—er—do forgive me, but I've forgotten both your name and regiment."

"Mr.—not captain—and I haven't got a regiment," I replied, inwardly resolving to join the volunteers forthwith.

"Well, do you know, I was wondering at an officer proving such an entertaining companion, and yet I suppose it was your military appearance that deceived me."

What a nice, sensible girl this! We went on a little farther, only encountering the easiest fences. Presently she said.

"How strange that my horse should be named Marmaduke — your own name."

I had remarked this. It was strange, because Marmaduke is an uncommon name.

"I suppose you don't know of anyone who wants a really good hunter, do you?" she observed in somewhat downcast tones.

Now, this was a rare good-looking horse. Why should not I—

"May I ask the price?" I said.

"Well, what I particularly want is a good home for him. You know more about these things than I, Mr. Amor. Would," timidly, "would $750 be too much to ask, do you think?"

"I'll send you a check tonight, and you can let me have him when you like," I answered gallantly. "Shall I make it payable to you?"

"Oh, thanks so much. Make it out to Alicia Clare," with one of her brightest smiles. Then, patting her steed's glossy neck, she murmured:

"Poor Marmaduke, you're sold!" I remembered those words later on.

That evening I dispatched my check to Miss Alicia Clare. Alicia! how I lingered over the writing of that dear name! It seemed so full of pathos, so—never mind.

The following Tuesday I hunted my new purchase for the first time, and, in the course of a short run, he refused every fence but two, at both of which he fell. I couldn't understand it. Miss Clare said that he was a big, bold jumper, and I returned home with a crushed hat, a muddy coat and a mind ill at ease. Next night I met Hixon at the club.

"Hello!" he exclaimed; "what became of you and the pretty horse-breaker that that day?"

"What pretty horse-breaker do you refer?" I asked stiffly.

"Why, Ally Clare, of course. I tried to warn you about her horse-dealing games, but you were so stand-offish, my dear Marmaduke" (wish he wouldn't "dear Marmaduke" me) "that I couldn't—"

"Then—then—Miss Clare is—"

"Miss Clare is the daughter of old Jake Clare, the old horse dealer. She flirts outrageously with every man she meets and sells her horses to the biggest fools" (this man is unsufferable!). "The wretch she rode the day you were down—they only gave $100 for him, as he couldn't jump a straw—she had him two days, and then palmed him off upon some silly idiot for $750!" and he roared with laughter in his own underbred vulgar manner till I could have kicked him.

"Poor Marmaduke, you're sold!" The words recurred to me with a distinctness which was positively painful. I have not renewed my acquaintance with Miss Clare.

THE MOST VERSATILE MAN

Oscar Hammerstein's Varied and Interesting Career ---Cigarmaker, Inventor, Playwright, Capitalist, Theater Builder, Architect and Manager.

Grand opera should appeal strongly to the multitude the country over next winter. Oscar Hammerstein is going to put forward a rival company to Herr Conried's scintillating aggregation, known far and wide as the Metropolitan Grand Opera company.

There's nothing like a little fun to catch the fancy of the crowd, and Oscar has ever been looked upon by the public as a very amusing little cuss, to paraphrase Artemus Ward. The mere announcement, made some time since, that Oscar contemplated entering the grand opera field set New York to smiling; and now that Oscar has returned from Europe with contracts for some of the world's greatest singers in his pocket, New York is chuckling audibly.

Why? Because Oscar has succeeded admirably in giving the amusement world a great deal of pleasure in divers ways since he built his first playhouse some seventeen years ago. That was in Harlem, where he was a pioneer in things theatrical.

He is now deep in the task of putting up his eighth playhouse, which will be known as the Manhattan Opera house. He has figured as principal in numerous amusing courtroom scenes. He made six errors and was so bad the laugh-creating open letters that he has written from time to time to municipal authorities and other prominent men who have incurred his displeasure would fill a book of generous dimensions.

Short, dumpy little body that he is, he has sturdily thrown more than one man twice his size or thereabouts out of his theaters. He shouts "liar" and similar epithets whenever he feels in the mood and considers himself justified.

He is a wit. He is a master of invective and sarcasm. He is a splendid fighter in the game of life. The heavy hand of misfortune has never been able to keep him down long; he has bounded up like the proverbial rubber ball, often spectacularly so.

Ever since he came prominently before the public he has been a paradox, unmistakably, and in following him, watching for his next move, the public has taken the keenest sort of pleasure. At all times it has counted on Oscar to add to its gayety. Therefore, it is gleefully anticipating a whole lot of fun when he begins the ticklish job of handling a batch of imported continental grand opera singers. Phlegmantic men have succumbed to the rigors of such a job ere now—and no one who has ever seen Oscar in action on any of the various little stages on which he plays his comedies would set him down as phlegmatic.

From a tobacco factory bench to American impresario is extremity, indeed. It was as a cigarmaker that Oscar began his career in this country. That was in '63, when a mere boy, he had just landed, having emigrated from Germany.

In several months he was earning good wages. A little while later he was inventing his first labor-saving device for the cigar industry. During the first few years he patented numerous inventions, nearly all of which, with some improvements, are in use in cigar factories the world over. Chief among these was a device that spreads and shapes by air suction the tender tobacco leaf without tearing it. Formerly this had to be done by hand, and only the most delicate workmanship prevented the leaf from being torn. The money that Oscar made out of his inventions put him in possession of a tobacco trade paper, and the profits from both it and his inventions enabled him to embark in the theater-building business and as a manager on a large scale.

Several years before he was able to take a commanding position in the amusement world Oscar had made his debut as a playwright and composer. In the late '60s he wrote the words and music of three one-act comedies for the manager of a German theater in New York. His success in this line inspired him to become himself a manager of a German theater, and a year or two later he leased a playhouse.

Here it was that Oscar experienced his first theatrical failure. He has vividly described this incident in his life:

"I purchased the American rights of 'Der Geschundene Raubritter,' a farce on knight errantry which had made a furore in Germany. In one of the acts a knight who is condemned to die of starvation and is incarcerated in a tower, begs for food. My craze for introducing some novel effect took possession of me at that early day, and as the piece was a farce I thought it would add to the sport to have food pelted at him from one of the boxes.

"So I gathered in a forlorn individual from the Bowery and stationed him in an upper box with a basket of oranges, bananas and carrots. The critical moment came, the knight begged piteously for food. It was time for the bananas, oranges and carrots—the produce of my genius—to fly. But they didn't. I rushed up into the box and found that the forlorn individual had eaten up everything himself."

Oscar has given the American stage many novel things since the day of this failure. He was the leading exploiter of living pictures on a big scale, and when people saw them they gasped. Not a few of the Parisian and Viennese actresses that also made the country gasp a decade or so ago were brought over by him. His was the genius that gave New York its Koster & Bial's modeled after the English music halls, and for the location of which strangers still inquire, though the playhouse has been leveled some years now.

The theater which housed Koster & Bial's was built by Hammerstein. It was his first downtown enterprise, and his first Manhattan opera house, and his idea was to dedicate the place to grand opera. If his plans had gone right, Melba, supported by an Italian company, would have been heard there for the first time in this country. But there occurred one of those numerous slips that have generally punctuated Oscar's theatrical career, and shortly after Oscar tried grand opera on his own hook at popular prices. The venture was a failure, and then he gave to New York his novelty in the shape of a music hall along English lines—Koster & Bial's.

Oscar's first attempt to obtain a secure footing in the grand opera field was made when he was running the Harlem opera house. He put forward Lili Lehman, among other well known operatic stars, but notwithstanding all the talent and the extraordinary publicity dodges Oscar could work, Harlem did not look with favor upon the classic performances.

Oscar had his heart set on giving grand opera, so he tried it in English at popular prices. "I brought out 'Cavalleria Rusticana,'" he said, "but the Harlemites evidently thought that a landscape compohed of rocks and goats was rustic-ana enough for them, and I lost so much money on the production that I rechristened the piece 'Cavalleria Busticana.'"

Oscar has always a cheerful way of describing his experiences, even those that have been failures.

Referring to his troubles with the Manhattan opera house, which became famous as Koster & Boal's after Mrs. Bernard Beere had failed to make good there, and grand opera had done the same, he said:

"I may sum up my connection with this beautiful house by saying that I began with Bernard Beere, continued with Meyerbeer, and ended with lager beer."

It is doubtful whether Oscar himself can remember the numerous times he has been mixed up with the law or its representatives. For the better part of six months he was engaged in squabble after squabble with the authorities about the matter of a license for the Harlem opera house. In the end he got what he was after—not only the license, but a lot of advertising, as well. Incidentally, the town then learned to smile at and with Mr. Hammerstein.

At the end of the first year in Harlem, while he was busy losing several thousand dollars daily, Oscar was arrested by Police Captain Hooker on the charge of running a playhouse without a license. Oscar promptly came back with the statement that his arrest had resulted because the captain had not been furnished with complimentary tickets to a performance at which Lili Lehmann was to appear. The doughty manager carried the fight before the police commissioners, where he proved his charges, with a marvelous display of linguistic pyrotechnics, and Hooker came within an ace of being dismissed from the force. He was transferred and heavily fined.

Early in his various clashes in and out of court Oscar took to writing open letters to his opponents. They have probably afforded as much amusement as his spoken words. Oscar is the possessor of a trenchant style, and his pen is as ready to write what its mater thinks as his tongue is to speak it.

The last person to date to receive one of those epistles—or rather a series of them—is District Attorney Jerome. The latter had several subordinates looking about for violations of the theater safety law. They stepped into Oscar's playhouse, the Victoria, and hence the epistolary vitriol.

Perhaps the circumstance that he failed to get a "rise" out of Jerome is responsible for the dearth of Hammersteinian letters since then. Previously Oscar's epistolary efforts had never failed to draw replies, and he secured a great deal of inward satisfaction in observing that his wordy shots had hit. But from Jerome he drew not even a peep one way or another. Oscar was much grieved thereat, and so angered that he went so far as to threaten to make mincemeat, or something of the sort, of the district attorney should be put foot inside the Victoria.

A smile and laugh provoking man in many ways is Baron Oscar Hammerstein. And yet for all that he is an amusing little cuss; he is a man of wonderful talent and ability. Perhaps no man now living has recovered from so many failures as he. When his big Olympus theater was taken away from him in the late 90s, thereby causing him the loss of a million dollars, even his best friends doubted that he would rise from so crushing a blow. But it was only a matter of months before he had built his Victoria, and on the opening night was gleefully receiving the plaudits of a crowded house of admirers.

This rapid recovery is the most spectacular thing in his whole career. Next comes his feat of conceiving the plot, writing the words and music and designing the scenery of one-act, three-scene operetta in forty-eight hours. This he undertook to do on a wager. The subject was furnished by the other fellow. Oscar was locked in a room and kept under guard while accomplishing the unparalleled task. It has been asserted that he did not enter into the contest for advertising purposes, but it gave him a great deal of publicity just the same, and served, more than anything he had done up to that time, to direct the public's attention to the man's astonishing versatility.

Cigar manufacturer, inventor of cigar-making and theatrical devices, playwright, composer, capitalist, theater builder, theatrical and music hall manager, architect, publicity expert, scenic and costume designer, novelty introducer, architect of his own theaters and fortunes—where is a man more versatile? Now he aims to become an impresario on a grand scale. One of his song birds will be Melba, whom he vainly endeavored to secure when he longed to be an impresario on a much smaller scale.

THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Calumet & Hecla Starts Another Shaft on Superior Mine---Victoria's Stamp Nearly Completed--- Lake Company's Shaft Down 400 Feet.

Calumet, Mich., June 16.—Work on another shaft was started at the Superior mine this week by the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, which has an option on the controlling interest. The new shaft is located 2,400 feet south of the first shaft, which leaves about 2,400 feet intervening between the site of the new shaft and the boundary line between the Superior and the Atlantic Mining company's Section 16. The Superior carries the Baltic lode to a total length of 6,000 feet, there being 1,000 feet of the formation on its lands to the northeast of the first shaft. As the overburden of the Superior is shallow, it is not expected that there will be any difficulty in starting the new shaft, and sinking should penetrate the ledge within a very short time. All the necessary machinery and equipment will be provided at once.

In No. 1 shaft sinking in the foot wall section of the lode has reached a point seventy-five feet below the third level. As soon as an additional depth of twenty-five feet has been established and a croscut extended to tap the Baltic lode, which is forty feet distant. It will be the first of next month before this is accomplished. Besides the drill used in sinking the old shaft, two more are north and south from the shaft at the third level and the other is crosscutting the lode at intervals of fifty feet in the drift at the second level. The work of crosscutting the lode 200 feet from the surface is revealing ground of satisfactory character. The lode at the point is forty-five to fifty feet wide, with copper values fully as good as expected. At the third level the drifts have been opened for a length of 200 feet, or 100 feet each north and south from the shaft, with satisfactory copper values exposed.

It is understood that the Calumet & Hecla company's option on the controling interest in the Superior has been extended from August 1st to January 1, 1907. If the developments in the interim have been satisfactory, the big corporation will then take over the Superior mine through one of its subsidiary corporations.

Diamond drill explorations have been started by the Isle Royale company on the Isle Royale lode in its lands between Section 11 and the southern workings of the old Huron mine. Drifting in this direction from the new shaft reveals promising indications and if these are found in the diamond drill holes a new shaft will be started in that section for permanent operations.

Preparations for the expleratory work which will be conducted on the old Nonesuch mine in the Porcupine Mountain copper range of Ontonagon

ACTIVITY IN BONANZA CIRCLE

Strike on Irish Mag Shaft—Installation of Massive Hoist Machinery—The Warren Townsite Is Soon to be Placed on the Market.

Bisbee, Ariz., June 16.—Activity continues at the mines of the Bonanza Circle, and General Manager Powell is pushing work at a lively rate.

Work on the south end of the Mag shaft of the Calumet & Arizona, which has been largely due to the plans of the present management, has met with gratifying results, as the past week marks the strike of two bodies of ore on two different levels there. The same strikes at any other of the Bonanza properties would no doubt have resulted in a feeling of exciting satisfaction; at the Mag it only adds to the firm belief long ago engendered in the minds of those at the head of the property, that the magnitude of its ore bodies have not yet been imagined.

Aside from the above, the interest of the camp centers in the installation of the new massive hoist machinery at the the Oliver, Lake Superior & Pittsburg and Junction. The Junction hoist has worked with absolute perfection ever since its installation, while at the Oliver, the completion of the hoist is but a matter of a few days at the most. The L. S. & P. foundation is nearing completion and immediately upon the installation of the Oliver hoist, work will begin at the L. S. & P.

The big turbine generator at the Oliver was placed this week, and is already furnishing power to the mine. Underground electric motors are here and are being placed in position as rapidly as possible.

The completion of the new electric power and lighting system is a matter of but little time now.

The old hoist which was taken down at the Oliver to be replaced by the new Nordberg giant, will go to the Briggs shaft, where it will be rebuilt with such changes as are necessary, making it practically a new piece of machinery. Then the resumption of sinking will begin at the Briggs, together with more essential development from which it is expected quick results will follow.

Drifting and exploration by means of diamond drills continues at the Mag on the south end of the property. It is a well known fact that heretofore work has been pursued at the north end of the property. The work of the new management has been indeed productive of good results at the south end.

Drifting on the 1,100 of the Hoatson progresses with the usual speed, with nothing new to report at this property.

Pittsburg & Duluth continues to show up well under steady development.

The only changes to occur during the past week among the men whose energies are devoted to the development of the Circle properties is marked by the resignation of Foreman White at the Mag, who leaves for British Columbia, where he will have charge of one of the big properties of that section. His place has been filled by Ed McFarland, well known to Bisbee mining men, and whose connection with Mexican properties in the vicinity of Zacatecas has reflected much credit on his ability as a miner.

Contrary to all expectations, the new townsite of Warren has not yet been placed upon the market, and instead, the company seemingly has forgotten all about the townsite feature and is devoting its energies to sinking a shaft on the Chicago claim and running two diamond drills on another portion of its property.

Warren has had some delay in securing all patents to the ground acquired by purchase and otherwise, but it is stated on good authority that all patents have been issued by the land office department at Washington, notwithstanding the efforts of a few individuals to delay and obstruct matters.

In the general offices of the company at Warren the ground has already been platted and mapped, showing streets, lots and blocks, awaiting the word from the president of the company to offer the lots to the public. It is reported that in six weeks now, or less, the Warren townsite would be a reality.

The old engine formerly used at the Lake Superior & Pittsburg has been bought by the Warren company, and is now on the ground. Work is as yet in the transitory stage, the use of a whim being about to be supplanted by this hoist.

The shaft, a three-compartment one, will use two of the compartments for men and material, while the third will be for the use of pipes, etc.

The greatest depth attained in the diamond drill holes is something over 600 feet. The conglomerate capping has been passed through and limestone has been encountered.

One of the men high in official circles of the Warren denies the report that ore has been struck, or even any indication of mineralized formation. Notwithstanding this statement, however, those who think they have the "straight tip" cling to the belief that mineral in a greater or a less degree has been encountered. Confirmation on this point can not be obtained from the company, however.

At the shaft being sunk in the lower end of the district, a depth of sixty feet has been attained. Two diamond drill holes are also being sunk in that locality. While nothing is being given out for publication by the officials, the wise ones around the brokerage offices have had the tip for several days that ore has been encountered in sinking these drill holes, on more than one occasion. The delay in perfecting the plans of the company has caused the stock to drag, and it looks now that nothing but the actual selling of lots, or the encounter of an ore body in the shaft, can have any effect upon the quotations. Mr. Van Dyke will be in charge of the realty department of the company just as soon as there is something doing.

L. N. Kinsey, formerly chief clerk at the Douglas smelters, but at present operating a group of seven copper claims about six miles north of Globe, was a visitor in Bisbee this week, coming here to confer with L. W. Powell of the Bonanza Circle companies regarding a shipment of ore to the Douglas smelters.

Mr. Kinsey is making shipments regularly to the Douglas smelters, and the ore carries a big per cent of silica, at the same time containing from 4 to 5 per cent copper.

Mr. Kinsey reports a building boom on at Globe, and many handsome business blocks in course of erection and a general air of prosperity surrounding the Gila county mining camp.

Mr. Kinsey reports nothing doing as yet with reference to the development of the mining claims recently bonded in that district by Hovland & Smith. While

BUTTE MINING DISTRICT

Some of the New Companies Attaining Great Depth in Shaft---Annual Meetings of Reins and Raven Companies.

Butte, Mont., June 16.—Some of the new companies operating in the Butte district are doing remarkable work and intend to continue until the ore bodies they are after are opened up. On the Six O'clock group, controlled by the Butte Copper Exploration company, the three-compartment shaft has attained a depth of about 635 feet and there is to be no cessation of the rapid work until the 1,000-foot mark is reached, provided the vein of the Golden Chief is not encountered before that point is touched. The vein is one of the large ones traversing the group, and should it be tapped, which is hardly likely, progress for a few feet might be somewhat slow by reason of the possibility of a heavier flow of water. At present the flow does not call for much effort on the part of the pumps.

At the Bullwhacker property sinking is progressing rapidly, the bottom of the shaft having reached a depth of more than 300 feet. This is another property on which splendid work has been done.

The Butte & Bacorn company is now in shape to prosecute development much faster than heretofore. This company, however, is sinking three shafts and is using steam at each of them. Reports from the property are to the effect that the ground in two of the shafts is looking good, having all the earmarks of mineral in commercial quantities below. A strike of ore in that section of the district will be a great boom for Butte, and those who are at the head of the enterprise are confident that success will crown their efforts, and that, too, before a depth of 400 feet is attained.

The Butte-Milwaukee company has bought and paid for the Pollock mine and is ready to lift the bond on the Florence, one of its group. The Pollock is one of the old producers of the northern section and is in lien for greater production.

The 3,800-foot crosscut which is to be driven from the 1,800-foot level of the Original mine for the Davis-Daly Estates Mining company will be one of the greatest undertakings in the development of the ore bodies in Butte. The work will not be begun until pumps for handling the water are available, for it is likely that some moisture will be encountered when the veins are intersected. Arrangements for the pumps have bee made and they will be delivered as soon as possible.

The cave of ground that occurred in the Bertha claim about two weeks ago has been caught up and mining is again in progress in the vein. The cave extended from the surface to the drift from the bottom of the 45-foot winze in the tunnel. The Bertha is located a short distance northeast of the Bullwhacker and has been yielding a large quantity of commercial copper ore during the last three months. It is owned by William D. Thornton, proprietor of the Thornton hotel, vice-president of the Red Metal Mining company and president of the Raven company.

At the annual meting of the Reins Copper company the following were elected directors: J. M. Guffey, W. P. De Armit, John A. Miller, E. W. Mariand, A. P. Childs, W. F. Johnson, John H. Galey and George B. Boswell of Pittsburg; John P. Reins, Thomas Bryant and George W. Stapleton of Butte. Thomas Bryant, consulting engineer for the company, submitted a report of operations in the mine during the year. It showed that since his advent some ore has been shipped from the 800-foot level, and that the shaft has been sunk to the 1,200-foot mark. It showed also that the face of the north crosscut is now in a distance of about 130 feet, and that of the south crosscut about 50 feet; that the flow of water is about 450 gallons a minute, but it is handled without trouble, the capacity of the pumps not being required to raise it to the surface. ## MANY GOLD COLORS PANNED

From Park County, Colo., Volcanic Ashes---Syndicate to Build Large Mill, If Experiments Being Made Warrant Procedure.

Denver, Colo., June 16.—The impression that the gold bearing deposits of the South Park will bring results seems to be growing, notwithstanding that very little in the way of practical demonstration has been done. Most of the story has been told, but in a talk with P. Waldron, Jr., who returned from there recently some additional notes worth printing were obtained, largely the results of conversations had by him with D. E. Rowe, who represents to some extent the Chicago syndicate which has the larger interest at stake. Mr. Waldron exhibited some grains of pure gold which he panned from a sample obtained by him at Henry Wood's assay establishment, together with certificates showing returns of 80 cents to $240 per ton. But after all is said, the supreme test of the value of the field is yet to come in two ways, first by churn drill holes, which the syndicate will sink, two or three of the drills being already on the ground, which will determine the character and value of the material below the 125 feet already penetrated; and, secondly, in some large mill runs being made. It is stated by Mr. Rowe, says Mr. Waldron, that this syndicate is preparing to build a large mill on the ground, provided the experiments just mentioned will warrant such procedure.

A number of people are there making examinations, among them some experienced Cripple Creek miners. Churn drilling is a capital method of prospecting in a country like that about Hartzell's, where shafting is impracticable owing to the loose character of the ground, but they may be compelled to case the holes. There is blue mud at 125 feet, which is said to carry the better values. Drilling will show what is below the blue mud and, if persisted in, the depth to bedrock and what exists there and intermediately in the way of pay stuff. In view of what A. M. Willes has said of the low-grade deposits of Cape Breton island and what the Bonnie Girl mine is pretty certain to develop out of very lean stuff down near La Plata City, there is encouragement to go on with the South Park deposit. It may disclose some sensations as the work progresses. The celebrated Homestake mine at Lead was a very indifferent proposition in its first development, and cyanide was its salvation. The Alaska Treadwell, a dividend payer for years, runs only $2 per ton average with no high grades at all. The Bonnie Girl runs from 80 cents up to $10 or $12 per ton, yet Mr. Phelps hopes to make a great mine out of it. The enormous gold output of the Transvaal is from ore that runs less than $13 per ton. The bulk of the gold production of the world is from low-grade stuff. It is hoped that the people who are testing the South Park belt will stick to it. They may strike a lot of bonanzas above or below the blue mud.

NEW GOLD STRIKE IS MADE

Ore Averaging $500 a Ton Is Found at Phillipsburg, Nev.---Mohawk Development Still the Feature at Goldfield.

Goldfield, Nev., June 16.—For days there has been a genuine rush on for the new camp of Phillipsburg, fourteen miles northwesterly from here. All the livery rigs, automobiles and private conveyances in town have been pressed into service, and returning pilgrims report that the country is being staked for miles around the point of the original discovery, which has been incorporated as the Goldfield Copperopolis company. While the company has reserved that portion of the ground in which the first strike was made, eight leases have been given to Goldfield men on other parts of the ground, Harry Gimler, the discoverer of Goldfield, getting the first one. The camp is only five miles from the line of the Tonopah railroad. The ore in the main vein, which is reported to be seven feet wide, does not show copper values, as at first reported. The ore carries one part of gold to two of silver, and the rock being sacked is counted upon to average $500 a ton. The new district is expected to prove an important one.

Here at Goldfield the sensation of the hour continues to be the phenomenal development of the Mohawk. On the 150-foot level the vein has been opened up for a width of nearly 100 feet, and there is no decrease in the values, the 120 to 140 tons of ore a day that is being taken out averaging $110 a ton in gold. The Great Bend is also giving a good account of itself, as is the Red Top and several other mines of the district.

In the country to the north Round Mountain is forging to the front at such a pace that Manhattan has been compelled, temporarily at least, to take a back seat. Sensational developments and daily strikes are reported in the vicinity of the early discoveries, and for past ten days the road to camp has been kept hot by mining men from all parts of the country. The town of Gordon is building up rapidly, and it is announced that water will be piped in during the next week or two. Fully 100 men went in from Manhattan during the week, and the report is that every one of them immediately found work in the mines.

Manhattan is steadying down, and the mines of the district are demonstrating their worth. It is now conceded that Manhattan is not going to be famous as a high grade camp. Rather, development is proving that the veins will carry heavy tonnages of fine milling ore, ore having an average value of $20 to $5 a ton.

News from Fairview is to the effect that there is excitement there over discoveries at Camp Wonder, about seventeen miles northeasterly from Fairview. Ore carrying high values in gold and silver, with some copper, have been brought into the latter camp, and "all hands and the cook" have pulled out for the diggings. The district has been attracting attention for several weeks, and the reports now coming in indicate that several ledges are showing fine shipping ore, worth from $120 to $600 a ton.

A strike of consequence was reported this week in the Gold Coin claim of the Jumbo Extension at Diamondfield. Four feet of ore, assaying $100 to $400 per ton, was uncovered on the 100-foot level. This is not the first strike in this ground, as considerable ore was shipped from the same propertly last fall, but there is ground for hope this time that the ore body is more permanent, and that heavy shipments will ensue. This strike is one more evidence of the immense amount of work being done in the immediate vicinity. The Gold Coin is between the Great Bend, on the west, and the Daisy on the south. All interest now on the Great Bend is in the developments in the drift being run from the main shaft, 200 feet in the direction of the bonanza vein, opened to a depth of fifty feet on the south. The drift will catch it at a depth of 145 feet, though there are those who believe it likely that several blind veins may be encountered meanwhile.

Combination Fraction, adjoining the Mohawk on the east, has started a tunnel in the direction of the Mohawk shoot.

The Ish lease on the Combination, which broke into ore before the Mohawk, and which event really precipitated the revival in the rich portion of the camp, is still in high values, and is a shipper only second to the Mohawk in size.

On the St. Ives the developments are past the "encouraging" state, and there is nothing in sight but ore. Two hundred tons are stored in sacks on the dump, and are valued at something like $25,000.

The Eastern men who hold an option on the Bullfrog Gold Bar property let the same expire without action, and the company, of which Messrs. Loftus & Davis are the heads, will continue to work the mine.

CANISTEO MINE'S ROCK CRUSHER AT BOVEY, MINN.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON RANGES

New Mining District Located North of Village of Iron River—Mineral Mining Company Responsible for the Discovery—Lamont Mine Near Its End.

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact is only now becoming public that in consequence of discoveries in diamond drill exploration conducted in the field directly north of the village of Iron River, in the western portion of Iron county, a new mining district has been located which gives promise of rivaling the Stambaugh valley, to the southeast, as an important source of ore supply. It is in the Stambaugh field that all the operating mines of the Iron River district, so-called, are situated, and the deposits now being developed there are of very large extent, notably the ore bodies at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Caspian property, yet the claim is made that if the future developments in the valley north of Iron River continue on the par established by the showing thus far disclosed in the territory the new district will become a strong candidate for Menominee rangs honors.

News of the ore discoveries has been withheld, the interest chiefly concerned taking advantage of the opportunity to add materially to its acreage, but recently the dissemination of information relative to the district has occasioned a rush for holdings in the mineralized zone and lands have been taken over under option as far distant as the vicinity of Atkinson, on the Paint river, ten miles to the north. The ore formation seems to follow a big ravine that closely resembles the old bed of a river. This ravine, it is believed, outlines a draw in the formation; and the experience throughout the Iron River—Stambaugh county has been that ore deposits are to be looked for when this geological feature is noted.

The concern whose work is responsible for this extension of the mineralized area is the Mineral Mining company, controlled by the Pewabic Mining interests of Milwaukee, whose mining superintendent, E. F. Brown, is also at the head of the operations of the subsidiary corporation. The Mineral people have been engaged for some time past in drilling work in the territory north of Iron River, centering these operations on the Konwinski tract, and ore has been found in quantity. Leases have now been taken, not only to the Konwinski property, but on the James, Harrington, Minckler and Aronson farms as well, all five located in Section 23, north, adjoining that in which the village is situated, in town 43, range 35. The district is one of heavy sand overburden, a fact which undoubtedly has retarded its development, and for the same reason exploratory work, drilling being necessary, and mine opening will be so expensive and difficult as to practically debar the smaller operator. Indications also point to heavy pumping charges, the district apparently being a wet one. The ore so far found has not been of the best grade, but as it is believed the true deposits have not yet been located, improvement in this respect is anticipated. In any event, the Mineral Mining company is considered to have a very fine proposition in the new territory.

The old James property was explored several years ago by Chicago parties, but they evidently did not go deep enough, and work was abandoned. The Mineral company is preparing to resume the work here, and the machinery now going out to the property is of such capacity as to indicate a decision to operate on an extensive scale. The old workings will be unwatered, and the shaft sunk another hundred feet, from which level drifts will be run to prove the ground cut by the drill. In the village of Iron River itself, the Mineral company is conducting drilling operations on the old Sheridan mine tract. It is also engaged at the Beta property, in the the same portion of the range, and at the old Bren tract, near Waucedah, Dickinson county, it is reopening one of the first mines developed in the Menominee country.

For the process of taxation, a total valuation of $1,178,700 has been placed by the boards of review on the mining properties in Iron county. In general the assessments are the same as last year. There are a few changes, but not enough to make any material difference in the aggregate. The Crystal Falls district continues to lead, both in valuation and number of properties, with Stambaugh township a close second. The figures follow:

Crystal Falls city—Great Western mine, $151,200; Bristol, $151,200; Youngstown, $60,000; Lamont, $35,000; Lincoln, Fairbanks, Paint River, Kimball, May and Lot 3, $44,500; total, $441,900.

Crystal Falls township—Tobin mine, $107,500; Crystal Falls, $50,000; Armenia, Hollister, Voos, Columbia, Hilltop, Victoria and Monongahela, $34,800; total, $192,300.

Stambaugh township—Baltic mine, $114,000; Dober, Riverton and McGillis, $127,500; Caspian, $40,000; Section 12, $39,000; Hiawatha, Baker and Fogarta, $37,000.

The Hemlock and Michigan mines, in Hemlock township, are valued at $66,000 and $21,000 respectively; the Mansfield, in Mansfield township, at $95,000, and the Nanaimo property, in Iron River township, $5,000.

Corrigan, McKinney & Co. have been meeting with excellent success in their diamond drill work on the so-called Tully "options," covering a tract of eighty acres directly west of the Baker property, in the Stambaugh valley. A diamond drill has been at work for some weeks, and in almost every hole put down, ore has been met with. At the Baker, where the task of sinking through quicksand was successfully accomplished a few weeks ago, the shaft has been firmly anchored in the ledge, a tedious work, each blast having caused the sand to run into the shaft like water, and sinking will now begin in earnest. The shaft is bottomed in a formation of mixed ore and jasper, and will be put down to a point 100 feet be-

MAGNETITE CAN BE SMELTED

Experiments Recently Conducted at the Canadian Soo Were Successful---Cost of Production of Pig Iron by Electric Process.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 16.—(Special to the Herald.)—That magnetite, which is the chief ore of Canada, can be as economically smelted by the electro-thermic process as hematite ores of high sulphur content, not containing manganese can be made into pig iron containing only a few thousandths of one per cent. of sulphur, is held by Dr. Haanel, superintendent of mines, to have been demonstrated by the experiments conducted recently under government auspices at the Canadian Soo. A preliminary report prepared by Dr. Haanel shows that the silicon content can be varied as required for the class of pig to be produced; charcoal, which can be cheaply produced from mill refuse or wood which could not be otherwise be utilized, can be substituted for coke as a reducing agent without being briquetted with the ore; and a ferro-nickel pig can be produced practically free from sulphur and a fine quality, from roasted nickeliferous pyrrhotite. The experminet made with a titaniferous ore containing 17.82 per cent. of titanic acid is declared to permt the conclusion that titaniferous ores up to perhaps five per cent. titanic acid, can be successfully treated by the electro process.

The report gives the cost of production per ton of pig iron by the electric process at $10.69, and the estimated cost of a 10,000 horse power plant producing 120 tons of pig iron per day of 24 hours as $700,000. Probably the the largest unit which at present can be constructed on the model of the experimental furnace, Dr. Haanel states, will not exceed 1,500 horse power. The construction of the furnace would therefore be required to be modified to provide for the collection and utilization of the carbon monoxide produced by the reduction of the ore. The latter also involves the production of the charcoal for a charge from combustion on the top of a furnace.

The greater capacity, which insures less loss of heat by radiation, and modification of the furnace to permit of the utilization of the carbon monoxide will materially increase the output beyond that ascertained by the experimental furnace, Dr. Haanel says: The experiments indicated that under normal conditions about 11.5 tons were produced by an expenditure of 1,000 E. H. P. days. Dr. Haanel also expresses the opinion that "on account of the value of the product the smelting of roasted nickeliferous pyrrhotite by the electro-thermic process as carried out by the government experimental plant admits of immediate commercial application without other modification of the furnace than increase of its capacity."

The fact that it has been demonstrated that titaniferous ores containing up to 5 per cent titanic acid can be economically and successfully treated by the electrical method is not only of great importance to Canada, but to Minnesota as well. Aside from the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges, both of which are located entirely within the Gopher commonwealth, there is another Minnesota range that is rich in iron, but cursed with a trace of titanic acid in every deposit. The chemists know all about titanium, as far as the metal and its compounds are concerned, but what the iron men want to know—and what the chemists cannot explain—is why a mere trace of titanium is a hoodoo to iron. Ore containing titanium will make just as good iron for practically every purpose as if there were none of the element there, but the iron founder throws up both hands in its presence. An iron ore containing titanium requires about 50 per cent more fuel to smelt, in blast furnace practice, than if the obnoxious element were missing. The percentage of the element seems of little importance. A grain of arsenic will embitter ten thousand times its own bulk of water, and titanium seems to be equally effective with iron ore.

No end of experimenting has been done with this ore, and while it has been considered that eventually the scientist would conquer in the fight—for all treasures of nature's storehouse must finally come under man's dominion—the problem has all along apparantently been as far from solution as when first approached by the unsuspecting founder and the overconfident metallurgist. John T. Jones of Iron Mountain, Menominee range, whose life has been spent in foundries, mines and drills, and who is noted for original and effective research and methods, has conducted many experiments with tiitanic ore in the foundry mixture, but notwithstanding this the extra 50 per cent of fuel was required to bring the ore to the smelting point. In his last effort with this most refractory of raw materials, but a single barrowful of iron ore tainted with titanium was dumped into the furnace, and that was thrown on top of the charge. Inasmuch as the charge required as much fuel to smelt as any of its predecessors, containing even one-half titanic ore, Mr. Jones dropped the experiment.

NEVADA STOCK SITUATION

Slump Which Followed San Francisco Disaster Creating No Consternation---Large Capitalists Are Buying at the Decline.

Goldfield, Nev., June 16.—There is a certain humor in the stock situation here these days. The slump in mining stocks which followed the San Francisco disaster is creating no consternation. In fact, it seems to have caused a certain amount of joy which bubbles up in spite of all the efforts of the joyous ones to keep a sober and mournful mien. They are going about with eyes alight and fingers on their lips, and buying, buying, buying. Among those that have thus swallowed huge blocks are such men as John Cook, the banker, Frank Golden, president of the Nye & Ormsby County bank, L. M. Sullivan, of the L. M. Sullivan Trust company, and Dr. Ward, brother-in-law of steel magnate Schwab, here on a visit a few days ago.

A great part of that buying is of Manhattan stocks, which suffered most from the effects of the earthquake shock. The searching of the reasons for the depreciation in Manhattans make a rather interesting little dissertation in economics.

In the first place, it must be remembered tht Manhattan is a young camp, even in this region of baby metropolises. Roughly speaking, Tonopah is five years old, Goldfield, two and a half, while Manhattan counts only six months.

Now enters Mr. San Francisco Investor in the problem. When, five years ago, Tonopah sprang up fullfledged and panoplied in her golden armor, Mr. San Francisco Inventor was in a skeptical mood. Even with the goods under his eyes, he shook his head and smiled a gentle, sad smile. He passed up Tonopah, and it was the East that got in on the good thing. Two years and a half afterwards came the great Goldfield strikes. Again the excitement found Mr. San Francisco, blase and indifferent, and again the East jumped in and took the gold right from under his nose. Then came Bullfrog a year later. Mr. San Francisco woke up a bit, yawned a lazy yawn, and bought a little, but again the East bought the bulk.

Within six months, came Manhattan. By that time, Tonopah, Goldfield, and Bullfrog were aroar with activity, their stocks had soared above the clouds, and Mr. San Francisco felt foolish indeed. He started to make up for his past sloth. So eagerly did he demand Man-

The following account of the wedding of Miss Eva Worden and Wilbur Kimball, which took place Wednesday at Minneapolis, will be of much interest to many here, as Miss Worden has made her home in Duluth for the past three years with her sister, Mrs. M. E. McIntyre of Lakeside. The Minneapolis Tribune says of the wedding:

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman O. Downing, 2300 Lyndale avenue south, furnished the setting for the marriage ceremony of Miss Minerva Worden and Wilbur Rufus Kimball, which took place last evening at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Marion Berry played the bridal music, giving the "Lohengrin" wedding march as the procession neared the altar and changing to the strains of the Mendelssohn music during the exchange of vows. About seventy-five guests assembled at the ceremony, and were present at the informal reception that followed. The nuptial blessing was spoken by Rev. T. W. Stout. The bride entered alone, and was given in marriage by her brother, L. O. Downing. Her rare girlish beauty and charm made of her a most attractive bride. Her wedding gown was of French batiste, exquisitely fashioned, with a yoke of Princess lace and elaborations of old valenciennes, over a slip of ivory silk. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley. Miss Helen C. Dixon was the maid of honor. She wore a dainty gown of white French lawn and carried an armful of pink bridesmaid's roses. Fred G. Kimball of Sioux Falls was the best man.

"Masters Neal and Ralph Downing opened the door through which the bridal party entered.

"The service was read in a bridal bower, fashioned in the large bow window. The window was heavily canopied in smilax, that terminated in the bank of palms that formed its base. Clusters of white peonies relieved the dark background and banked the mantle near by. In the living room a delicate color note was introduced with masses of wild roses that filled great bowls and vases, and in the dining room the original color thought of white and green prevailed.

"At the informal reception that followed Mr. and Mrs. Kimball were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman O. Downing and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Kimball. Mrs. D. J. Reynolds presided in the dining room, and was assisted by Mrs. Harold Hall and Miss Ruth Kimball. Miss Mabelle Kimball presided over the frappe bowl.

Doings in New York Society

New York, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fashionable element of New York society has deserted the town and taken its residence at the resorts and in the country.

The many June weddings cause some of the smart people to return for a few days occasionally, and each returning ship brings back those who went abroad in March and April. There are little dinners and excursions to nearby resorts; some motoring and a little bridge. The park has never been more beautiful or attractive than at present, but society folk refuse to stay in town more than a day or two at a time.

* * *

In several prominent families there have been material changes in the usual summer plans. Mrs. Vanderbilt and Miss Gladys Vanderbilt will not be at the Breakers this summer. This is serious for Newport, as Mrs. Vanderbilt, since the debut of her younger daughter, has entertained constantly.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney are abroad for the greater part of the summer. There also is a rumor that the Countess Castellane, who was Miss Anna Gould, is coming to this country. Mr. and Mrs. George Gould are going abroad, but they will keep Furlough Lodge in Catskill open. Their second son, Kingdon Gould, remains in America, and Mrs. Kingdon, Mrs. Gould's mother, will be at Furlough Lodge.

On the other hand, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will be at Newport for the first time in some seasons. They are to entertain on a lavish scale. There will be a reunion of the Wilson family, as Lady Herbert is to come over and be with Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., who are already at Newport. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet have opened their villa, and Mrs. Ogden Goelet is about to come to Newport.

* * *

Oyster Bay had a wedding today. Miss Marie Monant and Mr. J. H. Norton were united at the residence of the bride's parents. A special train carried the guests from New York, and preparations were made for a very imposing wedding reception. Mr. and Mrs. Norton will spend the summer at Oyster Bay, and later will go to Europe.

An Oyster Bay engagement announced about the time of Miss Montant's, that if Mr. Harold Weeks to Miss Lousine Peters, is apparently not to result in a wedding before autumn, but still the colony there finds the engagement and the possibility of an early marriage an engrossing topic of conversation. The annual dances do not begin until after the Fourth of July, although the Seawanhaka clubhouse, where they are held, had its opening on Memorial day, as has been the custom for years.

* * *

On June 21 the wedding of Putnam A. Bates and Miss Emeline Goold Vernam takes place at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, at Morristown. It will be followed by a reception and al fresco wedding breakfast on the lawn, given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Vernam, parents of the bride. The bachelor dinner of Mr. Bates was given at the University club on Thursday evening. T. Tower Bates will be the best man, and the ushers will be John Greenville Bates, Harold Vernam, Albert William Putnam, Reginald W. Pressbrich, Anton H. Schefer, Wolcot P. Robbins, Leonard S. Horner, and William P. Boulton, Jr.

* * *

At the wedding of Miss Wilhelmine S. Claflin to Gustavus T. Kirby, at the Church of the Ascentsion on June 21, Mis Mary Brent Stewart will be maid of honor. The best man will be L. Hollingsworth Wood, and the ushers William E. S. Griswold, Charles Bartlett, Ernest Staussen, Moses Ely, Thomas Kearny, and Isaac Wheeler.

* * *

Tuxedo Park now is very lively and only a few remain unoccupied. Automobiling and driving are much in vogue, and the park swarms with automobiles, conveying parties from town to the club or villa colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard have returned to Keewaydin and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Jr., have moved into the Robert Goelet villa on Tuxedo Lake.

* * *

It is expected that the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe will visit Newport during the summer, and during their visit will be the guests of Mrs. Ogden Goelet at Ochre Court, her villa on the Cliffs. In that case there will be various entertainments for the been there since their marriage in this city only three years ago. Mrs. Goelet is abroad, but is not expected to return before the latter part of July.

* * *

Robert J. Collier has recovered from the injury he received a week ago, when he was struck by a polo mallet wielded by Harry Payne while playing in a team match on the Meadow Brook field. He expects, so his physician, Dr. Louis N. Lanehart of Hempstead, says, to play polo again tomorrow.

Mr. Whitney's mallet struck Mr. Collier just over the eye, inflicting a painful wound, that extended from a point above the eye downward across the cheek, the mallet apparently having glanced from the brow.

Mr. Collier may owe his life to the fact that the mallet glanced, for it was handled by an athlete who, having no reason for supposing he would injure a friend, did not spare his strength when swinging for his stroke. A direct blow would probably have fractured the skull.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor expects to remain abroad until fall. Mrs. Astor, Sr., is at home in Paris, on the Champs Elysees, and expects to remain there until she sails for home July 28. Her daughter, Mrs. George Ogilvy Halg, with the latter's daughter, Miss Caroline Coleman Drayton, will probably accompany Mrs. Astor, and on their arrival the party will go at once to Newport.

Organdies Made Unlined Pretty Worn Over Colors

By A. T. ASHMORE.

There are some things which no amount of experience will ever teach. A proof of this is the number of summer gowns that are brought out on the first warm day of the season, the like sales not being again encountered until, after a brief lapse, the thermometer again soars close to the suffocating mark. Why women cannot get together their summer outfit while the weather is still fairly comfortable is incomprehensible, but apparently they can't any more than summer plans can be decided upon until one is literally driven from the city from fear of sunstroke. Dressmakers, of course, are maddening, and it is excellent for the temper to have to wait four and frequently eight weeks to have made up the simplest summer trousseau. Then there is another danger—that of purchasing the material for many more gowns than can ever be made up. If one waits until the last moment she naturally wants to be on the safe side from now on, and so numberless attractive dress lengths are purchased on the spur of the moment. It is always better to have only a few gowns, each one handsome in itself, than to have any number, all more or less mediocre.

Summer fabrics are fascinatingly pretty this year, light flowered mousseline, embroidered batistes dotted swiss, fine French organdies, plain or figured lawns, in fact such a variety of textures and designs that it is well nigh impossible to chose only a limited number of dress lengths. Flowered materials are very much in vogue. A gown of flowered organdie, for example, can be made up unlined, to be worn at one time over a white slip, again with green and once more over a lining the color of the flower. By changing the ribbons the gown will look altogether different each time, thus giving the effect to a more extended outfit than is in reality the case. Large patterns are sure to be effective, but often the less conspicuous designs are the more becoming. A trellis with cherries or flowers trailing over it makes an attractive background and gives, too, a little the effect of a check or plaid, which is so fashionable just now.

For some years past all white has been experimented upon with an eye to economy, nor has it been found wanting in this respect. With only a few gowns white stands far less chance of being remembered than a marked color or even than a flowered design. Then, too, white, while it perhaps will soil a trifle sooner, can be laundered or cleaned indefinitely, emerging each time as fresh and new as before. A white gown can be worn on all possible occasions, and if it is desired to wear a guimpe there is never any effect of its being an evening dress worn in the daytime.

Pretty Basketry Made by Pupils Beautifies Homes

Develops Artistic Sense in Children and Aids Home Decoration.

Through proficiency in the art of basket-making, the school children of New York city have been enabled to beautify their homes to a wonderful extent, and walls formerly bare of adornment are now artistically decorated, and scores of useful articles are in constant use in the households of the pipils.

Teachers have had evidence from a thousand sources of the ethical value of this feature of the school work, and mothers have exemplified their pleasure in noting the development of the artistic sense in their children, while on the other hand many mothers themselves have been educated to an appreciation of the house decoration.

Every Woman Should Have Business Training

That every woman before her marriage, whether possessed of this world's goods or not, should devote a certain length of her time to business, and that no character is half developed without it, is the firm conviction of Miss Alice Bradley, who is advertising manager for a big New York department store.

"It is a school which instead of being despised should be sought after. A two years' course involving actual wage earning, whether by making cakes or compiling encyclopedias, would leave a very small percentage of the comic paper variety of woman who gets off a car backward and who cannot decide whether it is business or the club that consumes her husband's earnings and evenings," says Miss Bradley in "My Business Friend."

"Women are only half educated even after a brilliant course of study if they have not practically in some way proved the value of the education they have acquired.

"Every one has talent of some kind, and if women were to realize how the practical application of talent educates, it would soon become the fashion to enter upon a business course. There is no hindrance, provided you are willing to learn; no obstacle, to the acquirements of education in business. Object lessons, the easiest kind, are before you all day long. Best of all, you learn by observation, to note what is passing around you, to work practically and methodically.

"The limitations you set yourself are sure to be reflected in the limitations set for you by society, so try to improve the shining hours of your freedom from responsibility by setting these limitations where they belong, self-satisfied exaltation or self-condemning defeat, results that are equally useless and unworthy. We must remember that victory over self means the only real success. Victory over pride, conceit, ambition, on the one hand, and over discouragement, fear and limitation on the other. The pendulum that swings between these two extremes wastes much energy.

"Above all take into your business career, love. Not merely personal inclination or preference, but love in the highest sense. Love in this sense, of necessity gives and gives wisely—gives that which is right—no more and no less. It is the quality that gives to work its best effort. It is the quality that will let you teach others what you have learned. If you see them faltering on a problem you will pass them the solution you found when solving it yourself.

"You will learn more through this channel than any other, for love is humble and will let you realize that every one you meet—the artisan, the philosopher, the artist, or the child—knows something, many more things than you do.

"Above all love your work. Especially if it be distasteful to you, look it squarely in the face, find the good in it and love it for what it teaches you. Remember, it is making you bigger and opening a world of thought to you such as a life of easy shelter would never have brought within your reach.

"Your work is bringing out your individuality. It is the means of making you prove to yourself what you can do. Hate makes it toil, grinds you down to a sense of rebellion and time and rule. Love shows you its good, its use and its beauty.

"When you have finished your business lesson, if you will use the early steps—not to sit down and weep upon, but to climb to their fulest height—you will look back with infinite gratitude to the teachings it brought and you will find that love had cast such a beauty over all that the grinning mask which the tempter prepared to frighten you, had been transmuted, by learning and working, into your crown and by the time you need your mettle they will have receded out of sight.

"Is it your aim to hold a position of trust? Then look and learn and let the knowledge you acquire each day be the stepping stones on which you climb to your goal. Is your aim in other fields? Then consider the expansion of thought, the sympathy, the wonderful insight you are gaining, of how your sister and brother the world over lives.

"If you want to learn, first of all do not set any limit to your capacity or your work. You can do anything. And in so far as your motive is right and your purpose sincere, the result will be right. There is a task for you to do in this world that no one else is able to perform—there is a place for you that no other can fill. Set yourself the highest possible standard of motive and endeavor and aim for your work and the place is yours.

"Abandon all thoughts of personality. Do not work for a person. Appreciate encouragement and be grateful for it as well as for just criticism, but remember that personal praise are equally dangerous and harmful. If your work is right it is bound to please and that alone should satisfy you.

"Work for a principle. Give your best because it is not in you to give anything else. Do not compete with man or woman, compete with the best work that can be done. Personal competition excites envy, jealousy, hate and covetousness, and will result in

Bridesmaids' Flower Baskets

Bridesmaids' bouquets are made in such attractive designs this season that as much care is given to them for smart weddings as to the present arrangement of the flowers carried by the bride. Formerly a simple cluster of blossoms was sufficient, for everything was subordinated to the "shower bouquet," but now they are only a little less elaborate and being fashioned in artistic shapes are decidedly pretty and effective. Even the "shower" that has always been restricted to the bride's use is now affected by the girls who attend her, in a modified form, of course. Dainty willow baskets, flower filled, are quite the smartest things in lieu of bridesmaids' bouquets at the fashionable weddings this summer, and hang from the wrists of the young women. The baskets, with a long round handle attached to one side only, are caught up in the center so that there are two pockets for the flowers instead of one. The handles are carefully wound with double faced satin ribbon in white. At a recent wedding bunches of sweet peas were placed in the pockets, and from either side and from the front of the baskets ribbons about two inches wide were hung. These were showered with farlayense ferns and sweet peas, and were most effective. The "showers" were only about twelve inches long, not big and elaborate like the ones brides carry.

At another wedding where pink roses were worn by the bridesmaids, similar baskets decorated with pink and satin ribbon and showers, with lilies of the valley, were carried in the hand instead of on the wrist, and the handles were of convenient size to hold with ease. These baskets are not more than eight or ten inches in diameter, nor more than six inches deep, and are a most desirable size for either tall or small girls.

Another departure this year is in the choice of flowers that the bridesmaids carry. For instead of selecting blossoms that are of different varieties from the ones worn by the bride, it is correct now to have at least part of the blooms correspond in color as well as in kind to those used in the bridal bouquet. For instance, if the bride has a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley, the attendants should use both roses and lilies, or if pink flowers are necessary to complete the color scheme and to harmonize with their frocks, then lilies of the valley should form a part of their bouquets.

Baskets, though not the same shapes as those used by the bridesmaids, or if the blooms harmonize, the colors and kinds of both are combined. The baskets, as large as the small girls can conveniently carry in both hands, are of willow, and made on old-fashioned lines, with a small base or bottom, and wide flaring sides. The handles may be on one side, like the dainty ones the bridesmaids use, or like the regulation market variety, where it is connected to both sides. The handle is covered with ribbon, as are the sides, so that the willow does not show.

The bride's shower bouquets are made on the same lines as they have been for years, and of the same kinds of blossoms. Nothing is more appropriate than white bride's roses, with a shower of lilies of the valley, or, handsomer and more expensive, with orchids with a similar shower. The latter at all the best functions is made of broad double faced satin ribbon—white, of course—and drops from twenty to twenty-four inches below the bunch of flowers. The lilies, with farlayense ferns—just a suggestion of them showing—are clustered on the ribbons artistically.

Besides the regulation shower bouquet there is a novelty that has won some favorites this spring. It is the prayer book bouquet. A white kid prayer book or one bound in the same material as the bridal robe has a three or four inch width double faced white satin ribbon laid between the pages, with long ends hanging out at the top and bottom, on which are showered white roses and lilies of the valley.

Nurse Maid's Dotted Swiss French Costume

Nurses' Uniforms Follow Foreign Styles Largely

Foreign fashions have entered so largely into the formation of American styles in the matter of official costumes for maids, nurse maids, waitresses, etc., that there has been gradually evolved distinctly uniforms for the various employes of the house so that their calling is defined at a glance by their apparel uniform.

In no one department are the fashions more artistically developed than in that of the nursery maids, where both French and English styles have been introduced with mush satisfactory results. It seems especially fitting that the women whose duty it is to care for little children should be garbed in an attractive style, for unconsciously it has its effect on those about them.

Nothing is prettier than the French costume, whose distinguishing mark is the dainty little cap, pointed in front something after a model of a trained nurse's cap, with short strings which may tie either beneath the chin or at the back of the neck.

Accompanying the caps are long white aprons with bibs and straps over the shoulder, much after the style lately in vogue for a waitress, with broad, full ties at the back. It hardly pays for a woman to make these things, now that it is quite possible to buy them so cheap in the shops.

One of the prettiest of these sets with the French cap and apron comes in dotted Swiss, which is extremely dainty and becoming. Or there are more practical ones of linen embroidery insertion, or simple plain ones, which can be purchased from $1.50 to $2.50, cap and apron.

Another simpler style, but also neat and pretty, has a mob cap much like those worn by a trained nurse, made of muslin with a fluted frill about the edge and with two wing-like pieces fitted at either side of the crown and an apron with pretty embroidery pieces that turn back over the shoulder bands. In aprons, there are an innumerable number of styles to suit the varied tastes of mothers and housewives everywhere.

The English nurses' costume is still different, the street cap having ends of blue veiling that tie beneath the hair at the back and fall to the waist line or below it. With this is worn a long coat of dark blue material. High bibbed aprons and similar caps are worn in the house.

Tartans and Checks Make Thin Women Appear Stout

By ELIZABETH LEE.

It is, of course, a far easier matter to dress a very thin woman, even though she be a veritable bean pole, than it is to attractively gown the stout woman; for while it is impossible to take away an overplus of flesh, by judicious dressing one can apparently add it where it is lacking, thus the thing woman's decided advantage over that of her stout sister.

Still, the thin woman has her trials in matters sartorial, too, and this is especially so when she is also very short. Perhaps the most difficult type to dress successfully is the short stout woman, but undoubtedly the very thin, short woman ranks next, for she requires no end of careful dressing if she would be referred to other than as "an insignificant little thing."

Neither is it all plain sailing for the very tall thin girl, especially she of the flat chested, stooping shouldered type, which, alas, is seen very much ofener than tall thin figures of a good carriage and bearing. She too, has her own difficulties in the matter of successful gowning only second to those of the very thin woman. Just as the stout woman has been advised to avoid large checks and plaids, as being a means of apparently increasing breadth, so the very tall and thin must avoid anything, which, by giving long lines, will apparently decrease flesh and thus suggest greater height.

Tartans and large checks are just the thing for her, while as to frills, flounces and furbelows she cannot have too many, provided they are arranged horizontally, of course. Full skirts trimmed about the hips and knees will be becoming. Much braiding, too, is a great aid toward the desired end. A coat elaborately braided will suggest a plumptness hardly believable until it has been tested by wearing the same shape of coat unbraided. The smart little Etons and boleros offer a splendid field for this decoration, making this popular though perhaps rather trying model much more becoming to the tall and thin, for it must be admitted that the very short coats have a tendency to make a tall slight figure appear to be all legs, and this means height, something to be avoided by these of too many inches.

Sleeves and bodices should be as loose and fluffy as possible, and wide shirred corsage belts and girdles will be becoming. Hats as large as is consistent with good taste should be worn, the trimming arranged as flatly as possible. Plumes nestling low on the brim and drooping over gracefully are especially good, and the large lace veils worn loosely over the hat and just reaching the shoulders will also be very kind.

Coats on the Empire and box modes should be chosen in preference to those of severely tailored style, while half and three quartered lengths will be better than either the very short, or the full length.

Coming to the short, thin girl, it is not only necessary to give her breadth, but I suggest height as well. As a means her frocks must be as long as comfort will allow; an inch off the bottom of the skirt will detract two inches, apparently, from the height of the wearer, and the trimming, if any, must be vertical. Supposing the skirt trimming covers all seams, it will be better to have the strappings start from just below the hips, giving the latter all the prominence possible, yet suggesting length at the same time by the long lines.

The sleeves may be full and fussy, and bodices should be trimmed about the shoulders. The Empire models are par excellence; those for the short, thin girl, adding height, as they do, while the trimming about bust and shoulders give the appearance of breadth.

Sailor suits will become this type, the blouse arranged trimly rather than looseiy, and the sailor collar suggesting a long, slender V in the front.

Princess modes may be adopted; those shirred about the waist line preferrably. Hats should not be too large; the sailor type, now so popular, trimmed high, is a becoming example, the narrow brim giving width, and the trimming preserving the height at the same time.

Then there is the question of material. The slight girl should select those with bright surfaces, as glace silk rather than crepe de chine; satins rather than silk foulards, collenne in preference to viole, and bright, shiny faced mercerized goods to those having a dull surface, while, in regard to colors, black or dark shades should never be worn unless absolutely necessary, because dark colors will only tend to make the wearer appear still thinner.

White cream, ivory white, yellow blue, pink and mauve, in pale shades, may be worn, also red, old rose, pale olive, putty color, fawns, bright golden browns, gray, flamingo, Japanese blue, turquoise and apple green, choosing, of course, the colors or shades most becoming to the individual. The thin girl of medium height should wear rather plain skirts, but the bodices and sleeves may show elaboration and preferably be of the picturesque type. The Princess or corselet skirt will become her; also waists cut out in round effect for wear with chemisettes, a fluffy finish being given to the top of the waist.

Hats, too, may be of the picturesque type, the mushroom, raised high on the left side, will be good, provided it is not too large.

The secret of dressing a thin girl of medium height is to give breadth; yet without taking one bit from the height, the very tall girl should be dressed to give as much an appearance of breadth as possible, while the tiny woman must aim for both height and breadth.

DISLIKES OUR WOMEN.

Kansas City Journal: In a somewhat sensational book on women, Dr. Emil Reich, the famous Hungarian professor, caknowledged that English women have beauty and dignity, but deplores the fact that they are becoming Americanized. He gives the palm to the brilliant Parisienne because of her grace, charm and tact, awarding second place to the Irish girl, "the Loreiei of the British isles, possessing the grace of a demimondaine and the virtue of a nun." Dr. Reich has small praise for the American woman, and the German hausfrau has lowest place in his estimation.

ROYAL DOMESTIC SNOB.

Kansas City Journal: Instances could be cited of Hohenzollern and Hanoverian sovereigns who seemed to take special pleasure in keeping their heirs short of cash and in a dependent condition. The late King William III. of the Netherlands, who could spend lavishly on favorites and be generous enough to more than one good cause, allowed his first wife but little money and showed that he disliked her in various petty ways, to the extent even of having the covering retained on furniture and carpets in palaces where she resided.

Massage Feet and Cure Wrinkles, Says Pedicurist

"If women would have their feet massaged instead of their faces there would be fewer wrinkles," says a well-known chiropodist. "For this treatment would relieve the cause of numerous worried lines that appear in the forehead and around the eyes and mouth, though few persons realize it. They do not know that the feet are the greatest nerve centers in the body, and that when they become irritated and hurt, it is shown plainly in the face. Nor are they aware that continued pains make wrinkles. For this reason I would advise women to make certain that their feet are well cared for before they begin to have their faces treated to remove lines, or the massage will be practically useless, for unless the cause of the wrinkles is first done away with, the superficial patting and pinching of the seamed flesh will be of small consequence in making the skin look fresh and young again.

"I know, too, that many cases of stomach trouble are directly traceable to the irritated nerves in the feet and that, as a rule, all sorts of causes are suggested before this one is considered as even possible. Yet, when women appreciate the sensitiveness of the nerve centers located in the feet, they realize how important it is to have them properly treated and well cared for to secure comfort as well as good health.

"By proper care of the feet I do not mean that one should have them regularly treated by a trained chiropodist unless there is actual need, but I do believe that a surgeon or some one who understands thoroughly anatomy should make an examination to be sure the instep has not dropped or sagged, and then should recommend a kind of shoe that would meet all the necessary requirements in shape and width, and give the proper support to toes, arch and ankle. The rest, the selection of stockings and daily bathing, etc., can be easily attended to by each individual, and the natural laws of hygiene, if followed, should be sufficient to keep them in condition. With hosiery that fits closely, yet does not bind or cramp the toes, and shoes that conform to the shape of the feet, a woman should have neither corns, bunions nor callosities.

"For neatness and comfort I would suggest that two or three pairs of shoes be kept on hand and changed every day so that the same ones are not used twice in succession. In that way, if the feet perspire and the leather get damp, the boots will have time to air and dry out before they are again put on. As to the stockings, they should be fresh at least once a day.

"The greatest care should be taken in washing the feet, and none but the best of soaps used, such as castile or white. Three times a week is often enough to soak them in lukewarm water, though every night before going to bed they should be wiped off with a damp rag to cleanse the pores of any perspiration, and once a week be bathed in warm water and washing or baking soda.

"Washing need not be as particularly done as the drying, for if the toes are not wiped thoroughly, especially between them, soft corns are literally invited to grow. A great many cases of this arise from careless wiping of the toes with coarse towels, and not rubbing between them with a soft cloth to absorb the dampness. The toes cling so closely together, that when they are left wet a dampness arises that makes blisters and frequently results in soft corns that are often very painful and make operations necessary to remove them.

"Especial attention should be paid to the nails, and they should be carefully cut; never so short and close to the quick that they do not properly protect the ends of the toes, and never rounded at the ends, for that encourages them to grow inward, a tendency that is often painful and results frequently in inflammation that makes the removal of the nail necessary.

"Instead they should be cut square across the toes. The cuticle should not be pushed down, as it is with the fingers, or hang nail and bruised pieces of flesh will result and cause much pain. The skin around the nails can be kept in good condition by scrubbing with a stiff bristled brush two or three times a week.

"If these simple rules are carefully followed, and the feet are in good physical condition, a person should have perfect comfort, even if required to stand all day."

Furnishing Home on $200.00

Selection of Furniture and Decorations for a Four-Room Flat.

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Dear Mrs. Telford:

Being a constant reader of The Evening Herald, therefore knowing of the valuable information so kindly given to others, I take the liberty of asking for some myself, which I am sure will be gratefully received by other young women readers of the woman's page.

The information I desire is this: How to furnish a four-room flat on about $200; that is, kitchen, sleeping room, dining room and parlor (without the linens). Also what a young woman or her parents are supposed to contribute to the home; if the former is to furnish the linens and kitchen, or linens alone, or just whatever she is to furnish. Having $75 for linens, a little information on what to get and how to get the best for that amount, would be greatly appreciated. Hoping that you will have an article on the subject soon, and thanking you for any information you may give me, I remain

A WORKING GIRL.

For $200 cash and the linen provided for, I am sure you will be able to furnish an exceedingly cozy and comfortable apartment of four rooms. While there are no hard and fast rules about the division of the furnishing, the bride usually prefers to provide the linen, the table silver and her own personal belongings, books, etc., from the old home. The substantial furnishings come ordinarily from the groom, while the wedding gifts fill in the chinks. Seventy-five dollars is a generous allowance for your linens and will probably lap over to help out with curtains and some of the unconsidered things that may come up.

In furnishing the little home nest, essentials must be considered first, then luxuries may come piece by piece, as they can be afforded. Never go in debt and beware the 'installment plan.' Get what you do get good as far as possible along simple lines. Don't get "gingerbready" things that collect dust and get out of order. Beginning with the kitchen, where the gas range is probably already provided, you will need, making a rough estimate, about $20 for the furnishing, exclusive of oil cloth or linoleum for the floor. A painted floor is easily kept clean, looks tidy and with a couple of bag mats in front of sink and table is at all hard on the feet. For the windows there may be shades or simply sash curtains of cheese cloth at 3 cents a yard. These launder nicely and are soft and pretty enough to use also in bedroom and dining room. In a household art exhibit held recently in the hall of the New York board of education a model dining room that attracted much favorable attention had cheese cloth curtains decorated with a border of red dragons cut out of madras and appliqued upon them. This is a suggestion for you if you are handy with your needle.

But to return to the kitchen. The essentials for a small family run something like this:

| | |
|---|---|
| Refrigerator, hardwood, galvanized lining, holding 30 pounds ice | $6.00 |
| Kitchen table and chair, $1 each | 2.00 |
| Clothes wringer | 2.50 |
| Boiler, three irons, washboard, line and pins | 2.25 |
| Ironing board and clothes horse | 1.00 |
| Two sheet iron frying pans, double boiler, broiler, two saucepans | 1.50 |
| Tea kettle, coffee pot, tea and sugar canisters, dipper, tray | 1.65 |
| Dish pan, bread pan, dripping pan, drainer and bread box | 1.10 |
| Bread knife, kitchen knives, spoons, strainer, ladle, etc | .50 |
| Bread, cake and pie tins, cups, bowls, plates, chopping knife and bowl | 1.00 |
| Broom, dust pan, brushes, etc | .75 |

Sixty dollars will furnish the dining room sensibly and artistically if as in the majority of flats the sideboard is built in. If you have to furnish it, that will cost you $15 or $18 more. Blue and green makes an attractive color scheme for this room if it has a southern exposure. If it is dark, or faces the north, red or buff will make it seem brighter. Stain the floor and use for the center one of the large and beautiful grass rugs, which can be obtained for about $7. Other essentials may be reckoned as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Tables and chairs of weathered oak, mission style | $25 00 |
| Curtain, cheesecloth, with poles | 1 00 |
| Dinner set of 100 pieces, Austrian china or English porcelain | 15 00 |
| Plate rack, a few copper pieces and pictures for decorations | 5 00 |
| Salts, peppers, oil and vinegar cruets, tumblers, water bottle, etc | 10 00 |

This will leave a little surplus of several dollars for the table cutlery and plated ware in case your wedding presents do not furnish a sufficiency.

The bedroom comes next, and $50 may be apportioned to its furnishing. Matting makes a good floor covering here, and is easily kept clean. For a room eight by twelve, thirteen yards will be required, and a very good quality can be obtained for 25 cents a yard. The essentials are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Matting, with a rug in front of bed | $4 00 |
| Curtains, with poles | 1 00 |
| Brass trimmed iron bedstead (brass rail at head) | 5 75 |
| Steel woven wire springs, short hair mattress | 15 25 |
| Golden oak chiffonier, brass trimmings; rocker, plain chair, washstand and oblong mirror | 16 50 |
| On pair feather pillows (duck and geese | 2 50 |
| One pair soft, warm blankets (wool filling, cotton warp) | 3 75 |
| Silkoline comfortable and Marseilles spread | 2 00 |

You do not speak of bathroom or hall, but both will doubtless have to be taken into consideration. For the bath you will require a small rug, bath mat, mirror, towel rack and laundry bag; estimated cost with sash curtains, $3. The hall will probably require a combination mirror and hat rack, a small rug, a curtain of fishnet shirred on rod top and botton and possibly a lamp; total, $7. This leaves for the living room or parlor $60.

With a stained floor one of the art squares or a couple of inexpensive Turkish rugs may be purchased for $15.

Other things may be apportioned as follows:

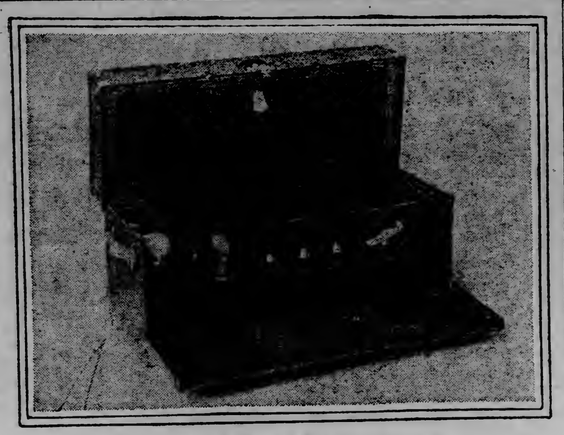

| | |
|---|---|
| Bookcase of fumed oak, open front, four shelves | $6 00 |
| Library table, with drawer and turned legs | 8 00 |
| A comfortable homemade divan with Bagdad cover | 8 00 |
| A Morris chair and a rocker of fumed oak | 12 00 |
| A desk, chair and a low tabourette | 4 00 |
| Curtains of cream madras on poles | 4 00 |

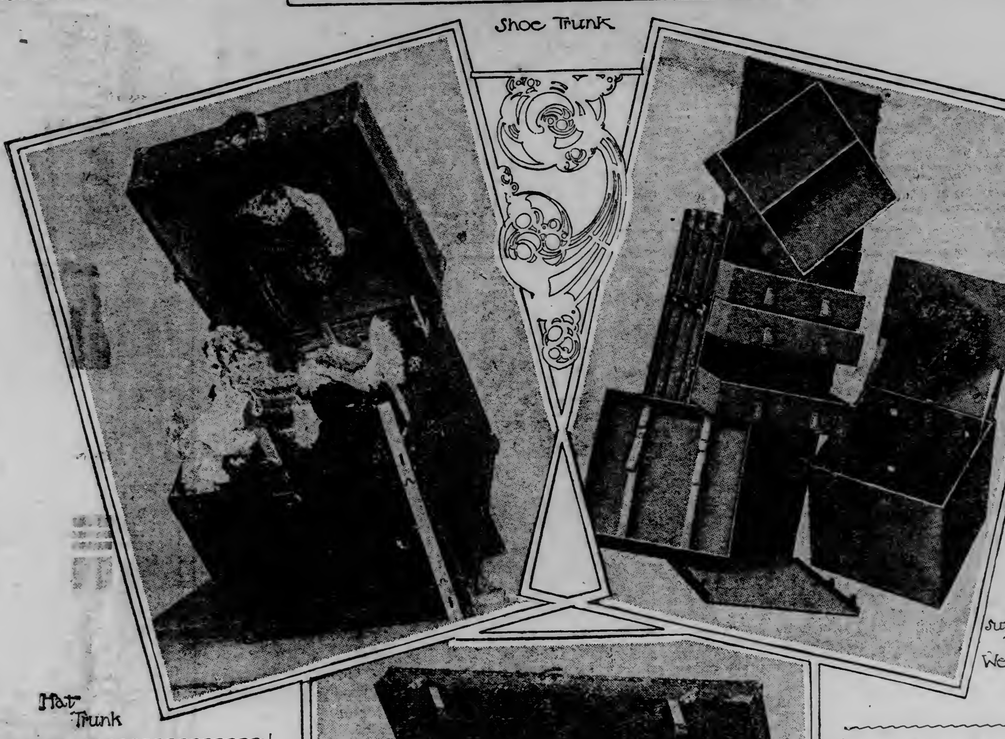

This leaves a small margin for pictures. Sofa pillows, more pictures, ornaments, books, vases, etc., will probably come from friends or may be gradually acquired. Now for the linens:

| | |
|---|---|
| For every day—Two tablecloths of Scotch damask, half bleached, two yards square, 80 cents by the yard | $3 20 |
| Napkins to match, one dozen | 1 75 |
| Company pattern cloth, 2x3 yards | 3 75 |
| Dinner napkins to match | 3 60 |
| Company pattern cloth, 2x2¼ yards | 3 00 |
| Napkins to match | 2 65 |
| Three pairs heavy round thread sheets, 90 cents each | 5 00 |
| Three pairs pillow cases to match, at 15 cents each | 95 |
| Onep air linen sheets, with pillow cases to match | 7 00 |
| Extra Marseilles spread | 2 00 |
| One-half dozen bath towels, good size, at 20 cents each | 1 20 |
| One dozen huckaback towels, hemmed | 1 50 |
| One dozen fine huckaback towels, hemmed, with damask border | 4 00 |
| One-half dozen wash cloths at 10 cents each | 60 |
| One-half dozen glass towels for kitchen | 1 00 |
| One-half dozen twilled kitchen towels | 60 |
| One-half dozen brown twilled roller towels, at 55 cents each | 2 10 |
| Two dishcloths, at 10 cents each | 20 |
| Two paint cloths and two floor cloths, at 5 cents each | 20 |
| Doilies, tray cloths, table mats, holders, etc | 2 00 |

This leaves you still with over $25 unexpended which may be applied elsewhere or left as a nestegg for your bank account. And when the new little home is furnished and you two sit down alone for the first time to your table, may I not give to you a little quotation to make a note of.

It is one of Samantha Allen's sapient remarks. "You may build a fine house and put people of the same name to live int it, but if love don't board with them, they'd be as well off with a stump and an umbrella."

White Serge Best Fabric for the Yachting Costume

White serge most practical.

A New York letter says: Now that the yachting season is in full swing, women fond of the sport are getting their toggery ready to don when fortune favors them with the opportunity of enjoying a sail on the waters about New York, and exceedingly natty are some of the garments being made up by smart tailors, as well as those seen in the shops.

For the girl with a small income there was never a time when such chic and serviceable gowns for yachting could be purchased ready made, and if possible to buy quite as smart models in the shops as are turned out by the fashionable tailors.

White serge is, par excellence, the fabric of all others for the yachting costume, although mohair, cloth or flannel are still used to a greater or less extent. But the beauty of the serge lies in the fact that if properly sponged—a process through which all goods should always pass—it wears like adamant, can be cleansed beautifully, and never looks stringy or mussed, as is the case with some of the lighter and softer materials. A hard, twisted piece should be selected, and if made up with the popular circular skirt, with a double jacket after the Norfolk model or with a short and natty box coat, a woman has a suit that can be worn upon no end of occasions during the summer, and one that will prove its excuse for being every time its donned.

The particular model of the circular skirt best suited to a yachting or outing costume is the one with a cluster of pleats in front and the same down the back, with one, two or three inch tuck about the bottom of the skirt, just above the deep hem.

Black velvet is often combined with the white fabric, being utilized for collars, cuffs and buttons, and is most effective, lending just a bit of character to the costume that it might otherwise lack. Blue is fascinating with white serge, mohair or cloth, and either taffeta cloth or velvet may be used, although the preference is given to the cloth. If a more ornate garment is liked, then the collar and cuffs of the blue may be edged with narrow white soutache braid or with a more elaborate effect of the braid applied.

While Eton models are used in the white costumes, they are seldom worn for yachting, for the double breasted coat that comes below the waist is at once the more practical and serviceable. A straw sailor, severely plain, is most generally worn with such a gown, though any of the smart white duck tailored hats that are being shown in such a variety of models this summer would be suitable, as would also an extremely simple straw, with perhaps a scarf of silk and a quill stuck through it.

Suits after the Peter Thomson order are liked by some young women, but a girl must be small and of a piquant type to look well in them. If not too girlish they are mighty attractive and fetching, but in the event of wearing one, an extra coat will be necessary, yet these can be purchased to correspond, with the naval insignia, the "crow," as Uncle Sam's sailors call it, on one arm and the service stripes on the other. Any garment that has an official flavor is generally popular with young girls, and some of the younger set have their sailor blouses cut by the same men who draft the patterns and cut the garments for the sailors in the navy. The only objection to this is that while the blouse has the proper effect from a naval aspect the seams are very low on the shoulders and the sleeves are loose and baggy.

Trunks for Every Purpose Sartorial or Athletic

Where formerly a hat and a dress trunk constituted the entire travelling equipment of a woman, now she must have at least a half dozen in order to accommodate her things. For not only have her sartorial wants increased each year, but there is the added accumulation of her athletic paraphernalia, which is an important item in the summer campaign.

Keeping up with the demand for appropriate receptacles for the summer girl's belongings, several new style trunks have been manufactured which are tremendously convenient, not the least of which is the shoe trunk. Where formerly one's shoes had to be packed in with the gowns, at the risk of injuring the fabrics, as well as spoiling the shape of the shoes, now there is a special trunk for the purpose.

It is oblong, about three feet by fifteen inches, and is made of leather, the same as the big dress trunks. The top opens in the regular way and the front of the trunk lets down so that it is a simple matter to extract any pair of shoes desired from the interior. There is a lower tier divided into compartments, one shoe to be packed in in a compartment. The upper tier is only partly divided, fully one-half of the top being left free for overgaiters or any of the other accompaniments of dress. A particularly nice feature is that the top of the trunk consists of a separate compartment for the purpose of packing stockings so that one's footwear is kept altogether.

The new hat boxes are so arranged that anywhere from one to ten hats can be safely packed without fear of injuring the other. There are cleats in the side which are movable, so that wherever there is a bit of space there a hat may be fastened securely without danger of its interfering with any other.

For golfing there is a long, narrow receptacle just the size of one's golf sticks, so that instead of being encumbered with their weight when traveling they can be packed and checked just the same as any other bit of luggage. The bottom of the trunk is divided lengthwise, one portion for the sticks, the other divided in small sections for other accompaniments of golfing, such as balls, etc.

For week end outings there is a most interesting trunk which stands upright, and consists of drawers which can be pulled out exactly like a bureau drawer, the lower portion being a hat box.

WAS DEEP, NOT HIGH.

Kansas City Journal: A Washington guide directed the attention of a party of sightseers to a small gray-haired man and said, affectionately: "There goes one of the greatest men in the country. That's Chief Justice Fuller." "Why, he has no stature whatever," whispered one of the ladies. "Nor weight," hastily rejoined another. "And I can't understand," observed a man in the group, "how he managed to attain so great a height." The guide answered him significantly and tersely: "Because of his great depth."

Robe Gowns Pretty and Economical

By A. T. ASHMORE.

Not only in expensive satin and handsome spangled net are the robe gowns fashionable, but light summer lawns and embroidered linens are extremely pretty made up in the robe dresses which require such little dressmaking skill to be very attractive.

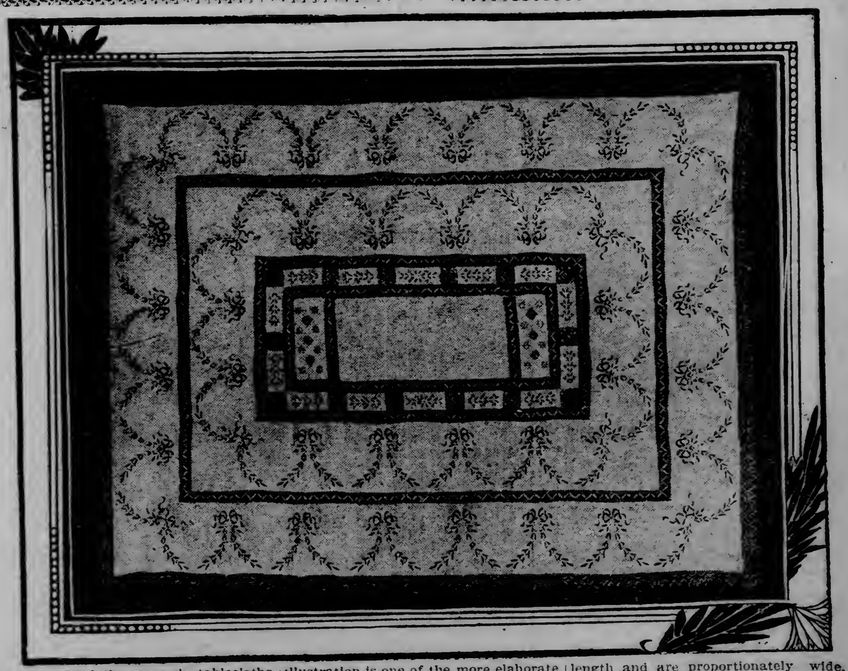

Embroidered and braided linens are exceedingly smart this year, and among the robes are to be found many models that are most effective. This year the majority of shirt waist dresses are of washable materials, and linen particularly is used for this purpose, so that an embroidered linen robe makes an excellent every-day dress. Naturally one does not care to expend a great deal upon a morning dress that is only to have hack wear, so that a simply braided linen robe that can easily be made up answers the requirements nicely. Then for more elaborate wear lace, net or embroidered batiste. The linen robes have applique designs of heavy Irish or of hand-embroidered net. In the majority of robes there is an embroidered piece for the front, two for the back, a collar and cuffs and then the skirt, on which the amount of trimming is in accordance with the price asked for the dress. Whole dresses are thought infinitely smarter than separate waist and skirt, so that even among the cheaper robes are to be found fine linens and batiste, the waist piece simply embroidered, and material provided for the skirt to be made up in any way desired.

As said before, the great advantage in a robe is that it can so easily be put together by the least skilled seamstress or maid. With handsome evening gowns it generally is worth while to have it made up by a capable dressmaker, but even then there is so little extra trimming to be provided and, comparatively speaking, so little work on the dress that it cannot possibly cost so much as the average gown of its style.

Like the robe dresses, an embroidered shirt waist pattern makes as a rule an excellent investment. The work is generally finer than for the same thing all ready made up, and little difficulty should be encountered in the making of a shirt waist. Machine hemstitching should be avoided, as well as machine embroidery, and too much cheap lace insertion; better to get the simplest pattern that show fine work and good material than the most ornate and elaborate design that is, of course, poor quality.

Hundreds of people in Duluth have gotten acquainted within the past week —through Herald wants.

Rich Embroidered Table Linen in Vogue.

Smartest of the season's tablecloths are those of cluny. English embroidery and filch laces, which form a charming allover pattern. The one shown in the illustration is one of the more elaborate designs and is only suited for use at a formal and very smart dinner. These cloths come three and a half yards in length and are proportionately wide. In the simpler patterns there are many following the same idea that are quite as effective and within the reach of the average woman.

The Athletic Girl
HER DAY

A TYPE OF THE OUTDOOR GIRL

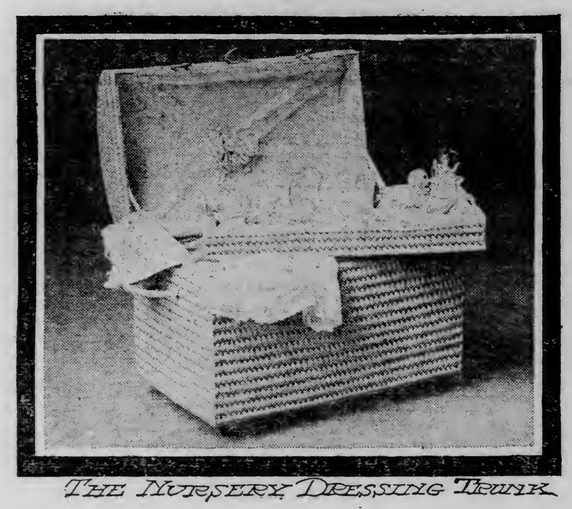

THE STRIDE RIDING HABIT

GEORGE BAKER

THAT SMART COAT SWEATER

THE NURSERY DRESSING TRUNK

A PRACTICAL AND PRETTY BATHING COSTUME

Smart and Becoming Toilettes That Are Strictly Practical—Comfort and Appearance Both Considered—The Cool, Cut-down Neck a Vast Favorite—The Short Sleeve Is Loose and Puffy—Smart Designs in Sweaters—Hats and Haltnets—Gloves and the Matter of Complexion.

The Athletic Girl—this is her day and hour! For her do the tailors and designers put forth their best efforts, and all of the smart specialty shops fairly teem with suggestions invented and devised for her especial comfort.

A smart trigness characterizes the appearance of the present-day athlete of feminine persuasion. Not that she is aggressively athletic. Oh, no! That is not the correct pose. It is merely that she is inclined to wax interestingly enthusiastic over her favorite sport, and that her taste is somewhat catholic where sport is concerned. Golf, tennis, fishing, automobiling—or "bubbling," as the younger section of society are wont to tersely express it—swimming, rowing and canoeing; one and all are likely to engage her attention, according to time, place and opportunity.

A picturesque carelessness in dress and appearance, as our forbears used to term it, is no longer in vogue. Rather is it the well-groomed girl—how this scribe wishes that some other phrase less suggestive of stables and curry-combs would be invented—who occupies the attention of the critical.

For one thing, the hair must be always in absolute order, not a single lock or even a single hair out of place. A vigorous use of the hair brush, a liberal application of brilliantine and a deftly applied haltnet will permit the following of the hatless fad for those who desire to brighten the chevelure with the direct rays of the sun.

The designer who first thought of that low-neck and short-sleeved blouse must have been a sportswoman herself. That it has been taken up enthusiastically goes well-nigh without saying, for there has been nothing so far presented that can compete or compare with it for both comfort and good looks. For all outdoor purposes it simply fills a niche of its own; while if it be desired to fill in the neck and lengthen the sleeve, there are those smart sets of chemisette and undersleeves to meet the occasion.

Cravats and belts are quite important items in the outfit of the athletic girl, and one of the latest ideas has those to match. These gayly colored rumchunda scarfs find many applications after this wise; and since they are goods that seldom or never reach the bargain counters their value is apparent at the first glance. Gayly colored cravats and belts—the latter with little featherbone stiffenings—are fashioned from all sorts of ribbons; and it is not at all uncommon to find two or more narrow ribbons decorating a broad one so as to attain an original and individual design.

For tennis and golf wear those circular skirts that show a fastening on either side of the central seam are attracting quite a lot of attention at the tailor's. A rather heavy pique is in favor once more in this connection, after an absence of several seasons. The one showing a somewhat irregular rib is the most attractive, and in linen piques the shirt and skirt to match is the style most often ordered. What with the excellence of patterns that may be purchased for a few pennies there is no reason why those smart garments cannot be duplicated at home by either the amateur dressmaker or the regular seamstress for vastly less than the fashionable tailor demands for his work.

The summertime riding habit has taken to itself quite a new cut and a novel presentation. The style of riding cross saddle, instead of the oldtime and regulation side saddle, is one that is spreading every day. That section of society which winters at Aiken and summers in easy reach of Meadowbrook and Cedarhurst, they are the most enthusiastic cross-saddle riders; and on their regular and periodical visits to the hunting centers of England and Ireland the cross saddle and the divided skirt are an integral part of the equipment.

Physicians unqualifiedly indorse the cross saddle as both more healthful, less harmful, and far less liable to accident than the old-time side saddle; and all of the youngsters today who are being taught to ride are following this much more sensible style.

Those skirts are so fashioned that when one is on the ground there is very little, if indeed any, perceptible difference between the "Stride" skirt—as they term it—and the usual short walking skirt. A smart little coat, usually of the semi-fitted order, and with a velvet collar and cuff to lessen the severity, completes the costume.

The almost universally becoming tricorn has taken the place of the derby hat in the equestrienne costume. For one thing, the derby hat, with its hinting of mannishness in the attire, is not at all in accord with present ideas. The smart and snug trigness of the plain tailormade is in high esteem, especially where country and outdoor clothes are concerned; but the suggestion of mannishness or of masculine borrowings must be decidedly missing. The saving grace of the touch of femininity must assert itself, subtly, it is true, but none the less apparently for all that.

Year by year the bathing suits that are offered are becoming more and more dressy; and yet here, too, the practical side of their use is kept well in view. For those who cannot afford a goodly quality of silk or satin, mohair is the next best fabric. Some clever touches of color contrast are usually introduced, fancy braids are made much use of; and a gayly colored sash and cravat are added at the last moment to complete its charm.

Description of Illustrations.

A Type of the Outdoor Girl.

The breezy, wholesome outdoor girl dresses the part today to perfection. Her blouse is full and plain, lacking altogether the frills and fussiness wherewith she dignifies her more formal toilettes. Skirts clear the ground comfortably; shoes have a trig heel and a well arched instep to support the natural arch of the foot, and the hair is encased in one of those invisible hair nets that defy detection—in all but their results. The new season's shirtwaists conform strictly to the plain and severe tailor-made styles. The backs are more usually finished with a shirtmaker's yoke, the better to stand the strain which a free use of the arms and shoulders inevitably brings upon the back of the blouse. The fronts are deeply tucked to the shoulder seam, bringing a fulness of material where it is needed, over the chest. In order to diminish the bulk at the waistline the material is laid in deep pleats close to either side of the front fastening, and then cut away beneath, the seam resulting being "bagged" after the French fashion. The shaped belt is one of those clever suggestions that lengthen and, apparently at any rate, make the waistline more rounded and slender. Like so many of the season's successful ceintures this one fastens in the back.

The high stock, with its smart ascot or four-in-hand tie, is returning to marked favor. In its later appearances it is worn unstarched, but made of piques, madras, or some one or another of the cotton shirtings with sufficient body to maintain the shape without undue wrinkling. It is far cooler and more comfortable done up in this unstiffened style.

The 'Stride Riding Habit.

The fashion of cross-saddle riding is one that the American girl can well lay claim to introducing abroad. At the hunts at Pau, Dinard and other resorts in the South of France, to say nothing of those centering around Melton Mowbray, in England, and the Curragh Camp, in Ireland, the American girl has always been in the very first flight, has met with fewer accidents and has had more fun generally than her French and British cousins, who follow the older custom of the side saddle. At first there was considerable prejudice against the cross saddle, but it has steadily gained ground on both sides of the Atlantic, and nowadays all the juveniles are taught to follow this style.

The very cleverly designed habits suited for this recent style, too, have contributed in no little measure to its success. A charming illustration is that pictured, wherein a skirt designed exclusively for cross-saddle riding is shown. The clever part is that it is in no wise a bloomer or divided skirt when the wearer is on the ground, the front breadth, or apron, to speak by the book, fastening over with a row of self-covered buttons, that add much to the smart effect. The coat is one of those fitted back and side designs, the fronts furnished with a single dart either side of the fly fastening, the dart running up to the shoulder seams. A brown velvet collar lends softening touch to the tan griffonette cloth, the plain coat sleeve being a trifle full at the top to accord the better with present styles. The hat is the tricorne, done in straw, a shape that has almost entirely replaced the derby, which was formerly the only correct headgear for equestriennes, but which proved far too trying for the many to remain a popular favorite.

The Bathing Girl 1906 Appearance.

Gray has crept into the bathing field as we may use this term) as well as into the street and dress wear of womankind, and lustrous gray mohair trimmed with white or bright colors will grace many of the fashionable beaches this summer. The gored or pleated skirt is replacing the circular skirt in bathing suits, as the former hold their shape better and give better lines to the uncorseted figure. The suit in the picture is a fine gray mohair with ample but not overmuch fulness in the blouse given by tiny pin tucks that form a yoke. The blouse is attached to the bloomers, the joining held flat by many rows of machine stitching; this serves the further purpose of giving a firm band to which the skirt may be securely attached. A broad scalloped collar with stole ends decorates the blouse, the stole ends apparently continuing of the skirt hem. The sleeves are scant puffs run on elastic, the short the swimmer most prefers. Indeed, this suit is excellent for the swimmer as well as the bather. If the bathing place be private the skirt may be discarded for long swims.

That Smart Coat Sweater.

The English title of jersey is so much prettier—and far less suggestive of a disorderly toilette—that it is much to be wished that we on this side of the Atlantic would substitute it for the present nomenclature of sweater. But no matter by what name it is identified, true it is that the sweater fills a niche in the wardrobe that nothing else quite can. The latest development is the coat sweater, a far more convenient garment than the style which prevailed a few seasons ago, and which had to be pulled on over the head, to the much detriment of the coiffure, even though a hair net was pinned securely on. For pickup work the sweater offers many attractions, since here, as elsewhere, the craze for handwork dominates the fashion. The hand-made sweater has a smoothness and an elasticity, a better fit and snugness without tightness which the machine-made article, be it ever so well manufactured, can never hope to possess, added to which it is easy to tell at the very first glance whether the sweater is the product of nimble fingers and knitting needles, or whether it is merely a machine production, turned out by the hundred. The fancy work and knitting books are rich in designs and patterns for sweaters this year, and the instructions are so clearly given that even a novice with the needles can hardly fail to accomplish the desired result. The stitch must not be too loose nor yet too tight, as either extreme is lacking in that elasticity which should characterize a knitted piece. The coat shape has made quite a furore for itself in smart circles, and certainly it has much to commend it over the blouse shape. For outdoor and athletic use one can make it take the place of a coat, and being delightfully elastic, it will yield to every motion of the body in golf, tennis, rowing, fencing or what not.

Some smart girls are making theirs with a high collar that will turn up to the throat, this to be rolled back in little revers when it is not desired to cover the neck. The fad for the low-throated blouse in linen, madras and other tub materials this year will make the base of the throat a delicate spot with many, and a slight protection at this point will ward off many a summer sore throat.

The three-quarter sleeve is to be preferred to the long one, as the hand-knit article is sometimes wont to stretch lengthwise when on a visit to the laundress. This, too, leaves the wrist free to wield golf club or racket, besides being in better accord with the mode in more formal garments.

The Nursery Dressing Trunk.

All of baby's belongings, his current as well as his reserve stock of clothes, are kept in one of those dainty rattan hampers—or rather trunks, furnished with two or more trays. The trunk is such that it can be emptied in a moment, thoroughly washed and scalded, and its dainty linings renewed at a moment's notice. The trunk is mounted on castors so that it may be moved conveniently to whatever spot the bath is placed at, and the dressing comfortably accomplished. The trays are lined with a wadded china silk, liberally besprinkled with a good sachet powder; and sheer lawn fittings, lace ruffled, are lightly tacked to the linings, so that they may be removed for laundering instantly. The top tray holds the toilet articles, bibs, etc.; and the lower ones the clothes in about the order they are wanted.

The new purses and bags are a joy to the lover of leather things. The chatelaine bag has returned to favor. There are also novelties in small oval-shaped purses with long chains. Some of these are of alligator, polished until they shine like tortoise shell. Purses in the levant leathers are shown in all colors.

Hints for the Housewife

Eggs.—Eggs are at about their cheapest price in the local markets just now, so why not preserve them for fall and winter use? The water glass (sodium silicate) way is the best. The process is so easy that the smallest child in the family may be called upon to assist and enjoy the novel work. The commercial solution may be obtained from any drug store, since it is an article in regular demand by physicians for casts and splinting purposes for broken limbs. Dilute this with 10 times its bulk of water. That is, if you purchase a quart, add 10 quarts of water, making 11 quarts of liquid in all. Plan to preserve the fresh eggs only; for no process of preserving that ever was thought of will improve a stale egg. Pack them in wooden or earthen vessels, after the eggs have been thoroughly coated with the solution, and each day add the freshly preserved ones with a wooden spoon, so as to avoid danger of breakage. Keep the eggs covered with the solution and keep the containing vessel covered and in a dark and cool place.

Olive Oil.—The virtues of olive oil are only beginning to be understood over here. In Italy and Southern France there are more uses for the oil than you can count upon the fingers of both hands. Olive oil is one of the things where the best is emphatically the cheapest, not only in the long run, but all the way through. The very best oil has a distinctly greenish cast and but a very faint odor, and runs thin and easily from the spout of the can or the neck of the bottle. When perfectly pure it is a somewhat difficult thing to "drop" the oil, except with a regular medicine dropper.

For children to whom the odor of cod liver oil is offensive quite as good results can be had with olive oil. For certain forms of dyspepsia the pure virgin olive oil is considered a specific by Italian physicians, the dose being a teaspoonful before meals and a tablespoonful afterwards. Where the body is unduly thin and the body weight below the normal a course of olive oil, taken before, during and after each meal in small split doses has been found to work wonders. While for the girl who is ambitious to have a perfectly rounded neck and throat, fill up those "salt cellars" in the shoulders, round out and plump the arms and hands, nightly inunctions of olive oil, taken after a quick, warm sponging, will bring about all the plumpness that she so much desires.

In the kitchen, too, olive oil will prove far better than lard for frying purposes. In the summertime, when the kitchen fire is dispensed with, chops, steak, rechauffes and such fried in olive oil will not prove greasy, and will have a far more delicate flavor than if cooked in lard or cottolene. The oil can be used time and again, a slice of raw potato thrown into the hot oil absorbing every flavor; or a thick crust of stale bread will do fully as well, so that the oil is ready for the next time without bringing to mind the odors of many dinners cooked in the heretofore.

Summer curtains and draperies may be made fully fireproof by dipping in a strong solution of alum. Put the alum in the pail or washtub, according to the size and number of pieces to be fireproofed; pour on boiling water just sufficient to dissolve the alum and let it get cold. If there is any sediment of alum at the bottom, add some more hot water—just what you think will be sufficient to dissolve the remaining crystals. Wash the draperies in the usual way, blue them where necessary, and then rinse them well through the alum water for the final process. If they are to be dampened and ironed, use the alum water to sprinkle. Curtains and bangings prepared in this way will not take fire readily. Rather will the cotton fiber smoke in a gas or candle flame and singe slowly, the smell of burning fabric in the meantime declaring itself strongly and giving notice of the danger.

The Approved Shirtwaist for Athletics.

The spread of athletics among young people in general has brought about a most delightful change in fashions. Nowadays comfort, utility and beauty of appearance are factors that the designer thinks of first of all, and unless those are kept in plain sight the design is likely to come to naught. Assuredly this is the day of the athletic girl. For her the shirtmakers and tailors put forth their best efforts, and the bootmakers and corsetieres are not far behind in the procession. The smart blouse pictured is one that will lend itself gracefully for all sorts of wear during the summer. The low open throat will do much to restore necks that have become slightly discolored from a too close and tight collar heretofore. The broad shoulder line, with its easy, ample pleats, allows for a full and free swing of the arm at all times, while the short and loose sleeve does away altogether with the unsightly rolled up arm covering to which former belles of the courts and golf grounds have been compelled to resort to.

A Windsor tie or a length of bread ribbon serves to draw the loose eton collar as closely around the throat as may be desired, and belt of the same material as the shirtwaist or the tie is the suitable finish.

Anent the lingerie frock it is to be noted at those places where fashionables gather that the lingerie frocks are worn by the matrons rather than by the young set—the reversal of what would seem natural. Possibly this is because the real French lingerie robe is too expensive a creation for any but the woman of unlimited purse, or maybe it is because, being generically a "baby dress," youth scorns it when age adopts it.

The Week in Stageland.

THE METROPOLITAN

"Why Women Sin" Will be the Attraction Sunday Afternoon and Evening.

"Why Women Sin," a modern and highly successful melodrama by Will C. Murphey, will be given at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon and evening by a large company of capable players which has been greeted with large houses during the long tour this season.

The piece is said to be as lively as a historical novel and all of the scenes and situations are carefully worked up. The story holds the interest from the first to the last act. There are several counter plots and minor love affairs which contribute to the enjoyment of "Why Women Sin."

It is said that no expense has been spared to make this production a handsome one in every way. Nellie Howland has the principal feminine role, which she is said to be playing very acceptably. Others in the company are Edward J. Pell, Bernice Howard, J. T. Kelley, Jack F. White, Babe Shirley, Eva Scott, George Davis, W. C. Kerr, Will Hamilton, W. L. Boyce, O. F. Parker, and Lucille Phelps Kelley.

Only the two performances will be given and poular prices will prevail.

"My Wife's Family," headed by Appleton and Perry, will be the attraction at the Metropolitan Sunday afternoon and evening, June 21. The play is described as a merry musical mix-up and the company is said to be a large one.

* * *

The National Stock company will hold the boards at the Metropolitan from June 25 to July 1. Theodore Pull and his company of hypnotists, July 2 to 8, and the Ralph Riggs Musical Comedy company, July 9, 10 and 11.

AT THE BIJOU

The Usual High-class Vaudeville Program Will be Presented During the Coming Week.

Edward Gray and company will be seen at the Bijou next week, and will present the clever playlet, "His Last Match," portraying the story of a prize fighter who is disabled just before the match. The cast includes T. V. Morrison as the fighter, Edward Gray as the sparring partner, and Christian Prince, who plays the part of a lady of high society. Some very clever acting and dramatic situations are seen throughout, as well as an abundance of good, clean comedy.

Miss Prince, who is with the company, has been praised by press and public the past season in the East as a promising and exceedingly clever leading lady, and Edward Gray has been one of the big hits in vaudeville in his "Bowery Boy" impersonations.

A clever novelty will be Maj. O'Laughlin, known as America's foremost drum major and baton and gun juggler. He was a big hit during this week at the Unique Theater in Minneapolis.

A special attraction will be seen in the Medallion trio, who present the clever one-act musical comedy, "That Girl," introducing many novelty musical treats and singing selections.

Edward Kellie, a distinctly original comedian and one superior to the ordinary run of vaudeville entertainers will introduce a few after dinner odds and ends. Mr. Kellie is a comedian who proves that jokes can be funny, without being coarse, and is considered to be one of the best monologue artists appearing in vaudeville.

The Waltons, two Chinese novelty artists, will present a clever skit, Mr. Walton impersonating a Chinaman. He is known as one of the best of all Chinese impersonators. When but a mere boy he was considered one of the best guides in Chinatown, San Francisco, and he there made a study of the Chinese ways and customs.

Morey Long will render the illustrated song entitled, "He Lives in a Little White House."

A special feature will be seen in moving pictures, showing the complete production of "The Miller's Daughter," which is one of the best pictures seen for some time.

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30.

Regular performances will be given Sunday afternoon and night. A special feature tomorrow night will be the Lamb children, Duluth's popular juvenile artists, in a clever comedy skirt, introducing singing and dancing.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

De Angelis to Quit the Shuberts and be Under Frank McKee's Management---Charles Frohman to Present "The Little Cherub."

New York, June 16.—When Jefferson de Angelis makes his appearance as a star next season it will not be under the management of the Shuberts, with whom he has been associated for several seasons. The comedian, with Samuel Nixon of Philadelphia, and the late Sam S. Shubert, was a member of a corporation which has now been dissolved and De Angelis will be starred under the management which is almost certain to be that of Frank McKee, lessee of the Savoy and Daly theaters. No contracts have been signed between De Angelis and Mr. McKee, but negotiations have reached a stage that make a practical certainty that De Angelis will begin his next season as one of a few stars whom Mr. McKee will manage for a term of years. Lee Shubert, who has been directing the De Angelis tour, said the other day that it was quite true that next season Mr. De Angelis would not be under his management.

"There was no trouble between Mr. De Angelis and Mr. Nixon and myself," said Mr. Shubert, "but at a meeting held recently it was decided to dissolve our corporation."

* * *

Charles Frohman's first musical production for next season will be "The Little Cherub," in which he will present Hattie Williams. It will be produced at the Criterion theater early in August, with a notable cast. The piece is one of the season's biggest successes in London and it will provide Miss Williams with an ideal part. "The Little Cherub" was written by the author and composer of "The Girl From Kays." It will be staged by Ben Teal.

A young woman, supporting James O'Neil in "Monte Cristo," grew so stout that finally she asked a physician to prescribe a method of losing flesh. The doctor drew up a careful dietary of dry toast, plain boiled beef, and hot water. At the end of the month she was to report the result.

At the end of the month the young woman had grown so corpulent that she could hardly squeeze through the door of the consulting room. The doctor was aghast.

"Did you eat what I told you?" he asked.

"Religiously," she replied.

The brow of the doctor wrinkled in perplexity. Suddenly he had an inspiration. "Did you eat anything else," inquired he.

"Why, yes, my ornary meals," she answered.

Charles A. Stevenson, who for eight years has been Mrs. Leslie Carter's leading man, has resigned that position.

* * *

Contracts have just been signed whereby Miss Mary Irwin is to appear at the Bijou theater next winter in a new play to be written for her by George V. Hobart. The engagement begins in the early autumn, following a limited stay at the Bijou of "The Music Master."

* * *

Vera Michelena, who was a star in "The Princess Chic," and "The Jewel of Asia," under the management of John P. Slocum, has been engaged by the Shuberts for a prominent part in their new musical production, "The Tourists," in which John Sanderson is the star. This new piece has been given a thorough trial in Philadelphia and Boston, and has been voted a big success. It goes into the Lyric theater, New York, for a summer run, starting next month.

* * *

George Primrose, the musical manager, promoted a little real estate deal in the East last week that recalls some interesting facts. Years ago, when Primrose and West began to accumulate more money than they ever expected to earn when their carer as song and dance men was started, they shrewdly laid aside a small share of the profits from their early minstrel seasons and bought a good-sized farm near Mt. Vernon, N. Y. The other day a real estate syndicate approached Primrose, and, after a short preliminary, they took the property over for $200,000, this tidy sum being divided between the minstrel man and the widow of the late Billy West.

* * *

Joe Weber has added another big card to his music hall company by booking Cissie Loftus as one of his principals for next season, and also Maurice Farkoa, the popular English tenor. Weber, by the way, will turn over his New York house in the fall temporarily to Walter N. Lawrence, who is to bring out a new play there with Hilda Spong as its star. In the meantime the Weber forces will be on tour, getting into New York for the season when the winter business is at its height.

* * *

Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., says that Anna Held is to return to America next season but will not accept an offer of $15,000 for 30 weeks, which was made her recently by one of the big Eastern producing concerns. Mr. Ziegfeld says Miss Held declined the offer because other plans have been mapped out for her future.

* * *

James O'Neill, who will next year be seen in a new play, will open his season in Chicago in his great character of "Monte Cristo," which he is under contract to play to the Coast, where he has not been seen for the past ten years. This will positively be the last time this famous actor will be seen in "Monte Cristo," a play that has outlived every romantic drama of the age.

* * *

The activity of the vaudeville field just at present is the newest bit of managerial gossip. Since the formation of the Keith-Proctor combine an opposing force has developed in the joining of issue by Percy Williams and William Morris, and it is hinted that the irrepressible Oscar Hammerstein is in on the deal. They have taken over the Empire theater in Boston and the Chestnut Street theater in Philadelphia, two cities that Keith has practically enjoyed a monopoly in for years, as far as vaudeville entertainment is concerned. Meanwhile the Keith combination is flirting with Martin Beck and Western interests represented in the Orpheum circuit, with a view of increasing their chain of houses. If the opposition continue to grow apace there will be some interesting rivalry in vaudeville circles the coming season.

* * *

Julian Mitchell has fixed up a new version of "The Wizard of Oz" for next season. The defection of Montgomery and Stone has not startled that successful producer in the least, and he announces that in George A. Stone and Fred Niche he has secured two good men to play the comedy roles of the Tin Woodman and the Scarecrow.

* * *

The changing of time was exemplified last week in the case of Robert Loraien, the star of "Man and Superman," who sailed to England for a summer vacation which will not be hampered in the least by any financial worries. Less than twelve months back Loraine was parading on Broadway, and in the expressive vernacular he was as near "broke" as he cared to be. He had the manuscript of the Shaw play in his keeping and had hawked it up and down the managerial Rialto without being able to induce anyone to take a chance on its production. Finally Charles B. Dillingham came to the rescue and assisted the actor in his pet project. The result is well known, and "Man and Superman" has been one of the unqualified successes of the season. Incidentally it made a mint of money for all concerned. Loraine will stick to that piece next season.

The death of Mrs. Charles Walcot last week removed from the scene of activity one of the grand dames of the American stage. Mrs. Walcot had been before the public more than a generation and had always been a member of the same company with her husband, who is equally well known as a fine old character actor. Her early training was gained in Philadelphia as a member of Edwin Forrest's company. Later she became leading lady to Edwin Booth and played Ophelia to his Hamlet during the memorable run of 100 nights at the Winter Garden in New York city. In more recent years she had been a distinguished member of the famous Lyceum company, and in the many seasons of her connection there had played important parts in the numerous successes that were brought out in that very popular theater. Her last public appearances were with Annie Russell, having been selected as the legitimate successor of Mrs. Gilbert when she retired from Miss Russell's support to star in the play "Granny," which she was giving at the time of her death.

The death of J. B. McElfatrick, the veteran architect, carried from the scene the man who has built more theaters in this country than any other person ever associted directly or indirectly with the stage. Mr. McElfatrick made a specialty of theater construction in his time, and just at present not less than five theaters in course of construction in as many parts of the country, for which he drew the plans and mapped out the building preliminaries.

Joseph Hart has taken over the management of the New York Theater roof garden, and introduced there last week his new musical spectacle, "Seeing New York." Clifton Crawford and A. Baldwin Sloane assisted Mr. Hart in writing the book, lyrics and music for the new production, which seems to be quite a hit. Al Leach, Carrie de Mar and Cheridan Simpson are prominent members of the company.

Among the earliest of the fall productions will be "The Judge and the Jury," which Charles Frohman will present at Wallack's theater, New York. The play is Western in scene and story and was written by Harry D. Cottrell and Oliver Morosco of California.

John Drew will be seen next season in the new A. W. Pinero play, "His House in Order," now running at the St. James theater in London. It is the big success of the English theatrical year and is described as the greatest play this master dramatist has written.

The Shuberts have booked Connie Ediss, the London commedienne, for a tour of this country next season in one of their imported musical comedies. Miss Ediss occupies pretty much the same position on the London stage that Marie Dressler holds in this country. As Marie is going abroad for a year we get her counterpart, if such a thing is possible, and thereby establish a fair exchange.

If Oscar Hammerstein lands the latest rumor regarding his proposed operatic stars for the new organization he is getting together to rival Conreid's song birds in Gotham next winter, he will certainly have a brilliant stellar proposition on his hands. This new rumor has it that the redoubtable Oscar has been casting longing eyes in Jean de Reszke's direction, and that the great Polish tenor has been offered suc ha princely sum, he may give up his vocal teachings in Paris and return to New York to sing and assume the general direction of the new Hammerstein company. M. Jean was the greatest star Maurice Grau ever had at the Metropolitan, and his return would be a ter-strike for the new company. Meanwhile it is said that negotiations for De Reszke are being handled by Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, who is reported to be the financial power behind Hammerstein. Schwab's entry in this field is attributed to a soreness due to his being refused a box in the Metropolitan. Piqued because he could not have one lonesome box, the steel magnate is said to be building an entire opera house.

Annie Russell's first Shakespearean production has been booked for her by Managers Wagenthal and Kemper, and is a revival of "Midsummer Night's Dream," with Miss Russell cast as the coy and winsome Puck. The change from the Annie Russell girls, she has played so long, to the boy part of Shapespeare's familiar comedy, is an interesting one for Miss Russell.

History is repeating itself for Edna May in London. Always true to their idols, the British theater-goer is just as hearty and enthusiastic in his receptions to Miss May as ever before. The two seasons she was away, touring on this side, seem to have increased her popularity over there. In "The Belle of Mayfair," she has scored from the start, and every performance at the Vaudeville is a crowded one.

DULUTH'S WHITE CITY

Opening But Two Weeks Off---Site is an Ideal One ---Shows Will be Best Offered in Other Parks.

With the opening of Duluth's White City but two weeks off, an active interest is being displayed in the plans of the management of this new amusement venture.

The White City starts in with a big advantage over any other amusement park of this nature in the Northwest. The grounds on which the buildings are being erected are naturally most picturesque, and are in themselves sufficient attraction to draw crowds of pleasure seekers, even if a building were never erected there.

The site chosen is one of the prettiest spots along the entire point. The ground is high, and the shores on both the lake and bay sides are attractive. The trees and shrubbery are probably the prettiest that can be found along the entire seven miles of land that lies between the two entrances to the harbor.

There is a beautiful natural bathing beach on the bay side, which compares very favorably with some of the famous beaches on the Atlantic coast. The sand is level, smooth and clean, and the water in the harbor is warm. It is an ideal place for children to paddle about, with absolutely no danger of drowning.

The grounds cannot be surpassed for picnic parties, and the beach along the lake shore is just the spot for a bonfire at night, with plenty of driftwood handy for the purpose.

The heat can never become oppressive, as it is in such parks as Wonderland at Minneapolis, and the White City at Chicago, and during the months of July and August the grounds should be an ideal place to spend a hot summer's day.

With such natural advantages, the park is assured of a liberal patronage, whatever the nature of the White City itself may be. The number of people who have taken the trip down the point already this season, merely for the purpose of climbing over the lumber piles, and walking along the beach, will give some idea of the popularity which the White City will attain when it has been completed.

During the day the White City will be the ideal spot for women and children, and that the management has appreciated this fact, is shown by the preparations that are being made for the comfort and convenience of such a class of patronage. A special building has been erected for a ladies' rest, and the women of the city, and the visitors in Duluth, will find there every convenience required in a day's outing. The beach offers unlimited possibilities as a playground for the little ones, with its clean, white sand, and shallow water, provided with tables and chairs.

The free band concerts offer entertainment at no cost whatever, and if the women care to take the children to the shows on the grounds, they can rely upon the fact that there will be nothing objectionable or vulgar allowed.

The aim of the management, in brief, is to make the White City a huge playground for the people of all classes, and furnish them with amusement of an innocent nature, amid the most healthful and picturesque surroundings, at the lowest possible cost.

In the evening, the White City will be a blaze of light, and a never failing resource of the many aimless pleasure seekers, who have formerly wandered the streets of the city in the hopeless search for some innocent, and inexpensive form of amusement. The evening on the Point may cost as little as 10 or 15 cents, or as much as $1, according to the wishes of the patrons themselves.

Of the shows themselves, not a great deal can be said at the present time, beyond the statement that they will be on an equality with the best that is offered in other parks of this kind. The bookings have not yet all been made, and the program for the opening week will not be completed for several days yet.

One of the principal features of the park, however, will be the Boulevard, which wll be a miniature of the "Pike" or the "Midway." The little rise of land along the lake shore, has been laid out in a wide walk, and on both sides of this will be arranged the numerous attractions such as the automatic vaudeville, the Ferris wheel, the merry-go-round, the miniature railway, the fun factory, the numerous booths for the sale of popcorn, peanuts and other refreshments necessary to an evening on the Point, and the various automatic machines.

Two or three big free acts will be provide each week, and the list will include such attractions as balloon ascensions, high dives, looping the loop, jumping the gap and other feats of a sensational nature.

Along the bay shore are the boat houses.

Not the least attractive of the many buildings will be he dancing pavilion. Th floor is probably the finest dancing floor in the entire city, and is built out over the bay where dancing can be enjoyed on the most sultry evenings without discomfort. The floor space has been enlarged, and no rowdy element will be tolerated for a moment.

Such in brief is the prospectus of the new amusement park. It does not aim to be exclusive, nor does it cater to the disorderly element, but it will be a place where all classes of people can spend an afternon or an evening, be just a little Bohemian, and incidentally have a thoroughly enjoyable time.

DRAMATIST HAS CHANCE

Spring the Time to Produce Plays---Theaters and Actors Both Cheap Now --- Second-hand Scenery for Storage.

New York, June 16.—If you have written a play that no manager will accept and have confidence in your own talents, together with a few hundred dollars, there is no reason why you shouldn't take a little theatrical flier and produce your play on your own account.

Broadway theaters come cheap at this season of the year, actors can be had for low salaries, there is plenty of scenery rotting away in storehouses available to the first man who will pay the charges that have accumulated—and, behold, the unacted playwright can get a hearing in New York. Several have tried it this spring, as they do nearly every spring, and though such productions seldom cause a ripple along Broadway, they satisfy the cravings of unknown authors to see their plays acted.

In nearly every case the productions have proved the wisdom of the regular managers in rejecting these delicate flowers of fancy, but your enthusiastic author will always find excuses for his failures. If nothing else can be thought of as an excuse for failure, he can always exclaim bitterly:

"Ah, it's the syndicate trying to crush out all opposition. How can one man buck against the big managers. My play would have been a great success if—"

However, the great joy of the unacted dramatist is in getting acted, and the fact remains that in the springtime is the happy budding season for new playwrights.

The average manager of a theater is quite ready to close his house by May 1. His regular season is over, his rent for the year is presumably paid, and he is unwilling to risk his own money on new productions after that date. Here is the great opportunity of the unacted dramatist.

"It costs you almost nothing to run your theater," he tells the manager. "Cut down the orchestra by half, let me produce my play with simple scenery that requires only a few stage hands and your expenses will be much less than at any time during the winter.

"It isn't fair of you to charge me with rent, for your annual rent is supposed to be paid by this season of the year, and, besides, if you don't let me have your theater it would be closed anyhow, and you would get nothing from it. On the other hand, if you will do this for me and my play makes a hit, I will give you an option on it for next season.

"It might prove another 'Hazel Kirke' or a 'Shore Acres.' Anyhow, what have you to lose? Nothing. Then take a chance with me and let me produce my new play for several weeks."

This line of argument is pretty effective with most managers who are in direct control of their own theaters, and they are very likely to accept almost any kind of financial proposition made by an unacted dramatist. The syndicate theaters, which are identified with the well known stars, cannot as a rule be secured on such terms, though they, too can be rented outright if the unacted dramatist has enough money to pay the almost prohibitive rental asked. For the managers of these theaters do not want to identify their houses with the spring productions of unknown stars.

How the unacted dramatist goes about his business and what it costs him to see his play acted may be gathered from the experience of one playwright who personally produced one of his own plays this spring. It was not an absolute failure, neither was it a great success, but the unacted dramatist received enough encouragement to make him think the venture worth the sum it cost him. And he has hopes of selling the play to a prosperous manager for next season.

"I wrote my play so it could be acted cheaply, with a small cast and inexpensive scenery," said the dramatist. "There were eleven parts in the play, and three of these parts were played by doubles; that is, by actors who were cast for other parts in different acts. This made my company consist of only eight players, five men and three women.

"I tried to get a leading woman of some prominence to play the principal role. When I first made inquiries, early in March, I was met with haughty stares and inquiries as to my financial standing. Each leadig woman I spoke to wanted $200 a week or more, and demanded to be featured or starred in my play.

"I was much discouraged then; but as the season wore on to a clase and I did not arrive at any decision I began to receive notes from the erstwhile haughty leading ladies asking me to call. One of them put her salary to $100, and finally offered to take $75 a week if I would give her a lot of advertising and get her pictures printed in the newspapers.

"I closed with her at $75 a week and agreed to give her all the publicity possible. My leadig man cost me $100 a week. I secured a good man, whose salary unquestionably has been $150, and as his name was well known I thought this a reasonable price.

"The other salaries were mostly in the $35 and $40 a week class. I had to pay the union rates to my stage carpenter, property man and electrician, but this only brought my total salary list up to $510 a week, and I thought that pretty cheap for what I was getting.

"I did not have to pay salary for a stage director, because I concluded to restage the play myself and conduct rehearsals as I wanted them. This was a very important item, as most stage managers demand a lump sum of $200 or $300 to produce a new play.

"The bargain I made with the manager of a Broadway theater was concluded only after many hours of argument. When I first tried to talk business with him he showed me a list of his winter expenses, amounting to $2,300 a week. Of this $1,000 was for rent. Salaries of employes and orchestra amounted to $900. The rest went for the electric lights, heat and advertising.

"First he agreed to eliminate the question of rent altogether, as his regular season would be over. That saved the item of $1,000 a week. Then by cutting down the orchestra and laying off a lot of employes the salaries were reduced to $65 a week.

"Finally we got the legitimate expenses of the house reduced to a trifle less than $1,000 a week, and I agreed to guarantee him $1,099 a week rental and to give him 50 per cent of all receipts over $2,000 on the week.

"This seemed to me to offer a reasonable chance for profit, since I could make money on $2,000 a week, whereas he could not. I since discovered, however, that he made a good profit by laying off a few more employes and thus reducing his salary list.

"My play called for only two sets of scenery, one a library interior and the other a garden setting. The library interior was used for the first and third acts.

"I advertised for second-hand scenery and received dozens of replies. I was invited by several managers to call at their warehouses, pick out what I wanted and cart it away if I would pay the storage charges that had accumulated.

"This stuff, however, was mostly worthless, but I finally selected a reasonably good library set for $150, and a garden set with foliage for $200. To have this freshened up in places where the paint had worn-off cost me an extra $50.

"In other words, my complete scenic production cost me only $400. I could have done it much less than this, however, if I had not been particular.

"By this time I began to feel some of the business responsibilities accumulating, for all kinds of people bothered me by trying to sell me something, while actors in search of engagements followed me everywhere. So I determined to engage a manager, one who could look after routine business matters.

"The manager of the theater suggested that I engage one who could also look after the press work, that is, write advance notices, send out paragraphs and incite public interest in my play. I found such a man, in fact, Broadway seemed full of them the moment I let it be known that I was looking for a manager, and soon items began to appear in the papers about the new play, about Miss Hermione Hazelton, the leading lady, etc., and her wonderful adventures in Central park while driving, etc. I paid my manager $75 a week, which brought my salary list up to $858.

"The furniture and properties for the new play were borrowed by the property man, passes being given in exchange for the courtesy. As the play was a modern comedy, the players had to furnish their own costumes, so I had no extra expense of that nature whatever. In fact, I had carefully contrived my play so that it could be easily and cheaply produced.

"My total expenses before the curtain went up were: Scenery, $400; extra advertising, $163; one week's salary of my manager in advance, $75; printing, for three-sheet billboards only, $12; type writing, $22; electric light bills at rehearsal, $11, and pay of stage hands at dress rehearsal, $38. Total, $721.

"In addition to this actual outlay of cash, I had to furnish a bond to guarantee the theater its $1,000 a week, for three weeks, but I was able to do that without putting up the actual cash.

"The receipts of the first night were $207. The critics had lots of fun with the play, many of them roasting it, but a few of them praising the actors. The second night we had $270 in the house, and I was heartbroken.

"But the third night was cool and we had $341, with a midweek matinee of $190, so that on half the week we had $1,108, with the certainty that the Saturday night's receipts would be bigger than any other night. This indicated a profit for all concerned and we were jubilant.

"The week's receipts were actually $2,364.75, which gave me as my share, $1,182.37. There were some extra bills that week for incidentals, calcium lights, advertising, etc., so that my expenses footed up to over $725, but even at that I had cleared a profit of $477 on the first week.

"I thought I was surely on the road to becoming a millionaire, and I instantly figured up that a 5 per cent royalty on the week's receipts would amount to $118.22, so I determined, as manager, to pay myself the royalty and keep my managerial account separate from my accounts as author. This reduced my profit as manager to only $359.25; but I was happy.

"The second week we encountered a spell of warm weatner, and the week's receipts dropped to $1,763. This gave me only $881.50 as my share, but as my expenses were less than the first week I cleared a profit of $218.

"To offset this, however, I had to pay the theater a deficit of $118.50 due on account of my guarantee, so that I had only an apparent profit of $99.50. If I had paid myself my royalty as author I would have wiped out this profit, almost, so I determined to pool my fortunes as manager and as author, and restored to my

CLASS PLAY OF THE VIRGINIA HIGH SCHOOL

The above cut represents the Athenian soldiers in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which was recently played by seventy-five students of the Virginia high school. The costumes were designed and made in the school, and are correct according to the best historical knowledge. It is believed that this comedy of Shakespeare, as played in Virginia, touches the high-water mark of high school dramatics.

The above cut represents the principal characters in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," put on under the direction of Prof. L. Bliss, superintendent of the Virginia city schools. The play was a success in every particular.

managerial account the royalty I had received the previous week.

"My venture then showed a profit on the two weeks of $676.87, whereas my original investment before the rise of the curtain had amounted to $721, which I would have to equal in order to break even.

"But, alas! The third weeks' receipts were only $1,229, and I received as my share only $619.50, and of this I had to pay out on my guarantee to the theater the deficit of $380.50, cutting my net receipts down to $239. With this I had to pay running expenses and salaries for that week, amounting to $643.

"This showed an operating loss of $300 on the week, and deducting that from my profit for the preceding two weeks, it appeared that in three weeks time my net profit had been $172.87. In other words, it had cost me $721 to raise the curtain on my play. I had received back $172.87, and my loss on the venture was $548.13, in return for which I owned two sets of scenery and a lot of press notices saying the play was bad, but the actors were pretty good.

"Fortunately, the money loss did not seriously affect me, and my friends told me I ought to consider that I escaped cheaply, in view of the tales of angels losing hundreds of thousands of dollars in unfortunate theatrical speculations. I think my venture was one of the luckiest in that respect ever made, for few managers can show such a small loss on a new play presented on Broadway for the first time.

"I can sell the scenery for nearly as much as it cost me, even if I don't sell the play, though I have hopes that I can dispose of the scenery and play before next season. Meanwhile the scenery only costs me $8 a month in the storage warehouse.

"But even if I never realize a cent from the production, I will consider that I have proved that I can write an acting play, and as I took great care that all my friends were presented with free passes, my reputation as a playwright has spread immeasurably.

"Also, having once had a play produced at a real theater, I can no longer be referred to as an unacted dramatist, and, greatest joy of all, I am now eligible for membership in the Dramatists' Club of America."

MODERN MILLIONAIRE CORPORATION LAWYERS

James B. Dill, "Father of the Trusts," Most Representative of His Class---Cromwell, Cravath and Guthrie More Prominent Lately.

By DEXTER MARSHALL.

Long more prominently in the eye of the world than any other man of his class, James B. Dill, known as the "Father of the Trusts," and now a sitting judge of the New Jersey court of errors and appeals, has been heard much less of in the year since he went upon the bench than many of his fellows.

In that time William Nelson Cromwell, Paul Drennan Cravath, William Dannon Guthrie, Samuel Untermyer, Charles S. Hughes, and one or two other lawyers engaged upon matters of supreme public interest have much oftener been headliners in the daily news performance than he. Yet Judge Dill is undoubtedly a more representative type of the modern millionaire corporation lawyer than any other man.

Judge Dill is 52, short, round, jolly, more blond than brunette, inclined to be bald, though there is still some thatch left upon the top of his head, and more approachable than most big men in his profession. He is the son of a Congregational minister, and his early climbing was a tough job. He became the "Father of the Trusts" because there wasn't anything else for him to do. This is how it was.

"The Father of the Trusts."

Having managed to struggle through Yale and the New York University law school, and having jogged along for a time as teacher and newspaper reporter, he finally established himself in a little law office away up under the roof of the Equitable Life Insurance company's building on Broadway.

He tried real estate, criminal, patent, admiralty and collection practice in turn and mixed. But all these branches of the law were overcrowded.

This was in 1879—he was admitted in 1878—when firms and not corporations carried on the bulk of the world's business. In looking for some way to get a big practice, without wasting years at the job, he wrote a pamphlet on corporations. It was a good pamphlet, full of sound sense and a lucid exposition of corporation law, even if its writer was only about 25. It also was so persuasive a document that business men who read it were convinced by the hundred that the corporate way of doing business was much preferable to the partnership. Had the little book's circulation been limited to sales among the lawyers, however, it might have failed of its real purpose, but its author saw to it that it fell into the hands of an astonishingly large number of business men.

The result was a sort of epidemic of incorporations, hundreds of firms changing over. And while, of course, Dill did not get the job of drawing up the corporation papers for all the new corporations, he did get his full share of that business.

There is no information at hand showing how many charters he has drawn up and put through in the twenty-seven years he has been practicing, but a list of the more noteworthy of the Dill corporations, published when he went on the bench, showed that he had organized thirty-three big ones with a total capitalization of $793,050,000. No other organization lawyer has a record to compare with this. Dill is practically the author of the liberal New Jersey corporation laws. He tried to get New York to adopt such laws, urging that they would encourage the location of an enormous number of corporations in the state and that the income from their taxation would materially lessen general state taxation. In New Jersey the corporations' taxes pay nearly or quite all the cost of running the state government.

Mr. Dill himself organized two or three corporation trust company's concerns, whose offices serve as official headquarters for companies doing business and with business headquarters in all parts of the country.

The rows of hundreds of little signs which decorate the entrance of these corporation trust companies in Jersey City, Orange and Camden, N. J., are very interesting.

Spectacular Things Dill Has Done.

Dill has always been somewhat spectacular. While on his first job as a reporter for a Jersey City newspaper he came near being killed, when a train that was carrying him to the Pennsylvania coal regions to report the doings of the Molly Maguires was blown up by their agents. Instead of being feazed by the incident, he sat down and wrote an account of it, and though badly bruised himself, paying no attention whatever to the threats of violence made by some of those responsible for the wreck.

For years he has had the confidence of Andrew Carnegie, and once was paid $5,000 by him for a verbal opinion, given in a five-minute visit to the steel man in Pittsburg. The fee wouldn't have been so large, probably, had Dill not had to travel all the way from New York in a special train, which left after 9 p. m., and be on the return journey all next day in order to fill an engagement in the evening.

Dill's greatest hobby, long-distance automobiling through little known England regions, has been widely exploited. In New Jersey—he has lived for twenty years in East Orange—he is known as a scorcher. He was once arrested for fast driving in Montclair and fined. After the trial he asked the Chief of Police to take a spin with him and drove down the main street of the town at a forty-mile clip with the chief in the car. The chief promptly arrested Dill again, and he was again fined. He threatened to appeal, but didn't. Neither, since then, has he ever driven beyond the legal speed limit in Montclair.

His acceptance of the Jersey judgeship was rather spectacular, too. His practice is supposed to be worth about $300,000 a year, while his salary as judge is only $3,000. It was figured out that in taking the job he had sacrificed 99 per cent. of his income, and this was thought to be a great sacrifice, despite the fact that he is rated as a two and a half or three millionaire at least.

But it hasn't turned out that way. The court has to sit only a small part of the week, and Dill retains his law office in the heart of New York's financial district.

Dill's most noteworthy achievement to date was settling the row between Carnegie and Frick six years ago. It was followed by the formation of the United States Steel corporation. The story of that little piece of work has been told and retold in print; it resulted in a fee of a million at least for Dill, the largest ever received by a lawyer in this or any other country down to that time, though it is said to have been excelled since then.

Cromwell, the Panama Canal Man.

William Nelson Cromwell has been the most talked of lawyer in the United States for the last two or three years. His sale of the Panama Canal property to the United States has been more responsible than anything else for his great vogue. Undoubtedly he has received a great deal of money from his connection with the canal, probably all of $2,000,000, though it has been denied that he got that vast sum as a single fee for effecting the sale. However, his fee was probably the greatest ever received by a lewyer, though neither he nor the canal people have ever made explicit statements regarding it. He has been called the richest and most successful practicing lawyer in the world.

He was in the same Columbia Law school class as William B. Hornblower, and, like him, has been much mixed up in the life insurance troubles, being selected about a year ago to act as peacemaker between the Hyde and Alexander factions in the Equitable, a job which even he was not able to compass.

Cromwell's fame as the man of the biggest fees is no new thing. Fifteen years ago, in 1891, when he was three years under 40, he was awarded a fee of $260,000 by the court as receiver of the great firm of Decker, Howell & Co. This was then the biggest legal fee on record, toppling John E. Parson's fee of $250,000 for organizing the Sugar Trust, and it made Cromwell famous in a day. As he did the work in six weeks, his pay was more than $7,000 a day.

After that he won a long series of brilliant successes. He settled the affairs of Price, McCormick & Co.; he was in on the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and he was counsel for the reorganization committee of the American Ship Building company. He made several millions in a dozen years before taking up with the Panama Canal company. His specialty has been in the bringing of success to enterprises on the verge of failure—there hasn't been a big business tangle in twenty years that he hasn't been in—and the Panama Canal deal is the monumental climax of his career to date.

Cromwell became counsel of the French Panama Canal company ten years ago, and it took him eight years to work out its salvation by selling the property to Uncle Sam.

It is possible that he never could have done it but for the eruption of Mount Pelee in Martinique, wiping out 40,000 lives, and the eruption of a lot of volcanoes in Nicaragua. Before these eruptions everybody was for the Nicaraguan route. Members of congress laughed when Cromwell talked Panama to them, and the newspapers simply wouldn't print anything in its favor. After the eruptions Cromwell placed maps with big red splotches on them showing the Nicaraguan volcanoes before congress. Those maps settled it. Congress voted to buy the Panama property.

Cromwell is now the fiscal commissioner of Panama, though the secession of Panama from Colombia occurred after the sale of the canal and he was not involved.

He has also had a lot to do with other Central and South American governments. Reyes of Colombia wanted his help when Panama seceded, but he couldn't be persuaded.

The charges made by Mrs. Eleanor Rawls Reader that he spoiled her chances for getting a treaty between San Domingo and the United States have had their share in keeping Cromwell's name at the top of the news columns, but have apparently occupied little of her personal attention, the Panama complications being quite enough for even a Cromwell to worry about.

From the beginning of the negotiations Panama has cost him a lot of personal discomfort, and the way Morgan of Alabama has roasted him before the senate committee has certainly not been pleasant, but Cromwell doesn't need any sympathy. His unprecidented fees have been so big that he can afford to smile, alike at adverse criticisms and Morgan's interminable and rasping cross-questionings.

Mr. Cromwell is a small, pale, slender man, of a nervous temperament, and at 52 his hair and mustache are pure white. He is one of the quickest men who ever stood before judge or jury, though he rarely appears in court. He has a Fifth avenue home whose furnishings include a pipe organ, said to be one of the two or three most costly musical instruments in any private house in the world. He is amazingly quick at figures and had a special training in that line as a youngster before studying law when he worked for a while in a railroad office. He has never been in politics—his Panama work has been purely business—and has never sought an office.

Clever Law Partners Under 50.

Paul Drennan Cravath and William Dameron Gurthrie—both have unusual middle names—belong to the same general class as Dill and Cromwell, but being younger are not yet so rich. Both are very well fixed, though, and both, like Dill, were born outside New York—Guhtrie in California in 1859, so that he is now only 47, and Cravath in Ohio in 1861, so that he is only 45.

Cravath is a big man physically. He carries himself in a "stately" manner, and his size and carriage combined make him a marked man in a crowd. He has been termed "ponderous and irresistable"; he never shows surprise or exasperation, his gestures are deliberate and his elocution effective. He is a first-class cross-examiner, his profile is classic, and he dresses impressively.

He was attorney for James Hazen Hyde of the Equitable for a while and he now has Thomas F. Ryan, owner of the Equitable and interested in all the surface and subterranean lines of transportation in New York, for a client.

Cravath was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnic; Oberlin, Ohio; Berlin, Germany, and the Columbia law school. In 1893 he married Agnes Huntington, the actress.

Guthrie is Cravath's partner and his most distinguished achievements were the drawing up of the papers for the Northern Securities company and the defense, on behalf of J. P. Morgan and J. J. Hill, of the celebated "Peter Power" suit brought to nullify the Northern Securities merger. He won the Power suit, but his merger didn't stand the test of scrutiny by the United States supreme court. Guthrie comes of a political family, his father having been surveyor of the port of San Francisco and a newspaper owner. The son was sent to school in France and England for several years when a boy. When his father lost his money and died, the boy was brought to America and sent to the New York public schools.

He couldn't manage a college course, and at sixteen began running errands for the law firm of Blatchford, Seward Griswold and Da Costa, Clarence Seward being a partner. Guthrie acted as stenographer, then clerk and then went to law school. He was admitted in 1880, at 24, was made a member of the firm, which became Seward, Guthrie & Morawetz. Later it was Guthrie, Cravath & Henderson, the late David Bremner Henderson joining it after leaving the speaker's chair.

Notwithstanding his close connection with great corporations—various English syndicates, among others—Mr. Guthrie prefers to be known as a constitutional lawyer. He doesn't believe in lotteries, but he once defended a man on trial before a United States court for carrying a lottery ticket from New Orleans to Kentucky, holding that the United States authorities were exceeding their powers and invading the constitutional rights of the individual in that case. Once when a newspaper photographer made some pictures for publication of his beautiful Italian gardens on his Long Island estate he stood on his "constitutional rights" and insisted on the delivery of the negatives, unpublished, to him. Having carried his point, he sent them back to the editor and the pictures were printed.

Francis Lynde Stetson—John G. Johnson.

Without in any way reflecting upon the ability or the legal learning of any of the millionaire corporation lawyers so far mentioned, it is only fair to say that none of them stand as high in the estimation of their own profession as do Francis Lynde Stetson of New York and John G. Johnson of Philadelphia.

Both these men had won exceptional standing when the others were beginners; both have had charge of litigation involving millions every year since, and so both have received much newspaper attention, but neither has ever courted it, and few personal sketches of either have ever been printed; none with their concurrence.

Mr. Stetson is 60. He has a lean face, a kindly way and a close mouth. His father was an able lawyer and a public man, being a member of congress in the early 40s. Thus Francis Lynde Stetson, more than most modern corporation lawyers, has always had a taste for politics, and has often played the game, though never with a view to holding office for himself. It was due to his political skill that Jacob Sharp was able to build a horse railroad on Broadway years ago, for Stetson got the charter for the road through the Albany legislature; Stetson acted as Sharp's counsel when the latter was tried for bribery, but couldn't save him.

In his political work he got to know Grover Cleveland when the latter was governor of New York. After his first term as president, Cleveland became Stetson's law partner. For many years Stetson's duties have included the overseeing of all J. P. Morgan's transactions with a view to preventing him from being so involved in legal difficulties that he can personally be attached.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE,
Former United States Ambassador to Great Britain.

This job alone is an exacting one, but it is really a side issue, for he is general counsel for the United States Steel corporation and several other vast business combinations, being perhaps more fully identified in a legal way with great enterprises and more of them than any of his contemporaries. He was a factor in the formation of the Northern Securities, the charter of which was drawn by W. D. Guthrie, but, it is said, advised against it and said the charter wouldn't hold water, which it didn't.

Mr. Stetson is not fond of sports, but he belongs to many clubs and societies, is as active as his famous client, J. P. Morgan, in the affairs of the Episcopal church, and served on the committee of that religious body on divorce in San Francisco a few years ago.

John G. Johnson, who has refused cabinet place and supreme court judgeships more than once, is one of the richest and most powerful men in his profession today. He has never had a photograph taken, he reads nothing but law, he doesn't go into society—though he married into an old Philadelphia family of high social standing—and little is known of his antecedents. He started poor, worked terrifically when young, and is keeping it up, now that he is well past 60. His only amusement is buying and studying pictures, and his private art collection is one of the finest in the country.

He is admired almost to the point of reverence by President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania, by J. P. Morgan and many other great corporation heads. They pay him whatever he asks and send special trains for him when they want his presence in New York, but once he refused to go when sent for because he had a case to conduct for a client too poor to pay any fee at all. Once also, when offered $25,000 for work already done for a comparatively small corporation, he returned the check indignantly. One for double that amount was suggested, but he wouldn't have it.

"You can't afford more than $5,000," he said. "Let it go at that," and they did.

Choate—Hornblower—Dillon.

It wouldn't do to leave Joseph H. Choate, William B. Hornblower or Judge John F. Dillon out of the list when lawyers who get great fees are considered. Elihu Root should come in, too, but he is now a cabinet minister.

Choate's life has undoubtedly been broader than that of any of the others. He has always been interested in the larger phases of politics. He has mingled more in society. He has always done a good deal of public speaking.

But Choate is of an earlier generation—he was 74 years old on his last birthday—a generation practically all of whose lawyer members were interested in politics. Yet his ambassadorship to Great Britain has been his only public office despite the frequent mention of his name as a candidate for governor of his state and senator at Washington. Mr. Choate has received some big fees himself in his day, and is likely to receive more, for he is still in the lists, and his son, Joseph B. Choate, Jr., may succeed him as a great lawyer.

William B. Hornblower, though only 55, and with a big corporation practice he is well into the insurance muddle—and only recently got into the news by resigning an insurance trusteeship, is more of the old school type than the new. He is the son of a clergyman and the grandson of a New Jersey chief justice. A Democrat, he was against David B. Hill for president and for Cleveland in 1892. When Cleveland named him for supreme court justice, Hill defeated his confirmation, though "Andy" Hamilton, disburser of the "yellow dog fund" for the insurance companies, said recently that Hill would have allowed the confirmation had Hornblower stopped abusing Hill as agreed.

Mr. Hornblower is undoubtedly the littlest man now living who is eminent at the bar. His face is almost childlike in outline; he wears boots that would be small for many a fourteen-year-old, and somehow even his thin side whiskers help to make him look youthful.

But he is an extremely able lawyer and for many years his income has been so big that he may very probably be counted among the millionaires.

Judge John F. Dillon, general counsel for most of the Gould companies, including the Western Union and the Missouri Pacific, is the oldest of the great corporation lawyers now living, and his life has been one of great variety. He is 75, born in New York state, but reared as a boy in Iowa, where he worked his way through a medical school, but after practicing as a physician three months, he gave it up and took to law.

After he served years as a Judge, first on the State Supreme court and later on the United States Circuit bench in the Eighth Judicial district. Thirty-seven years ago he resigned the latter honorable post and located in New York as professor in the Columbia Law School. Three years later he took up the practice of law with Jay Gould as his chief client.

Judge Dillon, still hale and hearty, wears the whiskers that were thought dignified in the middle of the last century, and is jolly and companionable when you meet him, unless he is thinking out a knotty legal problem. Then you might as well speak to a doorpost as to the Judge, for he will neither see you nor hear you.

The Judge is the greatest authority in the country on municipal corporation law, and his endorsement of an issue of city bonds is as good a guarantee as any experienced investor in the land will ask for.

His fees? They are like Stetson's and Johnson's. Big beyond doubt, but never exploited by the Judge. He is a typical lawyer's lawyer, among other things, and, like S. C. T. Dodd, for so many years the Standard Oil's general counsel, has never been known to do any personal advertising.

BUCKED THE TIGER AND WON

Valet of Unlucky Gamester "Borrowed" Money From His Master and Put It on Roulette--- Knew When to Quit.

New York, June 16.—A lawsuit has for a week been revealing figures to show that Canfield, the professional gambler, won enough from amateur gamblers to make a clear profit of $500,000 in a single year. When the heavy expenses of maintaining his sumptuous halls are taken into consideration, along with the costs of graft and other necessities, the question arises, how much did Canfield get from his guests by fair means and how much by foul? And why should any one but an idiot imagine that he could get a fair, square deal under such circumstances?

"They say that at Monte Carlo," a veteran globe trotter remarked in a club group where Canfield's case was being discussed, "a press agent is employed to see to it that news of great losses is suppressed whenever possible and that many suicides of ruined gamesters are kept from publicity—for that tiny monarchy of Monaco is a despotism. On the other hand, whenever any one wins a big sum—as does sometimes happen, despite the heavy chances against it—the fact is sent out for publication far and wide. And, of course, that titled chap who last year announced his system for breaking the bank, and was permitted to get ahead of the game for a while, was merely an advertising device. Some declare that a fair game is dealt at Monte Carlo. The same assertion used to be made of Canfield's houses in New York, Saratoga and Newport. But—"

"But," the old clubman repeated. "I am not a rooter or a tout for Canfield and I wouldn't tell this true story if I thought it would get into print. Even among ourselves I won't give the name, although it belongs to one of the young men from whose losses at Canfield's this lawsuit has arisen. He had a bad spell of mania for bucking the tiger. He wasn't so blind in his folly, however, as not to see the percentage odds against him at roulette, but he was idiotic enough to believe that at faro, he, a novice, could do what it is doubtful if the best experts can do—that is, reduce the odds of the dealer against the player to about par. When he got through he had nothing but a winter's experience to show in the way of gain, while Canfield had 100,000 of his dollars and his notes for half as much more.

"Come to think of it, though, he had got something else out of his visits—a whole lot of cigars, edibles and booze, for he was a specially honored guest. He had a valet who used to come and go for him, and this man servant also had the entree of the gambling house—the Canfield butler being under orders to see that the valet was well taken care of. Now, this fellow wore no livery on these occasions, and strangers who saw him standing quietly in corners or sauntering within call of his master, never suspected that the well though plainly dressed young man wasn't an ordinary visitor.

"It is of this valet that I am going to tell a true story which, if published, might induce a lot of fools to steal cash to gamble with, for in his exceptional case he won out. While standing around in unrecognized attendance upon his master, he thought out a scheme to beat the bank. It was the same scheme that thousands have been ruined by—that of doubling the next stake after every loss until there was a winning, which would, of course, cover that series of losses, but keeping the wagered sum down to a small fixed amount as long as he won. Thus, as he reasoned it, there would in the end be no loss, and as surely come more or less of gain.

"No chips of less than a dollar were sold at Canfield's, and the valet's wallet wouldn't permit that kind of play to an extent that would test his scheme of doubling. So what did the fellow do but 'borrow' $1,000 that his master had given him to deposit in a bank. Having capitalized his venture he waited until his master had gone into one of the private faro rooms and then made his attack on roulette in the long parlor. Now, nine times out of ten his thousand wouldn't have lasted more than an hour or two, because, even with a single dollar as the basal wager it doesn't take ever so many steady losses to take up that amount. But he had the devil's own luck, and when the time came for him to take his fuddled master home he had before him stacks of checks worth close to $10,000.

"The valet's winnings were too heavy to pass unnoticed, and by the next afternoon news of the matter reached the master.

"'They tell me you had a lot of money to play with,' he said.

"'Yes, sir,' was the reply, 'I had a thousand.'

"'Whose was it?' was the reply.

"'Yours' sir,'

"'You stole it then?'

"'Oh, no, sir, I borrowed it.'

"'But suppose you had lost it?'

"'Ah, but I didn't lose it. To be sure I kept the cash over night, but I deposited it as soon as the bank opened this morning.'

"'I'll have you arrested and punished.'

"'You might have me arrested, sir, but I don't fancy you could have me punished. You never told me when to make the deposit, and I did make it—at my convenience. And, then, do you want to make a stir about your visit to Canfield's?'

"The valet was not arrested, but he was discharged, and now he is a hand bookmaker at the races. He didn't work his system at Canfield's again? No. By good chance he had a friend in the employ of a bookmaker, and that friend, by spending a few evenings testing the scheme with pennies on an improvised roulette board convinced him that there was nothing in it. There you have the story of one man who got away from Canfield's with more money than he got in with."

Gotham gossip of the Tenderloin sort has been turned by the Canfield trial to the subject of gamblers and their ways. Reminiscences are apt to be racy when they relate to the steady nerve of professional gamesters. Here is one that I get from a man who has an intimate friend, "biz and social," as he puts it, with the bunches of "doctors of chances" that came from Troy to New York with the late Congressman John Morrissey, prizefighter and gambler.

"In the bunch," and I think it will be lucid to quote the narrator exactly "was Big Mike ———, the handsomest man that ever dealt a card, and by the same token an ardent lover of beautiful ladies. In his halcyon days the police privileged big games right in Broadway, within gunshot of headquarters, an' Big Mike made his pile good and plenty. Then he devoted himself to the fine arts, filled his private house plumb full of picters an' satuary—an' he had a well-known actress to do the swell hostages therein, an' as for other petti-coated loveliness—well, say, it's somethin' in that line I a'm goin' t' tell you.

"Mike had been a gambler so long, understand, that he was inclined to win all he could and keep all he won, especially in prize women when prize women were at stake. He decided one day to elope with the wife of a Broadway restaurant keeper. She was ready an' willing, an' the 'lopers took a night steamboat up the Hudson for a honeymoon trip, so to speak. And by way of a joke, Mike secured the bridal stateroom, into which he hustled his companion early, so she wouldn't be spotted, while he lounged on deck with a wary eye out for spies till the boat should start.

"Well, who should show up but the lady's husband. He'd been a prizefighter—a good 'un, too—an' might be expected t' cut up rough if he made sure his wife was elopin' with Mike.

"Now, right there was where the nerve of a gambler made good. Mike had a shivery chill inside, I guess, but outwardly he was merely cool.

"'Goin' t' Troy?' said the husband.

"'Yep,' said the gambler.

"'I'm tipped off as there's a woman with you. Is she my wife?'

"'Why, of course not. What makes you think so?'

"'Nottin'll make me think it ain't so until you show me different.'

"Mike was scared, but he didn't shake. 'The lady is a Troy friend of mine,' says he, 'and not f'r a mint would I give her away. So I can't show you her face. But, I'll tell you what, old man, I'll have her show her foot to you, an' of course if it's your wife's foot you'll know it at sight, heh?'

"Now, that was the baldest bluff that ever won on a handful of losin' cards. He knew that after a day or two the husband would stop ragin' about his lost wife, but just yet it wasn't a safe proposition to play fair. The lady had laid in a new wardrobe for the transfer, an' he didn't doubt it included stockin's she had on; an' he decided, on the spur of the moment, that the husband wouldn't know her foot on sight, nor admit that he wasn't familiar with it. So, after a minute in the bridal chamber to put her wise, he took the husband in. There sat the lady all muffled up in a wrap. At Mike's request, she took off one stocking and put out her bare foot. Jest think of—what do they call it in plays?—the dramatic suspense. What if there'd been a corn, bunion or other mark of identification on that foot. But there wasn't.

"'Is that your wife's foot?' the gambled asked, smilingly.

"'No,' said the husband, 'and I beg the lady's pardon.'"

* * *

Some lies are worth quoting for their ingenuity. After that gambler had told the true story of Big Mike and another man's wife's foot, a second gambler put in a piece of fiction, or at least a narrative which exaggerated the actual occurrence upon which it was based. No doubt many a game of chance had been played for stakes more precious than money. The playwrights have been alert to the dramatic value of such episodes. Long ago, Dion Boucicault had a planter in "The Octoroon" put up his cream-colored mistress against the value of his cotton crop, which he had lost to a Mississippi steamboat gambler, who desired to possess the slightly tainted prize. In that case the planter won, and went home with his fortune and his mistress saved. The game was seven up.

Henry Arthur Jones, in the more recent English melodrama, "The Masqueraders," made a wife the stake for which her husband, a profligate gambler, and her former sweetheart, a worthy gentleman, cut the cards. The bachelor and the wife loved each other, but hadn't misbehaved, and it came about that, by risking his fortune, he took a chance to win the woman away from her cruel possessor. The scene was worked up with skill. There were three cuts of the cards, and of course each man won one, leaving the third to decide. To prolong the suspense, a fresh pack of cards was opened and shuffled for each cut. And before the final one the wife broke into the room, learned what was going on, and had some hysterical fits. Need I remind you, even though you never saw the play, that the true woman won the lover.

In David Belasco's wild American Melodrama, "The Girl of the Golden West," which you will get in Cincinnati next season, it is neither a wife nor a mistress that is played for, but a sure enough maid—the "girl" of the title, who keeps a barroom and dance hall in a California camp of forty-niners. Her lover is a road agent and hold-up man, whom she would reform and marry. The sheriff, who is a gambler also, is a rival wooer. The robber is cornered in the girl's saloon by the sheriff. The girl proposes three show-downs of cards at poker values to decide whether she shall go with the sheriff and the robber to jail, or the sheriff shall give up both her and the robber. Again and, of course, the first two hands are a stand-off. All depends on the third. And right there Belasco banks on sentiment against a square deal to please the audience. The sheriff shows an honest full hand of jacks. Thereupon the girl reaches down to her stocking and produces a full hand of kings.

But to the story that my New York gambler acquaintance soberly vowed was true.

"Phil had been a captain in the merchant marine," said he, "and if he wasn't a sailor who had a sweetheart in every port, he at least had wives in three. After a dozen years of that sort of thing he retired from sea service, went into business here in New York and had started in to get very rich when his old propensity for sweethearting broke out in a new spot. He fell in love with his typewriter and promised marriage, but put off the wedding.

"'I can't stand this any longer,' the girl said to him one day when he kissed her in his private office, and a bookkeeper saw it. 'Your employes are talking about me and they'll tattle it to their families pretty soon. I'm a gambler's daughter, you know, and folks are ready for that reason to think ill of me. No—no—you can't kiss me again until we're married.'

"Well, Phil saw she was in the right. 'I've got a confession to make, Phebe,' he said. 'I left wives in three ports—a brunette in Havana, a blonde in Galveston and a middling in New Orleans. And they've all come to New York to adjust their claims. So I'm in h—l's own matrimonial hole already and musn't dig it any deeper.'

"Phebe had a fit, of course, but when she came out of it her inherited gambling instinct asserted itself.

"'What are these wives?' she asked.

"'The Cuban is the daughter of a bullfighter,' Phil replied, 'the Texan is the widow of a faro dealer and the Louisianian's father used to be a lottery manager.'

"'Then they ought to have sporting blood in their veins,' mused Phebe. 'I guess we can fix up a deal. You call a meeting of the claimants.'

"When the four women were assembled, Phebe warmed the inborn sporting blood of the wives.

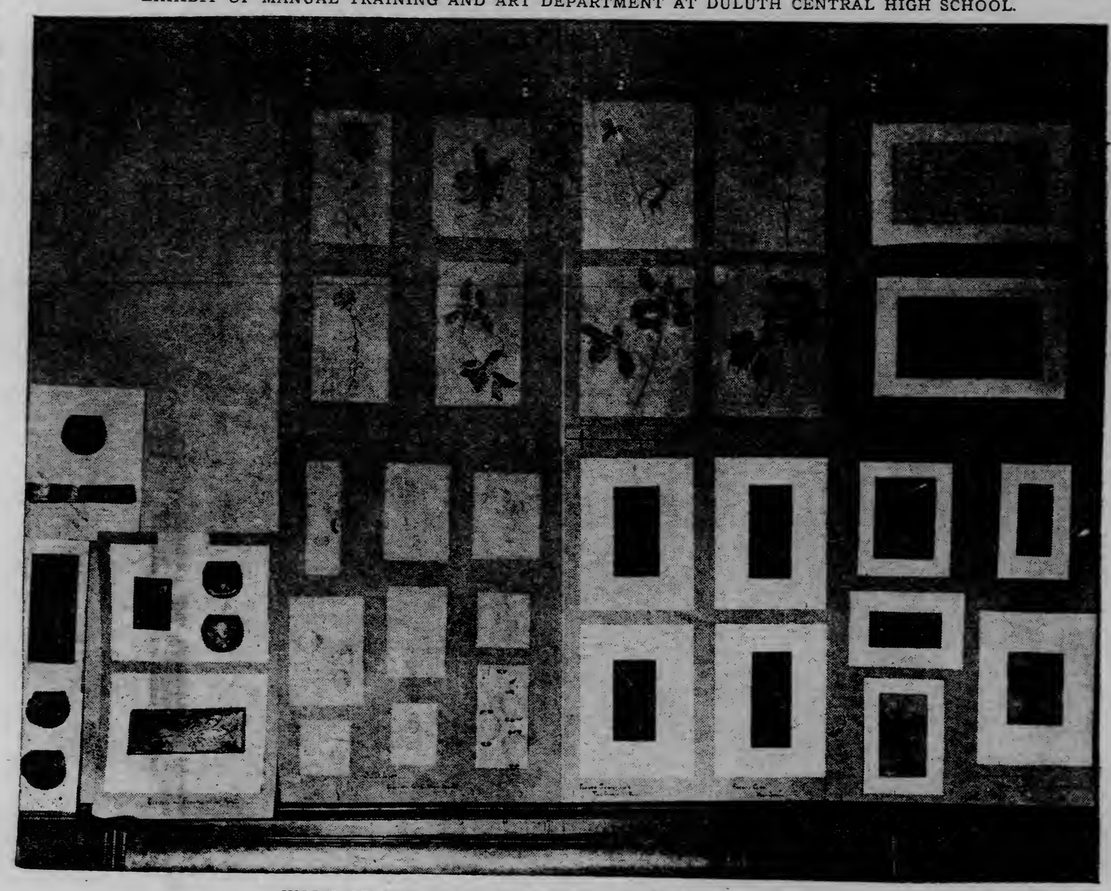

"'Phil wants to center down on one of us four,' she said. 'Suppose we play bridge to settle the question. He will provide three prizes of $10,000 each and he himself shall be the fourth prize—so none of the four players can lose. The one who makes the most points shall have the first choice of a prize—taking Phil if she wants—and so on down to the lowest.'

"Great brain had Phebe; also the finger of a card sharp. She won first choice and took Phil. The three won $10,000 apiece and were satisfied. Phil got the bride he desired and an escape from a bigamy charge. Odd game, eh?"

ART WORK AND MANUAL TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS

EXHIBIT OF MANUAL TRAINING AND ART DEPARTMENT AT DULUTH CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL.

WORK OF ART CLASS AT DULUTH CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL.

It is a far cry from the days when you "took" drawing twice a week to the present day when the conduct of this department is so attractive that during the last three years of the high school course many of the pupils elect this subject after pursuing it during their freshman year as a requirement of the course. The difference in the methods of teaching this subject for which eight out of ten children have no recognized aptitude, could be presented in no more emphatic way than, that instead of going to a drawing class in a protesting grumble, the students now gladly elect the subject.

During commencement week at the local high school, a partial exhibit of the work done during the past year in the art and manual training departments of the school was shown in the board room. The exhibit was an informal one and the great number of people, who it was hoped would be interested in the showing made by the department were not aware of its existence and it remained that those who visited the board room were in great part those who were acquainted with the work of the school.

The work of the freshmen in the art department is very creditable and in original composition and the applying of original designs in the different work of the department much had been done. Study of line and color from nature, and the study of the human figure, the application of original and conventionized designs on tooled leather, etc., are taken up in the course. Designs for cushion covers and other practical purposes also occupied the time of the freshman classes. The aim has ceased to be the development of imitative and mechanical powers, but rather the development of the creative instinct and a true appreciation of the beautiful and not the mere ability to do a few things. The drawing classes are among the most interesting classes in the school to visit and special attention is called to this department and visitors invited to visit the classes. The head of this department of the school is Miss Gertrude L. Carey.

Manual training which has occupied the attention of the foremost educators of the country during the past few years is gaining a firm foothold in the Duluth schools and the interesting portion of the exhibit which was shown from this department of the high school attracted much attention. Manual training departments will be established by next year in the Madison, Lowell, Irving, Washburn and Lakeside schools in addition to the department in the high school of which G. M. Brace is in charge. Next year the forging of tools and regular blacksmithing will be added to the course and the students will thus be prepared in their third year for the machine shop practice which will be the fourth year study.

In the first four grades, cardboard work is taught, in the fifth and sixth grades, thin wood work and in the seventh and eighth grades, regular bench work is commenced. The manual training is one of the most popular studies with the boys and develops them mentally to a marked degree as they approach the subject with great willingness and pleasure. The students have been making a model house at the school which will be completed next year. It is made on a scale of two inches to a foot and everything is made to scale. The plans were drawn first by the students and approved. When the house is completed it will be given to one of the kindergartens of the city and the children there will make cardboard furniture and weave mats for its interior furnishing.

A desk for Principal C. A. Smith's office has been made by the department and a flat top desk for the superintendent's office has nearly been completed.

The department is a most interesting one and the friends of the school and parents of the students are invited to visit it during the school year.

RECORDS OF WHITE SOX

Four Men Hit at 300 Clip During Home Series.

Attendance up to Present Time Has Been Remarkably Good.

On Thursday afternoon the Duluth White Sox completed one of the most successful home series in their history.

They came home from the trip through the West fighting for fourth place, and Thursday night they left for the Copper Country close at the heels of the leaders, after administering a coat of whitewash to the latter in the one game played on the Duluth grounds.

While home the team played fast and consistent ball, bringing the series to a grand climax in the final game with Calumet, when they gave Treadway perfect support in the field, and allowed him to shut out the Aristocrats.

The Sox have been getting their batting eyes in with a vengeance, and during the home season four men on the team were batting at a .300 clip, or over. O'Dea has been tearing the cover off the ball since he has been playing regularly, and in the thirteen games played on the home grounds he averaged .361. McCormick, the big left fielder, is a good second, with an average on the home grounds of .326, with Livingstone third, and Helding, the new outfielder, in fourth place.

The following table shows the official averages of the players for the home series just finished:

| | AB. | H. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| O'Dea | 47 | 17 | .361 |
| McCormick | 46 | 15 | .326 |
| Livingstone | 55 | 17 | .309 |
| Helding | 10 | 3 | .300 |
| Barto | 47 | 12 | .255 |
| Lovett | 47 | 12 | .255 |
| Summers | 39 | 8 | .208 |
| Adams | 45 | 9 | .200 |
| Treadway | 22 | 3 | .140 |
| Morton | 16 | 2 | .125 |
| Krick | 29 | 1 | .040 |

* * *

Following is a table showing a summary of the runs, hits and errors made by the White Sox and their opponents in each of the four home series:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Duluth | 21 | 31 | 11 |
| Fargo | 20 | 18 | 11 |

* * *

| | R. | H. | E. |

| Duluth | 14 | 17 | 7 |
| Lake Linden | 14 | 20 | 11 |

* * *

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Duluth | 2 | 6 | 0 |
| Calumet | 0 | 3 | 3 |

The grand total shows that Duluth has scored 72 runs, 104 hits and 35 errors as compared with 54 runs, 85 hits and 45 errors by their opponents.

Treadway has been the most successful pitcher on the home grounds, having won five games and lost none. Krick has won three games and lost none, and Morton has won two and lost two. Ferguson lost the third game of the three which the White Sox dropped on the home grounds.

The attendance during the series was nothing short of phenomenal for Duluth. There were five games at which the crowds completely filled the grand stands and bleachers and overflowed onto the field, and it is estimated that from 12,000 to 14,000 people witnessed these five contests. Between 5,000 and 6,000 people attended the other eight games, and the total attendance for the entire home series could not have fallen far short of 20,000.

SPORTING COMMENT

There is a peculiar freshness about these higher altitudes in the league standing which is very invigorating to the fans. This is respectfully referred to "Spike" Anderson and his bunch of high priced, salary-limit breakers, and a cordial invitation extended to come up alongside and enjoy the view.

* * *

The feats of Pitcher Wix Treadway ought to form the topic for a popular song, and be turned over to the automatic phonographs at the White City. Treadway certainly won a brown stone front home with the fans on the last home series.

* * *

Down in the Three Eye league, where they eat umpires alive, the league standing reads like this:

| Club. | Umpires potted. | Umpires escaped. | Pct. |

* * *

These are hard for the Superior rooters. It's bad enough to be kicked out of a league, but to see your dearest rival steadily climbing the percentage table, is bitter indeed. There's nothing left for the Superior crowd and the local anvil chorus but the cold, chilly solitudes of the tall uncut.

* * *

The Calumet baseball players were "in our midst" Thursday. They provided a very digestible and wholly satisfactory light lunch. Here's hoping they furnish the Sox a good square meal in the remaining three games.

* * *

It's come at last. The ball club management will have to provide more seats at Athletic park if the fans keep turning out the way they have. Out of the thirteen games, there were five in which the S. R. O. sign was swaying in the breeze at Athletic park, and if July 4 is a nice day, they'll have to chop down the fence.

* * *

The new cafe building at the Duluth Boat club promises to be so attractive, when completed, that the "piazza crew" is likely to be abnormally swelled.

* * *

Before the rowing season is much older the Duluth Boat club members hope to see the two senior fours get together for a trial race. One crew is composed of Whyte, L'Estrange, Skelton and Church, and the other of Puck, Hamilton, Peterson and Jones. Neither crew is likely to "lay down" at the finish.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs seem to be getting a pretty firm hold on first position, and the Windy City fans are becoming accustomed to seeing the team lead New York, instead of trailing just a few games behind. It's a pretty race between the Cubs, the Giants and the Pirates.

* * *

The American Association clubs are bunched in a very pretty pennant race, with all eight teams still in the running. Toledo still hangs on to first place by its eyelids, with Columbus, Louisville and Milwaukee all showing a decided desire to climb.

* * *

Northwestern university has the greatest press agent in the business. When he runs short of material on the sensational doings of the "co-eds," or of the marvelous theories of the professors, he rigs up a story about the football players going in for croquet. It's too good to be true.

* * *

Of course this is no weather talk about it, but it might be well to remember that Duluth needs a hockey rink before next winter in order to get into the International Hockey league.

* * *

If the old time pork and beans were responsible for the ball teams Boston used to turn out, perhaps the packing house disclosures are responsible for the monopoly the two teams from the Hub have on the last positions.

* * *

Baseball is catching on in England. Imagine a game between Liverpool Dockwallopers and the London Cockneys. It's enough to make the Lord Reginalds and the Earl Percies, who have followed the noble game of cricket, turn over in their graves.

* * *

Duluth now has one of the finest fleets of small sail boats of any of the cities on the inland waters, when the size of the city is taken into consideration.

INTEREST IS VERY GREAT

In the Big College Regatta on Poughkeepsie Course.

Certainty of Keenest Competition Seen on the Hudson.

More than the usual amount of interest is being taken in the Poughkeepsie regatta this year, though this great aquatic event has always been well appreciated by the American public. And in recent years it has surpassed even the more historic regatta on the Thames. The reason for the heightening of interest this year is to be found in the certainty of the keenest competition ever seen on the Hudson. Cornell, in the nature of things, must be the ruling favorite, but there are two or three other crews that are counted on to give the Ithacans the fight of their lives to retain their supremacy on the water.

The dark horses this year are Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse, with Wisconsin a possibility. The claims of the first three named colleges are not to be disputed. Pennsylvania's 'varsity eight has the distinction of being the only college crew of the year that has been able to defeat the all-conquering Annapolis midshipmen. Georgetown, Columbia and Yale all rowed the middies and all in turn had to succumb to superior strength and watermanship. The Quakers, however, went out from the start at a tremendous clip and finished with plenty of reserve. The Quaker eight also had an easy time defeating the Harvard freshmen at the American regatta, these two races being the only ones they have had this year. The eight this year is made up of big men, the average being more than 170 pounds. Coach Ward himself says that the eight is the best he has had since he last won at Poughkeepsie, and he makes no secret of the fact that he will not be surprised with a victory this time.

The Columbia oarsmen deserve consideration because, although beaten by Annapolis, they made the middies row so hard that they broke the best previous record for the course. Not only did the midshipmen establish new figures, but even Columbia was inside the best previous time. Coach Jasper Goodwin has been working hard to establish a successful system of rowing at Columbia and has been improving things with every year. This is his third season at Columbia, and as the men in the 'varsity boat are all of a powerful type, he thinks well of his crew's chances.

After the phenomenal dash to the front which the Syracuse crews made in 1904 the Salt City oarsmen must always be reckoned with. There is no reason why Syracuse should not have as strong a crew this year as formerly, for only one member of last year's veteran combination is missing. Syracuse must remain a dark horse until the races are rowed because Ten Eyck's men have not been tested against another crew this season. All of the other Poughkeepsie eights, with the exception of Wisconsin, have been tried out in dual regattas, Cornell against Harvard and Pennsylvania, Columbia and Georgetown against the navy eight. Syracuse men attribute their defeat last year to overconfidence and this year say they will row with a different spirit.

The fact that Wisconsin has overcome so many handicaps in order to send their eight East is proof enough that the Badgers must be dangerous this year. For a time it was thought that Wisconsin would have to give up rowing as a result of the attacks made on all forms of athletics at Madison, but the student body refused to see its veteran eight lose such an opportunity for an aquatic victory and subscribed the necessary funds. The Wisconsin crew this year has all but two members of the 1905 eight and as this is Coach O'Dea's last year in coaching everybody at Wisconsin is pulling for a victory.

After all the arguments are presented for the other crews the fact remains that the Cornell eight is apparently the strongest of the lot. In fact this year's crew, although missing three of the 1905 veterans, Ithacans simply walked away from the Harvard 'varsity eight. hTe race was over a course of two miles and the Cornell crew won by 3½ lengths and could have done better had it been necessary. As the Harvard eight this year is admittedly stronger than in 1905 it needs no further statement to explain why Cornell is the favorite.

The Yale rowing authorities are exhibiting an unusual amount of pessimism over the situation this year. The loss of all but two members of the 1905 crew has been a serious handicap to them and no combination gotten together seems to be effective enough to please Coach Kennedy. The loss of the Annapolis race was a severe disappointment, for the Yale eight contained the best oarsmen. Yale had with the exception of Cap. Morse. Yet the Elis were rowed to a standstill and finished the race all but exhausted. Although the Harvard crew is obviously not in the same class with the Poughkeepsie oarsmen rowing critics have conceded the New London regatta to Harvard. The Crimson has many veterans in the boat this year and the men have been rowing together for more than a month.

An effort is being made for the second time in intercollegiate aquatics to get Cornell to row at New London against Yale and Harvard. The Elis are credited with the attempt this time. Yale men say they will never row at Poughkeepsie but feel the necessity of adding some attractive feature to the New London regatta. It is hard to credit Yale with serious intentions toward Cornell, for if the Ithacans rowed at New London it would rob the Elis of their annual victory over Harvard, which would not be desirable in the least. But even if Cornell were invited she probably would not accept taking the same ground that she did several years ago when Yale wanted Cornell at New London, but would not row Pennsylvania, the Poughkeepsie champions. Cornell is the backbone of the Poughkeepsie regatta and will stick by it to the end.

PARKER WOULD GIVE BEELL STRONG BACKING.

Chicago, June 16.—Fred Beell, the Wisconsin wrestler, who looks like the only Evan Lewis, with his partner, Harvey Parker, is gunning hard for John Rooney, Tom Jenkins, or any other man of good quality. Parker, who is well fixed financially, believes that Beell is the greatest young wrestler he has ever seen, and is willing to back him for anything from $1,000 to $5,000. Beell, a modest young fellow who weighs perhaps 165 pounds, has run up a great record of victories through the East, and is anxious to get to the top at the expense of Jenkins, Gotch or Rooney.

"MATTY" MATTHEWS IS IN A MAD HOUSE.

New York, June 16.—"Matty" Matthews, who will be remembered as a proficient welterweight prizefighter in this city in the days of the Horton law, has been pronounced insane by Dr. John W. Pierce and confined in a private hospital at Islys, L. I.

Matthews' friends say his alleged insanity is due to excessive diving from a "high cliff" to a basin of water in the "train robbery" spectacle in Luna park, Coney Island. He impersonated a train robber who plunged headlong from the height about ten times a day.

NOTRE DAME STAR JOINS BIG LEAGUE.

Notre Dame, Ind., June 16.—John Murray, Notre Dame's great catcher, is expected to leave for New York to join the St. Louis Nationals. Murray is one of the best catchers Notre Dame ever has had.

He led the varsity this year at batting and in the field, his average for the former being 365 and for the latter 961. Captain McNerney, who played second, will join the South Bend Central leaguers as soon as he recovers from blood poison.

TWO BADGER CREWS GO TO POUGHKEEPSIE.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—It has been definitely decided to send two Wisconsin crews, the varsity eight-oared and freshman eight, to Ploughkeepsie. Enough money has been collected to take both the crews east.

The student committee already has raised $1,100, and $400 is promised, so that a sufficient sum has been guaranteed to make the trip. All the oarsmen are in tip top shape and will be on edge for the big race on June 23.

LOOKED DOWN THE MUZZLE

Gun Was Held by the Late Major Thomas, Famous Breeder and Owner of Himyar, Domino and Other Great Horses.

Thirty years ago this spring the yearlings at Duerana stock farm were being put through their early paces. The late Maj. B. G. Thomas, former soldier, citizen and breeder of the high mettled thoroughbred, was inspecting the royally bred youngsters with a keen eye to the points of each colt and filly. Naturally, Hira's colt interested him the most as the daughter of imp Ambassador had never thrown a bad horse yet. And this colt was a son of the speed marvel, Aiarm, considered the fastest miler of the age.

Turning to John Clay, the negro jockey, afterward trainer, Major pointed to the youngsters as a whole, saying: "John, which one of these colts looks the best to you?" Without a moment's hesitation the colored lad jerked his thumb over toward Hira's big son and grunted out, "him yar!" Meaning in his negro dialect, "that colt there."

Now Maj. Thomas knew all the while that his boy would select Hira's son as the peer of his fellows, but he liked to have the colt praised. He had not yet selected a name for the youngster and at once the negro's answer struck the major as an odd combination and Himyar was accordingly christened with due formality.

The colt grew and thinned and in 1877, as a 2-year-old, swept the Western turf board. As a 3-year-old in 1878, he began by winning the Phoenix Hotel stakes and at once became an overwhelming favorite for the Kentucky Derby. His speed in some of his races was simply startling, three-quarters in 1:13 being a part of what he showed in a longer race. And the Kentucky Derby was considered at Himyar's mercy, bar accident.

But as so frequently happens in racing, the accident came and Himyar in the derby was virtually left at the post. But it was more the fault of his owner than the starter, John F. Robinson. The boy Clay on Himyar hung back a bit partly because the colt did not want to join his horses and partly because the big bunch of sixteen 3-year-olds had no attraction also for his jockey.

Finally, when it looked like a delay, Major Thomas, who was there at the post, said to the starter: "General, don't pay any more attention to my colt, as long as his head is turned the right way." So Gen. Robinson at the next break sent the field off with Himyar a dozen lengths behind the last horse. And twenty lengths behind the leader, Day Star, as the bunch straightened out for the race.

Then began a stern chase that would have been a successful one had the other jockeys in the race given Himyar fair play. In a furlong the colt reached the rearguard and, passing the stand ending the first half, Himyar was in the bunch, but in close quarters, unable to get through. Meanwhile, Day Star, the leader, was sifting along in front.

At the first turn Clay pulled Himyar out and his horse started to go through an opening. But some of the other boys called to each other. "Here he comes. Don't let him through." And they didn't. The same thing occurred on the backer stretch and finally Clay had to pull out and go clean around his horses. At the far turn Day Star led Himyar six lengths. But then the latter closed in a long drive and Day Star only beat him a head. In another jump Himyar would have won.

Himyar, as a 3-year-old, swept the racing boards in Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri. But, strange to say, Maj. Thomas never brought him East. Perhaps it was because he babied the horse a bit, as he intended him for a progenitor of great horses at Duerana when through racing.

As a 4-year-old, Himyar kept up his successes, showing what few of the alarms had shown, staying powers over a distance of ground. That fall at Louisville he met another 4-year-old, Dave Moore, by Longfellow-Slipper, afterward called Long Tom, and a successful sire at Charles Reed's Fairview farm.

Dave Moore was a good horse, especially over a route, and the Louisville Jockey club arranged a special race for four-year-olds at two miles, which, by the conditions, was framed for Himyar and Moore. The Austides-Ten Broeck and Ten Broeck-Molly McCarthy races were still topics of recent discussion, and almost as much interest was gotten in the Himyar-Moore race as in either of the famous races noted.

A great crowd was at Churchill Downs to see the race and pool selling was very heavy. Himyar was the choice at $100 to $50, but as the selling progressed, Dave Moore stock improved, a well-known Chicagoan buying every pool sold on the latter, and soon he was taking Dave Moore at $800 to Himyar at $1,000.

Soon the two horses were selling even up and then Dave Moore was taken as first choice, Auctioneer Robert Cathcart selling him to the Chicago man aforesaid. Then one of Major Thomas' friends hurried over to the stable to tell Himyar's owner what was going on.

Major Thomas was sitting in front of his stable, whittling a stick, when his friend came over and told him that Dave Moore was favorite over Himyar and the identity of the Windy City speculator who was putting up the money. Very much perturbed at the news, the major started on a still hunt for his jockey.

Behind the barn Walker, the famous mulatto who had ridden Ten Broeck in all of his races, was finishing his toilet when his employer came up with: "Look here, Billy, the pooling is very suspicious on this race. A man whom you and I both know is backing Dave Moore so heavily that he has made him the favorite. Now, Billy, you know as well as I do that Himyar can win this race, and by the eternal he shall."

As he said this the irate major whipped out a long Colt's revolver and continued: "Now, Billy, I am sheriff of Woodford county and sworn to protect law and order, but if anything wrong develops in this pace there will be some action from me. I am going over in the field here with the trainer and we will stand at the last eighth pole in the stretch. If I see any reason to think everything is not all right, somebody is going to get hurt."

The two horses were warmly greeted as they came on the track, Himyar, a big, rangy, sixteen-hand bay, showing quality all over, while Dave Moore, built on a sturdier scale, was also a fine individual. The two lined up opposite the stand and at the tap of the drum went away as one horse.

As was expected, Dave Moore set the pace and he set it pretty lively for a race at two miles, the first mile in 1:47. Himyar a length back under a wrap. In the run to the quarter Walker gave Himyar more rein and the mighty bay drew gradually up to the other's flank, then his saddle and, passing the half-mile pole, Moore only led by a neck and Grim, his jockey, was at work.

But the resistless bay shadow at his head, like a Nemesis that would not be denied, drew up on even terms with Moore and at the far turn a mighty shout from the crowd showed the exciting nature of the struggle. Reaching the home run Himyar on the outside showed his head in front, but Moore, under pressure, hung on so well that the two reached the straight virtually on even terms.

Now the horses were dashing toward the goal and the 10,000 spectators were in a ferment. If you want to see the emotions and frenzied demeanor of a great crowd of race-goers when a big race is on, go in the infield. There you will witness sights that you will never forget of the strained and tense mass of faces in your front. While the race of the crowd as the horses drew near and pass is like the pulsations of the sea beating on ocean shores!

At the eighth pole in the grass, close to the fence, stood the bearded major and his trainer. Himyar looked to hold the race safe as Walker still had a wrap on his horse, while Simms on Moore was working hard with him. Major Thomas accordingly was saying to his trainer. "Himyar wins easily" when suddenly Simms, with whip and spur, drew up even with Himyar, the crowd shouting, "Moore wins."

In an instant the major turned to see the cause of these shouts. The two horses were within fifty yards of where he stood and were on even terms with the difference. Walker, on Himyar, was grinning at Simm's efforts on Moore and could clearly go away at any moment.

With Major Thomas this dallying with his horse could not be brooked and the old soldier's countenance changed from contentment to wrath. Pulling out his big revolver he waited till the two horses were abreast of him and then let out at his jockey "Walker go on with that horse, you know me!"

The setting sun glistened on the polished barrel of the excited major's weapon and the glint struck Walker's eye simultaneously with the sound of his employer's wrathy tones of command. Bending forward in his saddle he let Himyar's head free.

In one jump he led half a length, in another he drew clear and left his opponent struggling in the rear like a waterlogged ship. Himyar won in a gallop by two lengths, amid shouts that made the welkin ring.

After the race Walker explained to Major Thomas that he was trying to draw a fine finish and meant to win by only a neck or half a length. To which his employer answered: "That's all right, Mr. Billy; but let me give you a word of advice. Don't ever draw any fine finishes when you are riding a horse worthy a Kentucky sheriff with a gun." It was Himyar's last race for he went to the stud the next year.

There never was a more esteemed and respected character than the late turfman, whose death last week leaves a place not easily filled. At his farm Duerana, his gateway bears the unique sign:

"The Home of Himyar.

"All visitors welcome except book agents and lightning-rod men."

Major Thomas was 80 years old at the time of his death and the oldest of American turfmen, save John Davis Messown, who trained for the O'Fallons, Harneys and others.

NEXT WINTER

There Will be Racing at Oakland, as Usual.

New York, June 16.—It will be cheering news to the regulars of the turf who follow the horses from the summer grounds to the winter racing course to know that the sport will again be actively conducted at San Francisco, Cal. It is a long fly from the present moment to the first snow flurry and the annual exodus to the South and far West, and in the meantime the Coast metropolis will have entirely recovered from the recent disaster. The humor of the city is not now for racing and theaters, but next autumn it will be different. President "Tom" Williams, writing to a friend here in New York, this past week intimates that Emeryville will open on schedule time and race as in previous winter seasons. He wrote from Hopland, Cal., the home town of Messrs. Burns & Waterhouse's Candelaria stud farm: "I am in very, very good health and shall be with my turf friends in New York along about October."

THE BOXING GAME DEAD

In New York City Owing to Managers' Indecent Haste.

Became So Bold as to Attract the Governor's Attention.

San Francisco, June 16.—Alas! How easy things go wrong!

A few short weeks ago the end of the pugilist rainbow appeared to rest in New York. Boxers and their managers hurried thither with the indecent haste that attaches to a Klondike rush.

The San Francisco fistic talent seemed to vanish in a body in the direction of the new land of promise. Right now you might walk the ruin fringed streets of this city all day without seeing a cauliflower ear or a deflected nolse.

But the boom died a-bornin. Governor Higgins proved hard hearted and padlocks grace the outer doors of the Gotham clubs.

Even some of the Western refugees are telling in letters that they only intended to remain a short time, anyhow, and that they will be at home in plenty of time to attend the opening card in San Francisco's new boxing season in September.

In a general way we of the West understand what caused the stoppage of ring sport in New York. To us it appeared a case of inserting the thin edge of a wedge and then becoming bolder, until the turmoil which attended the handling of the high-class bouts attracted the attention of the chief executive of the state.

Yesterday I received a gossipy letter from a San Francsco sporting man, at present in the East. It throws considerable light on the boxing game there. Says my correspondent:

"The Madison Square crowd, that is, the so-called Twentieth Century Athletic club, is blamed by everybody around here for having the boxing game closed down. As you no doubt know, boxing was being carried on here under the club membership plan. They were getting away with it all right, too, when these Twentieth Century fellows opened as though they had obtained a permit to run the whole town.

"The night of the Britt-McGovern match they had ticket speculators on the sidewalk selling tickets, which is strictly against the law to begin with, and which, even if it was not, kicked the legs from under the subterfuge that the show was being conducted by a club for club members who paid dues and nothing else. Anyhow, the jig is up. The clubs are talking of getting out injunctions restraining the sheriff from interfering, but they haven't a chance. You can say that the boxing game is dead in New York.

My correspondent gives me his impression of the Britt-McGovern contest three days before the fight.

"It was a sad thing for Jimmy Britt. He did not train at all, as everyone was telling him that McGovern was crazy, and asked him not to kill poor Terry. After the first round Jimmy discovered that he had been trapped. Terry cut a gash under Britt's eye in the second round, and then Jimmy started to box. I consider he had a share on points, but McGovern carried the fight to him at all times, and McGovern's blows were at certainly more effective than Britt's. At the end of the ten rounds McGovern was in better shape than the native son. The contest drew $10,700."

Not one, but a dozen, New York critics asserted that McGovern did not train an hour for his affair with Britt. One sporting writer said that he lived in cTrry's camp during the time he was supposed to be undergoing preparation, and knew whereof he spoke. Most of the Eastern papers noted that a roll of adipose tissue was in evidence at Terry's belt line.

Now, the qeustion is this: If Terry did not train, and Britt did not train, and Terry had clearly the better of Britt, what would be the result of an engagement for which both men were properly conditioned?

The answer is: Sign them up for an early date in San Francisco or Los Angeles, and let them have it out. Despite the stories that have been told in connection with McGovern's mental incapacity, there are quite a number who believe that the Brooklyn whirlwind retains sufficient of his fighting ability to entitle him to the respect of Master Jimmy Britt.

As for Britt, he must feel that the bout with Terry needs explaining, and the best way to explain the affair would be with Terry himself as a model. Another thing, Jimmy can hardly begin to agitate for a return match with Battling Nelson until he has cleaned up with McGovern.

W. W. NAUGHTON.

GIVE HIM TRIAL.

"Al" Cummings Will Pitch First Game of Winnipeg Series.

"Al" Cummings, the former Duluth high school twirler, has returned from Wisconsin university for the summer and will be given a trial in the box against Winnipeg on Monday.

Cummings pitched good ball for the university last year, and if he makes good this season, a place may be found for him on the regular team, although the men are playing such good ball that the management is loath to make any changes at present.

There were rumors that he was to pitch for Calumet, but Duluth has first call on his services.

Calumet, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Artie O'Dea's White Sox from the Head of the Lakes again took Calumet into camp yesterday afternoon and by so doing jumped into the position at the head of the percentage column. The score was 2 to 1, in a game replete with sensational plays and teeming with interest.

Krick, the Duluth pitcher, was the star performer. He was exceedingly stingy in allowing hits and the almost perfect support accorded him by his team mates helped him out considerably. But four hits were given the Aristocrats, and with the exception of the seventh inning, they were unable to bunch them. He was inclined to be wild at times, but when men were on bases, he tied an anchor on the ball and saw that it landed in the alley every time. The four Aristocrats who were passed, failed to do anything toward putting their team in the lead.

Summers furnished the greater part of the sensational plays. The little fellow had the fans on their feet time and again with spectacular stabs and stops and he pulled down some that looked like good hits. Bobbie Vorpagel, Calumet's third baseman, was Summers' understudy, his batting and base running being one of the features of the game.

Jimmy Foulkes was doing the work for Calumet and he pitched great ball, but his hoodoo pursued him. The White Sox touched him for nine singles, but they were well scattered and had it not been for errors by his team mates he might possibly have won his game. He tightened up wonderfully, when there was danger of the White Sox increasing their lead and all through, his work was of gilt edged order.

The White Sox scored their first in the fifth inning Vorpagel missed Lovett's rather sharp grounder. Lovett stole second base and took another on a wild throw. Adams' little single to center let him score the first run. It looked for a while as though Calumet would tie the score in its half when Mutter hit to center and reached third on Barto's fumble of the hit. The Aristocrats went out in one-two-three order, however, letting Mutter die on the base.

In the sixth, the White Sox again scored. Livingstone cracked one out to center, which landed him on second base. O'Dea singled to center, sending Livingstone home for the last run. The Aristocrats scored their run in the seventh. Vorpagel hit safely to left and stole second. Slear's two bagger to the left field fence sent him home.

HARD LUCK HANSEN.

Fargo Twirler Pitches Good Ball But Loses His Game.

Houghton, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—An error by Fitzgerald, Fargo's only misplay of the game, cost the Invalids yesterday's game with Houghton. With the score a tie in Houghton's half of the tenth, and two down, Kippert sent an easy one down to the shortstop. Fitzgerald first fumbled it and then threw wild, allowing Kippert to go to second. Whitmore sent a short one into the infield and Hansen threw it first. McGraw called the runner safe and in the meantime, Kippert was racing for home. He hit the dirt just as the ball landed in Edward's mitt and McGraw again called safe, giving Houghton the victory in one of the most sensational finishes seen at Ripley park this year.

It was Peter Hansen's hard luck again. The little fellow pitched great ball and should have won, considering his support and the poor quality of ball which Houghton played. In only two innings were the Giants able to get to him for safe ones. Then they did bunch with a vengance, for two two baggers in the fifth and a two bagger and two singles in the eighth netted them the three scores, which equaled Fargo's total.

Rube Barry was working for Houghton and only his ability to pull himself out of tight pinches saved him the game. Eleven hits did Stripp's men touch him for, and, coupled with the seven errors made by the Giants, they gave the big southpaw plenty of opportunity to display his ability to keep his head and pitch ball with men on bases. Twice with men on second and third, Barry struck out the last man up, and thus saved himself from defeat, and in only three innings of the ten were there no Fargo men holding down sacks when the side retired. The big fellow had the Trolly Dodgers swinging on a big in drop and eleven of them went out by putting the air in circulation around the plate.

WIN FROM PATRIOTS.

Grand Forks Takes First, Thanks to Bushelman's Fine Pitching.

Hancock, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bushelman had everything his own way with Hancock last night, and but for dumb plays would have shut the Patriots out. Rogers was hit hard, but stupid base running on the part of the Browns held the score. The catch by Miller of Ware's drive was the feature.

CROSS RECORD MARRED AFTER TWENTY-TWO YEARS

Chicago, June 16.—When Umpire Evans put Lave Cross out of the White Sox-Washington game on the South Side grounds Tuesday for disputing a questionable decision, one of the cleanest records in the history of baseball received its first blot. Cross has been one of the best-known characters of the diamond for twenty-two years, and was never put out of a game until the twelfth inning of Tuesday's heated conflict. On account of the Washington third baseman's even temper on the ball field and sportsmanlike qualities he has been a favorite around the circuits of the major leagues. He was crestfallen when ordered from the game by Evans and scarcely knew what the penalty meant, as it had never been meted out to him before, though he had gone through a score of pennant fights and world's championship battles.

Trotter Is Sold.

"Mary Joyce," a speedy trotting mare, owned by Frank Freecker, was sold to Mayor Frank Ansley of the village of Hibbing, this week, and Mayor Ansley will probably enter her this summer in any races which may be held on the range, or in any of the towns in the northern part of the state.

AMERICA'S LEADING BROOD MARE IS DEAD

Lexington, Ky., June 16.—Cinderella, queen of the stud book, is dead.

The most successful and valuable of thoroughbred brood mares was her glorious reputation.

Made her owner, a struggling physician in a country town, a wealthy capitalist in a few years.

She cost $500 and returned to him $150,000.

She paid for every inch of $50 acres of blue grass land owned by Dr. J. D. Neet, the now famous Versailles (Ky.) breeder and turfman.

Her produce sum far over $100,000 on the turf and no less than four of her sons now rank among America's most valuable sires.

The most costly monument ever erected in memory of a horse is to mark her grave at Kindergarten Stud.

Here is her stud record:

| | Sold for |
|---|---|
| 1889—Foreigner | $5,000 |
| 1890—Ferrier | 5,000 |
| 1892—Handsome | 12,500 |
| 1893—Hastings | 37,000 |
| 1894—Chelsea | 5,000 |
| 1895—Plaudit | 25,000 |
| 1896—Glenheim | 15,000 |
| 1897—Dan Reagan | 6,000 |
| 1898—Glass Slipper (running qualities only | 5,000 |
| 1900—East India (running qualities only) | 5,000 |
| 1902—Migraine | 10,000 |
| 1903—Fairy Price | 5,000 |
| 1904—Slippers | 5,000 |

She was barren the first year she was bred. In 1888, and she had no foal in 1891, 1899, 1901, 1905 and 1906.

Dr. Neet sent her this season to Elmendorf Stud to be bred to Waterboy. Later he received a message from C. H. Berryman, manager of that establishment, to the effect that the Brighton handicap winner was impotent. Dr. Nest then ordered her to be bred to Africander, but that horse's book proved full, and he then sent her to Horse Haven Farm and mated her to Ethelbert, and she was presumed to be in foal to Perry Belmont's great race horse when she died. Cinderella was 21 years old. Early last winter she was in rather poor condition, but she soon recovered her health and was in first-class fix seemingly up to within an hour of her death. She died of heart disease.

Of her famous produce Hastings is the premier sire of A. Belmont's Nursery Stud, and in 1902, he headed the list of American winning sires; Plaudit is a star in the noted Hamburg Stud by J. E. Madden; Glenheim is owned by H. S. Oxnard, the multi-millionaire treasurer of the Sugar Trust; Migraine is also at Hamburg Place; Handsome is at the head of Dr. Neet's Kindergarten Stud; Glass Slipper and East India are broodmares in Kindergarten Stud, and Fairy Prince, now a three-year-old, and Slippers, a two-year-old of this season, are both in the racing stable of Harry Payne Whitney. Of her other produce, Dan Reagan and Chelsea both were gelded, while Forteigner and Ferrier are dead, the latter dying the property of W. S. Hobart, the San Mateo, Cal., breeder, who purchased him to place at the head of his stud. In the thirteen foals she produced, Cinderella never dropped but three fillies, and for six straight years she dropped in succession a half dozen stud colts. No matter what she was bred to she produced a sensational horse. Ferrier was by Fonso, Hastings by Spendthrift, Plaudit by Himyar, Handsome and Glenheim by Hanover, and Migraine by Imp. Topgallant. At 17 years of age, the late W. C. Whitney offered Dr. Neet $15,000 for the celebrated mare. Dr. Neet wrote the noted New York turfman that the principal living things he possessed were his wife, daughter and Cinderella, and he could not break up the family. Later on Whitney leased the breeding qualities of the mare for $10,000, and she was sent to his La Belle Stud, being returned to Dr. Neet in the summer of 1904, the breeding contract being canceled at the death of Whitney.

Cindrella was bred by Sir Thomas Throgmorton, of England. In 1886, Alfred Withers, of London, sent to Egmont Lawrence in this country to sell ten brood mares and two yearling fillies. The last named two were Cinderella and Sarentella, the latter himself the dam of ten winners. Both were purchased shortly after their arrival in Lexington by Dr. Neet, he paying $500 for Cinderella and $400 for the dam of Handsel. Cinderella was broken and handled by John Clay in the training stable of the late Major B. G. Thomas, and showed to have much speed in her work. Dr. Neet, however, had bought her for a brood mare and would not permit her to race. As a result she never faced the starter's flag.

None of her daughters as yet are old enough in the stud to have representatives on the turf. Glass Slipper now has at Kindergarten Stud, a suckling bay colt by Dom De Oro, and East India has at her side a bay colt by Ethelbert. Dr. Neet bred Glass Slipper this season to the latter horse, while he mated East India to imp. Star Shoot. He has ten foals by Cinderella's son, Handsome, this year.

Cinderella was of double parentage, being sired by Blue Ruin or Tommahawk, while her dam Hanna was a daughter of Spendthrift, who belongs to the No. 21 family of the Bruce Lowe figure system. What Pocahontas and Queen Mary were in England, Cinderella was in this country, and she has left an impress an racing in America as lasting as time itself.

The monument Dr. Neet will erect to perpetuate her memory will be mounted with a pedestal in bronze, a reproduction of the famous mare in life, taken from the last photograph made of her in her paddock at Kindergarten Farm.

RIVALRY AMONG STAR JOCKEYS

Miller and Radtke Having Hot Fight for Supremacy.

New York, June 16.—In the old days, it used to be "Snapper" Garrison and Fred Taral at each other's throats in a nerve war on jockey rivalry. Just now, metropolitan racegoers are looking on at an intensely interesting fight for supremacy between Jockey Herman Radtke and Jockey Walter Miller. In fact, New York is not alone concerned, for the strife of mastery between these two little men is something of an intersectional affair, Miller being the hero of the Californians, while the trainers hereabouts and those from off the New Orleans and Hot Springs racing ground say there is none other like Radtke. So bitter has become the feeling between the two jockeys that they do not now exchange the word of the day as they meet, while it is no unusual thing to find bookmakers in the ring making a sideshow quotation against Miller beating Radtke, or vice versa, while doing a general business on the result of the running of the horses.

Whenever the two youngsters appear under silks in the same race, a great scurrying to the railside follows for a view of the tilt between them. Inspiring are some of the finishes they put up, while the women regulars in the grandstand—the riders are split favorites there—all but resort to hair pulling in order to emphasize loyalty to their hero. Never before has the racing ground witnessed anything like the heated temper of this rousing competitive fight between Miller and Radtke. Miller is a product of South Brooklyn, N. Y., whence came "Terry" McGovern, the former featherweight champion, whose recent battle here with "Jimmy" Britt served to display the gameness for which the sons of this district are noted, "Willie" Keeler, the great batsman, and many other noted celebrities of the world of sport. He was apprenticed to the stable of "Billy" Stanton three years ago, and after two winters of riding in California, and a season here last year, he came to hand early this spring about the most finished output of the jockey-making mill one might care to see. Miller is 18 years of age, weighs 100 pounds, and will earn for his employers upward of $200,000 this year, about a quarter of which will find its way to his own personal bank account.

At the outset, Stanton disposed of his contract on the boy's services to Trainer "Tom" Welsh, acting for the Newcastle stable, in which Andrew Miller, steward of the jockey club; Blair Paintor and Frank Bishop of Pittsburg, Pa., are jointly interested. It was the very best thing for Miller, inasmuch as he had the pick of the very best horses owned by the millionaires friendly with Andrew Miller. Miller is a short, squatty fellow, but with a natural deftness for anything of an athletic turn. For instance, early this week, "Tom" Welsh, when discussing the riding prodigy, said: "Here is something about Miller. Before he took to race riding he was the best kid ball player in Brooklyn, and no boy of his weight could outbox him. Then, again, he was only roller skating down at Coney island three nights until he was doing spin wheels and fancy tricks. In other words, good jockeys and high class athletes are born, not made." Radtke is a leanfaced, tall, dignified sort of boy. The money-mad Raineys bought the contract on his services from J. O. Keene of Lexington, Ky., for $25,000 last April. He is under the direct tutelage of "Bud" May. Like Miller, he is a deft manipulator of the race horse in action. With hands as soft as that of a woman, with intuition akin to that of an inspired artist, this boy can make horses win which would be 50 to 1 outside chances in the hands of another jockey. He is a native of Boegin, Germany, and was discovered by Keene two years ago.

A winter season in California really started Radtke to greatness. The successive defeats of the $45,000 De Mund when ridden by Radtke caused a momentary depreciation of his stock, but now the public race bettors are with him again. Last Monday at Belmont park the two rivals engaged in a hot chase for honors. Miller rode four winners and two seconds, but Radtke won the stake event of the day. This was with James R. Keene's filly, Court Dress, in the Gaiety stakes. Radtke outfinished Miller, who had the mount on Barbary Belle, but a half hour later the adherents of Miller had a chance to laugh back at the followers of Radtke, for Miller on Mintla clearly outgeneraled the Rainy jockey on Entree in a stretch duel which brought 10,000 racegoers to foot. From now on the striving of these star jockeys will stand as one of the big sidelights of the routine of racing hereabouts.

WAS BADLY MANGLED.

William Jeffries Was Instantly Killed at the Hull Mine.

Eveleth, Minn., June 16.—William Jeffries was instantly killed at the Hull pit, where he was employed as a brakeman. He was standing on an embankment near the track and gave the engineer a signal to come ahead. After the train had passed, his dead body was found badly mangled as the whole train of ore cars had passed over it.

The only theory of the cause of the accident is that the man slipped from the bank on which he was standing and rolled in front of the train. Nothing is known to Mr. Jeffries or his relatives and the body now lies in the morgue while inquiry is being made for his friends.

COURTS IN CONDITION

First Tennis Tournament Will Be Held This Month.

Open Tournament Is Planned For Later in the Season.

The first club tournament of the Endion tennis club will be begun some time before the end of June, and the drawings for the event will probably be made during the latter part of next week.

The courts have been in first class shape this week. The warm dry weather, has made them firm and hard, and they are in condition for fast play.

Throughout the week they have been the rendezvous of the members, and this afternoon they will probably be crowded until after nightfall.

The first tournament is for the championship of the club, and it promises to bring out some good tennis this year. Nearly all of last year's cracks are still members of the club this season, and there are some new men who are showing up well, among whom are Knapp and Chaffee, two players who are making the old members hurry to hold the pace.

On the showing made in the first club tournament, the members will be divided in two classes, A and B, and in the remaining tournaments held during the summer, there will be a special event for each class.

Some time during the summer an open tournament will probably be held, to which outside players will be invited. The date for this has not been definitely chosen as yet.

SOON REACH THE FINALS

Play in Open Golf Tournament Is Making Good Progress.

Big Preparations Are Being Made For Celebrating July 4.

The finals in the club championship tournament of the Northland Country club, will probably be reached by tomorrow.

By defeating A. M. Miller, Jr., yesterday afternoon, after a very close and exciting game, L. J. Hopkins went into the final round of the tournament. His opponent is not yet known, but will be either T. W. Hoopes, Ward Ames, Jr., D. G. Cutler, Jr., or E. P. Towne. These four have to play off, and the winner will meet Mr. Hopkins in the final round.

The Hopkins-Miller match yesterday was a tie on the eighteenth hole. The next two holes were divided, and it was not until the third extra hole had been played that Hopkins finally won out.

The opening games in the women's handicap were also played yesterday afternoon. The results were as follows:

Mrs. Winton defeated Mrs. Hegardt; Mrs. Hoopes won from Mrs. Lesile; Mrs. Cole beat Mrs. Cutler; Mrs. Hopkins bested Mrs. White, and Mrs. J. C. A. Crosby defeated Mrs. Swift.

* * *

Big preparations are being made for July 4. An all day tournament will be held, beginning in the morning. All of the members who care to enter, will play in the qualifying round of nine holes, in the morning. The sixteen players making the lowest scores will be entered in the first round in the afternoon, and divided into two classes of eight each. These two classes will play down in the semi finals and finals, and a cup will be awarded the winner in each class. There will also be a cup for the player making the lowest score on medal play in the qualifying round in the morning.

The day's program will also include putting, approaching and driving contests, and there will be a supper and dance in the evening.

* * *

The course will be in good condition by this afternoon. The heavy rains of last week made the growth of grass very luxurious, but a force of men has been at work for the last few days, mowing it and putting the greens into shape.

RACE BETWEEN SMALL LAUNCHES

"Little Joe" Operated By Young Ladies Wins First Place.

No attempt was made to pull off any rowing races at the boat club last evening, on the occasion of the opening dance, but some of the crews were out and covered the course, to give an exhibition row.

A very interesting feature, however, was the race between five "mosquito" launches. The launches are all of the same size, and quite a little rivalry has sprung up among their owners. They started from the boat club float, rounded a buoy about a mile away, and returned to the club house. The "Little Joe," run by Miss Gertrude Kriz, and steered by Miss Delia Bastabale, distanced all of its competitors and finished first, much to the delight of the spectators. The young men in the other boats ascribed the victory to their chivalry, but that didn't prevent them using paddles.

Outlaws Making Trouble for Promoters of Organized Baseball.

Tim Murnane Advises a Raid on the Tri-State League.

Boston, June 16.—Word comes from the Pennsylvania outlaw baseball league of six clubs, to the effect that they have once more put on the war paint and have taken the road to make trouble for the thirty-six leagues under organized baseball. While organized ball remained on the defensive it rather pleased the independent clubs, but once the major leagues decided to go after the outlaws it soon became a different proposition.

The Hayden case is a part of baseball history. This player was among those to be blacklisted for jumping contracts. The player at once appealed to the national commission for a hearing, and showed that the Brooklyn club for several years farmed him out against his will when several major league clubs were willing to give him a chance. Then, too, farming was against the law, and in several ways Hayden made it plain that he had been treated badly and jumped after giving the Baltimore club fair warning. The commission turned down all other applicants for a hearing and asked Hayden to rest his case for one year, when there is little doubt but that he will be reinstated.

Hayden went back to the outlaws, but was not in good standing, as the backers of that league knew the players's feelings in the matter and were confident he would join organized ball at the first opportunity. The player addressed a letter some time ago to Chairman Herrmann, saying that unless the commission allowed him to return to organized baseball the chances were that he would have to retire from the business, as he found himself handicapped among the outlaws.

Hayden is the only man who jumped a contract to be considered by those looking for talent among the outlaws. Players under reservation are considered the property of organized ball. The men who jump reservation are not blacklisted and can come back. Many of those players come from minor league clubs, who are willing to sell their claims to major league clubs, who are better able to fight it out with the Pennsylvania league, and this is what bothers the outlaws, for now, instead of having the minors for opponents, they must go against the powerful major league clubs. As the gate money will fall far short of meeting expenses the backers of the clubs will not only have to keep handing out money, but they will never be sure of a ball team.

Under organized ball this league would be a sucess. They would furnish better ball where the players could be held in check, and the gate money pay the running expenses.

There is only one way to bring outlaws to time, and that is to keep right after them good and hard with agents right in their camps every moment, for any ball player that will jump to that country will be anxious to jump back after a month's sojourn.

Organized ball should go further and make a mark of two or three of those Pennsylvania clubs, those clubs backed by wealthy boys, just to see how long they will stand the back wash when their teams are not winning. That's what hurts —a loser—and by picking off the good ones it is certain to bother the dude backers of the game.

The queer thing about baseball this year is the way the pitchers are being hit and yet the poor batting averages of the players. There is not a pitcher in either league but what is getting his bumps this season. Men that were practically invincible last season are in and outers this year. Speedy pitching counts for very little in the game any longer. Those pitchers with a cross fire have bothered the batsmen most, but this style of work, like the spit ball, soon wears a man out until he is of little use to his team.

Years ago pitchers depended on change of base and good head work, and it is coming back to the old style once more. The long-drawn-out preliminary motion bothered the batsman for a while, but the regulars are no longer phased with this winding-up business, and now pay little attention to the pitcher until he is about ready to send the ball in. I am inclined to think that unnecessary swinging of the arm before delivering the ball is wearing on the pitcher, and will shorten his days of usefulness. Radbourn, Clarkson, Keefe, Welsh, McCormick, Nichols, Galvin and a string of clever box men of the past were of this belief. Last year Christy Mathewson was by all oddds the most effective box man in the profession, and his swing was natural and short.

Speaking of the New York pitcher, what a misfortune that he should give out this season. It was a treat last year to see him work. Now the best he can do is to get them over the plate, with all his knowledge of little account, owing to either lack of force or a bad wing.

Last fall John T. Brush could have sold the release of Mathewson for $25,000. Now the chances are that he would not get as many hundred dollars for the same man. I never heard of a great pitcher breaking up as abruptly as Mathewson, and, while his downfall is a serious loss to the game, yet it has turned the race in the National league from a procession to a very interesting affair, with four teams instead of one out for the honors. Ball teams are as much dependent on their batteries as ships are on their rudders. Waddell went bad, and the Athletics soon came back to the bunch, and so it goes. Let the great pitchers go bad, and its all off with the best of clubs. The playing of the New York Giants in the face of Mathewson's failure to hold his end up,

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

May Production Shows Increase Over April in Both Tonnage and Value---Newhouse Tunnel Has Made Good Advance.

Colorado Springs, June 16.—The Cripple Creek May production was 52,550 tons of ore, worth $1,638,550 gross. This is an increase over April in both tonnage and value, notwithstanding the reduction in capacity of ore treatment plants to handle the product. The same increased output may be expected in June and July, while in August the Golden Cycle mill will add 500 tons daily capacity, and in September the United States Reduction and Refining company's plant will add an equal amount. By that time the $75,000 addition to the Portland mill will be in operation.

The Newhouse tunnel was advanced 200 feet during May. Its completion is of the utmost importance to Idaho Springs district mining.

The Raymond Consolidated Mining company's tunnel in the Gold Brick district, between Idaho City and Pitkin, is in 2,000 feet, and has cut numerous paying veins. Sufficient ore is in sight to keep the company's 100-ton mill running for several months. During May the mill turned out 500 ounces of gold, and 200 tons of $50 a ton concentrates.

The Gold Link tunnel is penetrating the same formation a mile above the Raymond. It is in 1,700 feet, and is cutting the same veins. This tunnel will cut the Sacramento vein also at 1,100 feet depth. This vein has a production record of $1,000,000. The Carter tunnel, a mile below the Raymond, is meeting with like results.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Golden Placer Company Meeting With Satisfactory Results in Deadwood Gulch---New Strikes on Dakota Mining Company's Property.

Deadwood, S. D., June 16.—The Golden Placer company, which is operating in Deadwood Gulch, is meeting with satisfactory results. The men reached bedrock a few days ago in a new opening, and the results from both panning and assays were good. An old shaft was entered, and through this the bedrock penetrated four feet, thus bringing the workings below those of the early day miners, who took out large amounts of gold on this same property. After the pay shoot was located thirty-seven buckets of gravel were hoisted and washed, and resulted in the recovery of one and three-quarter ounces of coarse placer gold. Aside from the placer the concentrates assayed $7.80 a ton.

Lead, S. D., June 16.—Almost every day authentic reports are received of new strikes on the property of the Dakota Mining company. The work of sinking on a vertical which protrudes through the flat formation was recently begun, and at a depth of twenty feet the vein was opened up to a great width. It has already been crosscut twenty feet, with no signs of the side walls, and the vein matter is exceptionally rich. The strike was made on the Mono claim.

Two holes are being drilled so that in case of a cave-in one or the other work will not suspend entirely.

At the Cochise, sinking and drifting continues steadily, the work in the drift going ahead at an average of about 30 feet per week. There is no change reported in the formation in the drift, except that the ground is more broken up. It still continues to be heavily mineralized and there is a strong showing of lime in the face. The Cochise shaft is now down over 500 feet, and work continues uninterruptedly.

The old standby of the district, the Copper Queen, does little aside from the regular pushing of development and production that furnishes anything of a news nature to the mining interested public. Ore is shipped to the rate of 1575 tons daily. This has been the record for the month just passed, and there seems to be no intention of the company to increase this output. As a matter of fact, this amount of ore shipments meets very nearly what the company considers an ideal shipment under present conditions. Last month's record at the smelters shows a production of 8,200,000 pounds of copper matte. Work on the new precipitation plant has been completed and the delivery of old metal to be used there continues daily. The working of the slag dump has reached a point where 300 tons daily is considered the average shipment.

The smelters in Douglas have just closed the largest month's business since they were put in commission. Notwithstanding the output for the month is the largest in the history of the two plants, there is promise of steady increase for several months to come. At the Calumet & Arizonia the output for May was 3,800,000 pounds. Here a new furnace has been completed and ready to receive the ore and blast as soon as the necessary power can be supplied. The delay in starting this furnace was caused by the necessity of taking two large boilers away from the smelters some weeks ago for use at one of the mines in Bisbee. As soon as these boilers can be replaced the new furnace will be started, when the output will be increased twenty-five per cent or more.

In addition to the new blast furnace now ready at the Calumet & Arizona it is known that the company is about ready to begin the work of providing a reverberatory furnace for the treatment of flue dust, slag and also certain character of ores taken from the Bisbee mines. Superintendent James Woods is now in Butte, Montana, where reverberatory furnaces are used extensively and with satisfactory results. Before going to Butte Mr. Wood visited Morenci and made examination of the reverberatory furnace recently installed by the Detroit Copper company. This furnace is said to be giving excellent results.

The Copper Queen in Douglas are also getting ready to add several reverberatory furnaces to their plant. The new railroad track which is intended to bring ore to the feed floor of the Calumet & Arizona is now about complete, the steel rail being laid, but it will be some time before this new method of conveying ore to the furnaces is put in operation.

MINING IN UTAH

Salt Lake, June 16.—During the five months that the Daly-Judge Mining company has been producing and marketing ore and concentrates it has practically cleaned up its indebtedness of $231,000, and kept a vigorous campaign of development in new territory moving. Secretary G. W. Lambourne states that the last of the outstanding bonds will be taken up and canceled.

Early this month a strike was made on the 300-foot level below the tunnel workings of the Columbus Consolidated at Alta, which is considered of the greatest importance, not only to the Columbus company, but to the camp as well. Massive bodies of first class shipping ore, ore that has netted the company an average of $35 a ton for nearly 3,000 tons shipped last year in doing development work, have been opened up on the 100 and 200-foot levels below the tunnel. The vein on the 300-foot level has now been cross-cut for over fifteen feet, and average samples taken of the mass as it is broken with matching drills, runs 17 per cent copper, twenty ounces silver and $2 to $6 in gold, the latter metal varying in the samples taken, but counted upon to average better than $3.

The Columbus company now has forty-two four-horse teams hauling ore down the canon to the sampling works at Sandy, and, while the roads are yet in bad condition, an average of about $3,000 worth of ore a day is finding its way to the smelters.

The annual meeting of the Uncle Sam Consolidated company was held last week. The report showed that the company's mines at Tintic had produced 5,796 tons of crude ore and concentrates which sold for $126,830. Since last fall, when the company resumed payments, dividends aggregating $45,000 have been paid. The treasury holds a surplus of approximately $20,000, and the superintendent's report indicated that the mine is capable of supplying the ore necessary to continue the monthly distribution of $5,000 for an indefinite period. The old directors of the company were unanimously re-elected.

ALASKA MINING

Seattle, June 16.—Reports from the Nome mines are of the most cheerful character. Sluicing has commenced, and the season promises to surpass anything in the history of Alaska. The new strikes on the Holyoke come up to all reports, and the winter product of the Peninsula exceeds $4,000. It is thought the Nome district will go beyond $5,000,000. This starts the Pioneer company off with nearly $1,400,000. Discovery claim gives $900,000, while Ault Fraction and Portland give $500,000. Eleven claims are included in the Besse Bench claims, lying along the third bench three miles north of Nome. On the Second Bench line there is an output of nearly $500,000, including the Candle product.

The strike of the winter was on the Besse Bench. This strike is over 200 feet wide and seven feet deep, with four feet of beach wash and three feet of creek wash. The ground blocked out for the summer is considered good for a round million This claim was bought originally for the cost of assessment, and the total value is now placed at $4,000,000. Pans of $20 are of common occurrence.

The indications are that there are four pay streaks between the present beach line and the foothills, while the mining mainly has been done in the tundra. The large companies are leasing the tundra by the acre and are going to give it a thorough test. About 100 new prospecting outfits are now operating, and many of them are meeting with great success.

The Santa Clara has sailed for Seward, with Charles Lane, the veteran miner, aboard. He is bound for Susitna and Gentna. He is going to the Hurrah group, which he sold last fall for $400,000. This propterty is twenty-three miles from Seward and is regarded as the leading mine in the Susitna district. Besides a large passenger list, the vessel also carries a large lot of men to work an the Alaska Central.

MINING IN IDAHO

Boise, June 16.—The Big Creek mining district of Idaho county is attracting attention. It was believed formerly that the camp was one of low grade ore only, but the developments of the past season have shown much high grade ore with enormous bodies of low grade. Good ore is now being mined on Profile Government, Logan Smith, Casche, Beaver and Ramey creeks, all tributary to Big Creek.

The quartz ledges are fillings of great fissures, many of which will average from fifty to two hundred feet between the walls. Many of these large ledges carry large shoots of high grade ore ,the remainder of the ledge being good milling ore of a low grade.

The State wagon road, which will be completed early in the season, will mark a new era in the development of the camp. Heretofore the district has been isolated.

THE LAKE COPPER MINES

county, for the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, are progressing rapidly. Considerable machinery has been delivered at Ontonagon and indications are that work will be conducted on an extensive scale. Charles S. Smith of Oconto, Wis., has arrived at the property to take charge of the work. Cole & McDonald of Duluth, who have the contract for the diamond drill work, have part of their outfit on the ground. Two drills are to be used and a thorough test of the Nonesuch's copper values will be made by cross section work. In addition, some of the old shafts will be conducted on as openings are down a few hundred feet and will permit an examination of the copper values at that depth. If the prospects are favorbale it is likely that some of the openings will be extended. Some of the old buildings on the Nonesuch location have been repaired to accommodate the forces of men which will be employed by the Calumet & Hecla company and Cole & McDonald.

Work of equipping the new stamp mill of the Victoria company in Ontonagon county is practically completed and the machinery will be tested this week. The rock bins are full, but some minor adjustments of the working equipment will be made before the plant is placed in regular service. The mill is built substantially and equipped with modern appliances for concentrating the copper values. One head is installed and there is room for another. While it has been claimed for the Victoria that its rock is abnormally rich in copper values, the openings underground show fairly good mineralization, and it is believed that the low operating costs resulting from the Taylor hydraulic power plant, will permit good profits. There is a large tonnage of milling grade of rock blocked out underground in the mine.

Sinking in the shaft on the property of the Lake Copper company in Ontonagon county has passed the fourth level, 400 feet beneath the surface, and is under way to the fifth level. Sinking has been in good copper ground continuously since work was resumed by the present organization and fifty feet of excellent stamp rock, with mass and barrel copper, has been opened.

Diamond drill work on the Lake company's property has reached a depth of 1,000 feet. Preparations are being made to start a second hole in theseries which will be opened to gain a cross section of the property. There is very little overburden where the second hole will be started and no difficulty should be experienced with the work there. But at other points the overburden is excessively heavy and because of this condition it may be decided to rig up a larger outfit at the first hole and drive the opening to greater depth. In this manner the same results would be secured as by the more difficult process of starting a new hole through the heavy overburden.

ACTIVITY IN BONANZA

the location of the shafts have been made, active work has not yet been commenced, but it is announced that an order for machinery has already been placed and is expected in Globe during the present month.

H. B. Hovland has been in Duluth for the past two weeks working out the details of the organization of the company. Advices received here are to the effect that the official announcement of the organization will be made not later than June 20. There has been a clamor for the stock among local investors, and the allotment for Bisbee has been oversubscribed for some time.

Morgan Clements, expert for the company, still remains at Globe, and it is reported that he will be in charge of the operations for the new company in that locality.

At the Wolverine but little development is being done. During the past week work was discontinued on the 500, it being the general impression that the visit of Director B. F. Chenoweth is responsible for abandoning temporarily drifting at that level. Crosscutting on the 200, however, continues and is being pushed in the direction of the Czar fault. The 300 drift is now in porphyry, and nothing is looked for until the fault is encountered. This drift has been driven to a distance of 1,500 feet. On the Warren claim two drill holes are down to a depth of 300 feet.

BUTTE MINING DISTRICT

ling was said about striking ore on the 1,200, but it is known that the company expects to cut the north vein at any hour.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Raven Mining company the old board of directors was re-elected and also the old officers. These officers and directors are: President, William D. Thornton; vice president and general manager of the company's property, John Berkin; secretary and treasurer, Charles Mattison; directors, Charles Schultz of Butte, E. C. Frisbee of Hartford, Conn.; C. J. Root of Bristol, Conn., and Charles E. Morris of Pony. The officers are also members of the board.

During the session Manager Berkin submitted a report of operations for the past year, a portion of which follows:

"During the past year no mining has been done in the Raven claim, all activity having been confined to the work of development and operation upon and within the veins that lie and apex within the boundaries of the Snoozer claim, for the reason that this property lies more nearly contiguous to the extensive ore bodies of the Mountain Consolidated properties of the Amalgamated company, and, therefore because of the least acquired by us upon the main shaft and equipment of the Buffalo mine of that company, we were enabled to develop the veins of the Snoozer lode to greater depth and more economically than would have been possible through the workings we possess and by our own equipment.

"With regard to the development of ore bodies, I will state that in the upper parts of the veins the lead matter is oxydized and carries only irregular and irregularly mineralized ores, usually of small value. This is particularly the case with regard to the development at the 500 and 800-foot levels; and I may state further that important bodies of ore have been discovered only on the 1,200-foot level workings of the Snoozer claim. It will be thus noted that the ores of the Raven Mining company thus far developed during the last year follow in their characteristics the history of the mineralization of nearly all the important ore bodies of the Butte district, in that their values have been leached from the upper portions of the veins and carried downward to be redeposited at greater depths.

"On the 1,200-foot level, both east and west from the main crosscut from the Buffalo shaft and in both north and south veins as well, important developments of copper ores of excellent grade have been made.

"Shipments of ore from the 1,200 and 1,500-foot levels have been made to the smelters in any quantity only since April 1. These ores, which are an average of the ores of the Butte district, have been extracted during the ordinary process of development from the workings of the mine, no stoping having been done until recent date. We are now shipping 130 tons per day, and this quantity will be increased to at least 200 tons as rapidly as arrangements therefor can be made."

The ore coming from the property averages about 4 per cent copper and from 8 to 10 ounces of silver and from $1 to $1.50 in gold per ton. Some of it, of course, is more than double, while some is lower.

low the sand before any drilling is done. The showing at the Baker, which it is assured from diamond drill tests will become an important producer, has been responsible for a considerable rush for lands in the vicinity latterly. Most of these holdings have been secured for the steel corporation, which was once held by Baker, but a particularly choice tract in the heart of Section 30 is held by Pickands, Mather & Co.

The Lamont mine, a Crystal Falls property of Corrigan, McKinley & Co., seems to be on "its last legs." It was never a very large property, and for two levels past the ore body has been narrowing until it is down where it hardly pays to sink the shaft in the jasper footwall to get out what ore there is on the succeeding levels. It is probable that the present level will be the last one to which the shaft will be sunk unless something new develops. The property has been given a thorough latteral test with a diamond drill, and as soon as the lens pinches out, a drill will be used to test the formation at greater depth. It is hoped that a lens will be found below the present measure, but Superintendent Richards has little faith that such will be the case. At the company's Armenia property, also, the physical condition is not the best. The levels, driven when the mine was last operated, have crushed in many places, the soft ore not standing up well, and this necessitates much extra work. It is the intention to sink the shaft another hundred feet in the hope that the ore at that point will be found of better quality, the product now mined containing such a large percentage of silica that its market is limited. At the old Fairbanks property, the shaft has been sunk an additional hundred feet and drifting is in progress to cut the ore body opened on the level above. It will be two months yet before an estimate of the worth of the mine can be made. The other and larger mines of the company are in most excellent condition, and this year will make the largest output in their history.

The double-compartment shaft which the Jones & Laughlin company is sinking at the Rolling Mill property at Negaunee, Marquette range, to cut an ore deposit located as a result of diamond drill work, has attained a depth of upwards of 525 feet, an average of 55 feet per month having been maintained since the sod was cut. The permanent plant of machinery which is to do duty here is being transferred from the company's East End Lake Angeline mine at Ishpeming, together with the building which has housed it, but it will be three months before it will be in readiness for service at the new location. The shaft will not penetrate the ore body much before this time, if at all.

Within a few weeks there will be but the bases of the stone structures. All the iron, brick and other material that can be made use of are being removed. The machinery was taken out last summer. The plant was built many years ago and has not been in commission since 1898, when in ten and one-half months it produced 22,608 tons of charcoal pig iron. It is the property of the Steel Corporation's Lake Superior Iron company. Some twenty years ago this company put down a diamond drill hole on property on West Superior street, Ishpeming, now devoted to residential purposes. A depth of 400 feet was attained, but no ore was encountered. Preparations are now under way to asume the work and sink the hole to greater depth in the hope that a valuable deposit will be located.

The new hoisting plant for the Cliffs Shafts mine of the Cleveland Cliffs company has been erected and is now going into commission. Its installation has required about three weeks' time, for the greater part of which period no hoisting has been done. The output of the mine per man will be materially increased with the new plant doing duty, and in addition it is intended to increase the working force by 100 men.

The Republic Iron company, a Cambria Steel concern, has placed an order with an Ishpeming works for a fifteen-ton steel smokestack to be 150 feet high. The stack will be the heaviest ever erected at a mine on the Marquette range.

NEVADA STOCK SITUATION

hattan, so fast and voluminous were his purchases, that this time the East came too late. When the smoke cleared, it was found that the stocks of the Manhattan properties were nearly all in the hands of San Franciscans.

So, this was the situation on April 17. A large proportion of the Goldfield, Tonopah and Bullfrog stocks was held by Eastern and local capital. The greater part of the Manhattan stocks were held by San Franciscans.

Then came the San Francisco earthquake and fire. Out of food, out of clothes, their buildings and homes burned, their business temporarily ruined, San Franciscans became crazy for cash. They began selling their stocks. Mining stocks of the Manhattan properties avalanched upon the market, and, of course, the market had to break some. Even then it might not have done so if the local Tonopah, Goldfield, Bullfrog and Manhattan capitalists had been able to buy. They wanted to, bad enough. But unhappily the San Francisco banks were tied up, and the mining camps here bank largely at San Francisco. It was an exasperating situation. On one side San Francisco was pouring out stock which the local men wanted to buy, and on the other hand the same San Francisco was withholding the money with which they could have bought.

It was the torture of Tantalus over again. This has ceased now. The banks are open again. Money is obtainable, and very rapidly, indeed, it is being turned into Manhattan mining stocks. The local men are buying, and buying heavily, on every decline. They regard the situation as a picnic. A recovery is bound to result. Of course, the destruction of no city can long affect the value of Manhattan stocks. Thos stocks represent mines, these Those stocks represent mines, these mines are valuable, and the San Francisco fire has not melted the gold out of them.

There is another and subsidiary cause for the decline in stocks. This is the rapidity with which new discoveries are being made in Southwestern Nevada. At first sight, this seems a paradox, but it isn't.

The affect of opening up a new camp is always a temporary decline in the market value of the stocks of the older ones. There is, after all, only a certain amount of capital in the world. When capital pounces upon a new camp, it abandons, to a certain degree, the older ones. Thus, when Goldfield was discovered, Tonopah suffered a temporary slump. When Bullfrog was opened to the world, Goldfield suffered a temporary decline. When Manhattan sprang up it was Bullfrog that suffered. In these cases the drops were very slight and the recoveries very rapid, because each camp was well established before the new one came along. Two and a half years separated Tonopah and Goldfield, one and a half years Goldfield and Bullfrog. Not so with Manhattan, however. Manhattan came a bare six months after Bullfrog. Tonopah, Goldfield and Bullfrog were bound to feel its sudden birth. With the San Francisco disaster on top of that, it is not at all to be wondered at that Tonopah, Goldfield and Bullfrog should suffer. What is extraordinary is that the slump should be so slight. The reason for this is the heavy buying of local men who have the properties under their eyes and know that the stock is selling far below its intrinsic value. With San Francisco on its feet again in the fall, there is bound to be a sharp and big recovery.

History will repeat itself. The history of the mining camp of this part of the country has shown that slumps following the opening up of new camps are but temporary; that they are followed by brisk recoveries. Manhattan cannot prove an exception to what is an economic law. Its stocks must rise again.

KELLIHER

Kelliher, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Lennon was a Bemidji visitor last week and a delegate to the Republican county convention.

C. H. Pitkin, attorney, of Bemidji, was up Monday on legal business in connection with the proposed system of water works for the village.

Rev. Lord was here Tuesday night from Red Lake Falls and held services in the Presbyterian church.

Mesdames Lennon, Craig, Smith, McGill, Thompson and Deranche spent Saturday in Bemidji.

The dinner served by the Ladies' Aid in the Presbyterian hurch parlors Thursday last, was a decided success from a financial standpoint and also brought to light the fact that there are more good cooks in this part of the state than elsewhere.

A. B. Schusser, editor and postmaster, left Friday for a short visit to his old home at Red Lake Falls. From there he will go to Akeley to take in the G. A. R. encampment.

Mrs. A. A. McGill is enjoying a pleasant visit from a number of friends and relatives of Bemidji.

Mayor Lennon's new business block on Main street is fast nearing completion. It is a one-story frame building but finished in an up to date manner and a credit to the town. Mr. Lennon will also build a large building on Gould avenue to be occupied by Mr. Beaudette of Bemidji.

I. A. Wagner's new building on Clark avenue is nearly completed and will be occupied by Harry Provo of the Minneapolis Cedar company, and family.

The Lake Superior Iron & Coal company has purchased all of the Ross-Beltrami Cedar & Land company's cedar in the Kelliher yards and J. M. Oas is busy shipping the same.

The hunt for iron ore is still being quietly prosecuted. Only last week thirty-six quarter sections of timber changed hands but the owner received the mineral rights. All last week mineral men were here buying up mineral rights in all of Sections 1 and 2, just south of town. It was done so quietly that no one knew what was doing until every deal was closed. No mill work has been done in this vicinity but mining experts who have tramped all over the Mesaba and Vermilion and Gogebic ranges, have been here and some one man is fast acquiring title to everything. Kelliher is, in consequence, being spoken of as a town. The town is not booming it is enjoying a quiet, steady growth. Good substantial buildings are being erected, a school house that would do credit to a town of 10,000, and a system of water works will constructed that will be worth while and the city will own its own lighting plant as soon as the bonds carry and are sold.

A. P. Christianson has gone to Duluth to consult a specialist about his eyes.

A. H. Pitkin leaves Thursday for a visit at Crookston with his family.

Western dealers are coming to Kelliher for potatoes. Last week a member of the Kansas City Produce company was here trying to buy the season's crop of potatoes. There are thousands of acres of cut-over lands in this vicinity that will grow anything, but the lumber companies won't sell at any price. They look to see the country covered with shaft houses ere long and ore being produced.

Miss Maude Murray of Superior, has been engaged by the board to teach here the coming term.

On a trip overland afoot from International Falls to Kelliher, through Spooner, Beaudette and other towns on the route of trail, one is surprised at the number of empty farm houses. One will enter a clearing of ten to forty acres and find an abandoned house and if one enquires where the people have gone he will be old "gone to Canada," and ask why and they tell you lack of irrigation and good roads. Northern Minnesota is fast being depopulated to populate Northwest Canada because men elected to office to serve the interests of the people are forgetting their promises to the people. It is up to Northern Minnesota and the large cities tributary to the north end of the state to see that delegates are sent to the Wadena convention that will work and not cease to work until the crying needs of irrigation and good roads are made clearly noticeable and the state made to see that it has thousands of acres of swamp lands here that only need to be drained to become the most productive in the state. Immigration, then settlers, and the good roads will be only a matter of time. It would be well for the people of this section of the state to get together on the question to raise funds to pay expenses of delegates to the Wadena convention and send only men who are capable of explaining the situation and who know the country and how to boost.

About 20,00 0trout fry were planted in the trout streams along the Alger-Smith line last week.

William O'Brien commenced Wednesday his summer shipments of logs from Cloquet river to his Duluth mill and will ship two trainloads, or a total of about sixty carloads, per day. ## In Frogville

(A STORY WITH A MORAL.)

BY HELENA DAVIS

Mr. and Mrs. Croker had decided to leave the Pond and move into Frogville, a distance of a tenth of a mile; or, to calculate the distance according to frog measure, we would say a distance of some 500 or 600 hops.

The reason for this move was that Mrs. Croker wanted her sons and daughters to have the advantages of society that could be had in Frogville, but not in the Pond, where all the frogs were of one class and without special pride. There were no social distinctions in the Pond, each frog, young, old, handsome or plain, being on a par with his fellows.

But Mrs. Croker had for sometime been a bit snobbish, therefore unpopular with the plain, matter-of-fact frogs in the Pond. She tried to outhop her female friends, endeavoring vainly to form a new social code for a chosen few that were to be led by Mrs. Croker.

But, her efforts in this line proving unsuccessful, Mrs. Croker laid siege to her husband, and rested not till he consented to take her and their sons and daughters to Frogville to live. It was a beautiful June day on which the Croker family departed from the Pond, the place that had known them from their birth. As Mrs. Croker had done a good bit of boasting as to their future social greatness, and, vain female like, had not spared the feelings of her lifelong companions, there were none to bid them an affectionate farewell or ask them to return to the Pond if their new home should not prove to their liking. Rather did the frogs of the Pond smile gladly when the last small Croker shook the waters of the Pond from his legs and hopped away in the rear of his parents.

"We are rid of those upstarts," said one old frog, grown large and dark colored with age; "and, what is more, I make a move that we never allow them to enter this Pond again. They are sure to contaminate our youths with their foolish teachings of 'social sets' and 'who is who' notions. We are a plain and happy frogdom, enjoying many blessings, and we can't allow a self-made aristocracy to draw lines which would divide old families and staunch friends."

"Correct you are, Father Wiseacre," croaked another old frog, whereupon all the frogs within hearing distance croaked "Aye!"

But had Mrs. Croker overheard these things she would have tossed her head in the air with contempt for the speakers. "Return to that common pond?" she would have exclaimed. "Well, not if I keep my frog sense!" (She should have said frog "nonsense.")

When the Crokers arrived at Frogville, which was situated in the edge of a long railroad ditch, the inhabitants looked at them curiously. But not one of the citizens made a move toward welcoming the stranger to their town. In fact, the Crokers bore a foreign stamp, which, to the frogs of this fashionable ditch, denoted common country-pond blood and rearing. That sign in itself was sufficient to incur the disapproval of the Frogville frogs, and they openly expressed their contempt for the newcomers by glaring rudely at them and croaking loudly about the "nerve of some common country-pond hoppers in thrusting themselves among refined and highly cultivated ditch frogs."

All this unsociableness on the part of the Frogville frogs made Mr. Croker and the little Crokers quite lonely and miserable, but old Mrs. Croker tried to reassure them by saying that a social footing could not be gained in a day. Anything worth having was worth working and suffering for she contended.

"But are you sure this thing you are after is worth having?" asked Mr. Croker sadly. "Besides, this water is muddy and foul smelling. Flies and worms are not so fat nor numerous here as they are at the pond. And the frogs!——"

Here poor old Mr. Croker paused, wanting a fitting word to express his opinion of these lean, ugly ditch frogs that hopped about, putting on such airs, airs which were born of self-conceit and foolish vanity.

"Why, how can you speak so?" asked Mrs. Croker. These frogs are the most aristocratic in the country. This town of Frogville numbers thousands of inhabitants, while the pond has frogs only reaching into the hundreds. There can be no 'ultra swell set' where there are so few frogs. One must have numbers if one draws the lines between the common and the great."

So poor Mr. Croker only batted his eyes and humbly gave in. "Have your own way," he said, "but don't blame me if we meet with disaster."

As the days moved on into weeks even Mrs. Croker gave up in despair, for not one of the "swell set" had deigned to call upon her, and all snubbed her openly when she boldly made advancements toward them in a social way. Then there were the little Crokers, for whose social advantages this ambitious mother had desired to come to Frogville, who were falling into bad habits; for, youthlike, they felt the need of companionship, and as the "best set" did not open its arms to them they were falling in with what their mother called "the scum," the scum being composed of frogs like the Crokers—frogs hanging on the outer edge begging to get just one foot into the aristocratic swim. And these young "would-be's," following the example set before them by the smart set, were becoming a most unruly crowd, ignoring law and order.

Then there was another horrible danger menacing them in Frogville—the danger of annihilation—for hither came in great numbers tall, strong beings that walked upright on two legs, and these merciless giants would thrust long, sharp instruments into the water, piercing the bodies of helpless frogs, carrying the poor wounded or dead bodies away to feast on.

One day old Mrs. Croker just barely escaped being speared by one of these giants, and the close call frightened all the foolishness and vanity out of her. Well she knew that had she been in the pond—so secure in its wonderful depth, heavy drift-logs and overhanging grasses—that she would not have been even threatened. So, as soon as she could recover from the scare, she croaked to her husband and children, telling them frankly that she had got quite enough of this awful "swell," aristocratic ditch called Frogville.

"Let us go back to the clear, cool pond, big and deep and secure. Let us return to our home 'neath that old moss-covered log, where the sunbeams sparkle so temptingly that the flies come there in swarms to play with them. Let us return to peace and plenty, where there is no social strife, no lines drawn, where every frog is honest and sincere and no such thing as aristocracy ever heard of."

"Now, you have come to your senses," said Mr. Croker, addressing his wife. "But what will the frogs of the Pond say when we return? For you know, my dear, you did a tall lot of bragging when we left there."

"Yes, and I'll do a tall lot of begging when I get back—begging for forgiveness for my former vanity and arrogance," said poor old Mrs. Croker. "Never too old to learn the folly of our ways."

So, along about the first of July, when the first firecrackers of the season were beginning to sound in the land, the Crokers returned to the dear old Pond that Mrs. Croker had once so foolishly thought not good enough for them, but which now appeared to her clearer vision as almost perfect. And when they returned in such a changed frame of mind the frogs of the Pond, led by old Wiseacres, extended to them a hearty welcome, "for," said that old frog, "a fool will err, but it is the wise frog who repents of his wrongdoing. Our friends here see the folly of their ways and ask us to take them back on the old footing that they held in the days before they got foreign notions in their heads. And being democratic frogs, who love to do unto others as they should be done by, we extend to them the hearty welcome they crave and deserve."

And thus the Crokers learned through some very sad experiences that their own plain, simple, pure home was much to be preferred to the more pretentious "swell" town of Frogville, which was built in a ditch.

"And now that I have seen what the real frog aristocracy is, I want none of it," Mrs. Croker declared vehemently, as she nestled in the shade of a tall cattail. "Let well enough alone, I say."

"Yes, the simple life and companionship of smart frogs for me, instead of the smart life and companionship of simple frogs," said Mr. Croker, as he thrust out his tongue and took a fly for supper.

How Old Do Animals Get?

"How old do animals get to be?" is a question many little folk, as well as their elders, ask. And you may marvel at a part of the answer, when I say that size (contrary to most ideas) does not denote the length of animal life. For example, the beaver, a comparatively small animal, lives twice the number of years that marks the age of the huge rhinoceros.

Many naturalists who have made the age of animals, reptiles and birds a study tell us that the whale is the longest-lived mammal, reaching the extreme age of some two or three hundred years. Indeed, one noted French naturalist asserts that a whale may live to be 1,000 years old.

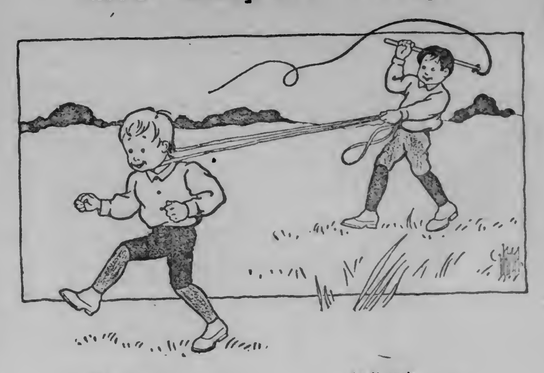

The elephant is doubtless the longest-lived animal, his age averaging about 150 years.

Early development does not govern longevity. For example, we have the cat, full grown at nine months of age and living to the good old age of 20 years.

The average ages of animals are given in the table below:

| | Years. | | Years. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Elephant | 150 | Stag | 50 |
| Camel | 75 | Lion | 45 |
| Beaver | 50 | Ass | 35 |
| Moose | 50 | Leopard | 25 |
| Rhinoceros | 20 | Hippopotamus | 20 |
| Horse | 25 | Cow | 15 |
| Chamois | 25 | Cat | 20 |
| Hare | 8 | Squirrel | 8 |
| Deer | 20 | Dog | 15 |
| Sheep | 10 | Monkey | 17 |
| Bear | 20 | Wolf | 20 |
| Tiger | 25 | Mouse | 6 |

The Expert Whip.

Gee-up, Bill!
Step lively there!
Lift your head
And hoofs in air.
Hear the whip
Whiz-wiz, crack!
As it curls
Across your back?
So, if you would
Miss the thong
Let loose yer speed
And trot along!

Now Tell Me True.

Now tell me true,
What would you do
If you were me
And I were you?

Would you stay home
And marbles roll,
Or teeter-totter,
Or play ball?

Or would you go
With line and hook
To tease the fishes
In the brook?

Or with your chums
Go spend the day
A-playing in
The new-mown hay?

Or would you lie
A-flat your back,
Behind some shady
Old straw stack,

And watch the clouds
That lightly soar
Like white ship sails
The blue sky o'er?

Now tell me true,
What would you do,
If you were me
And I were you?

How Stella's "Ship Came In".

By Maud Walker.

Stella sat by the window looking out at the pouring rain. A piece of mending lay in her lap with the patch only half finished. Presently the door opened and a delicate-looking woman, with hair thickly sprinkled with grey, came in. She carried a crying baby in her arms.

The cries of the child filled the room and caused Stella to frown. "Oh, goodness, mamma!" she exclaimed, "I never saw such a cross child as Ben is. I think he needs a spanking."

The weary woman sat down and began rocking the baby. "No good to spank the child," she said, "for he is not crying because of an ugly temper—he is cross because he is sick. But, hurry, Stella, with that mending. Tom needs that shirt badly. The one he has on is all in rags."

Stella raised her face, a look of mingled anger and despair on it. "When will I ever have opportunities like other girls?" she exclaimed, taking up the needle to thread. "I have to work every minute of my life—no time to read or sit and rest. It's dishwashing, sweeping, cooking, scrubbing and patching and darning all the time. Other girls don't have to work for their families as I have to. And it's all because we're so disgracefully poor! I hate poverty—I despise it!"

Then Stella thrust the needle into the patch and began stitching away, tears filling her eyes and a lump in her throat.

"I know, dear, it's hard on you," spoke her mother in a quivering voice. "But I don't see hardly who's to blame. Your pa's been sick so much lately, and the drouth last year killed the crops. Of course, those were things none of us could prevent. But—I've been thinking, daughter, that there is one way in which you may get better advantages than we—your p and I— can give you."

"How?" asked Stella, looking up eagerly from her work.

"You might go East to your Aunt Lizzie's. You know she has no children of her own, and when you were a little baby she wanted me to give you to her. Of course, we weren't so poor then, and I'd have as soon thought of parting with my own head as parting with my little girl. But now—now it's different."

But the peevish little Ben set up another deafening cry, and Stella's mother said no more. Meanwhile Stella's fingers flew, her face soon began to clear, as she planned on the thing her mother had suggested. For a long, long time Stella had dreamed of going East to live with her Aunt Lizzie, her father's only sister, who was what the world called rich, and who was childless. But she had not dared to propose doing so, for, being her mother's only daughter, she knew she was needed at home. Besides, there had been so much sickness in the family and ill-favored seasons for crops that real need now menaced them. But now that her mother had spoken of that which lay nearest her heart, Stella found the courage to pursue the subject, and as soon as little Ben's tears were dried and he asleep she laid aside her mending—finished—and said to her mother:

"I should love to go to Aunt Lizzie's to live, for I would have so many advantages; but how would we raise the money to buy my railroad ticket?"

"I've been thinking of that," said the good, self-sacrificing mother. "You know your pa has promised to buy a new sewing machine for me this summer. I do need one badly, with all the family sewing to do—which would cost about $35. Of course, he would have to sell some of the young stock to do it—stock that would bring their price next year. But I can sew by hand a while longer, and you may have the money to go to your Aunt Lizzie's."

So the thing was settled, and Stella, with a light heart, sang at her work all day, for in the near future there was plenty and happiness in store for her. Her aunt would adopt her and dress her in the latest fashion, send her to school and give her a musical education. Ah, how her ship—just entering the harbor—was coming in!—her ship filled with good things for the future.

So the days glided by, and the young stock was sold to get the money necessary to carry Stella to the East. And during these days before the going Stella's mother made over her own best dress into one for Stella to travel in. And Stella, in the happy anticipation of going away, forgot to worry over the hardships that befell the family, or the prolonged sickness of little Ben, who grew paler and more peevish every day.

At last the time for Stella's departure was at hand. Only one more night to pass under the home roof and then she would leave it to never more return, save as a visitor, for a letter had come from her aunt saying she would take Stella and educate her under one condition—the condition that Stella become her own adopted daughter by law and make her home with her a permanent one. To this proposition Stella had gladly agreed, urging her reluctant parents to do the same.

"For Stella's sake, yes," her mother had said, in a brave, though choking, voice; but her father shook his head, feeling that the burden of sickness and poverty was enough to bear, without having to give up his eldest born and only daughter. Then, with a blush of shame for having harbored so selfish a thought, he held out his hand to Stella and said: "Yes, daughter, go to the home of ease and plenty, where you may obtain the advantage of a fine education, for I cannot give you such things here, though heaven knows it is my wish to do so."

Stella went to bed early that night—the last night at home, for she was to get up early the next morning to drive five miles to town to catch the 8 o'clock eastbound train. Down stairs by the front door stood the little, old-fashioned family trunk in which their few dear relics and her mother's wedding gown had been kept. On a chair beside the trunk was piled Stella's meager wardrobe, which her mother was to pack the last thing that night after all the household had gone to bed. In this way nothing that they had which could be of use to Stella would be forgotten.

But as Stella lay tossing on her pillow sleep would not come. Till now her going away had been looked forward to with eagerness. Gradually the thought that she was on the eve of severing her old home ties forever came over her. She could hear her dear, patient mother moving round gently downstairs, putting together the few things in the little old trunk. The thought of that frail, patient, tender mother came to her like a blow which stung and smarted her conscience. Poor mother! Who would be there to help with all the work after she—Stella—had gone? And there in the same room with Stella lay asleep on his floor pallet little Tom, two years younger than herself and already acquainted with toil. Would her going away lighten his labors? No; the work would fall the heavier upon his shoulders, for so many of the outside chores that had been Stella's to perform would now fall to Tom. And her father—loving, honest and industrious, too, when able to be at work—oh, how she would miss him, and how he would miss her! Just then a low cry, or rather a moan such as a sick child makes in its sleep, fell upon Stella's ears. Dear little Ben, whom she had been cross to because he fretted and required so much attention. Dear little sick brother from whom she was going so soon and whom she might not see again in years—maybe never! The thought caused Stella to spring from her covers, and with heart and temples throbbing she stood irresolute a minute beside the bed. Then, with bare feet, she crept to the little steep stairs which descended into the room where her mother was engaged in packing the trunk. Down several of these steps she slipped till she reached a place from which she could easily see her mother, who at the moment was leaning over the cradle rocking Ben, who threw himself uneasily about. After a minute, though, the restless little form lay still; then the mother stepped softly to the trunk and began folding the clothing from the chair into it.

Stella sat perfectly still on the stairs, a mist gathering before her eyes. Presently her mother raised the corner of her apron and pressed it close against her own face, her shoulders shaking convulsively as she did so. Stella, noting the movement, brushed the mist from her eyes and looked more closely at the trembling form which bowed over the old trunk. Her mother was weeping—weeping because she was leaving her! And like the sweet, self-sacrificing mother that she was, she kept her grief pent up within herself, giving vent to it only when she felt herself alone.

Softly, silently Stella crept down the stairs and drew close beside her mother, who was not aware of her daughter's presence till she heard a low sob and felt a pair of strong young arms round her neck. In another instant the girl was on the floor at her mother's knees, her face buried in her mother's lap.

"Dear, dear mamma, how could I have been so selfish? How could I have thought for one minute of leaving you and papa, Tom and little Benny? Oh, I've been so thoughtless, so selfish. But I am not going away—never, never. My heart is here in this home with my loved ones. I would die of a broken heart should I go to Aunt Lizzie's and have every comfort and luxury, and knowing at the same time that you were all suffering want and toil. No, no, no; never shall I leave you. You are my precious mother, who has done everything for me that you could possibly do, and from this day on I shall live to do for you and the other dear ones."

The good mother lifted Stella's face and kissed the tears from her cheeks. "Oh, my little girl," she said, in a voice full of thanksgiving, "you can never know how happy you have made me this minute. I shall now confess to you that my heart was very, very heavy—not at thought, dear, of your going away where you would receive the advantages you so much deserve, but at thought that you were happy in leaving us. Oh, how it hurt me to give you up; but it was torture to think you wanted to go, to think you went without a pang at leaving us behind in our poverty and loneliness. But, dear child, I wronged you secretly by thinking such of you. Forgive me, dear."

"It is for you to forgive me, dear mother," declared Stella, getting up and drawing the tired head with its crown of gray hair against her breast. "I've just been a bit thoughtless and a bit selfish, but I've awakened at last to realities. There is but one mother in the world for me, and here she is. There's but one home in the world for me; I'm safely sheltered in it. The truth is, mamma, this night my ship has come in, and it is filled with hope, love and helpfulness. Never more shall I complain so long as I have my loved ones."

"Stell sat perfectly still on the stairs."

Little Peeps into Mythology.

One of the many beautiful nymphs who attended the goddess Diana in her hunt was Echo, who was all gayety, laughter and chatter. Indeed, her "chatter" or incessant talking was her greatest failing and came to be her ruin. So well she loved to argue or dispute, or meddle in another's affairs with her too nimble tongue, that she caused herself much trouble.

One day the goddess Juno was looking for her husband, who she suspicioned was disporting himself in the company of the nymphs. Echo, knowing of Juno's quest and discovering how she might put her busy tongue to work, detained the goddess Juno by her prattle till the unfaithful lord and his nymph companions made good their escape. When Juno learned of how Echo had tricked her she became angry and said: "Echo, you shall forfeit the use of that tongue with which you have chented me, except for that one purpose you are so fond of—REPLY. You shall have the last word, but no power to speak first."

Now, in the woods there was a beautiful youth named Narcissus who was engaged in the chase. Him Echo saw and immediately became enamored of. She followed him over the mountains and through the wood, but she could not attract his attention to herself, for she had not the power to speak first. One day Narcissus became lost from his companions, and, pausing on the mountain side, shouted that they might hear him and rejoin him. "Where are you?" he called at the top of his voice.

"Are you?" came from Echo, who was near.

Narcissus again shouted: "Who's here?" Whereupon Echo replied "Here." Narcissus looked about him and seeing no one, for Echo had artfully hidden behind some vines, he called out: "Why do you shun me?" Echo replied by repeating his question.

Much amazed at this, Narcissus cried, "Come, let us join each other." Echo, in her tenderest voice, replied, "Join each other?" and came bounding towards Narcissus, her outstretched arms ready to embrace him.

Narcissus, shocked at seeing her want of maidenly reserve, stepped back and said: "Hands off! I would rather die than that you should have me."

"Have me," pleaded Echo, unable to say anything except to repeat his last words. And again she extended her ams to embrace Narcissus.

But her boldness was so unpleasing to the youth that he quickly turned and fled away down the mountain.

For very shame at thus having been repulsed by the object of her adoration Echo hid herself in the recesses of the wood, where none might witness her grief nor laugh at her blushes. And there she decided to remain, living in caves and among mountain cliffs, her grief devouring the flesh from her bones and sucking the blood from her veins till at last she was only a lurking shadow which hid in the rocks and mountain sides. But her voice grew stronger and stronger and became a part of the rocks and cliffs, and if you go where there are such things and call out loudly Echo's voice will answer you by repeating your last words.

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Of Republican Party Is Being Celebrated at Philadelphia.

Many Delegations Present to Participate In Golden Jubilee.

Philadelphia, June 18.—In the Historic Musical Fund hall the formal celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Republican party was begun today. Delegations from all sections of the country are here to participate in the golden jubilee, a feature of which is the presence of nearly 200 aged men, veterans of the Republican party's first battle fifty years ago when John C. Fremont was nominated for the presidency.

The celebration is under the auspices of the National League of Republican clubs, which is holding its annual convention in connection with the jubilee celebration.

With the address of welcome by Mayor Weaver, the celebration was formally opened, and it will continue until Wednesday.

Philadelphia, June 18.—In the same assembly room in Musical Fund hall where, on June 17, 1856, the Republican party opened its first national convention, which named Fremont and Dayton as its presidential ticket, there gathered yesterday hundreds of Republicans from different sections of the country to commemorate the event. It was the opening meeting of the four days' celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Republican party under the auspices of the National Republican league which begins its annual convention here today. The old hall, which has changed little since the first convention was held within its walls, was crowded with enthusiastic Republicans who cheered every time the name of any of the Republican presidents was mentioned. Among those who participated in the exercises were 152 men who had voted for Fremont for president They entered the hall in a body and were assigned to seats in the front part of the auditorium. The appearance of the old men, some of whom could hardly walk, was the occasion of long and enthusiastic applause. In the ranks of the 152 was a delegate who proposed the name of Abraham Lincoln for vice-president, but as the Illinois man was not well known, the nomination went to Dayton.

While the meeting yesterday commemorated the beginning of the first convention, it was devoted largely to addresses in memory of Abraham Lincoln. Speaker Cannon of the national house of representatives and Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, who were to make addresses, were unable to be present.

Governor Pennypacker of Pennsylvania presided, and introduced the Rev. Edward M. Levy, a Baptist clergyman of this city, who delivered the invocation at the opening of the convention fifty years ago. He performed a like service yesterday, after which Governor Pennypacker delivered an address.

Historical papers were read by William Barnes, Sr., of New York, who displayed a flag which covered Lincoln's bier as his body lay in state at Albany; Dr. Robert Reyburn, Washington, who attended both Lincoln and Garfield, and Jacob Weand of Beaver, Pa. Col. A. K. McClure of this city, delivered an address on "Abraham Lincoln," in which he reviewed the martyred president's life and the events of his time. The program included numerous musical selections.

STRONG EFFORT TO SAVE WOMAN

Many People Working on Case of Mrs. Agnes Myers.

Kansas City, June 18.—The movement to save Mrs. Agnes Myers from the gallows is growing in force. She has been sentenced to be executed at Liberty, Mo., near here, on June 29, for the murder of her husband, Clarence Myers, on the same date that Frank Hottman, her companion in the crime, is to be hanged at Kansas City, unless a stay is granted. No effort is being made to prevent the hanging of Hottman, although many letters are being sent to Governor Folk urging him to commute Mrs. Meyers' sentence to life imprisonment. A brother of Clarence Myers, however, has sent the governor a letter expressing the belief that his sister-in-law is as guilty as Hottman and if Hottman is hanged the woman also should pay the extreme penalty.

CONGRESSMAN DIES.

Washington, June 18.—Representative Rufus E. Lester of Savannah, Ga., died at the Cairo apartment house Saturday evening at 6:22 o'clock as the result of injuries he sustained in a fall through a skylight Friday night. Although Mr. Lester recovered consciousness sufficiently to recognize his wife and young grand daughters, who were with him at the time of his death, he did not say anything which threw light on the manner in which he was injured.

PRESSMEN IN SESSION.

Pittsburg, June 18.—The eighteenth annual convention of the international pressmen's and assistants' union of North America opened here today with 250 delegates present from all parts of the country. The first session was devoted to addresses of welcome, the speakers including Mayor George W. Guthrie and Congressman James Francis Burke. Many of the delegates are accompanied by their wives and families and numerous pleasure jaunts have been arranged for the week.

GIRLING IS MENTIONED FOR CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

Reported That Minneapolis Man is Acceptable to Cole.

Many Jacobson Delegates Assure Governor Johnson of Support.

Democratic State Convention May Be Held Fair Week.

St. Paul, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tom Girling is being mentioned as a possibility for the chairmanship of the Republican state central committee. There are rumors that the Hennepin county delegates were promised substantial recognition for turning the tide and that they want Girling to manage the campaign. It is understood that Girling is acceptable to Cole.

* * *

A. L. Cole is fast recovering and will be able to confer with the candidates this week. Plans for an active campaign are being laid and the state development feature will be pushed to the limit.

* * *

Many of the delegates from Jacobson's strongholds have passed through the capital lately, and in calling at the capitol have assured Governor Johnson that they would support him. It seems to be the general sentiment among the Scandinavian leaders that, inasmuch as they did not get "Jake," they will fall back on Johnson as second choice.

* * *

Cole's candidacy is going to meet with opposition from some of the most solid backers of his own party for the reason that it is urged that he has not been a consistent Republican. Several years ago it will be remembered that Cole flew off on the Free Silver tangent, but was gathered back into the fold of the faithful after the issue died out.

* * *

One of the things which the Democratic state central committee will decide upon when it meets tomorrow at the Merchants will be the representation in the coming convention. It is likely that the following representation which was used two years ago will be adopted;

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Aitkin | 5 | Meeker | 14 |

As the last convention was held in Minneapolis, it is the general opinion that this one will be held in St. Paul. Fair week is being mentioned as an opportune time to hold the convention.

* * *

A leading supporter of Jacobson from Lac qui Parle county offered to bet $500 that Johnson would be elected. The offer was made at the Hotel Lenox the night following the convention. He is authority for the statement that a large part of Jacobson's strength will go to Johnson.

MANAGER KELLEY IS SUSPENDED FROM TEAM

Milwaukee, June 18.—President Joseph D. O'Brien of the American association today suspended Manager M. J. Kelley of the Minneapolis team, pending an investigation of charges of crookedness, alleged to have been made against Umpires Owens and Kane. These umpires have been suspended temporarily at least.

TELLS PEOPLE HOW TO LIVE TO BE CENTENARIANS.

Paris, June 18.—M. Jean Finot has written a book in which he explains how to live 150 years. All that is needed, says the author, is the will to do so.

The reason persons do not live longer is because they do not take proper care of themselves and economize their forces, he declares. Persons get the notion that they have got to die at a certain age, and as soon as signs of failing strength are experienced, they do nothing to combat them, but just give up. This is absurd, says M. Finot, for with a proper observance of the rules of hygiene, and above all the firm determination to live, there is no reason why everybody should not live to be 100 or even 150 years old.

Beer and tobacco are inimical to longevity, according to M. Finot.

WANT MEAT INSPECTED

Britons Desire Examination of All Products on Arrival.

Armour's Products Not Used in the House of Commons.

London, June 18.—Chicago meat again formed the subject of several questions in the house of commons today. Mr. Hicks-Beach, conservative son of the former chancellor of the exchequer, asked War Secretary Haldane what quantity of Chicago canned meat was supplied to the troops in South Africa during the late war, and what proportion of enteric deaths ought more properly to have been described as due to ptomaine poisoning. The secretary replied that more than half the canned meat supplied to the British troops in South Africa during the late war came from the United States. He could not say how much of this came from Chicago. The office knew nothing of any cases of enteric fever which could be classed as ptmaine poisoning.

Replying to a question based on the discovery in the dining room of the house of commons of a box marked "Armours (St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City) chickens," Mr. Jacoby, chairman of the kitchen committee, assured the house that no food of any kind used in the house of commons comes from Chicago. Mr. Jacoby added that he was making an investigation as to how the box came on the premises.

Mr. Starkey, conservative, asked if in view of the fact that several persons died recently at Hull, after eating Argentine meat and the unsanitary conditions under which American meat was prepared, the president of the board of trade, would not take immediate steps to have each consignment of foreign meat, tinned or otherwise, inspected on arrival in this country and a certificate issued showing the date of inspection. The president of the board, however, said he was not in a position at the present time to take the course suggested.

THE KIDNAPED BOY HAS BEEN LOCATED.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Frederick Mueth, the 7-year-old boy who was lured from a public school by an unknown man, last Tuesday, has not yet been returned to his home. It is said the boy has been found, and that a $1,000 reward will be paid to the person who located Frederick. The father, it is reported, left today to bring the lad home.

WISHES OF PRESIDENT

To Prevail Largely In New Amendment to Meat Bill.

Committee Authorizes the Construction of New Measure.

Washington, June 18.—The house committe on agriculture today authorized Chairman Wadsworth and Representative Brooks of Colorado to amend the meat inspection provision in the agricultural bill to meet the views of President Roosevelt, after which the measure will be submitted to the president by Speaker Cannon.

It is stated that not all of the presidential suggestions will be accepted if the wishes of the committee are complied with. The discussion today made it plain there was no objection to eliminating the court review provision, as suggested by the president; also, that his wishes that the civil service commission furnish the inspectors will be complied with. There is opposition to placing the date of manufacture on the label, and to inserting the words, "in the judgment of the secretary of agriculture." Thus making the secretary the final authority regarding the measure.

There was some criticism by members of the committee as to the method to be employed in handling the measure, as no Republican memberss who presented minority views, nor any Democratic members of the committee, are to have anything to do with redrafting the substitute.

GEORGE IRISH FATALLY HURT

Lost His Balance and Fell From Great Northern Train.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Irish, while standing on the platform of the west bound passenger train a few miles east of here, yesterday morning, lost his balance and fell from the train. The train was several miles past Cass Lake before the accident was discovered, and then an engine was sent out to investigate. The man was found unconscious. His head and face were badly bruised. He was immediately brought to St. Michael's hospital here, and died in a few hours, never regaining consciousness. The unfortunate man has a father and mother living in the vicinity of St. Paul, and a brother in business at Bemidji. His remains will be taken to St. Paul for interment.

RAINING AT ST. JOSEPH.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 18.—The first rain in this locality for nearly two months began last night and continued today. Farmers and gardeners are rejoicing, and probably late crops will be saved. Onions and early peas were ruined by the drought.

THE BADLY MUTILATED CORPSES OF 290 JEWS COUNTED AT BIALYSTOK

WOMAN IS BADLY CUT

By Italian Brigand Who Attempts to Steal Earrings.

Assailant Nearly Lynched Later by Infuriated Hebrews.

New York, June 18.—The attempt of an Italian brigand to rob a woman of a pair of diamond earrings nearly cost two lives, early today. The would-be robber's victim was terribly cut about the face and head by a keen-edged knife, with which the thief attempted to cut the jewels from the woman's ears, and scarcely five minutes later the robber himself, and the policeman who arrested him, were fighting for his life against a crowd of hundreds of Hebrews, who sought to avenge the assault. The robber was kicked and stoned and repeatedly knocked down before the policeman succeeded in safely landing him in a cell.

The victim of the assault was Mrs. Rebecca Kupfer, and the assailant Joseph Carpaccia. He is 23 years of age, and has been in this country only about four months. Mrs. Kupfer is 24 years old. She had been calling on friends last night, and was returning through Houston street to her home, early this morning, when Carpaccia attacked her.

STEAMER IS ASHORE ON FIRE ISLAND BAR.

Fire Island, N. Y., June 18.—The Italian steamer Vincenzo Bonnano, which went ashore on Fire Island bar yesterday, was lying broadside on the beach this morning. The vessel's captain ceased throwing cargo into the sea during the night, and made every effort to free his vessel, but was unsuccessful. Life savers remained on board part of the night. At an early hour this morning the wind was in the East, and the weather threatening with sea increasing. The vessel is light, and not making any water. There are thirty-five men in the crew of the Bonnano, and one passenger is aboard.

CONFESSES TO MURDER.

Los Angeles, June 18.—The police announce that charges of murder in the first degree will be filed today against Mrs. Arilla Scheck and Ernest G. Stackpole, who are held on the charge of killing Joel Scheck, June 14. The police state that Mrs. Scheck has confessed that Stackpole committed the murder, and that she was accessory to the crime. The victim of the tragedy was buried yesterday.

But Six Christians Were Killed and Eight Wounded.

Lack of News From There Arouses the Greatest Anxiety.

Believed That the Horror is Much Worse Than Reported.

Odessa, June 18.—The Novosti of this city published a dispatch today from its correspondent at Bialystock, saying:

"I personally counted 290 Jewish corpses, a great number of which were horribly mutilated. Only six Christians were killed and eight wounded."

St. Petersburg, June 18.—No fresh news was received here from Bialystok this morning, and none of the newspapers can get a word directly from their correspondents there. The correspondent of the Associated Press, who should have arrived there from St. Petersburg yesterday morning, has not been heard from.

Nothing has been received here from the parliamentary commission sent to Bialystok to inquire into the report upon the massacre of Jews. It is evident that the authorities will not allow any dispatches to be sent from the terror stricken town, which is regarded as ample proof of the horror of the situation. The last telegram known to have been received here reached M. Ostrogorski, a member of the lower house of parliament, from Grodno yesterday. It was as follows:

"The Jewish outrage at Bialystok was produced by provocation. The police participated in it, and the troops actively supported the rioters. The military authorities now have full control. The governor general has left the city. Persons who tried to leave Bialystok were killed at the railroad station, and others who succeeded in reaching the open fields outside the town were run down by dragoons. There seems no hope of stopping the attacks. The number of victims is large. While this appeal for the immediate assistance is being written, we hear about us the sound of volleys."

Warsaw, June 18.—The chief of police of Warsaw today issued a proclamation warning the people against the efforts to provoke racial hatred, and stating that every attempt at rioting will be mercilessly suppressed by force of arms.

Anti-Jewish riots have broken out at Sabludow and Goulonds, in the province of Grodno, and at Ossowiec, in the province of Lomgar.

SCANDINAVIAN CONVENTION

At Two Harbors Attended By About Two Hundred Delegates.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Scandinavian state convention met here yesterday, there being nearly 200 delegates from different parts of the state, who came up on the Booth excursion steamer Soo City, with a large number of Duluth and other Good Templars, arriving here at 1:30 a. m. Flaaten's Third Regiment band accompanied them to furnish the music. They were met by members of the local lodge, who escorted them to the city park, where speeches and exercises were held at the pavilion. Mayor Rothfus delivered the speech of welcome, which was responded to by Grand Chief Templar William Carlson of Minneapolis. Other speakers were Rev. W. E. J. Gratz, pastor of the First M. E. church here, and Mr. Bergstrom of Duluth. The business session began today. About 2,000 visitors came up from Duluth yesterday on the excursions, taxing the capacity of the hotels to accommodate them. A large number also went from here to Duluth.

A large number of boats are here for ore, and the present week is expected to be an unusually lively one in the ore handling.

Yardmaster E. L. Weltzel of Biwabik spent Sunday visiting with friends here.

ACCUSED OF SELLING MILITARY SECRETS.

Leipzig, June 18.—The imperial court has commenced the trial of an ex-Government official named Seufftleben, and a fitter named Konrad, and a commercial traveler named Lucke, who are charged with betraying military secrets. Konrad is alleged to have made a model of a sea mine with anchoring apparatus at the request of Seufftleben, in whose office he worked.

The model was subsequently handed to the American minister at Brussels, and sketches were also given to the French minister there.

Seufftleben and Lucke received $500 from the French government and the expenses incurred for the construction of the model. Lucke also got $1,000 in Paris for showing how the anchoring apparatus was contrived.

The prisoners are also accused of sending sketches to Russia and the United States. Konrad admitted making the model, but disclaimed all knowledge of its having been shown to foreign legations.

A FAMILY TRAGEDY

Farmer Shoots Sister-in-Law and a Young Man.

Woman Lured to Farm By a Spurious Message.

Cincinnatti, June 18.—William Hisey, a farmer living near Aurora, Ind., probably fatally shot his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hisey, wife of a prominent Cincinnati manufacturer and severely wounded Herbert Crallie on a farm late yesterday. Mrs. Hisey was summoned from her summer home by a message stating that one of the children was ill and not expected to live. She hurried to the farm and is said to have been attacked at once, William Hisey and his family being all armed. Hisey said after his arrest that he shot Mrs. Hisey in self-defense, and declared that she had drawn her revolver before he fired.

Herbert Crallie is a son-in-law of Mrs. Mary Hisey. Family difference of long standing are believed to have been the cause.

BUNKER HILL DAY IS CELEBRATED

One Hundred and Ninty-First Anniversary is Observed.

Boston, June 18.—Accompanied by the roar of guns, the snapping of fire crackers and the ringing of bells, the celebration of the One Hundred and Thirty-first anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, always a local holiday, began at midnight. At that hour Mayor John F. Fitzgerald lighted an immense bonfire on the Charleston playground. At 7 o'clock city officials and invited guests sailed down Boston harbor to meet the king of the carnival and escort him to his landing place, at the navy yard. The parade under the auspices of the Seventeenth of June Carnival association, and consisting principally of allegorical floats followed. The United Irish societies had an independent procession. An electrical parade in the evening will wind up the day's events.

Numerous sporting and athletic events were arranged for the holiday. The weather was cloudy and threatening.

DELEGATES FROM UNITED STATES

To King Haakon's Corination Have Arrived at Christiania.

Christiania, June 19.—The Norwegian delegates from America to King Haakon's coronation arrived here today. A large crowd gathered at the quay where numerous American flags were displayed and welcomed the visitors warmly. The delegates proceeded later to the monument erected to the memory of Henrik Arnold Weigland, the Norwegian poet, which was covered with American flags, and placed a number of large wreaths at its base. Prof. Hans G. Stub, of Hamline, Minn., in behalf of the visitors, delivered an address conveying to the Norwegians friendly greetings from their brothers in America and congratulating Norway on attaining its independence. A large crowd thronged the park, cheered the speeches and joined in singing Norway's national anthem.

The American party will start for Trondjem tomorrow.

WATERWAYS COMMISSION

To Consider Minnesota Canal and Power Company's Application.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 18.—The international watreways commission will hold a meeting, at 10 a. m. on June 26, at the office of the American section, room 328, Federal building, Buffalo. At this meeting persons interested in the diversion of water from Lake Michigan, by way of the Chicago drainage canal, will be given an opportunity to be heard upon this subject.

The commission will probably also consider, during this meeting, the application of the Minnesota Canal & Power company for authority to divert a portion of the waters of the Birch Lake drainage basin in Minnesota, and the application of Smith L. Dawley for authority to construct a dike in the St. Lawrence river, north of the Long Sault island, for the purpose of creating a water power.

ALPS ON THE MOVE.

The Mountains Are Said to be Continually Changing.

Geneva, June 18.—M. De Varigny, a Swiss scientist, has just published an interesting article on the movements of the Alps. He declares that the mountains, especially the Swiss and Austrian Alps, are continually changing, so that an atlas of these districts two years old is no longer correct.

The writer states that many villages in the Bernese Oberland and the Canton of Valais have been raised or lowered from 6 to 12 feet within the last six years, and that the contour of mountain ranges for hundreds of miles has considerably altered.

COCHRANE

MINOR'S SCALP MAY BE LIFTED

La Follette Men Are After It With Sharp Knives.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 18.—The fight between Congressman E. S. Minor and Former Congressman Isaac Stephenson over the Marinette postoffice bids fair to become the most noteworthy postoffice fight in the history of Wisconsin, involving as it does a violation of all sinatorial rules of political patronage, and the final quietus of one or the other of the two Wisconsin men who wear the toga in Washington.

Mr. Stephenson wants Postmaster Patrick at Marinette retained. Congressman Minor is not altogether friendly to Mr. Stephenson, inasmuch as the La Follette-Stephenson combination did its best to put Minor out of office two years ago, and Mr. Minor wants James O'Connell appointed postmaster.

At Stephenson's request Senator La Follette has taken the unprecedented of interfering in the fight by going to the president and asking that the nomination of O'Connell be recalled from the senate. This was done, despite the fact that Postmaster General Cortelyou had filed a statement that Patrick was not keeping a good standard of efficiency at the postoffice, and the president's action in withdrawing O'Connell's name after it was already in the senate made Cortelyou furious. Rather than lose his friend, it is thought President Roosevelt will allow Patrick to be turned down and O'Connell appointed. The interference of Senator La Follette brought Senator Spooner into the contest, and now the old lines are drawn of La Follette and Stephenson solidly fighting Spooner.

One phase of the Marinette postoffice fight is the bringing out of Gustav Kuesterman of the state board of control by the anti-Minor men. Kuesterman is first of all a La Follette follower. He will be given the aid of Stephenson, whether the latter wins or loses his fight for the Marinette postoffice. The outcome is in doubt. Mr. Minor has won many a hard primary fight, and may be able to survive the shock of a bitter postoffice fight. He realizes, however, more than ever before that a man turned down for an office is an enemy for life, but that a man favored with an office is merely a lukewarm friend when the office is once safely won.

There are some interesting contests in the state for senatorial nominations, and wires are being actively pulled on all sides. Various corporations or groups of interests are sounding candidates for their views before deciding how to stand. This is one result of the anti-lobby law.

In other years the legislator was elected and after he reached the capital the influence was brought to bear to swing him into line for one policy or another. Now the good step in abolishing the lobby has developed another insidious evil, the interference of business interests in the pre-election campaign. For instance, when labor men wish to pass measures to their interest they are forced to see to a man's position before he is nominated. A combined labor vote might easily defeat a man who stood for capitalistic interests or the reverse.

The State Grocers' association is watching the nominations with a view to pure-food legislation. The doctors are active in the efforts to secure the nomination of men who will fight the advertising methods of the less ethical physicians. This phase of capital and politics was not foreseen when the lobby was made innocuous and all but barred from the capital.

One of the most interesting contests is likely to be that of Wallace Andrew of Superior, who wishes to go to the senate in place of Senator Hudnall. Hudnall was a staunch La Follette man, and was the leader in many of the fights over the railroad rate bill.

When the rate bill fight came to a close it was decided that to secure conservative support of the measure Nils P. Haugen should not be made a rate commissioner, despite his friendship for La Follette. Senator Hudnall agreed to this, and this alliance with the stalwarts on a minor point is being used as an argument against his re-election from a normally La Follette district.

La Follette circles at Madison are aggrieved at the prospective entrance of Samuel Marsh of Neillsville into the race against Senator Kreutzer. The Marsh men are favorable to Davidson, while the La Follette men are sure Assistant Attorney General Tucker would be with them if he were to be elected. Marsh is so strong in the district, however, that it may be impossible for the La Follette men to defeat him.

SENATOR LORD

Says People of Duiuth Outdid Themselves In Hospitality.

Kasson, Minn., June 18.—Senator Lord returned from the Duiuth convention Thursday, defeated but not dishonored. Interviewed by a representative of the Republican, the senator said:

"I am very tired, but feel just as cheerful as it is possible for a defeated candidate to feel. The convention was made up and dominated by intelligent and honorable men and the best of feeling prevailed during all of its deliberations. Mr. Cole was fairly nominated, is an able and worthy man, and deserves to receive the active and earnest support of every Republican in the state. I consider the ticket an exceptionally good one from top to bottom, and there is no reason in the world why a single name should be scratched by anyone claiming to be a Republican. The people of Duiuth outdid themselves in hospitality, and everybody, including the defeated candidates, had a good time."

DRUIDS ARE ABOUT DUE

Members of Order Already Beginning to Arrive in Duluth.

Convention to Last Two Days—Large Attendance is Expected.

Druids from all over the state will be in Duluth tomorrow and Wednesday to attend the Thirty-fourth annual session of the Grand Grove, which will be called to order tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Eagles' hall.

It is expected that 400 visitors will be in town, as everyone of the seventy lodges in the state will send large delegations. Many of the delegates will bring their wives.

The local lodge of the order, No. 40, has made arrangements for the entertainment of their visiting brethren. Tomorrow, business sessions will be held during the day, and in the evening a large class of candidates will be initiated to the mysteries of the order by a special drill team from the St. Paul lodge. The election of officers of the Grand Grove will take place tomorrow.

Business sessions of the grove will also be held Wednesday morning and afternoon, and will be wound up then. At 6 o'clock the steamer Newsboy will leave for a trip around the harbor, and when the delegates and their friends get back, the annual banquet will be held.

E. Goering will be toastmaster, and responses will be given by Mayor Cullum, Noble Arch, B. J. Elde, the grand noble arch, and John Jenswold, Jr. The Svea Glee club, the Normanna Male chorus, Roy Prytz and Miss Olga Prytz will sing.

The banquet will conclude the convention, and the delegates will begin leaving for their homes immediately afterward. The Twin City lodges will send large delegations, and the local Druids are confident that the coming session will prove one of the most successful in the history of the order.

Harrie Stewart Returns.

Harrie M. Stewart, of the Stewart Transfer company, has returned from St. Joseph, Mo., where he attended the annual convention of the American association of transfer companies. He read an important paper to the gathering, and was appointed chairman of the committee on general baggage and freight handling, which is one of the most important ones. He says that the weather was very warm in St. Joe, but that otherwise, his stay there was most enjoyable.

DETAILS OF THE UPRISING

Which Occurred at Cananea Given the Government by Col. Greene.

Washington, June 18.—In a letter received at the state department and dated at Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, June 11, W. W. Greene, president of the copper company, at whose mines the rioting occurred, early this month, charges that agitators had been through the mines inciting the Mexicans, and tells how he was warned of the plot to dynamite the bank and to inaugurate a revolution against President Diaz. He reviews details already published and says, among other things:

"On the night of May 31, I was informed by a man working in the Cobre Grande that a Mexican working there had told him that trouble was going to start in Cananea in the morning of June 1 at 5 o'clock, that a Socialist club had held three meetings at midnight on the night of May 30, at which a large number of agitators of Socialistic tendencies were present; that agitators of the Western Federation had been through the mines, inciting the Mexicans and that they had been furnished money for the Socialistic club that had been established at Cananea. He also gave us a couple of copies of a revolutionary circular that had been widely distributed together with a number of other details. While it looked ridiculous to me that anything of the kind could happen, their program included dynamiting the bank where we had $40,000 deposited, breaking open the store room to secure dynamite and ammunition to start a revolution against Diaz. I soon after saw a Mexican in whom I had confidence, and upon asking I found he had heard the same rumors, he giving the further detail that agitators had stolen, a few nights before, a few boxes of powder, which I knew to be the truth."

Mr. Greene adds that all federation agitators were ordered out of town, and, "I think there are about eighty-seven of the agitators (Mexican) now in jail, that many of them were deported from Mexico and Southern California, who have previously taken part in labor troubles and that all of the revolutionary clubs that stirred up the feeling escaped across the line the first night. He says there will be a permanent garrison of several hundred men kept there; that complaints of murder have been made against a number of employes as well as himself, but the authorities have taken the ground that the employes acted in the discharge of their duties. He estimates that "about twenty Mexicans were killed for each white man."

FLYER LEAVES TRACK; NO ONE WAS KILLED.

Buffalo, June 18.—The Twentieth Century flyer on the Lake Shore was wrecked near West Seneca, two miles west of here, early yesterday. The wreck was a bad one, and it is considered miraculous that no one was killed. One day coach and five sleepers were badly smashed. The wreck, it is believed, was caused by a split rail. The coupling between the engine and the first car broke, and the engine bumped along the ties for 500 feet before it was brought to a stop. There were sixty-seven passengers on the train. All of them were badly shaken up, and a few slightly bruised, but not one of them received injuries that necessitated the immediate attention of a physician. A relief train brought them to Buffalo.

FAMOUS HORSE DROPS DEAD

Sysonby, Winner of Many Events, Dies of Blood Poison.

New York, June 18.—James R. Keene's famous 4-year-old colt Sysonby, conceded last year to be the best horse in training in America, died yesterday in his stall at the Sheepshead Bay race track of blood poisoning. The horse had been ill for a long time with a skin disease. His ailment had necessitated his withdrawal from all of this year's big stakes, including the Brooklyn, Suburban and Brighton handicap, in all of which he was the future book favorite.

Sysonby's death yesterday was sudden, and occurred, strangely enough, while Mr. Keene was making his daily visit to his Sheepshead Bay stable. The horse dropped dead while Mr. Keene stood beside him.

As a 2-year-old Mr. Keene was offered and refused $100,000 for his colt, whose only defeat in his racing career was in the Futurity of 1904. Sysonby was the favorite for the event, but was not in the best of condition, and was beaten at the finish by Artful and Tradition.

Sysonby made his first appearance as a 3-year-old in the Metropolitan handicap of 1905, when he ran the famous dead heat with Race King over the new course at Belmont park. From that time on Sysonby went through the racing season without meeting a horse that could make him extend himself. He was the most brilliant performer the American turf had known in years. The colt was sired by the famous English stallion Melton, who was bred to the mare Optime. Mr. Keene bought Optime in foal for $4,200. She was brought to this country and taken to Mr. Keene's Castleton stud farm in Kentucky, where Sysonby was foaled. In his two years of racing, Sysonby won more than $184,000 in stakes. The horse will be buried at Sheepshead Bay, but later in the season will be disinterred and shipped to Castleton stud and buried beside Mr. Keene's other famous horse, Domino.

KILLED ON HANDCAR.

Cleveland, June 18.—Five persons were killed in Polk county yesterday when a handcar on which they were riding was run down by a freight train. The accident happened on the New Tennessee branch of the L. & W. railroad. Only meager information has been obtained.

BOY STILL MISSING.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Freddie Muth, the 7-year-old boy who was lured from school and kidnaped last Tuesday, has not yet been found, and nothing developed in the case yesterday to lead to the whereabouts of the child or his captors. The police still maintain they know who abducted the boy, and that they are on his trail.

Special services were held today at the Sunday school attended by Freddie, and reference was made to it by the pastor at the church services.

ARE PUSHING THE ROAD WORK

County Board Likely to Increase Next Road Levy.

County road improvement work is under way on a large scale in five commissioner districts at the present time. The roads are getting pretty well dried out, following the rains of last month and the county commissioners are spending the appropriations allotted them from the county road fund and special fund in fixing up the worst places in the highways and in repairing culverts and bridges. Several large crews are at work in various localities in Commissioner Kauppi's district where road making is going forward at a great rate. Most of the labor is done by the farmers along the route who make good wages with their own labor and that of their teams. The improvement work will be carried on as long as the funds are available for each road district. There is a strong sentiment on the county board toward increasing the county road levy for next year. The last levy was $65,000, or an increase over that of the preceding year. Under the present valuation St. Louis county may levy as high as $100,000 for its roads and there is a possibility that the commissioners will go much nearer that mark when the new levy is made.

BLACK MOUNTAIN CYANIDE MILL

Nearly Completed—Scarcity of Miners Restricts the Output.

Reports very recently received from Sonora, Mex., are to the effect that no labor disturbances of any kind, on account of the recent difficulties at Cananea, exist at the Black Mountain property, says Iron Ore.

A great scarcity of miners, however, prevents the supply of ore being furnished sufficient to operate the 120 stamps. For the month of June, about sixty stamps were continuously in operation. The company have men out in Sinaloa and other mining districts after miners and hope soon to have men enough to produce 500 tons daily. The operations up to date indicate that amount will be required to keep the 120 stamps dropping.

It is expected that the cyanide mill will be turned over to the company complete ready for duty July 1 next. As about 40 per cent of the values are saved by this process, we may hope soon to present to our readers the average values per ton recovered. We understand the savings by amalgamation and assay battery values are up to the expectation of the management.

Director John G. Brown, recently en route to California, made a visit to the property, and we quote the following from his interesting letter to one of the Black Mountain stockholders:

"The labor situation, or more properly, the scarcity of miners is the burning question at present. The 60 stamps in commission seem to work to perfection and renders the scene a trifle painful to see the same number dumb. * * * Mr. Banks has his men put at the points where miners are at all liable to be procured and he hopes in some way to secure a sufficient force to keep the full complement of stamps supplied with ore. Plenty of room in the mine for an ample force and only added miners are needed to break more than sufficient ore to swamp the highest capacity of what seems to be a first-class mill. The plant altogether overwhelms one who has only heard of it. There is an air of solidity and permanence to everything, portraying a confidence in the future as I would think. The most pessimistic stockholder needs but to visit the property, take a fairly careful view of the work performed or accomplished in order to feel pleased that he is a stockholder in the Black Mountain company. That delays and disappointments come the way of so large an undertaking is but what the man who looks on now would expect. From power plant, along transmission line, wagon road, tenement houses, store, cyanide plant and mill to the mine and inside is all a scene to inspire and tells the story of something for your money to date, and nothing but the brightest promise for the future."

The suit which was set for trial at Nogales, Ariz., June 21, has been postponed to July 19, on account of criminal cases taking the entire time of the court. One of the directors, in expressing himself on this subject, said that he felt confident that the moment they got the complaints into court, they would find that they had no case, and that there is no theory of law which can be based upon their present complaint with any assurance of success. He was reluctant to discuss the matter publicly, preferring to answer the vicious attack by a judgment of the court.

HYDRATING LIME PLANT

Installed By Duluth Concern in Company at Manistique.

Manistique, Mich., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Clyde Iron company of Duluth has just installed for the White Marble Lime company of this city, a hydrating plant which puts the operator in position to furnish lime of a superior quality and to reach out for new business. In order to install the plant redical changes and improvements were made, and much machinery was added.

Under the new process, lime is taken from the kilns and dumped into a grinder located beneath the first floor of the building, where it is reduced to about the size of peas. As it is ground, the lime drops into a elevator which conveys it to the third floor. It is dumped into bins here, and thence is carried into a circular weighing hopper, of steel, the capacity of which is one ton. From the hopper the product is carried down into the hydrating pan, which is located on the second floor, circular in form and ten feet in diameter, and which revolves when in operation. Inside of this pan, which is about eleven feet in height, are small ploughs so placed in relation to each other that the mass of lime is thoroughly mixed.

Water is introduced by means of a sprinkler arranged to work automatically so that just the proper amount of water needed by the kind of lime being treated is introduced in each ton, the amount usually required being about 25 per cent. Much of this water, however, passes off in the form of steam, what is left adding about 7 per cent. to the weight of the lime. The time necessary to hydrate one ton is twenty minutes, and during the process the lime becomes hot. From the hydrating pan the product is elevated to the third floor again. It is carried over a fine screen here, the portion which passes through the meshes being conveyed to the bagger, a device that fills eight forty-pound sacks at a time.

That portion of the lime which is too coarse to pass through the screen is carried to an elevator by which it is conveyed to bins. From these bins it passes through a spout to a second and smaller grinder, from which it again goes to the screen, the process being repeated until all the lime has been reduced to the required degree of fineness. The finished product is very fine and white, and is proof against air slacking. The capacity of the plant is thirty tons a day. It is the fourth successful plant in commission, and the first in Michigan.

CROPS IN EUROPE

Greatly Retarded By Unseasonable Cold and Gloomy Weather.

Washington, June 18.—The European crop situation is told in the following June summary of conditions abroad issued by the department of agriculture:

"Unseasonably cold, gloomy weather has prevailed in Northwestern Europe, especially in Great Britain and France, throughout the greater part of May. There have also been brief spells of remarkably low temperature in parts of Italy and Spain. In Eastern Europe, on the contrary, notably in the great grain-producing provinces of Russia, the month has been exceptionally genial and springlike. In Northwestern Europe the growing crops, already backward from the adverse weather conditions of March and April, have not made the progress desired. Their development, however, though it has been retarded by the lack of sunshine and warmth, has had the benefit of abundant and general rainfall. A month of seasonable weather, it is believed, would render conditions on the whole satisfactory. In Southern and Central Europe there is little in the agricultural situation that differs from average years of good promise. In Eastern Europe, excepting local complaints of drought, crop prospects are unusually fine."

Clean Food Era

We are inclined to believe that some magazine writers in their anxiety to attract attention to themselves have overstated the case against the meat packers.

We do not sell meat but believe in fair play, and also in a complete knowledge by the people, of exactly what they are eating.

We have always printed on each and every pkg. of exactly what it is made of and the scores of visitors who pass through our works every day find the Pure Food Factories as clean and sweet as a maiden's fresh white apron. The food is thoroughly cooked in these factories from the choicest white wheat and barley, the sweet offering of the fields.

Grape-Nuts Food

No food on earth gives the same sustaining power from meal to meal as Grape-Nuts.

BECAUSE----

The starchy parts of the wheat and barley are changed by moisture and heat to a form of sugar required by the human system and almost immediately absorbed without stress to the digestive machinery. And again, the certain elements in these grains are incorporated to insure rebuilding of the soft gray matter in the brain and nerve centres to fit one for the wearing work of the day. A dish of Grape-Nuts and Cream at each meal supplies the GO and you can feel it in a way that leaves no question. It is not stimulation but simply scientific feeding.

Many Lumber Buyers Here, But Little Business Done.

Summer Logging Operations Have Been Held Up By Rain.

Although there have been many visiting lumbermen in Duluth during the past week or ten days there has not been much doing in the way of new business. The local market is quiet while manufacturing continues active.

Lumber shipments from this port continue to run ahead of those for a corresponding period of time last year, in fact the lumber is being moved forward just as fast as it is dried out. From the interior mill points in Northern Minnesota it is reporter that some shipments are being made by rail while the lumber is still green.

The heavy rains in May gave the summer logging business a setback from which it has not recovered. Although the ground seems to have absorbed the moisture and the streams into Lake Superior are reported down to their usual stage again, there seems to be no disposition on the part of the large lumber concerns to start operations in the woods for the summer. They attempted to run their camps for several weeks with the men working in the water most of the time and finally gave up the proposition. It is claimed that the abandonment of summer logging operations by the larger companies will mean an earlier start next fall of the winter operations in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The report of the Lake Superior Car Service association for May showed 4,323 cars of lumber and forest products handled at this point. This was about 20 per cent. of the total number of cars handled by the association. In addition to the forest products there were ten cars of lumbermens' outfits handled by the association.

Inability to get western coast fir timber, because of a car shortage in the west, has delayed the construction work of the Missabe ore dock. The work requires an immense amount of timber and it usually takes ninety days for the fir pieces to get here after the order is placed. Sometimes a few carloads get through inside of thirty days.

The Duluth Log company has made a number of improvements on its shingle mill at Aitkin, Minn. The company has installed a rotary saw with edgers and trimmers and a lath saw. The plant is turning out 20,000 feet of lumber daily besides 50,000 shingles, 20,000 lath and several hundred railroad ties.

Compared with other seasons the log receipts by water have been very light thus far this season. A few years ago it was a common sight at this time of the year to see tugs from the north or the sout hshore entering the harbor with big rafts of logs for local mills. All this has changed through the medium of the logging road. The Northern Minnesota logs are now hauled by rail to Superior, while all the local mills are cutting logs hauled here by rail from Northern Minnesota, except the Merrill & Ring Mill company, which is sawing for the Split Rock Lumber company. The latter company still has a few years work in the vicinity of Split Rock on the north shore and has to raft its logs here as there are no railroad connections with that point.

TRADE OF UNITED STATES WITH ASIA

Large as to Imports, But Small as to Exports.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trade of the United States with Asia, excepting Japan, China, and the Philippines, is large as to imports, but small as to exports. The trade with Japan, China, and the Philippines, has been discussed in detail by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, showing that the United States supplied in 1905, 19 per cent of the imports of the Philippines, 20 per cent of those of China, and 21 per cent of those of Japan. To the other Asiatic countries the United States supplied but little more than 1 per cent of the imports, although taking large quantities of their exports.

The imports from all Asia, except Japan, China, and Hongkong, in the fiscal year of 1905, were valued at $80,000,000, and the exports to all Asia, except Japan, China and Hongkong, were but $12,000,000. From the British East Indies, under which term is included India, the Straits Settlements, and the East Indian Islands under British control, the imports in 1905 were $335,000,000, and the exports to all that area, $7,500,000. From the Dutch East Indies, by which is meant Java, Sumatra, and the other islands of the East Indian group belonging to the Netherlands government, the imports in 1905 were $18,500,000, and the exports thereto only $15,000,000. From Turkey in Asia the imports for 1905 were $6,000,000, and the exports thereto less than one-half million dollars.

That the United States is exporting to the Southern Asiatic countries but $12,500,000 worth of merchandise, while importing $80,000,000 worth from them, seems to be due largely to the fact that American goods are not offered in the form which the markets require; that sales to other Oriental countries—Japan, China, and the Philippines—are large, is due to the fact that certain classes of American merchandise are suited to the wants and habits of those countries. In that section of Asia lying in a tropical or subtropical climate, articles for clothing, household life, agriculture, and transportation, if manufactured for use in a temperate zone climate, are unsuited to local customs, and the demand for articles of such universal adaptability as railway supplies, machinery, other manufactures of iron and steel, manufactures of leather, mineral oils, and provisions, is small because Occidental methods regarding such materials have not yet been developed in any considerable degree except in certain sections of India which draw their supplies chiefly from the governing country, England. In Northern China, however, climatic conditions render American cotton goods especially acceptable; in Japan the adoption of Occidental methods of transportation, manufacturing, etc., has created a demand for Occidental Merchandise which is more conveniently drawn from the United States than from Europe; and in the Philippines, although tropical, the presence of large numbers of Americans, both as dealers and consumers, stimulates the consumption of merchandise from this country, and has brought the percentage of imports practically up to what is supplied in the temperate zone countries of North China and Japan.

COSGROVE ACQUITTED.

Found Not Guilty of Stealing Cedar Posts at Tenstrike.

Bemidji, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Cosgrove was, on Saturday, acquitted of the charge of petit grand larceny, a jury in Justice Skinvik's court bringing in a verdict of not guilty. Cosgrove was charged with stealing 300 feet of cedar posts belonging to Kaye & Carter, of Tenstrike.

On Saturday Judge Spooner granted a decree of divorce to May Fitzellio of Blackduck, from Frank Fitzellio, on the grounds of desertion.

The village of Baudette, up on the northern border of the county, is enjoying a building boom, according to J. F. Collins of that place. Collins' new hotel, the Golden Eagle, will be completed within a fortnight, and there is much building activity in the border town. Upwards of $100,000 worth of buildings will be erected this summer, says Mr. Collins. A new jail will be built and a fire department will be equipped with modern apparatus. Relative to the objection to the incorporation of the village, which has been given so much notoriety of late, Mr. Collins says: "I am one of the board of village trustees, and as yet there have been no papers served upon us."

There was a Business Men's club here, but it has lain dormant for some time, and the live citizens of the place, headed by Mayor Carter, propose to form a new club that will give more signs of life.

Advertised In San Francisco As Being Undelivered.

San Francisco, June 18.—Local postal officials report that 24,000 letters have been placed on the advertised list last week, being the maximum amount since the conflagration. It is expected that by next week this total will have fallen to not more than 18,000. The normal number of advertised letters is between 3,000 and 4,000.

Within the past four weeks there were returned from the carriers to the general delivery section about 200,000 letters, the greater portion of which had return requests on the envelopes and were sent back to the writers. The remainder, after having been advertised for thirty days will be sent to the dead letter office in Washington.

GREATEST TRUST EVER

Is Being Formed By the American Society of Equity.

Better Prices Wanted For Vegetables and Dairy Products.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—The American Society of Equity, an organization of farmers whose headquarters is in this city, and pretends to have a membership of 200,000 in the Northwest, is organizing the greatest trust the country has ever known. If it succeeds in accomplishing its purpose the prices of potatoes and other vegetables, poultry and dairy products, will soar.

The scheme of the society is to organize among its members and all other farmers who will enter it, a marketing association. It is expected to have the new association organized and at work by September.

It is denied that the society aims to get more than a fair price for the products which it is designed to control, it gives a number of instances in which the large growers could control the market. Here is a sample:

"The total production of potatoes in the year of the last census was 332,000,000 bushels. Of these, 26,000,000 bushels were raised in twelve counties. "Aroostook county, Me., produced 6,466,189; Wild county, Colo., 2,821,285; Steuben county, N. Y., 2,702,304; Portage county, Wis., 1,978,344; Waushara county, Wis., 1,905,737; Monroe county, N. Y., 1,946,843; Montcalm county, Mich., 1,408,333; Kent county, Mich., 1,513476; Erie county, N. Y., 1,903,947; Oakland county, Mich., 1,351,160; Waupaucco county, Wis., 1,572,544; Ontario county, New York, 1,274,242.

"We believe it safe to say that half of the total crop is raised by small producers and is consumed by the family or sold in the local markets only. This would leave the twelve counties producting more than 25 per cent of the shipping potatoes of the country.

"What would be the result if the growers of these twelve counties would set prices on their crops and refuse to sell a bushel for less? It would result in a temporary shortage of 25 per cent in the shipping supply.

"The price of potatoes can thus be made uniform throughout the country; not 30 cents in the great centers of production; 60 cents in central markets and $1 in the South. But by a comprehensive system of marketing, such products all markets will be supplied with all they need at fair prices and a greatly increased consumption will result."

Under the plan proposed by the society there will be organizations in each state, and these will be officered by farmers, who will be in touch the year round with the supply and demand, and the producers will be directed when to place their products on the market and just how much to sell. It is not proposed to do away with the middlemen, but to limit the amount of fruits, vegetables, butter, eggs, poultry and the like that he may have on hand at once.

The call for the Chicago meeting gives instances to show that cold storage plants are crowded with farm products in the low-price season, and these are put on the market at high prices after a scarcity is thus created, and the object of the marketing association is to "eliminate the individual as a marketer of his shipping surplus and take the distribution of these crops out of the hands of the thousands of speculators who exploit both the producer and consumer for their own selfish ends."

Yet the marketing association does not expect to deal directly with individual consumers, but to regulate the amount of farm products that is on the market and supply the middlemen only as the demand requires.

The American Society of Equity recently advised its members to hold their wheat for $1 a bushel, and it is asserted that wheat has been steadily advancing ever since the 200,000 members began to resist the arts of the buyer. In the call for the meeting, at which it is proposed to organize the marketing association, reference is made to the good results of organization, and it is said:

"The organized members of the American Society of Equity in Wisconsin produce three-fourths of the potatoes of that state. In Michigan the society is nearly as strong, and a good start has been made in New York.

"By September the society will be so strong in its control of the potato supply that the price can be made and maintained at whatever we agree to be fair to producers and consumers. There can be no question of the outcome when an association controlling the supply of an important food product like potatoes meets the buyers of that product. The one having the supply will win in price making."

What Hunyadi Janos Is.

The Origin of the Name.

In Hungary, in the 15th Century, there lived a wonderful man—a great soldier and wise statesman—who was principally instrumental in driving back the "Unspeakable Turk" and keeping him out of Hungary at the period when bands of these marauders were ravaging most of Europe. By his victories in war and peace this man endeared himself to the people and gained a great and permanent place in the Nation's history. His name was HUNYADI JANOS, or John Hunyadi, as it would be in English. To the present day, in the affections of all Hungarians he holds the place of one of their greatest national Heroes. Is it strange then that they should wish to give this honored name to one of their most wonderful natural products—the famous Mineral Laxative Water from the Springs at Buda Pest? The unfailing value of this water as a sure and gentle Natural Laxative has gained for it a world wide reputation, greater even than that enjoyed by old John Hunyadi in Hungary. A bottle costs but a trifle and contains many doses. One dose, ½ a tumblerful (drunk on arising, slightly warmed for best results,) will within an hour move the bowels gently but copiously. At all Druggists. Ask for it by the full name—HUNYADI JANOS.

FEARS CHILD MAY BE TAKEN

Former Duluth Couple Figure in St. Paul Court Proceedings.

St. Paul, June 18.—The divorce case of Mrs. Orophino Wilson Wishart Wood against William Albert Wood, came before Judge Bunn Saturday on an order to show cause why a restraining order should not be made forbidding the defendant from meddling with the 18-months-old child of the parties. There was a continuance of two weeks, as the defendant wished to reply to the many affidavits filed by the plaintiff.

The complaint says they married Jan. 27, 1904, and lived together until May 26, 1906, when she left him because of his aggravated cruelty and took refuge with her father and mother at 400 Iglehart street. Her father, she says, is a traveling man and has one-eighth interest in an estate of $70,000. This for the purpose of showing that he can care for her and the child.

The plaintiff and defendant lived in Duluth. In July, 1905, the defendant began, she says, to be cruel. Her husband would fall into paroxysms of rage and fury, apply blistering names to her and on several occasions assaulted her with cruel vehemence.

She could not endure the torture of such a life and so separated herself from the man in fear for her life.

She charges that the defendant tried to take the infant by force, notwithstanding its tender age and its need for a mother's care.

The plaintiff is 23 years old and the defendant 28. He is a bookkeeper and is paid $125 a month.

One of the many affidavits filed is from E. H. Morphy, the attorney for the plaintiff. The defendant wished to see the child and called at the lawyer's house. He was told that he might see the child at the law office if he would promise not to take him away. To this he agreed, and in the office took the child in his arms, went into a private office, and then almost immediately came out and started along the corridor. Mr. Morphy stopped him and secured the baby.

It is stated in one or more affidavits that he had a cab waiting below, and intended to take the child to Duluth and then to Wisconsin.

Mrs. Ella Wishart, mother of the plaintiff, in her affidavit, says that she does not think the mother of the husband is a proper person to care for the child, as she separated from her husband and has no religious faith, while as to her own family they are of the Episcopalian church.

Some of the affidavits go to the manner of life of the parties when they lived in Duluth and touch upon the conduct of the defendant, who insisted that she nurse the baby, although she was by no means able to do so.

A temporary restraining order is in effect.

THREE EXAMINATIONS.

Uncle Sam Wants Assistants in Three Departments Right Away.

One more examination in Uncle Sam's civil service branch is scheduled for this month, and July opens up with two being slated. The one which will take place this month will be on the 27th and 28th, and is for the position of topographic draftsman for the Panama service in the department of construction and engineering. The examination was to have been held on June 6 and 7, but was postponed. The usual entrance salary is $100 a month, and the salary paid is as high as $125 a month. The age limits for this position are 20 and 45 years.

On July 5, an examination will be held for the position of pumping engineer in the quartermaster's department at large, Fort McPherson, Ga. The salary to be paid is $1,200 per annum, and the minimum age limit is 20 years.

On July 11 and 12 positions for surveyor in the Philippine service will take place. There are at least eighteen vacancies in this service, and the salary paid is $1,400 a year. The department also states that about forty additional surveyors will be appointed in this service in the near future. The age limit is 18 to 40 years.

Following the Flag

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines, health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired commissary sergeant U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord, N. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed at all druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

FEELING IS CHANGING

Constitutional Democrats About Ready to Join Revolutionists.

The Situation In Russia Is Rapidly Growing Worse.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The Constitutional Democrats seem almost ready to throw in their lot with the revolutionists. The popular agitation is so great that at a caucus, lasting three mornings, the question of changing the party's tactics and abandoning any further attempt to postpone an open rupture with the government, was seriously debated. MM. Roditcheff and Naboukoff, leaders of the Constitutional Democrats in the lower house, led the radical wing, urging the absolute necessity of keeping pace with the revolutionary movement, and insisting that unless they moved forward to battle immediately they would be overwhelmed and left stranded. Prof. Milukoff, M. Vanever and others counselled caution, saying it was not yet time to bend to the storm, but the Radicals were in the majority. The Novoe Vreyma today says the Constitutional Democrats have actually resolved to break with the government within a few days, but M. Struve, editor of the Osvobojdenie, informed the Associated Press that no decision had been taken. He admitted, however, that the leaders' plans were secret. Many of the Liberals fear a rupture, and regard the contemplated step as a grave error. They claim that the Constitutional Democrats cannot hope to keep step with the Advanced Radicals, who, at meetings held in the suburbs of St. Petersburg, last night, not only condemned the lower house of parliament, and characterized the Constitutional Democrats as traitors, but even denounced the group of toil. M. Aladin was hissed because he tried to explain the absurdity of the contention that the house must demand that the emperor summon a constituent assembly. The meeting refused to listen to his statement that the government could not be asked to sign its own death warrant. Constituent assemblies, he said, were constituted and not summoned by the government. The orators at the meetings glorified the coming dictatorship of the proletariat, and cheered the cries of "down with the government and the middle classes."

The bakeries continue closed today, the strikers threatening to wreck the shops where attempts were made to bake bread. Little hardship, however, has thus far resulted. The lower classes were warned, and supplied themselves with black bread in advance. The strike of the bakers is to be followed in a few days by a butchers' strike.

The news from the interior shows that the wave of strikes is spreading, but it is too early to tell whether this movement, which seems more spontaneous than organized, will precipitate a crisis. New strikes are reported at Yekaterino, at Saratoff, and at the collieries of Bakmuth.

The usual number of robberies are reported today, emphasizing the growing lawlessness and anarchy in the country. There have been two murderous train robberies in the Caucasus, and three stage coaches were held up in Poland. A case of arms and 5,000 cartridges have been confiscated at Riga on an incoming steamer.

The government seems to fear a repetition of the November mutiny at Cronstadt fortress, where the sailors and marines and the soldiers and workmen are reported to be extremely turbulent. Two infantry regiments have been hastily dispatched to Cronstadt from Krasnoye-Selo, and two batteries of artillery and two machine gun batteries have been sent there from Oranienbaum. The streets of Cronstadt are filled with troops, and the well-to-do inhabitants are hurriedly leaving the island on which the town is situated.

SWAMPED WITH FREIGHT.

Oakland, Cal., June 18.—The Southern Pacific companies, West Oakland yards, are swamped with freight. More than 1,700 cars loaded with all sorts of merchandise stand on the tracks. The demand for wares caused by the destruction of stocks by the fire in San Francisco on April 18 accounts for the heavy shipments which are arriving.

Travels Half Way Around World to Meet His Bride.

South African Officer and Portland Girl Will Marry Here.

After traveling half way around the globe to get married, Capt. and Mrs. James Beattie will this evening begin a wedding journey of about 10,000 miles, with Kimberley, S. A. as its teminus.

Captain Beattie is a commissioned officer in the English army in South Africa, and his bride is Miss Charlotte Beatty of Murtinomah county, Or. The bride and groom are first cousins, and the bride is a sister of Mrs. J. B. Alverson of Belleyue Terrace.

Miss Beattie arrived in the city last week from Portland, and has been staying with her sister, preparing for the wedding. Capt. Beattie reached the city yesterday, also coming from the West.

The wedding will be a quiet affair, and will probably take place at the residence of Dr. T. H. Cleland of the First Presbyterian church.

Following the ceremony, Capt. and Mrs. Beattie will leave for the East, and will sail from New York for their home in South Africa.

SUNDAY IS THE CIRCUS WASH DAY

Ringling Bros. Will Give Their Animals Weekly Scrubbing Here.

"From dawn until nightfall every Sunday, the neighborhood of Ringling Bros. World's Greatest shows takes on an appearance of mother's scrub day at home, owing to the busy life attached to circus people," said Charles A. White today, "we are compelled to employ Sunday for wash day, instead of the midweek. Every animal, from the smallest monkey to the giraffe, receives a cleaning after the latest fashion. The African 'Yak,' for example, is treated to a soft-soap shampoo and the marcel wave, which makes her locks glisten and curl in a way to arouse the envy of the most fashionable hairdresser. Many of the performers join in the sport, and the city firemen are called upon to connect hose with the fire main to get a strong enough stream of water to wash the elephants.

"In every city where the show spends Sunday, this sight draws thousands to the circus grounds. Our date being Monday, July 9, will naturally cause the show to spend Sunday in this city, therefore the weekly wash day is scheduled for Duluth."

In speaking of the magnitude of Ringling Bros.' shows this season, Mr. White said:

"There are more exclusive European novelties in the great program of Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows this season than were ever before gathered in a circus performance in this country. It is the first appearance here of all these artists, and the progressive spirit of this wonderfully successful amusement firm was never better illustrated. The most sensational riding acts ever performed are to be seen at each performance in the unique feats of the Clark Brothers and the four Bedinis. These riders have astonished all Europe by their extraordinary equestrianism. Jumping from the ground to a running horse's back, leaping backward to the same flying position, side somersaulting over two fleeting horses, and executing difficult acrobatic feats while on the back of a speeding horse, are several of the deeds that they accomplish that were never before done. The Clark Brothers and four Bedinis are without a peer in the whole world in sensational bareback riding. Gilbert Eldred, the champion rider of England, makes his first appearance with Ringling Brothers. Albert Crandall, the Hobsons, Orrin Davenport, the Royale, Nora Satterfield, John Agee, and Frank Schadle, Nellie Storer are in this class. Among the European artists appearing here for the first time are the De Cocks, Ernesto Sisters, Clarkonians, Onri troupe, Colini Cairons, five Mowatts, Juggling Normans, Young Brothers and Herr Fuss. To bring these artists to this country is another evidence of the progressive policy of Ringling Brothers, which has separated their great shows from all others, both in public favor and exclusively novel and expensive features. Ringling Brothers are leaders in the circus part of the amusement world, for which the public at large is appreciative, as may be seen in the wonderful crowds this show alone attracts."

They cured me of my skin disease, and I am very thankful to you. My trouble was eruption of the skin, which broke out in spots all over my body, and caused a continual itching which nearly drove me wild at times. I got medicine of a doctor, but it did not cure me, and when I saw in a paper your ad., I sent to you for the Cuticura book and I studied my case in it. I then went to the drug store and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment, and one vial of Cuticura Pills. From the first application I received relief. I used the first set and two extra cakes of Cuticura Soap, and was completely cured. I had suffered for two years, and I again thank Cuticura for my cure. If you wish, you may publish this. # HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Lisbon Boy Dives in River and Loses His Life.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Lisbon—Laurence Chalfey, the 17-year-old son of John Chalfey, a furniture dealer and a junior in the high school, was drowned in the Sheyenne river while diving from a high springboard. Two or three small boys who had been swimming and had left the water saw him dive and come up feet first and at once went to his rescue, but were unable to reach him. The body was recovered after dragging for an hour. The boy was an athlete and an excellent swimmer and it is supposed that he struck the root of a nearby tree and was stunned. The mother and father are frantic with grief.

Fargo—A camp meeting has been started at the Broadway M. E. church. Services are held in a large tent and are conducted by Rev. Dr. Carradine of St. Louis, who has a singing evangelist and other assistants.

Even Dahl was arrested here on a serious charge. It is asserted that he and Mrs. Emma Buttz were registered in a Fargo hotel as man and wife. The woman in the case recently came here from Los Angeles to attend the funeral of a brother.

Wahpeton—The trustees of Fargo college have just conferred the honorary degree of doctor of divinity upon Rev. G. B. Barnes, the first president of that institution. Dr. Barnes is regarded as one of the foremost public speakers in the Northwest.

Osnabrock—Some weeks ago a news item was sent out from this place and widely printed to the effect that through an error on the part of a clerk in a Chicago mail-order house Olaf Olaffson had lost his vermiform appendix.

As the story went, Olaffson and his wife sent orders to the Chicago house, one for a supply of liver pills and the other for sweet pea seed. The clerk had made a mistake in the packages, and Olaffson suffered from appendicitis as a result of taking several doses of the seed, his wife being much vexed because the liver pills which she planted did not sprout.

A Chicago house which does a large mail order business in this state determined to investigate the truth of the story, and sent a special representative to Osnabrock. He had little difficulty in finding Mr. Olaffson, who is a well-to-do farmer living about twelve miles from here. Olaffson, however, declared that the sweet pea-liver pill story was erroneous in several particulars. He admitted that he had lost his vermiform appendix, but declared it was several years ago. He also denied that he was the victim of the liver pill habit, declaring that he had never taken a dose of medicine in his life, at least not liver pills. His wife did not order sweet peas from the Chicago house, as asserted, for the simple reason that he never had a wife.

Olaffson explained that the story was the work of an ingenious, but unscrupulous, newspaper man who was unfriendly to him and who wished to hold him up to ridicule.

As a bit of poetic justice, however, Mr. Olaffson stated that soon after sending out the story the newspaper correspondent himself had been attacked by the disease and compelled to submit to an operation. In the deleted appendix of the newspaper man two birdshot were found, but Olaffon refused to advance a theory as to how they got there.

Further investigation on the part of the Chicago man resulted in a full substantiation of Olaffson's story.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Brookings—Charles Baer, who resided with his brother-in-law, C. Gaukle in Moody county, was killed in the railroad yards in this city by walking off the steps of an incoming passenger train late Thursday night. He was returning from a trip west of Pierre, where he had filed on a homestead, and was asleep. When the brakeman called the station Mr. Baer was aroused and in his drowsiness walked out of the coach and plunged off the steps before the train had slackened its pace. He struck squarely on his head, his jaw being broken and skull fractured.

Webster—The preliminary examination of John Muzzahowasta and John Baer, Indians, arrested for the murder of the wife of the former, was held Saturday and resulted in the discharge of the husband and the holding of Baer for the murder.

The death of the squaw, who was about 45, was most brutal and shocking and shows that many so-called civilized Indian of today, when filled with whisky, exceed in depravity and devilishment their forefathers of centuries ago. Muzzahowasta, the husband, had been in Aberdeen two days to appear as a living sign in a cigar store window, his wife and child in the meantime stopping at the camp of John Baer, husband of Muzzahowasta's sister.

The murder occurred in the morning after a night of drunken origie, during which the most vile and shocking scenes were enacted by drunken bucks and the squaw. The evidence indicates that Baer killed the woman and broke her spine by a blow with a club. Muzzahowasta arrived home before the murder, and while it does not appear he was implicated in it, he seems to have been very indifferent. The evidence consists of the dying statement of the woman and of a little child who was an eye-witness.

Huron—The board of education has elected Prof. Clyde Sloan of Carrolton, Ill., superintendent of schools to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. H. C. Emm, who has gone to Oregon. Prof. Emil Anderson, for two years instructor in music in Huron college, has gone to Joliet, Ill., where he will have charge of a choir.

Yankton—When the Missouri breaks through a narrow neck of land east of this city a short distance and pours its resistless force of its high flood waters into the James river valley, what will happen is the question farmers in the neighborhood are asking as they anxiously watch the fast-disappearing neck of land only a few feet across.

For years the river has been cutting its way through the low land one-quarter of a mile above the James river mouth, until when the June rise came this week only a few rods remained to connect the mainland in this county with 1,500 acres of valuable land belonging to "Honest Abe" Van Osdel, and which is leased to four or five renters. The neck has now narrowed to a few feet; a broad area is submerged and the water is already passing over into the James. Another day will, it is expected, see the completion of the work and the cutoff land will be "Old Muddy's" last formed island.

Farmers who have been watching the river closely for some time think the land will be worn away until the old mouth of the James will be cut off, when the Missouri will be able to make a complete sweep of the island along its north shore. Whether the river will be able to cut the island out entirely is mere speculation at this time, but it is thought not, and that property and the large herds of stock in "Lower Egypt," as the fertile tract has been named, will be safe from destruction.

The sight is an interesting one, and many persons are watching the Missouri as it continues to cut its way through the rampart of sand and trees.

In any case there will be an immense rush of water, similar to that of a dam breaking, and it is hard to predict the results.

BEMIDJI WON.

Baseball Team From Crookston Defeated in a One Sided Game.

Bemidji, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bemidji baseball team defeated a team from Crookston, Sunday afternoon, by the one-sided score of 15 to 2. The visiting players were never in the winning class, after the first inning, and the locals pounded the ball to every corner of the grounds. Hallet, an Indian who has been playing second base, pitched for Bemidji and he played a fine game. He allowed the visiting players but three hits, one of which was a scratch, the other two being two baggers. He deserved a shut-out, and would have had it, but for errors. Crookston not getting an earned run. Holstein, also Indian caught. Stephens and Carlson were the battery for Crookston, and Stephens was pounded unmercifully. His support was somewhat ragged, five errors being made by the men behind him. Bemidji won the game on clean, consecutive hitting and good base running. The Bemidji team will play Akeley at the Cass Lake firemen's tournament, next Thursday, and will probably be pitted against Hibbing, at Cass Lake next Saturday and at Bemidji on Sunday.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The summer girl of 1906 is putting crimps in her toes that nothing this side of change and decay will take out. When she is fifty and has ceased seeing beauties in moonlight nights and Ension's frills she will sit and talk by the half hour about the rheumatism right across her toes, and the methods she has tried to git rid of it, but there doesn't nothing seem to help, and when a storm is coming, those toes—well, you never felt anything like it! She will no more think of blaming this summer and the things which she is wearing called pumps than anything in the world, but that is it, all right. If this is the first hunch you have had about the things called gun metal pumps, which are entirely different from hydraulic and stomach pumps, and which the natty girl wears on her feet to spoil her temper, and you think you can make her own up to the fact that they are putting crimps in her toes, you are entirely mistaken. The girl who will admit that they hurt if she does keep them on, is like the one who will admit that she wears a switch to help out Nature's lack of abundant tresses. There is no such person.

But truth to tell these things called pumps are wierd and wonderful. A young person the other day who walked nearly three blocks with a new pair on her feet, sat down with a sob and kicked them viciously to the far end of the room the while she sobbed vindictively, "What will I ever do? My toes are curled so that I can't ever get them naturally straight, and just look at my stocking and a round bit of heel about the size of a fifty cent piece glimmered pinkly between the place where the stocking was formerly joined, "and they came off three times in three blocks. I can't ever keep them on."

"You'll get used to them," comforted one of her friends. "I had the same trouble at first, but my toes curl over and dig down just as easy now, but the trouble is you can't straighten them out at night."

"Why didn't you get something that tied or buttoned on?" inquired a person who was wearing a heel half an inch high, and about a "D" in width.

"They're not stylish," snapped she who was nursing her toes, "I'd just as soon wear moccasins."

And there you are. Truth to tell pumps are delicious. You take a pair of reasonably medium size and give them the proper setting over unseen curled toes, a smoothly stockinged instep, a swirl of lace and ruffles, and then the owner of all this perfectly unconscious of it, especially after she has you hypnotized, when she withdraws it daintily to rest her toes a minute, one can scarcely blame the girl of 1906 for clinging tenaciously to pumps. They make six foot look four and a half, a number four foot encased in them turns a man giddy, and by the time half past three has been reached one hears of elopements. Pumps may crisp one's toes and fret one's temper, and wear out one's stockings, but the other things that they also do, make them decidedly worth while, and the person who is too sensible to buy them is along the line of those who believe in Nature's untrammeled waists and hats that fit your head, and everybody knows that those poor, deluded things ought to be charitably restrained from appearance in public.

What Retail Markets Offer

Blackberries, 20 cents a box.
Pineapples, $1.60 to $2.50 per dozen.
California cherries, 30 cents a lb.
Tomatoes, 40 cents a basket.
Porter house steak, 25 cents a lb.
To preserve pineapples, now is the time, and any man whose wife preserves pineapples for him, may know full well that he is well loved, for no woman, unless she was laboring under some temporary derangement, would begin to preserve pineapples. The unreasoning difficulty of it! One may start to prepare a pineapple with peace and good will toward men in her heart, but by the time the end has been achieved, and all the eyes have been carefully, and without waste, removed, and the core has been rejected, her immediate family dare not speak to her without an answer flying out before one is aware of it that is noteworthy principally for its brevity. Such is the effect that preparing pineapples has on one whose inward peace of mind is dependent on externals. Of course there may be college educated housekeepers who would go about fixing pineapples and quoting Browning's "Prospice" at the same time, murmuring as she shoves down with university trained muscles, "I was ever a fighter. So one fight more." The attention of unreasoning females who really care for anybody enough to want to put up pineapples for them is called to the fact that there are now more pineapples in the market, at cheaper prices than have existed for some years. Do it now.

THE PICKPOCKETS SCARAB

By Channing Pollock.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Mrs. Duncan Osgood, being a woman of great presence of mind, did not scream when she felt a hand, probably the hand of the street car passenger sitting beside her, crawl stealthily into her pocket.

Mrs. Osgood was intelligent as well as self-possessed, and she knew that a cry would instantly project the thief to the rear platform, whence he might easily step to the pavement. Considering the emergency hastily, Mrs. Osgood did the very best thing that could have been done under the circumstances. She dropped her own hand to her skirt and clasped the intruding digits as firmly as she was able. Instantly the digits aforesaid were wrenched free and the young man on her right hurried out of the car.

Mrs. Osgood held her pocket for a few moments while she decided to hold her peace. She could feel that her purse was safe and she realized that by that time the young man must be in the same happy condition. Since nothing had been lost, nothing was to be gained by creating a disturbance. Mrs. Osgood remained on the car until it reached Seventy-second street, where she resided, and then, her self-satisfaction showing in every movement, she walked home.

That night, while she was dressing for dinner, her maid remarked: "I put your new ring in the jewel box, madam."

"My new ring?" inquired Mrs. Osgood.

"The one in your pocket," replied the maid. "It wasn't wrapped; just loose like."

"Ah!" quoth Mrs. Osgood. "Let me see it."

It was a curious trinket of the sort known as a burial scarab. Doubtless hundreds of years before it had adorned the hand of some spiced Egyptian gentleman boxed and consigned to a polytheistic paradise. More recently, Mrs. Osgood felt certain, it had slipped from the finger of another gentleman bound for a place remote from any paradise whatever. In fine, the ring unquestionably was the property of the pickpocket, and its present possessor had foiled a thief only to become a thief herself.

"The funny part of it," said Mrs. Osgood while the fish was being served, "is that I can't bring myself to hope that anyone will ever claim the thing. It's the most extraordinary scarab I ever saw."

"I shouldn't think of wearing it," returned Mr. Osgood. "It might be infected, or for all you can tell, it might be a symbol to identify you as a member of some criminal society."

"Oh, that's too good!" exclaimed his wife, and attacked the fish.

A few days later she advertised in a paper that the owner of a fine Egyptian scarab lost on a Columbus avenue car might have the same by the simple process of describing his property. The notice also contained the reassuring information that no questions would be asked. Notwithstanding this promise of consideration for a tender conscience, no one ever called to claim the ring, and, after a time, Mrs. Osgood began wearing it herself. "I have a strange partiality for things out of place," she commented, "and a 2,000-year-old beetle bound to the third finger of one's right hand may certainly be said to be out of place."

"Don't be surprised," her husband admonished, "if some anarchistic-looking ruffian stops you on the street and asks for the countersign."

Mrs. Osgood laughed again. Deep in her heart she did feel a little uneasiness, but, as she wore the ring evening after evening and the prophecy of her lord and master was never fulfilled, even this slight fear left her. On the first night of the Conried season she selected the ornament from a large number of others and carried it so far into society as D 3 Left, in the Metropolitan opera house. There it excited considerable attention, particularly from a thin, nervous woman in a loud gown and the adjoining seat.

The thin, nervous woman proved to be anything but an agreeable neighbor. She figeted restlessly in her chair and expressed annoyance at the contact of Mrs. Osgood's opera cloak, which had been thrown carelessly over the space of seat-back between them, by frequently plucking at its soft folds. At first Mrs. Osgood laid these gaucheries to semi-intoxication, an opinion born of her husband's laughing remark: "She goes out after every act and is worse every time she comes back." Subsequently, however, it was agreed that the offender probably was merely "an outsider" who didn't know how to conduct herself.

"There isn't any bar in the foyer, is there?" Mrs. Osgood asked during one of the intermissions.

Mr. Osgood said there wasn't.

"Well, then!" returned Mrs. Osgood, adding: "Besides, I noticed that she simply walks about. Perhaps this is the first time she has ever been among really nice people, poor thing!"

Whether the proximity mentioned had an inebriating effect or whether the vexatious person was merely tired, she came so near embracing the occupant of D 3 Left, after her last tour, that Mrs. Osgood was much ruffled and ejaculated angrily, "Do be careful!"

"Oh, that's all right," whispered the "outsider" impudently, and Mrs. Osgood turned her attention to the stage and Marguerite, who was in the very act of going to heaven.

There was some pushing and crowding on the way out of the theater, the audience, as usual, quitting the house under the apparent conviction that it would be consumed by fire within the next five minutes. Mrs. Osgood, not being robust, was rather long in reaching the last row of orchestra seats. When she did emerge from the aisle, she was confronted by a bulky police officer, who effectually blocked her passage. "Will you step over here, ma'am?" inquired that gentleman. "I'd like to have a word wid you."

Mrs. Osgood, who considered members of the police force out of place except on Fifth avenue, was about to reply that she entertained no similar sentiment toward him, when her husband, realizing that something was wrong, took her arm and drew her to one side.

"Now," he said when they got out of the crowd, "what is the matter?"

The tone of authority awed the policeman into an apologetic attitude. "Some kind of a mistake, I guess," he answered, "but this lady's lost her 'brooch' and she says she seen it on that lady."

"This lady" was a stout dowager standing near by with her son. It seems unnecessary to explain that "that lady" was Mrs. Osgood.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the spouse of the accused. "Why, my wife is Mrs. Duncan Osgood!"

That ought to have settled the matter, but it didn't.

The dowager was persistent in urging her case—a distinct advantage, since Mrs. Osgood, pendulating violently between amazement and indignation, for once in her life was quite deprived of speech.

"When this woman put on her cloak I saw my brooch pinned to the lining," he explained the complainant. "I was so sure it was my brooch that involuntarily I put up my hand to my throat. Sure enough, my jewels were gone. I demand that this officer do his duty!" she concluded dramatically, glaring a stony defiance at Mr. Osgood. Despite the fact that all the persons concerned were some distance from the route to the exits, an interested crowd had gathered and the affair was becoming more embarrassing every moment. Mr. Osgood was roused to action.

"It is perfect idiocy to accuse my wife of theft," he said with dignity. "Your brooch probably came unfastened and fell to the floor. Doubtless it has already been found and turned in at the box office."

The dowager sniffed, looking, in the process, uncommonly like a Japanese pug dog.

"That being true," continued Mr. Osgood, "and this scene being most humiliating, you will oblige me, officer, by permitting us to pass."

The policeman wavered. "There's been a lot of complaints this evening," he objected. "I don't know just what to do."

This was so obvious that immediately everybody began making suggestions. Mrs. Osgood, however, had come to herself in the interval. Her presence of mind returned.

"Wait!" she commanded, the iciness of her tone instantly silencing those about her. "We will put a stop to this foolishness at once. The old lady says she saw her brooch on my cloak. Now she can examine the cloak herself and see her mistake."

With a gesture of superb disdain, she pulled the garment from her shoulders and held it up for inspection. There was a chorus of gasps. Mrs. Osgood glanced at the cloak and then fell back against her husband. The chiffon interlining of the wrap was fairly ablaze with gems. Not only was the missing brooch visible, fastened securely near the collar, but there were sunbursts and crescents and Mercury-wings and stickpins galore. Diamonds shone along the hem, opals clung lovingly to the lace ruffles, and emeralds peeped out from the folds.

Mr. Osgood was the first of the astonished group to recover his senses and to realize that this latest development carried the incident beyond him. "It seems," he observed, "that Mrs. Osgood has been made the scapegoat of a thief. I think we had all better accompany this officer to the station house until some conclusion can be reached." He struck out determinedly for the door, Mrs. Osgood clinging to his arm, the dowager and her son following after, the dazed policeman close behind, the knot of spectators in the rear.

On the sidewalk Mrs. Osgood felt some one jostle her, and turned to look into the face of the thin, nervous woman whose behavior had been so intolerable during the performance. Having secured her attention, that individual leaned forward until her lips almost touched Mrs. Osgood's ear.

"You squealer!" she whispered. "If you didn't intend to get away with them, why did you wear the ring?"

An instant later, when Mrs. Osgood, comprehending at last, reached out for her, she had disappeared into the night.

VOTE IT DOWN.

There is pending before the common council of the city of Duluth an amendment to the ordinance governing peddlers' licenses, which is designed to compel farmers selling produce in the city to take out licenses and pay a fee therefor.

That ordinance may come up at tonight's session of the council.

The Herald, trusting in the good sense and patriotism and devotion to the interests of their community that it knows the aldermen possess in abundance, believes that that ordinance will either be withdrawn tonight or voted down.

There can hardly be any valid reason for passing such an ordinance, and there are many very good ones why it should not be passed. Duluth does not want to discourage farming and market-gardening upon the lands around here, but on the other hand should encourage such industries in every possible way. Duluth wants to be a manufacturing center, and in order to accomplish that end she must have cheap living. One of the very best ways to get that is to have as large a proportion of her food supplies as possible raised close to the city.

To adopt an ordinance compelling farmers and market gardeners to take out licenses and pay fees for them before selling their products on the street is to discourage them and to put a penalty upon their industry when there should be a premium.

The people of Minnesota will vote at the coming general election upon an amendment to the constitution relieving farmers and gardeners from any such license fees in any community of the state. The amendment would throw down the bars to them and bid them enter into every city and village of the commonwealth and sell their produce without hindrance. This amendment is likely to carry, and it ought to carry, because the interests of a state like Minnesota demand that every encouragement shall be given to husbandry. This is particularly true in the newer portions of the state, where agriculture has not yet reached an independent situation, but needs fostering.

When Duluth is trying to get farmers to come upon the lands near her and use them for gardening and dairying, to have it go forth that the city requires a peddlers' license from them when they attempt to sell their goods in their best market is to discourage the movment that means so much to the growth and prosperity of the city.

Let the ordinance be withdrawn or voted down, once for all, at tonight's meeting, and let it be known that Duluth welcomes the farmers and gives them every encouragement.

OSLER AND THE SENATE.

The remark that made Dr. Osler famous—which he never uttered, by the way—is made ridiculous by a look at the United States senate. Some of its most active and vigorous men are more than 80 years old, and the list of octogenarians has just been reinforced by the addition of William Pinkney Whyte of Maryland, who has been appointed to succeed the late Arthur Pue Gorman.

The new senator is almost 82 years old, but at that he is not the oldest man in the senate. Pettus of Alabama is 85, and Morgan is a few months older than Whyte. All three of these men, who ought to be so burdened with years that they can hardly get around, are a lot more spry and active, mentally and physically, than a young man of 30 with an attack of indigestion.

Senator Whyte is not a new senator. This is his third time on the upper branch of congress. His first appearance was forty years ago, and there is not a single survivor in office of his first senatorial time. Most of them are dead, and the few survivors have long since retired to private life. Senator Allison is the dean of the senate, but he did not take his seat until 1873, though he was a member of the house in 1868. General Ketcham of New York is the only other house member who was there when Senator Whyte took his seat for the first time.

Mr. Whyte has been described as the most remarkable politician in the country. He was in the Maryland legislature fifty years ago, and since that time has been governor of his state in addition to holding other state and federal offices and the mayoralty of Baltimore. He was overthrown in his second trip to the senate by Gorman, whose political shoes he takes now that their owner is dead.

He is said to be a gentleman of the old school, incorruptible and clearheaded. He has nearly two years to serve, and he may be re-elected by the legislature of his state. Senator Pettus, undismayed by his 85 years, expects to round out the three remaining years of his term and live a long time to think it over. Morgan has only a year to serve, but he is a candidate for re-election and expects to be successful. If he is, he will be 89 years old when he retires. No man in the senate is more active or speaks oftener and more to the point than he.

All of which would make Dr. Osler feel ashamed of himself if he had said it, but as he didn't he will probably realize, as any sensible man should, that a man is just as old as he feels, and that where one man may be old at 40 another may be young at 80. It all depends upon a careful selection of ancestry and mode of living.

CORPORATION CONTRIBUTIONS.

The corrupt practices act lately passed by the senate is rather sweeping, and while possibly it might have been made more effective by permitting the court, in its discretion, to impose imprisonment as a punishment, still it promises to be a fairly effective weapon, always providing, of course, that it is enforced. No law will act automatically, unless it is pushed by conscientious public officials, kept conscientious by the knowledge that the people are looking.

The bill provides that it shall be unlawful for any national bank or any corporation organized by authority of any laws of congress to make a money contribution in connection with any election to any political office. It also makes it unlawful for any corporation whatever to make a money contribution in connection with any election at which presidential electors or representatives in congress are to vote for, or any election by a state legislature of a United States senator. Violations are subject to a fine not exceeding $5,000 against the corporation offending, and not to exceed $1,000 against the officer or director who consents to any contribution by the corporation.

This is as far as congress may go in the matter of corporation contributions. It prohibits all contributions where the corporations are formed under federal laws, and it prohibits all contributions to federal election campaign funds.

These provisions are thoroughly wholesome and necessary, and it is certainly to be hoped that the house will act favorably and promptly upon the measure. A corporation, as The Herald has often pointed out, can have no patriotism, no affection for an individual or anything else to warrant campaign contributions, except the selfish desire to promote policies, parties and persons that will work to its advantage. Therefore every campaign contribution from a corporation is in consideration of some favor, and that favor is necessarily at the expense of the people.

To become thoroughly effective, this bill must be backed up by similar bills in every state. Maybe it will not be effective even then. Some joker has said that the corporations favor it because it will be a good excuse to present when they do not want to contribute, and no trouble at all when they do want to contribute.

But it is along the right lines, and even if it is not completely effective, it cannot help doing some good.

ROOSEVELT AND BRYAN.

Will it be Roosevelt against Bryan in 1908?

It looks not at all unlike it now. Certainly it is becoming clear that they are the choice of the members of their respective parties. It is true that President Roosevelt has stated that he would not again become a candidate for the presidency, but if in response to an obvious demand from the people the Republican party should nominate him in the next presidential year he really would have no option but to accept. A presidential nomination from a great party is not to be refused lightly, and it is not likely to be often refused at all.

As to Mr. Bryan, a revolution, social and political, has come about since he was last the standard bearer for the Democratic party. Then he was a radical of radicals; now he ranks as a fairly conservative publicist, and in many respects is much more conservative than President Roosevelt.

While these two honest men are the logical candidates for the respective nominations, there may be some doubt whether Mr. Bryan would become a candidate in the event that President Roosevelt is nominated by the Republicans. Unless there is a decided change in public sentiment, not even so able and popular a man as Bryan would find much profit or glory in a fight to unseat President Roosevelt from his present position. But if the reactionary or standpat forces in the Republican party should come into control, and nominate some advocate of reaction like Vice President Fairbanks, Bryan would undoubtedly be a candidate, and if the issue was pretty clearly defined between the progressive ideas of Bryan and the retrogressive tendencies of the standpatter candidate, Bryan would be elected easily.

But there is little to be gained by such speculations now. The presidential conventions of 1908 are far in the future. Much may happen in the meantime. Popular idols of today may become the popular footballs and doormats of tomorrow. Calculations based upon the present attitude and standing of prospective candidates might be wiped out in a moment by the tricksy whims of fortune.

But whatever happens, and whoever the candidates may be, this country is growing upward politically and socially, and the reform that was reviled and called hard names a few years ago is the popular demand today and will be accomplished tomorrow. Progress, though it is at times obscured and delayed, is as inevitable a law of nature as gravity. Whether it is through Roosevelt or Bryan or Taft or whatever other instrument fate may choose for her use, better things are coming soon, always providing that we do not delay them by ceasing to demand them insistently and persistently.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Western farmers already are beginning to wonder what effect all the railroad construction work that is going on in the Northwest will have on their harvesting operations, and the railroad contractors in their turn are wondering what effect the harvesting operations will have on their construction work," said E. G. Peters of Grand Forks, N. D., at the Lenox.

"There is so much work to be had in other lines, and at very fair wages, that a doubt is expressed as to whether the farmers will be able to secure enough harvest help this year. Of course, the wages paid for this class of work is even higher than the most liberal of the contractors give, but the work is hard and doesn't extend over a long period. Many men will figure that they will be about as well off to stick throughout the season with a railroad.

"There is always a certain class, however, that goes to the harvest fields regularly every year, and this can be depended on the coming fall and summer. For myself, I do not believe there will be any serious shortage. The men will want a change, and if good wages are offered will leave the railroads without much hesitation. And it is pretty sure that good wages will be paid, for the farmer has to have men at any price, no matter how high the figure he has to offer to get them.

"Much of the railroad extension work is being done in the heart of the farming country, and the contractors there are going to find it is a mighty hard proposition to hold onto their men when the farmers begin cutting their grain. They are worrying over the matter now, and some of them have feelers out in the East to see whether they will be able to rush in new labor at short notice to fill any vacancies that may occur. They have difficulty enough in keeping men as it is, and have had all along, since the opening of the season.

"The laborers have been in a position to be more independent this year than for a long time past. Different companies have been bidding for their services, and they could get a job any time they wanted it, with quite a selection to choose from. During the rainy weather they just sat around with a prosperous air and refused to hire out at any kind of work except that which was inside and easy.

"I'll wager that if you make inquiry among the local employment offices you will find that they did a lot of business this year on the free fare and no fee basis. In order to keep the best of their patrons, some of the agencies have to fill their orders for men, or partly fill them, at a loss to themselves, and when there is a scarcity of labor the free fare and no fee sign is put out, making it virtually a free employment bureau."

* * *

"We are glad down our way that the commissioner of the general land office has seen fit to take favorable action on our townsite matter," said W. A. Epperson of Brookston, Minn., at the St. Louis. Mr. Epperson is secretary of the Brookston Land company.

"Brookston is situated midway between Floodwood and Cloquet, at the junction of the main line of the Great Northern Fosston division and the Great Northern cut-off to the Mesaba range. Northern cut-off to the Mesaba range. The town is in the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, and the application to establish a townsite there was made two years ago. The reservation was opened last August. The townsite now embraces 290 acres, and we have a village of 125 people, with two stores and a postoffice, together with a newspaper and a hotel.

"We are anxiously awaiting the patents for the land, for we are much in need of the necessary authority to organize and establish a school. We have forty school children there and no educational facilities. An attempt was made to annex Brookston to Culver township, but the effort met with failure, and we were also unsuccessful in trying to organize a townsite of our own.

"A good farming country surrounds Brookston, and some day it should be quite an agricultural center. As soon as we are able to organize and go ahead with all the contemplated improvements, Brookston will enjoy a rapid growth and development, greatly assisted by the fact that the reservation has been opened to settlement."

"Minneapolis and St. Paul entertain a very friendly regard for A. L. Cole, Republican nominee for governor," said A. D. Rahn of Minneapolis at the St. Louis. Mr. Rahn was secretary of the Hennepin county delegation at the Republican state convention. "His state development policy has interested the Twin Cities, and is meeting with favor in other parts of the state. The entire ticket is a strong one and it has been well received. I have no doubt that it will be a strong and easy winner at the November election."

THE WEATHER.

Fine days are by no means rare this June. For ten days there has been nothing else, so it is possible to forgive and forget the other kind that happened earlier in the month. Yesterday a smoky haze overspread the sky, making it a possible doubt whether rain was not imminent, but none came, and last night was charming. This morning it was clear and delightful, a northeast breeze keeping it cool. Last night's lowest temperature was 48 degs. and yesterday's highest, 64 degs. The weather man expects the easterly wind to switch to westerly tomorrow, but in the meantime he thinks there will probably be showers and thunderstorms.

A year ago yesterday a northeaster was just winding up, but a year ago today the weather was fine.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The disturbance central Saturday morning north of Montana has moved slowly eastward to Manitoba. Low pressure areas also overlie Arizona and South Atlantic states. These disturbances have caused rains in Atlantic states, eastern lake region, the Missouri and Red river valleys and the Northwest, heavy precipitation occurring at Minnedosa, Winnipeg, Huron, Sioux City, Omaha and Dodge. Warm weather is quite generally the rule except in Rocky Mountain districts, the extreme Northwest and over western Lake Superior. The barometer is high over New England and Rocky Mountain states. Conditions are favorable for the development of showers in this locality tonight or Tuesday.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

History will speak of today as the age when a murderer was murdered, as punishment for his crime, with the same feeling of horror as we today look back upon the Inquisition.

That the convention was held in Duluth was no small factor in the nomination of Mr. Cole. Duluth is nothing if not loyal to the interests of Northern Minnesota.

It requires more than ordinary courage to walk on the ragged edge of uncertainty, even with the eyes fixed on the goal of certainty beyond.

The Truant's Fear.

How as a school boy I did fear
Examination day!
Remorseful memories hovered near
Of wasted time at play.
Then tasks neglected met my view
A grim and threatening mass,
And as I strove to start anew,
I wondered if I'd pass.

And in life's larger school how oft
Has resolution strayed,
When smiling skies were bright aloft
And cool and sweet the shade.
My truancies I now recall
With deep regret. Alas,
I know that my deserts are small.
I wondered if I'd pass.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

North Branch Review: The opinion of the majority of the delegates at Duluth seemed to be that Jacobson will yet be governor.

Eveleth Star: There was a time when federal officeholders were compelled to resign if they participated in state politics. But that seems so long ago that the active ones doubtless are of the opinion that the rule has been outlawed. The big stick could be employed to good advantage along this line.

Anoka Herald: The cause of woman's suffrage received a severe blow in being defeated in Oregon this week. It has developed that women are too aonest to serve the purpose of the corrupt politicians that infest the Far West.

Crookston Times (Rep.): With Bryan as the Democratic nominee, the Republican party will have on its hands one of the hardest fights in its history.

Madison Independent Press: The administration at Washington is still after the scalps of the packers and their friends have set up the cry that the business of the country will be ruined. Better the ruin of the business of the nation than the health of its people, so let the probing proceed.

Fairmont Sentinel: Corporation money is being spent without license or limit to defeat Governor Cummins of Iowa. Cummins stands for tariff reform and square deal—in fact he is on "allfours" with Governor Johnson of Minnesota and it will be found that he is in public life to stay.

Brainerd Tribune: Democrats are right in supposing that Bryan can get more votes than any other man in the Democratic and Populist parties combined. The fact has been proved twice, along with the other fact that he failed to get enough of elect either time.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The value of Mr. Rockefeller's rule for success "do more than is expected of you," depends on whether you are doing it for somebody. John did it to the other fellow and for himself, hence his success.

Little Falls Herald: The tariff is the mother of graft in numberless cases. All other grafts appear small besides some of the gigantic trusts fostered and upheld by exorbitant tariffs.

Albert Lea Standard: Someone smart enough to know the difference between mushrooms and toadstools is needed to tell the difference between Democrats and Republicans—it's mostly in the name.

Rochester Post and Record: The packers went on the theory that anything that can be deodorized sufficiently to be inoffensive to the human nose and palate is fit for the stomach. The packers have been good business friends of the doctors and undertakers.

Farmington Tribune: Nearly every one of us is figuring on having a fine time just ahead when we get all fixed, and this vision is just ahead of us when we fall asleep. To live in the now and enjoy the present is the work of a pullosopher.

SMILING REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: "Brother Pheer, how can you hope to be saved if you never contribute anything to the support of the church?"

"It is your idea, Brother Johnson, that people have to go to heaven on the European plan?"

Washington Star: "Father," said the small boy, "what is a pessimist?"

"A pessimist, my son, is a man who when the home team wins knocks because the score wasn't larger."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "What's the difference between vision and sight?"

"See those two girls across the street?"

"Yes."

"Well, the pretty one I would call a vision of loveliness, but the other one—she's a sight."

New York Sun: "Did you collect insurance?"

"No," answered the San Franciscan. "I will be lucky if the company does not indict me for earthquaking."

Philadelphia Press: "Well, Uncle Josh," asked the fair debutante, as she came down arrayed in all her finery, "what do you think of me?"

"My land!" cried the old uncle from the country, "what's this?"

"This is my coming-out-gown."

"By crackey. You do look 's if you wuz."

Philadelphia Press: "Hear your minister's gone in for ritualism."

"Yes; he's gone wrong completely."

"Why, how can you say that? He's all rite now."

Chicago Tribune: The House Cat — You're getting fat and apoplectic. I can see your finish.

The Pug Dog (making an effort to turn his head, but giving it up)—That's more than I can do, anyhow.

Washington Star: "Do you regard that man's arguments as sound?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "That and nothing else."

Philadelphia Press: "The trouble is she's too fond of talking behind her back."

"Behind whose back?"

"Her own. She's a regular rubber-neck."

Revelations.

Ladies' Home Journal: The minister's wife was busily engaged one afternoon mending the family clothes when a neighbor called for a friendly chat.

After a few minutes of news and gossip the caller remarked, as she began to inspect a basket of miscellaneous buttons: "You seem to be unusually well supplied with buttons of all kinds. Why, there's one like my husband had on his winter's suit?"

"Indeed!" said the minister's wife with a slight smile. "Well, all these buttons were found in the contribution box, and I thought I might as well make some use of them. What—must you go? Well, goodby. Come again soon."

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Grand Forks Press: Duluth-Superior is now the third largest shipping port in the world. This ought to encourage the White Sox.

Stillwater Gazette: This is true as gospel. The Duluth Herald says "there is not a particle of partisanship about graft, and there should be none in hunting it out and punishing it." That's the policy of President Roosevelt.

Minnesota Mascot: Bishop Fallows wants the prayer-book revised to include newspaper men among those prayed for by the churches.—Duluth Herald.

Some editor must have taken the bishop into his confidence and shown him his subscription book. After which we do not wonder that the prelate wanted the newspaper men put on the prayer list.

Appleton Press: They have a street car toboggan at Duluth that, while lifting you up, unrolls one of the finest pictures of natural scenery ever unspoiled by an artist's pen. Duluth, Minnesota Point, the bay, Superior, and the lake. Oh! for a Hogarth to draw it; or a Robert Burns to describe it; we can't. So just take your best girl there and show her.

Minneapolis Telegram: Politics is dull. —Anoka Union.

A fellow has to be pretty sharp to win in it, however.—Duluth Evening Herald.

Yes, and that is when he gains his point.

Mankato Free Press: "What's become of the calamity howler?" asks The Duluth Herald. Lost in the wave of prosperity.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: No, gentle reader, those were not electrical storms; that growling sound you heard and the illuminated sky you saw were but the whirring of grindstones and the flying of sparks from Duluth, where Little Tammany has been busy the past several days (and nights) polishing up its rusty scalping knives.

Brookston Herald: Duluth did herself proud!

Eveleth Mining News: While it is often remarked that the ranges have been the "making" of Duluth, a fact frequently lost sight of is that the natural advantages of Duluth's location are important factors in the making of all Northeastern Minnesota. Duluth is a city with a great future.

Two Harbors Journal: The Duluth Herald is striking a sensible string upon the political harpsichord when it speaks so often of the legislative candidates being men of some educational and intellectual strength and letting the people know what they stand for. Some of the representatives go to the legislature merely "to have a good time," and, of course, they become mere tools for other men or for some special interests, and thus do not represent the people who send them.

North Branch Review: That London physician who declared for the "silence cure" for nervous women gave the paragraphers a great boon.—Duluth Herald.

If he can succeed in giving the medicine, his remedy will also be a great boon to mankind in general.

Anoka Herald: The way the Duluth papers have covered the convention reflects great credit upon those enterprising dailies.

Likes Roosevelt's Way.

Columbus, Ohio, State Journal. In its editorial on the packing-house exposure, the Hartford Courant thus refers to Roosevelt:

"We look for another drive against this meddlesome man Roosevelt. How bent the fellow seems to be that the world shall be better before his time for stirring it up is past. He pushes in here and there and spectators stand aghast at the wrongs he exposes. But he sees, with a vision that is not dimmed by selfishness and that looks beyond pocket-books and dividends, that the way to stop wrongs is not to hush them up, but to show them up."

That is neatly and truly said. Roosevelt may stumble a little, but he stumbles in the right direction. The correction of abuses and the lifting of oppressions is the highest duty of statesmanship today. It is not a smooth task and most statesmen would omit it rather than rake up the trouble. But that is not Roosevelt. He sees some great wrong and he grabs his big stick and strikes it out. The fact that he is fought makes him an issue today. The people see he is working on the great lines of activity that touch their lives most seriously and they are standing by him.

When We Grow Old.

The tallest lilies droop at eventide,
The sweetest roses fall from off the stem,
The rarest things on earth cannot abide,
And we're passing, too, away like them;
We're growing old!

We had our dreams, those rosy dreams of youth!
They faded, and 'twas well. This afternoon prime Hath brought us fuller hopes; and yet, forsooth,
We drop a tear now in this later time
To think we're old.

We smile at those poor fancies of the past—
A saddened smile, almost akin to pain;
Those high desires, those purposes so vast,
Ah, our poor hearts! They cannot come again!
We're growing old!

Old? Well, the heavens are old; this earth is, too;
Old wine is best, maturest fruit most sweet;
Much have we lost, more gained, although 'tis true
We tread life's way with most uncertain feet.
We're growing old!

We move along, and scatter as we pace
Soft graces, tender hopes on every hand;
At last, with gray-streaked hair and hollow face,
We step across the boundary of the land
Where none are old.

DEFENSE IS BEGUN

John McAlpine Is Cross-Examined In Mr. Millen's Behalf.

W. H. Cook Gives Testimony of Interest to Timber Men.

The 150,000 damage case of John McAlpine against John Millen continues to be the sole topic of interest among the local lumber and timber men and there were a considerable number of them in attendance at the district court this morning when Mr. Millen began his defense.

Mr. McAlpine bases his claim on the "overrun" at the mill of the lumber, from the timber which he and Mr. Millen bought from Richardson & Avery a few years ago. He claims that the business of getting the timber logged and sawed was left to Mr. Millen and that the latter got a profit of $150,000 that rightfully belongs to the plaintiff.

Mr. McAlpine was called for cross-examination under the statutes and his passages with Mr. Fryberger, attorney for Mr. Millen, were enlivening features of the morning session. Mr. McAlpine demurred at answering some of the questions with a simple affirmative or negative reply, claiming he would have to "explain" a little. The counsel for Mr. Millen objected to having any "explaining," but Mr. McAlpine usually had his way if he answered at all.

"Wait a minute," Mr. Fryberger would call out as he started to head off some of the explanatory remarks, but Mr. McAlpine with a "wait a minute yourself," insisted on finishing what he started out to say.

A general laugh was caused when, goaded by Mr. Fryberger, the witness declared:

"You try to run the court and me, too, but can't do it."

Mr. McAlpine was questioned as to his experience in the timber business and his knowledge of logging and lumbering. He said he had been at the business ever since he was 15 years old, both as an employe and an employer and was familiar with all timber operations except the sawmill work. His experience was gained in Wisconsin, California and in this state.

The witness testified that he had nothing to do with the business of getting the Richardson & Avery timber purchase manufactured into lumber, except when requested to look after certain matters by Mr. Millen. He left everything to Mr. Millen, as he had more than enough to do to look after his own business.

The entire supervision was left to Mr. Millen, the witness claimed, until he found that it was necessary for him to protect his own interests.

The contract made by Messrs. McAlpine and Millen with Ab Smith, who logged some of the timber purchased, was produced in evidence by the defense, and marked as an exhibit. Under the terms of the agreement Smith was to get $1 per thousand for the logs, less the expense of labor and cost of supplies. Mr. McAlpine claimed that Mr. Millen negotiated this transaction, and that all he had to do with getting Smith on the contract was to remark that he understood that Smith was a good man.

Another contract produced by Mr. Millen was that made with the St. Louis Lumber company to saw about 20,000,000 feet of the logs purchased by Millen & McAlpine. Mr. McAlpine said all these logs were to have been sawed at the St. Louis mill, but he understood that some were not sawed there. The second exhibit by the defense was an agreement by McAlpine & Millen to sell the American Lumber company about 40,000,000 feet of the timber grading No. 2 and better for $18.25 per thousand feet. Mr. McAlpine presumed this contract referred to the Richardson & Avery tract.

Another agreement to trade timber tracts between Mr. McAlpine and Alger, Smith & Co. was produced in evidence. Mr. McAlpine said that Mr. Millen suggested the trade, claiming it would be of advantage to both Mr. McAlpine and the lumber company.

Another witness to give testimony of interest was W. H. Cook, president of the Duluth, Virginia & Winnipeg Railway company and secretary of the Virginia Lumber company. Mr. Cook was called by Mr. Millen to give expert opinion on timber estimates and "overrun," and some of his statements caused a ripple of interest among the listening timber men.

Mr. Cook said he had been interested in the purchase and sale of about 2,000,000,000 feet of timber during the last few years, and had personally estimated probably 1,000,000,000 feet of the total amount. He said that he is familiar with the tract called the Richardson & Avery tract, and gave it as his opinion that there could be no "overrun" in a comparison of the log scale on the stump and the scale after the saw, on such timber.

Mr. Cook declared that all log scale in the woods is guesswork, and that the only accurate scale is that made after the lumber is manufactured. He said that the estimates of competent men, if they were within 10 per cent of the real amount, would be considered as very close. Some estimates, according to the testimony by Mr. Cook, vary 25 to 50 per cent.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clapp, the witness said he had never done any scaling himself, but was entirely familiar with that work. He testified that in stating his opinion under direct examination, he had based his answers on the condition that the lumber graded No. 5, and better.

Mr. Cook claimed that "straight and sound" timber talk is all guesswork. He gave it as his opinion that a pine log 17 inches in diameter and perfectly sound and straight, scaled by the Scribner rule, would "overrun" from 15 to 20 per cent.

Under redirect examination, Mr. Cook said that the so-called No. 6 lumber on the market at the present time is the class of stuff that a few years ago went into the slab burners, a new grade classified as a result of the demand that has sprung up for any sort of lumber.

J. A. Stetson, who checked the cars of logs at the mill for Mr. McAlpine, and who was called for cross-examination, gave testimony as to the car numbers at different dates. In some instances his record showed that the same car came down from the woods with logs as many times as three days in succession. Witness was unable to explain how this could be done, but he was positive that his records were correct. Mr. Fryberger sought to shake his confidence in his reports by showing a wide discrepancy between his car reports and those of the railway company for the same day, but the witness would not concede that his report was in the wrong.

Death was caused by cancer of the stomach. Mr. Dewey was 69 years of age, and he was on his way to his old home in Montpelier, Vt. The body will be shipped there for burial.

WAS NO WAY TO SHUT OFF GAS

Which Causes Injury to Fireman at St. Paul Fire.

St. Paul, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Fire Marshal Peterson made an investigation of the Ryan Annex fire with a view of discovering the cause of the several explosions yesterday, which aided the progress of the fire and which caused an injury to about twenty firemen, and found that there were no cut offs to the gas mains entering the building except those located at the gas meters. A number of firemen who were overcome during the fire complained that gas fumes were so strong that they could not breathe at times. Peterson says he has been in communication with fire marshals in other cities and finds that few cities if any have any provisions for cutting off the gas supplies in buildings in case of fire. Mr. Peterson says he will have a bill prepared for the next legislature remedying this feature.

Within six hours after he had promised Judge Windom of the municipal court never to touch another drop of liquor, Phillip Smith was again arrested Saturday night on the charge of drunkenness.

Smith is one of the old residents of Duluth, and is well known here. He was arrested and brought into court Saturday morning, charged with third offense drunkenness. Judge Windom imposed a fine of $50 and costs or sixty days in jail, and on Smith giving a solemn promise to reform, suspended sentence pending good behavior. Before night Smith was again arrested, and this morning a commitment was issued on the sentence imposed Saturday, and Smith sent to the county jail for sixty days.

RAILROADS

TOURISTS ARRIVING

First of Summer Visitors Are Coming From the East.

Travel Through Duluth Should be Heavy This Season.

The first of the summer tourists from Eastern points are beginning to arrive. Duluth is coming into more prominence every year as a point of interest to tourists, and consequently the number of such visitors grows each season.

It is still a little early for a heavy passenger travel up the lakes, but within the next two or three weeks the lake boats will be doing a big business, and July will see the season at its height. The steamer North West will arrive in Duluth on its first trip of the season Tuesday, June 26, and will leave on the return trip to Buffalo the same day. The boat will touch at Duluth regularly every Tuesday during the remainder of the season, until about Sept. 11, according to the present schedule.

The steamship North Land will be in commission between Buffalo and Chicago, leaving Buffalo every Wednesday and Chicago every Saturday. The first sailing will be from Buffalo June 20, and from Chicago June 23. The North West's first sailing from Buffalo will also be on June 23.

The fact that the Northern Pacific has a direct line from Duluth to the Yellowstone park attracts a good many people this way, for the park is one of the strongest attractions America has to offer. The Northern Pacific is expecting a very heavy travel to the park this year, and it is believed that tourist travel to all Northwestern points will be unusually heavy.

Railroad Men Arriving.

The second annual meeting of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club will be held in Duluth tomorrow and Wednesday, and the first outside members of the organization to arrive came in on the afternoon trains. It is expected that between 150 and 200 persons will be in attendance. The program for tomorrow is a boulevard drive in the morning, and an excursion on the lake in the afternoon, with a planked whitefish supper served on the boat. On Wednesday a special train will be run to Hibbing and the iron mines over the Missabie road for the benefit of the visitors.

Readjust Western Rates.

The Harriman lines, the Santa Fe and all tributary railroads traversing the states of California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah, are to make a general readjustment of passenger rates. It is expected that the readjustment will become effective early in July.

In California, where a fare of 10 cents in the mountain districts is legalized, the majority of the traffic is based upon the 3-cent rate. In Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico the rates heretofore have been 5 cents, and will probably be reduced to 4. In Utah rates vary from 3 to 6 cents, and the readjustment will result in a reduction to 3, 4 and 5 cents. The fares in Colorado, which now vary from 4 to 6 cents, will, no doubt, be reduced to 3 and 4.

Wisconsin Central Changes.

The transfering of G. H. Anthony, general agent of the Wisconsin Central, to Winnipeg, resulted in several other changes being made among agents of the road. V. L. Freeland of Cincinnati has been made general agent at Duluth, and his former place will be filled hereafter by C. K. Landes, transferred from Detroit, where he was general agent. The place of Mr. Landes will be filled by W. D. Van Schaack, former New England agent, with headquarters at Boston. M. J. Naughton has been made New England agent.

No More Elevator Charges,

Acting on advice of counsel, the Western railroads, with the exception of the Union Pacific, have given notice of the allowance of elevator charges at Missouri river points. After a general conference, the attorneys came to the conclusion that the practice of permitting the elevator men to receive 1¼ cents per 100 pounds for all grain put through an elevator was illegal. The Union Pacific, however, has a contract with the Peavey Elevator company which has some years to run.

Advertising Minnesota.

The Minnesota & International road has come to the front in an advertising way with a forty-page booklet descriptive of the beautiful Northern Minnesota country reached by this line. It is printed on the finest book paper, and includes several attractive illustrations and two charming Indian stories, in addition to the regular matter. All necessary information as to rates and methods of reaching the different lakes and spots of interest along the road is given. The cover design is one that immediately catches and holds the eye. It is in colors, and shows a pretty girl seated in a birch canoe, with an Indian for pilot, about to land a fish.

ACCIDENT ON FERRIS WHEEL

Drunken Man Has a Narrow Escape at Lester Park.

Only the luck which is said to attend fools and drunkards, saved one of the latter from a fatal accident at Lester park yesterday.

The man in question was riding on the ferris wheel, and leaning back in the seat. The back broke while the car on which he was seated was at the top of the wheel, and he fell over backwards. In some manner he managed to catch a rod as he fell, and he held on until the wheel turned and he descended gently to the ground. While hanging in the air a whisky bottle dropped from his pocket and broke on the ground.

The spectators who witnessed the accident were horrified at the man's narrow escape, and the operator of the wheel was so unnerved that he was compelled to shut down the wheel for a time.

GOV. HIGGINS IN THE CITY

New York's Chief Executive Enthusiastic Concerning Duluth.

Would Much Rather Talk About City Than Politics.

Frank W. Higgins, governor of the state of New York, registering from Olean, N. Y., is in the city today, a guest at the Spalding. He arrived over the Omaha from the East this morning, in company with his son, O. T. Higgins, of Redlands, Cal., and Allan B. Williams of Olean.

The governor visits Duluth about once a year. He and corporations in which he is interested have quite extensive holdings in Duluth and on the ranges. O. T. Higgins, his father, was one of the first men to recognize the importance of the iron regions of Northern Minnesota, and was one of the first heavy investors in Minnesota iron lands.

"I expect to remain here two or three days," said the governor. "I don't know just when I shall start on the return trip. I may visit the ranges before going back, but this is hardly likely. I always enjoy coming to Duluth, and would like to stay longer if I could. I generally do stay as long as circumstances will permit. Things are different here from what they are in New York, and the change is very refreshing, particularly the climatic change. Days like this, for instance, are what makes Duluth doubly attractive to tourists.

"I never visit the city that I do not see some change for the better. Duluth is alive. She is aggressive and progressive. Many improvements are noticeable since my last trip to the Head of the Lakes. The people back East are coming more and more to realize that there is such a place as Duluth on the map. They now are educated to that stage where they do not have to ask its location when the name is mentioned.

"The city is recognized as an important point, and Duluth, Minnesota and the whole Northwest are getting to figure more prominently in the East every year. The people in that part of the country have gotten to the point where they understand that there is a great deal to this country outside of New York. The marvelous growth and development of the Northwest is surprising to them. Duluth has a fine future in store."

Governor Higgins usually has little to say on politics, when not actively engaged in a campaign, and today was no exception to the rule. He left it to be inferred that there wasn't anything in particular in politics to be discussed at present, saying it was too early in the game.

"I don't know of anything that can be said regarding politics just now," he remarked. "The Bryan boom for the presidency hasn't reached the East yet. I don't profess to know anything about it. It is rather early to discuss the subject now, anyway. It is not easy to predict just what later developments will be."

The governor had nothing more definite than this to offer on Hearst's boom for governor of New York, the possibility of President Roosevelt becoming a candidate for the presidency another time, or any kindred subjects that were mentioned.

"The Hearst papers are enthusiastically urging Mr. Hearst's candidacy," he said. "Mr. Hearst is an active individual, and is original and aggressive."

TWO BURNED WHILE TRYING TO SAVE MONEY.

Cincinnatti, June 18.—Samuel Moreland and his wife, parents of Jockey Moreland, now performing upon Canadian tracks, were probably fatally burned by gasoline at their home yesterday, while attempting to reach a roll of money hidden near a stove which had exploded. The money which the couple sought to reach was all that remained of $500 sent them by their son to pay off a mortgage on their home.

SUPERIOR GOES TO THE SENATE

With a Petition For Investigation of Minnesota Grain Inspection.

Washington, June 18.—Senator McCumber today presented to the senate a petition from the board of trade of Superior, Wis., for an investigation of the grain inspection practiced by the Minnesota authorities. # THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

San Francisco, June 18.—George K. Fitch, one of the most prominent citizens of California, died suddenly last night at San Rafael, where he had made his home since the fire destroyed his residence in this city. He was a pioneer of California, where he was known as a newspaper publisher and state printer before 1856, when he became associated with the late Loring Pickering as proprietors of the Bulletin and Call in this city. He retired from the newspaper business some years ago, but since then has devoted much of his time to local affairs in the interests of civic reform and the progressive advancement of local improvements. He was 80 years of age.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Harry Nelson Pillsbury, the chess master, died here yesterday of apoplexy, after an illness of many months. Pillsbury was born Dec. 5, 1872, at Somerville, Mass., where the body will be taken, the funeral to be held there next Tuesday.

CITY BRIEFS.

Dr. and Mrs. Tufty have returned from Boston.

The Sunday crowd at Oatka Park was again very large as in fact it was in all of the parks. There is every indication that with the opening of the White City the rush to the point will be very large. La Brosse's naval militia band played a fine program of numbers and was freely applauded.

About 100 Duluth and Superior members of the United Order of Foresters left over the Northern Pacific today for Ashland, Wis., to attend the annual district convention of the order.

Ivan R. Gilpatrick of Biwabik, who acts in the capacity of a range deputy for the clerk of the district court was in the city today to secure a license to wed Miss Clara R. Laughton of that town. Mr. Gilpatrick has issued a large number of marriage licenses to others, but under the law he could not issue one to himself.

The painters and paperhangers have possession of the halls and corridors at the courthouse, and during the next week or ten days there will be a considerable amount of interior improvement work on the contract recently awarded by the county board. When the contract is completed all the rooms and halls at the courthouse will have been newly papered and painted.

J. M. Gidding & Co. have announced an important sale of tailored suits at very great reductions from former prices.

LITTLE PASSENGER STEAMER CUT IN TWO.

Whitehall, Mich., June 18.—While attempting to cross the bow of the steamer Georgia of the Goodrich line at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, the little passenger steamer Carrie Ryerson was almost cut in two, half a mile beyond the piers in Lake Michigan. The life savers took off her twelve passengers and crew and she made her way to shore under her own steam, sinking on the beach. The Ryerson ran out of Stony Lake connecting with the Goodrich Chicago boats. She was valued at $15,000 and is probably a total loss.

KIDNAPED BOY IS RECOVERED

Taken From His Captor in a Sensational Manner.

Philadelphia, June 18—Little Freddie Muuth, who was kidnaped from school on Tuesday last, was recovered from his captor in a sensational manner this afternoon. For several days the identity of the kidnaper has been known to the police, but despite the efforts of the 400 men who have been working on the case he was not located until today. Accompanied by one of his men, Chief of Detectives Donaghny went to 626 North Sixty-second street in West Philadelphia and there found John Kean with his captive. Kean attempted to escape and was shot at by the detectives. The bullets missed their aim, but Kean surrendered and was taken to police headquarters. The kidnaper, who is 42 years old, is described as a former stock broker, who had recently been a real estate agent. He has a wife and three children and it is believed that his desperate financial situation drove him to the crime. In communications to the father of the child, he demanded $5,000 for its return and in a letter written on Friday declared he would kill the child and himself if the money was not forthcoming. Kean's terms were acceded to in a "personal" inserted in all of Saturday's papers. In a subsequent letter Kean proposed new terms and these were likewise accepted and another "personal" was inserted in yesterday's newspapers.

Meanwhile misleading stories have been given to the public by the police in order to serve their purpose.

The boy, who is only 7 years old, was apparently unharmed except that he bore evidence of suffering from hunger and exposure.

When the kidnaper and his victim were brought before Superintendent of Police Taylor the little one still had in his hand the school books he had when he was enticed from school by a decoy note purporting to be from his mother.

The house in which they were found is an occupied dwelling on the outskirts of the city.

AMERICANS AGAIN LOSE AT TENNIS.

Wimbledon, June 18.—In the remaining tennis singles, for the Davis cup, S. H. Smith, Great Britain, beat Holcombe Ward, American in three straight sets. The scores were 6-1, 6-0, 6-4.

The American was quite off his game in the first two sets, but rallied in the last and won the first three games. He was not able to last, however, and Smith won out.

H. L. Doherty, British, beat Raymond D. Little, American, three sets to two. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 6-8, 6-1, 6-3.

It was a splendid game. The American gave an exhibition of grand play and the British champion had all his work cut out to defeat the visitor.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

THE HERMITAGE COUNTRY CLUB

Of Worcester, Mass., Composed Exclusively of Automobile Owners.

New York, June 18.—A Worcester, Mass., special to the Sun, says: Its members believe that there is not in this country, and it is doubtful if there is in the world, another country club organized for a purpose similar to that of the Hermitage Country club of Worcester, which will be formally opened about the latter part of the month. The club is to draw its membership exclusively from automobile owners in cities and towns of New England within automobiling distance. Members and their families will find here a club at which to lunch, dine or spend the night, with a large garage attached where their automobiles will be cared for. In short, members will find here at the end of a run every convenience to be had in their own clubs at home.

The Hermitage estate, from which the new organization takes its name, comprises some 275 acres of woodland. The late A. Swan Brown, who developed the estate, planned to build a second Lenox, but died before he could carry his ideas out. In every respect it was his aim to have the estate retain its wild, primitive beauty.

A center of interest on the estate is the deed of gift on a rock nearly half a century ago by Solomon Parsons. The stone deed conveys to God a tract of land containing about ten acres. Here is the inscription:

"Know all men by these presents that I, William C. Hall of Worcester, in the county of Worcester and commonwealth of Massachusetts, in consideration of 125 dols. paid by the hand of Solomon Parsons of the same Worcester the receipt whereof do hereby acknowledge, do hereby give, grant, sell, and convey unto God through the laws of Jesus Christ, which are made known to man by the reckord of the new testament; recorded by Matthew, Luke, Mark, John The Evangelist, this land to be governed by the above mentioned laws, and together with the spirit of God. The said tract of land is situated in Worcester above mentioned, the southwesterly part containing ten acres more or less, and bounded as follows, viz., beginning at the southwest corner of the lot at a stake and stones by land of E. Daniels; these easterly by land of S. Perry about 31½ rods to a corner of the fense; thense northerly by land of L. Gates, about 54 rods, to a corner of the fense; thence westerly by land of hears of J. Fowler about 24 rods to chestnut tree in the wall at the corner of the land of said Daniels and a heap of stones by the edge of it; thense southerly to the bond first mentioned."

On his return from a trip to Jerusalem in 1850 Solomon Parsons decided to erect a temple to God where He might be "worshipped in the midst of nature, without money and without price." He built a lodge of stone pillars supporting a plain but substantial roof, and in its shelter held meetings.

He desired his temple to be permanent. For this reason he deeded the land to God and had the deed cut in stone. Sylvester Ellis carved the deed. The deed could not be recorded and upon the death of Parsons his heirs sold the land. Where his temple was the Hermitage now stands. The deed however, remains.

The maker of the deed was not a hermit; though he has since been described as such, occasionally. He was a rigid vegetarian. He died about thirteen years ago. He was born on October 18, 1800. A nephew of Solomon Parsons named Andrew Clark, lived the life of a hermit, near the site of the present Hermitage lodge, hence its name.

The club is easily reached by automobilists traveling between New York and Boston. Everyone who has traveled by automobile between these cities knows the old turnpike road. Apricot street in New Worcester, by which the club may be reached, leads directly off this highway.

The organization committee of the club comprises Quincy Adams Shaw, Jr., and Alfred Codman, Boston; John T. Burnett and Charles F. Choate, Jr., Southborough; Richard Ward Greene and Charles Henry Hutchins, Worcester; Chester W. Bliss, Springfield; Harry W. Sackett, Providence; Charles S. Motley, Lowell; Thomas Talbot, North Billerica; Adams Crocker, Fitchburg; Irving Swan Brown, Worcester, treasurer, and George W. Beals, Boston, for fourteen years secretary of the Boston A. A. A., secretary.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Is to be Held at Cloquet on Thursday June 28.

Cloquet, Minn., June 18.—The date of the Good Roads meeting, which was to have been held in this city on Tuesday, June 26, has been changed to Thursday, June 28 This change was made necessray by the fact that the State Drainage league meets in Wadena on June 26, and State Engineer Cooley and Supt. A. J. McGuire, of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, both of whom will speak at the meeting here, were also scheduled for the drainage meeting.

It is the intention to make this good roads meeting both large and enthusiastic. It will be held in the Nelson opera house and among the list of speakers who will be in attendance are G. A. Scholle, of St. Paul, chairman of the state highway commission; State Engineer George W. Cooley; J. A. McGuire, superintendent of the Northeast Experiment aFrm at Grand Rapids; J. B. Galarneault of Aitkin, state highway commissioner; William E. Culkin, of Duluth, president of the St. Louis County Good Roads assoiciation; and L. B. Arnold, A. E. McManus and L. A. Barnes, of Duluth.

In the forenoon State Engineer Cooley will give a public demonstration of practical road making, the use of the split log dray and other technical details.

The merchants of the city have arranged to give a free lunch at noon to all farmers and visitors and this will probably be served in the city hall or in some other available building. The liverymen will make a special effort in caring for farmer's teams.

The many imitations of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve that are now before the public prove it the best. Ask for DeWitt's. Good for burns, scalds, chaffed skin, eczema, tetter, cuts, bruises, boils and piles. Sold by all druggists.

SUIT OVER TRADE MARK

Two Duluth Coffee Companies In Court Concerning a Label.

The Importer's Coffee company of Duluth has begun suit against the Aroma Coffee company of this city, charging that the latter company has "swiped" a trademark, wording and all. It seems that both companies are putting out a brand of coffee, known as "King Arthur," and the packages are labelled with the picture of a knight bearing a lance, and with the words, "King Arthur," emblazoned thereon. The plaintiff company alleges that it has had the trade mark registered, and that the other company is using it in violation of United States laws.

The suit is filed in United States court, and Judge Morris has issued an order, returnable June 22, in which the defendants are requested to show cause why the preliminary injunction asked for in the complaint should not issue. The complaint asks also a permanent injunction when the suit is tried, and an accounting of funds received through the sale of the brand of coffee mentioned by the defendants.

DOCK WILL BE REBUILT

Duluth & Iron Range Plans Improvements at Two Harbors.

No. 5 Will Be Remodeled and Enlarged Next Winter.

In addition to the other improvements at Two Harbors, the Duluth & Iron Range road is said to be planning to rebuild ore dock No. 5 at that place, and make it one of the largest docks on the lakes.

Arrangements are already being made for the material, and it is expected that the work of remodeling the dock will begin immediately after the close of the shipping season. It is customary in making improvements for the road to wait until after the contract is let before securing materials, but profiting by the experience of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and Great Northern roads this year, the Iron Range is said to be ordering the timber and other materials to be used, now.

The extent of the improvements at the dock are not known. Figures have not been given out as yet. At present the dock is 1,042 feet long, 54 feet high, 49 feet deep, and has a storage capacity of 33,600 tons. A few years ago it was considered the finest dock on the lakes, but larger and better ones have been built since.

It is said that the big storm of last November weakened the structure considerably.

The Duluth & Iron Range is also to build a new depot at Two Harbors. This is assured for the near future, as plans for the structure have already been submitted to Thomas Owens, superintendent of the line. The new structure will be located on a site between Poplar street and the depot, in use at present. The material has not been positively decided upon, but the officials of the road are said to favor concrete. Some of the Two Harbors offices of the company will be located in the new station.

The citizens of Two Harbors are jubilant over the announcements of extensive improvements to be made at their place by the Iron Range. They have been particularly desirous of securing a new depot.

ST. PAUL HAS SERIOUS FIRE

Ryan Annex Building Completely Gutted By Flames on Saturday.

St. Paul, June 18.—The six-story Ryan annex building was completely gutted by fire which was discovered shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning, and which burned fiercely all day. The estimated damage to the building and the stocks of the occupants is between $450,000 and $500,000.

The fire originated in the basement of the store occupied by the Palace Clothing company, supposedly from a defective electric wire. It had gained great headway when the fire department reached the building, but probably would have been confined to the basement but for the fact that a series of gas explosions prevented the firemen from getting at the flames and caused the blaze to spread throughout the entire structure.

Several firemen were badly cut by flying pieces of glass and thirty-seven were overcome by heat and smoke. Ten of these were taken to the hospital and the rest to their homes. All of them will recover with the possible exception of Lieut. W. A. Edwards of Company No. 9, who last night was reported in a critical condition.

The Ryan hotel is across the alley from the burned structure, but it was not damaged and there was no alarm among the guests at the hotel, most of whom were up when the fire was discovered.

The loss on the building is placed at $100,000; the Palace Clothing company's loss on stock at $250,000; R. N. Cardozo & Bro., furniture store, $30,000 and the balance is distributed among forty other tenants who occupied the upper floors of the building. The insurance is said to nearly cover the loss.

IRRITATING INCIDENTS

When Legislators Are Brought Before Bar of the House.

Story of the Redheaded Rooster of the Rockies.

New York, June 18.—A Washington special to the Sun says: Considerable irritation was exhibited by some of the representatives who, through Minority Leader Williams' filibuster in the statehood matter, was arrested by the assistant sergeant-at-arms and presented at the bar of the house. The resentful ones complained querulously of their arrest to the speaker. Uncle Joe's eyes, however, did not become bedewed with sympathy over their lamentations. He is old-fashioned enough to believe that a legislator ought to do some work for his pay, perquisites and perogatives. He didn't advise the complaining ones to tell their troubles to the captain of the capitol watch, but he brought his gavel down right in the middle of the sad stories of several.

"These fellows haven't been here long enough to remember Buck Kilgore," was Mr. Cannon's private comment on the complaint of some of those brought before the bar of the house. "Buck not only didn't want to stay off the floor, but he kicked his way in."

He referred to the occasion, ten or a dozen years ago, when Buck Kilgore, the Texas representative, kicked to flinders the main door leading to the house floor. At that time Speaker Reed had in operation his simple but great scheme of just locking 'em in to maintain a quorum.

Whenever a sufficient number of representatives to constitute a quorum filtered in, Czar Tom, with a nod, directed the doorkeepers to close and lock the doors, and the entreaties and prayers of members who wanted to get off the floor for any purpose whatsoever were alike unavailing. Mr. Reed needed them there for voting purposes, and there they stayed.

The main door to the floor was thus locked and bolted one afternoon when the brawny Kilgore, who'd been delayed in arriving at the house, swung along. Buck pushed at the door and found it unyielding.

"Hey, what's coming off here?" Kilgore demanded of the doorkeeper on duty. "Why can't I get in? House adjourned?"

"Speaker's got a quorum," replied the doorkeeper.

"Well, let me in and I'll add to it," said Buck to the doorkeeper.

"Can't open any doors, sir—speaker's orders," said the doorkeeper.

"That so?" said Kilgore, and he promptly kicked the swinging leather covered wooden doors to kindling wood, entering the house like a roaring, ramping lion.

Most speakers would have sought the punishment of a representative for pulling off a trick like that. That, however, was the last thing the big minded Reed thought of. The audacity of Kilgore's act appealed to Reed's imagination, and it was all Fight for the Texan.

The most picturesque of the recent arrests was that in which one of the house pages brought Cy Sulloway to the bar of the house.

When a call for a quorum was made the chief page delegated one of the tiniest of his youngsters to go forth and bring Mr. Sulloway. Cy Sulloway is the most remarkable piece of vertical workmanship in the house of representatives. Nobody knows just how high Cy is, but his elongatedness can't be much inferior to that of the late Chang, the Chinese giant.

The mite of a page, a boy something over three feet in stature, prowled around the committee rooms for quite a bit before he came upon the languid Cy, who, with an amiable breeze blowing upon him from the open windows looking on the terrace, was cocked back in a chair, with his legs wrapped around each other two or three times and the feet resting on a table, reading a newspaper.

"Mr. Sulloway," the three-foot page solemnly squeaked, "you're under arrest and I am to conduct you to the bar of the house."

The monolithic Sulloway unraveled his legs, grinned, stretched his arms and rose to his vast height.

"Lead the way, mister," said he to the boy, and the page led him to the main door of the house.

Entering the door, the boy, with a fine sense of the dramatic, grabbed hold of the up and down giant's hand to emphasize the fact that he had captured his man. Thus the three-foot kid led the towering Cy down the main aisle, amid the laughter of the house.

Arrived at the clerk's desk, the high Cy suddenly reached down and, taking the boy in his arms, lifted him up and deposited him squarely on the speaker's desk, saying to the amused Cannon, "I give you my captor," and the arrest was complete.

The most irritating incident of the arresting business was when some twenty-two members of the lower house were incontinently yanked away from the Washington baseball grounds right at the critical point in the game.

The Washington club had the St. Louis outfit as opponents. The score was 3 to 0 in favor of the Nationals at the end of the sixth inning. When the seventh inning began the St. Louis bunch immediately filled the sacks and Stone, the slugger, was next man up for the St. Louis team. It was a fine looking situation, and, with all the rest, the representatives leaned forward eagerly to see how the thing was going to work out. Then there was a sudden chugging of automobiles pulling up in the space back of the stand and the assistant sergeants-at-arms suddenly appeared in the stand and picked out their men with unerring accuracy.

"Well, let us see this inning out," pleaded the representatives.

"Nope, that couldn't be done," said the assistant sergeants-at-arms. Call was imperative. The "arrested" members must get into the throbbing automobiles and be conveyed to the house instantly.

The irritated phrase, "dog gone the luck!" broke out all over the stand where the captured representatives were, but it didn't help a bit. They were corralled, and that's all there was to it. They got up and filed out. The grandstand crowd had got on to the situation and "Back to school for you!" was the pleasantly derisive shout that greeted the representatives' ears as they gloomily made their way to the waiting automobiles.

* * *

One of the representatives arrested in his hotel room came perilously close to committing a break when he was summoned.

This representative, very much undressed, was stretched out on the couch in his room taking a nap, when the assistant sergeant-at-arms rapped on his door.

When informed that he was under arrest and required instantly at the bar of the house, the disturbed representative fumed and stormed around. But he knew that the summons was not to be denied, and he started to dress, while the assistant sergeant-at-arms waited for him in the hall outside.

There is every reason to suppose that the representative was greatly preoccupied with his wrath while he was dressing in his cool, darkened room, for when he finally yanked open the door and announced to the assistant sergeant-at-arms that he was ready, the captor's face expressed the most acute astonishment.

"Come on," said the representative, starting to stride down the hotel hall over, was the last thing the big minded Reed thought of. The audacity of Kilgore's act appealed to Reed's imagination, and it was all Fight for the Texan.

"Can't open any doors, sir—speaker's orders," said the doorkeeper.

BUILDERS OF SKYSCRAPERS

In Gigantic Race in New York Down Town District.

New York, June 18.—New Yorkers are being treated to a stupendous race in building construction. Five new structures, all within a stone's throw of each other are to be finished within the course of the next year, and there is great rivalry among the builders. The new buildings range from eighteen to twenty-four stories.

The United States Express building, a twenty-three-story structure in Rector street, has a good start, and will probably reach the finish line ahead of the others. Its steel frame is up, sixteen of the hollow tile floors have been laid, and work begun on the tile partitions. The Westfield building, at the corner of Cedar and West streets, is a close second. Six stories of the steel frame are already up. This will have more office floors than any other building in the city. It is to be twenty-four stories high, twenty-three of which will be given over to offices.

Excavating is rapidly going forward on the site of the Trinity and the Borreei buildings, at tthe corner of Cedar street and Broadway. Each of these structures will be twenty-one stories high, and when finished will afford a gigantic example of Gothic. Although covering a much larger area, they are to be ready about the same time as the Westfield building, May 1, 1907. The race between these big skyscrapers has already begun to attract attention.

Just across Broadway, on the corner of Wall street, work has commenced on what will be the most unique, if not the largest, skyscraper in New York—an eighteen-story structure on a base only 30 by 39 feet, every square foot of which cost $890. Jan. 1 is the date set for completion.

These buildings, representing the latest advance in skyscraper construction, are all to be of practically the same type—steel-frame and hollow tile. As a group they embody what amounts to a testimonial from the leading architects and the largest investors, that this is the most lasting and safest form of building construction. Another factor is the speed with which these great structures can be put up.

Rapidity is essential, owing to the large amount of capital tied up during the time of construction. Every month's delay deprives the investor of a large sum in rentals or interest. Moreover the constantly growing pressure of business calls urgently for additional office space.

The construction of these buildings goes on almost like clock-work. No sooner are the foundations laid than the steel skeleton is begun, and right behind the steel workers come the masons creeping swiftly up, floor after floor, placing the tile that forms the floors and protects the steel frame. At the same time a swarm of masons are at work on all parts of the building, so that when the last beam is swung into place, and the last rivet driven home the tiles are immediately set, and the structural work is complete.

S.S.S. CURES CANCEROUS ULCERS

Whenever a sore or ulcer is slow in healing, and shows signs of eating into the surrounding flesh, it is safe to say that the blood is infected with cancerous germs. Some old taint or poison that has lain dormant awaiting a favorable opportunity to assert itself has found an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body, and the place has become inflamed and festered, and a chronic ulcer is the result. When middle age is reached or passed, and the vital powers are naturally weaker, a hurt of any kind heals slowly, and often an insignificant scratch or bruise on warty growths, moles, pimples, etc., will begin to inflame and are soon large, eating ulcers. The cancerous germs are rooted in the blood, and while salves, plasters, lotions, etc., keep the surface clean, they are useless in affecting a cure. S.S.S. cures cancerous ulcers by going down into the blood and removing the germs and poisons which produce the trouble. It cleanses the circulation of all unhealthy matter, and when the cause is removed the sore heals permanently. S. S. S. enriches and strengthens the entire blood-supply, and being purely vegetable, it is a pleasant, safe remedy for young or old, and ulcers of every kind yield promptly to its curative properties. Book on sores and ulcers and medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

EARLIER BY TWO WEEKS

Change Made in Date of Big Regatta at Minnetonka.

Comes Just Three Days After Three Cornered Race Here.

The big regatta at Lake Minnetonka will be two weeks earlier than was at first expected, the dates chosen by the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul being July 13 and 14.

It was not thought that the big event would be pulled off until July 28, but the announcement of the change was made Saturday.

The regatta of the Duluth Boat club with Fort William and Port Arthur will be held on July 10, and the three crews will leave here the following day for Lake Minnetonka, to compete in the races there.

There will be at least five clubs represented in the Minnetonka races, including Winnipeg, St. Paul, Duluth, Fort William and Port Arthur.

The starting point will be about 200 yards off the Lafayette boat house, and the boats will finish in front of the Tonka Bay hotel.

The regatta will include races for senior and junior eight and four oared crews, making four races in all, in addition to the single and double sculling events. The Duluth club will probably be represented in all four races, and will possibly have a boat entered in the junior double sculls.

The shortening of the time for training will compel the Duluth oarsmen to redouble their efforts if they are to be in shape for the big race. Only a little more than three weeks remain, and the crews are still far from being in shape for a race. The St. Paul crew, from published reports, would appear to be the favorite at present, judging from the showing made in a recent regatta held by the Minnesota Boat club, when the four and eight oared crews made exceptionally good time over the course.

HEROIC SCHOOL TEACHER.

She Saves Two Little Girls From Being Drowned.

Tower, Minn., June 18.—Word has reached here from the Vermilion river country of the heroism of Miss Madeline Stiner, a young school teacher who was teaching in that section. A few days ago she and two little girls attempted to cross the Vermilion river in a boat. The stream was full of floating cedar logs, and had gotten almost half way across the water when the boat became unmanageable and capsized, throwing the little girls on one side of the boat and the teacher on the other. One of the girls managed to catch hold of the boat, but the other sank.

Miss Stiner, though unable to swim, succeeded after many efforts in reaching that side of the boat and caught hold of the little girl just as she was sinking for the last time. Then, with her clinging burden she pushed the boat to the shore, despite the fact that heavy logs repeatedly shoved it out of its course.

TWO MINERS KILLED.

Caught In a Cave-in of Ore at Webb Mine.

Hibbing, Minn., June 18.—Louis Killander, 40 years old, and Albin Belle, 22, both Austrians, were caught in a cave-in of ore at the Webb mine and smothered. The men were employed on the first level and shortly after 1 o'clock the captain in his rounds visited that part of the mine, and seeing that the men were not timbering strong enough back of their work to insure safety ordered them to put in more lagging. The captain returned at 2 o'clock and discovered that the ore had broken down the timbering, filling the room and that the men were not in sight.

When their bodies were found several hours later, life was extinct. Killander leaves a wife, who lives in Austria. Belle was unmarried.

Calumet, Mich., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the wildness of Treadway and dopey work in the right garden by McCormick, Calumet walked away with the final game of the series with the Sox. Treadway was wilder than a lumberjack full of Bowery juice, and this, aided by several two and three masters, allowed the Coppers to accumulate the big end of the score.

Grimes walked Summers after Livingstone had jarred the ether around the home plate. An infield hit by Barto was juggled by Kaiser, and this resulted in breezing Summers over the plate, while Barto camped on second. Duluth scored again in the third when Livingstone poled out a two-master, and scored on Summers' three-bagger. Grimes fanned the next three and the Sox stopped short.

Calumet made one in the second on McCormick's muff, and three more in the fourth on Treadway's wildness and McCormick's weird throw from short right field.

The Aristocrats took sweet revenge from Duluth Saturday afternoon, when they defeated the White Sox by the score of 9 to 4. Red Morton was easy for the Calumets and this, with costly errors by his team mates, let the Aristocrats run in nine men. Morton had two particularly bad innings and the Calumets made the most of them. The game was witnessed by the largest crowd so far gathered at the local grounds this year. There were over 1,800 people who paid admission to see the game. The day was an ideal one for baseball and the fans took advantage of it.

Jack Morrison went in the box for the Aristocrats and pitched good ball. He was steady at all times and had perfect control, neither passing nor hitting a single man. Morton, on the other hand, had a tendency to wildness occasionally. It looked for a time as though the White Sox would start the same game as they did the day before. In the second inning, McCormick came to bat and rapped out a long hit to right field, which he stretched to a two-bagger. Lovett sacrificed to put him on third and Buffka's short throw to home on Hilding's grounder let McCormick score the first run.

In their half of the third inning Calumet secured enough runs to win the game. Morrison started the show by hitting safely to right. Corrigan came up next and sacrificed, getting to first on O'Dea's poor handling of the ball. Leahy duplicated on a sacrifice and Buffka's high fly was muffed by Hilding, letting Morrison home. Kaiser's two-bagger sent Corrigan home, he himself coming in on Laughlin's single. Laughlin scored on Livingstone's error of Mutter's grounder. This ended the scoring for the Aristocrats in this inning. In the fifth Calumet again registered. Laughlin got to first on Summer's error and came home on Mutter's two-bagger. The White Sox tallied twice in the sixth on McCormick's home run over the left field fence, with Barto on base. In their half of the same inning, the Aristocrats registered three more runs on three hits, two of which were two-baggers and a base on balls.

The White Sox scored their final run in the eighth, after Summers got to first on Vorpagel's poor handling of his grounder. O'Dea's single sent him to third and he scored on Barto's long fly to right.

EACH GETS ONE

Houghton Wins Saturday Game and Fargo Takes Sunday Contest.

Houghton, Mich., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a slugfest at Ripley Park yesterday, when Fargo touched Beecher for nine hits, and Cassiboine for four, and won 10 to 6. Cassiboine went in in the sixth. Houghton hit Finnegan for a single, two doubles and a triple in the third inning, scoring three runs. Hansen went in, Finnegan going to second. An error by Finnegan and two hits scored three more runs before the inning was over. After that Hanson was effective. Stripp carried off the batting honors. The score:

The Giants fell on McMillan for a two-bagger and two singles Saturday, and pulled out a victory in a game that was to all appearances lost. The three hits, coupled with errors, netted the home team three runs, leaving a margin of one over the lead Fargo had before that inning. The game was another nip and tuck contest, and was interesting from a spectator's point of view, though by no means scientifically played. The Fargo errors counted in Houghton's run getting, while the misplays of the Giants did not help Fargo any.

McMillan worked hard, but his support at critical times was too rank for him to win. Hastings pitched ball also, but he nearly lost the game a couple of times by his own misplays.

Fargo had a beautiful chance to pull out a victory in the seventh inning. With a man on third and another on second, Stripp came to bat. There was two down and a hit was needed badly. The manager did his part all right, cracking the ball right on the seam and sending it out at a lightning clip, seemingly safely over the second sack. But Kid Taylor suddenly developed a latent criminal instinct and robbed Stripp of the single. It was as beautiful a play as has been seen at Ripley Park this year.

Stevens also furnished a little spectacular work by hitting for two sacks, both of his first two times at bat. Dolan also secured a warm spot in the hearts of the fans by his covering of the first sack for the Invalids.

Sundheim got a nasty crack in the head by a pitched ball while at bat in the first inning and was laid out for some minutes. He gamely continued the game, however, letting Brand run for him in that inning.

MAROONS WIN TWO

Take Both Afternoon and Evening Games From Lake Linden.

Winnipeg, Man., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winnipeg took both the afternoon and evening games here Saturday, making five victories out of the six games played during the week with Lake Linden.

Bond pitched great ball in the afternoon, allowing but three hits, and he would have shut the visitors out if it had not been for the errors behind him. The Winnipeg club has received an offer for his services from St. Paul, but he well be retained.

Bond was also partly responsible for winning the evening game, as he was sent in to bat for Brenna in the ninth inning and started a batting rally which resulted in a victory for the Maroons, after the game appeared to be hopelessly lost. With the score 8 to 2 in the eighth inning, the Maroons clouted in four earned runs, and added three more in the ninth before any one was retired.

CLIMBERS WIN TWO.

Defeat Grand Forks in Both Saturday and Sundry Game.

Hancock, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Evening baseball was given a severe set back last night, when Dr. Bassen called the game between Grand Forks and Hancock after the first half of the fifth inning. The crowd raised a big howl and Bassen had to leave the park to avoid being mobbed. A large number wanted their money back, but as five innings were played, the demands were of no avail. Hancock won on account of Fogarty's wildness and costly errors by the Browns. "Sis" was touched rather hard in the second, but good fielding saved him.

The Climbers fell onto Mr. Thorston of Grand Forks in one inning Saturday evening and in that short period sent enough men across the plate to win the game, with a big margin to allow for Tiger batting rallies and such. Outside of the third inning, Thorston delivered the goods—for the Brown bunch.

Foster started the trouble with a single and Wares followed suit. Cox sent them both in with a long hit and O'Hayer pushed Chesty across the plate with another safe one. Speiser drew a pass and Stewart completed the scoring by sending O'Hayer and Speiser racing to the last station in the circuit. That was all, but it was enough, and it made Thorston look pale around the gills and dashed all the Tigers' hopes of winning the game.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Prices Go Down With Plentiful Rains in the Southwest.

Flax Has a Fairly Active Session and Closes Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 18.—Rains throughout Kansas, which has been blistering beneath the sun's rays for some little time, caused weakness in the American wheat markets today. Good buying was a steadying factor during the day, however, and checked the losses somewhat. The heaviest declines were in Minneapolis and Kansas City. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and New York, ⅜@½c in Chicago and St. Louis, ¾c in Minneapolis, 1@1⅛c in Kansas City and 1⅛c in Winnipeg. The September option closed ¾c lower in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis, and ⅞c in Chicago, New York and Kansas City. The October option closed ⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

The coarse grain market also experienced declines, as a result of the more favorable weather. July corn closed 1½c lower in Chicago and was ⅛d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed 1⅝@1¾c lower in Chicago.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

General Rains In Kansas Causes Weakness In Local Wheat.

Chicago, June 18. — General rains throughout Kansas caused weakness today in the local wheat market. There was heavy profit taking at the start and initial quotations showed sharp declines. Shorts were the principal buyers during the first few minutes trading, but later this demand was reinforced by buying by commission houses, which caused a steadier feeling. July opened ⅞c to 1⅛c lower at 82c to 83c and, for a time, held around 82⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 334 cars, against 302 cars last week and 199 cars a year ago.

For July the lowest point of the day was reached at 82⅜. During the last half of the session several rallies occurred on covering by shorts. On one of these upturns the July option sold up to 83⅝. A liberal decrease in the visible supply was a bullish factor late in the day. The market closed steady with July down ⅜@½ at 82⅞@83.

A break in drought conditions in various parts of the corn belt, as reported by the weather bureau, was the signal for heavy realizing in the corn pit and was the cause of sharp declines in prices. Commission houses and local longs were free sellers, while offerings were taken largely by shorts. July opened 1⅝c to 1⅞c lower at 52c to 52⅜c, sold at 52⅞c and reacted again to 52½c. Local receipts were 860 cars, with 325 of contract grade.

Profit taking continued throughout the entire day and the feeling was heavy the greater part of the session. The close was easy with July down ½ at 52⅜.

Weakness prevailed in oats owing to improved weather conditions for the growing crop. Selling was general and the volume of trading was very large. At the opening, prices fluctuated over a wide range, but steadied on support by commission houses. July opened 1⅜c to 2⅜c lower at 39¾c to 41c, sold up to 41¾c and then declined again to 40¾c. Local receipts were 286 cars.

Provisions were steady in sympathy with a firm market for live hogs. September pork was unchanged at $16.80. Lard was also unchanged at $9.07½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $9.35.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat had a break of 1 to 1¼ cents on first trades. Half of this was due to the direct effect of rains on the Western wheat states and the other half was in sympathy with the sharp break in corn and oats. The wheat trade declined to get demoralized over the fact that Kansas and Nebraska had rain because the greater part of Kansas has already matured its wheat crop. The trade can see a good many supporting influences in sight, strong and higher cables, drought in Argentina, export sales of wheat today at New York and Duluth, another decrease of over 1,500,000 bushels in the visible supply and a big reduction in wheat on passage. After the first hour there was no real selling pressure and the market rebounded easily. The spring wheat country is much too wet. If coarse grain markets steady at present level, believe investment and speculative buying will set in and give a strong market in wheat.

Corn was sensationally strong this last week on the fact that Nebraska and Kansas were threatened with drought. That drought was thoroughly broken last night. Holders who were not content to take profits on the sharp advance last week sold out on the scare this morning. There was excellent buying by commission houses and local leaders. It is well for the trade and the country that the strain of last week is relieved. Receipts are large, but stocks are small. Think on any oversold position the market will do to buy.

Oats suffered a sharp break today as they had advanced recently. The net loss for early months is 1¾c. Experts say that this reaction discounts the effect of the rain. Strong professionals bought the oats on the break. Many sections are talking half yield. Believe there is still a good lighting chance on the long side.

David Williams of Webster, S. D.: Crop conditions here are about perfect; the past ten days have been without rain and were warm and clear, and all kinds of crops have made wonderful growth. It was beginning to get a little dry, but but it has rained hard since about 11 o'clock this morning (Sunday). Everything in Northern South Dakota promises as good as the best they ever had.

TILLMAN INSISTENT

Washington, June 18.—Senator Tillman again today called up his resolution providing for an investigation of the question of national bank contributions to political campaigns and also to the recent failure of the Chicago National bank. Speaking of the resolution, Mr. Tillman said that Senator Aldrich had waived aside the resolution on the ground that the senate had recently passed a bill prohibiting the banks from making campaign contributions, but Mr. Tillman contended that such action on the part of the senate was not sufficient. Believing that the banks were the principal source of revenue of the Republican political committees, he did not believe that the house would pass the bill prior to the election of next fall. Hence he still felt the necessity for the investigation provided for by his resolution. He insisted that the resolution should be retroactive, but confessed that he had little hope in that direction. "The bankers will get an immunity bath for past offenses," he predicted.

Speaking of the Chicago bank failure, Mr. Tillman presented extracts from testimony of Banker Fenton of Chicago, taken by the house committee on banking, to the effect that the disaster was due to loans made by the bank to concerns in which the president of the bank (John R. Walsh) was interested. He claimed that this testimony showed that the comptroller of the currency had known for months before the failure that the bank had in effect loaned $15,000,000 to its president.

Senator Aldrich charged Mr. Tillman with an effort to try the case against Mr. Walsh, saying that the matter was now in the hands of the department of justice. Mr. Tillman replied that he only desired to secure an inquiry, adding that Mr. Aldrich should "not pooh-pooh his efforts, and claim that everything in connection with the Chicago bank is wholesome and sweet when it is known that some of Mr. Walsh's acts have been criminal."

Senator Hopkins replied that Mr. Tillman had been misled by irresponsible men, and declared that the South Carolina senator's tirade had proved another illustration of the fact that "a little learning is a dangerous thing."

He charged the South Carolinian with a desire to injure the Chicago banks and to exploit himself.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

The Market Closed Irregular But Was Generally Lower.

Heavy Liquidation in Pennsylvania Weakened the Whole List.

New York, June 18. — Prices at the opening of the stock market today pursued a downward course in the first dealings of the week and stocks were freely offered in all quarters. A sprinkling of small gains on first prices was poorly held. Anaconda sold off 3 points. Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 1, and Atchison and Smelting large fractions.

Rapid changes in the market's course occurred in the first hour in a large volume of business. The movement of Reading was illustrative of the general market but the range in most other stocks was not so wide. Reading, after dropping ¼ to 129½ rebounded to 130⅞, and was then driven down to 128¾. By 11 o'clock it was back to 130½. The general market was also at the top again. The principal advances were Atlantic Coast Line 2½, D. & H. 2, Union Pacific and Great Northern preferred 1¾, Northwestern 1½ and L. & N., American Car and Pressed Steel Car 1. The declines included 1½ in Illinois Central, 1¼ in New York Central and Smelting and 1 in Kansas City Southern preferred, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Lead and United States Realty.

Support became effective and some points of strength developed. The movement was generally narrow and the strength was irregular. Consolidated Gas moved up 5, Great Northern preferred 3¾, Northwestern 3, Reading and Anaconda 2, Union Pacific 1⅜ and St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, B. & O, Amalgamated Copper, Locotive and Colorado Fuel 1. Iowa Central preferred receded 3½, Pullman 2, People's Gas 1¾, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1½, Chicago Great Western preferred 1¼ and Colorado Southern second preferred, Tennessee Coal and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1. Prices receded again before noon, Pennsylvania showing evidence of pressure. Bonds were heavy at noon.

Renewed efforts were made to drive the short interest to cover in various stocks that have recently fluctuated widely, particularly Reading and Baltimore & Ohio. The buying, however, was of a spasmodic character and frequent reactions occurred when the leaders attempted to realize. Reading, after being pushed up 3 points to 132¾, ran off over a point and the market was dull and yielding at 1 o'clock. Delaware & Hudson extended its gain to 5½ points, Northern Pacific, 2½; Baltimore & Ohio, 2; Missouri aPcific, 1¾; Smelting and Colorado Fuel, 1⅝; Texas & Pacific, 1¼, and Lead and Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, 1.

The persistent selling of Pennsylvania eventually caused a general decline which wiped out a good proportion of the day's rise. Pennsylvania sold 1⅝ below last week's closing and eRading fell 2 points from the best. The latter stock led a rally around 2 o'clock.

The liquidation in Pennsylvania to a level of 2⅝ below Saturday weakened the whole market. Gains were wiped out and losses reached in American Express 6, Smelting 3, New York Central 2½, United States Realty 2, General Electric ½, St. Paul 1¼, and Denver & Rio Grande, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Pacific Mail and International Paper 1. Closing was weak.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed irregular, but generally lower. Baltimore & Ohio was the strong feature, with Pennsylvania decidedly weak. The weakness in this latter stock had a bad effect on the market, forcing liquidation throughout the list. Early prices showed some improvement, due to breaking of drought in Nebraska and Kansas, thereby improving crop conditions. The action of the market still disappointing. It lacks snap, and its action seems to indicate a distrust or rather fear on the part of public at this level. Rallies are naturally following breaks, but until conditions improve we would sell stocks on all strong spots.

* * * *

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very irregular and nervous. Soon after the opening there was a general short covering and prices stiffened up, but they did not hold this gain long, as a good deal of stock came on the market. In the afternoon the weakness in Pennsylvania had a bad effect and the whole list declined. We look for an irregular market for the rest of the week, and one in which it is wise to take quick profits.

The Cotton Market.

New York, June 18.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1@2 points which was considered rather a poor response to higher cables and reports of continued rain in the Eastern belt and dry weather in south Texas. Trading was not active and the failure of outside demand to materialize on the less favorable new crop outlook caused selling on the initial bulge, under which the market rallied slightly and ruled about unchanged to 1 point higher during the middle of the morning with the tone steady.

Cotton spot closed quiet and steady, 10 points decline; middling uplands, 11.10; middling gulf, 11.35; sales, 1,700 bales. # LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Marquette—The new common council has made the unpleasant discovery that under the auspices of the outgoing municipal administration $11,000 was expended by the city the past fiscal year in excess of the amount raised by taxation, all funds that could be touched having apparently been raided.

Over $41,000, inclusive of concrete sidewalk work, was expended on the streets, with wholly insufficient results. Never was more money laid out in this department, and never was there less to show for it. In consequence of the deficit, all appropriations that can be scaled down have been clipped, and word has gone forth that rigid economy must be practiced, in order to repair the damage.

The revelations have come as a decided shock. There are no allegations of graft, but it is charged that money has been squandered. It is expected the council will order a general audit of the city books for several years back.

Menominee—The curious freak of a bolt of lightning resulted in the death of a sixteen-year-old girl at Birch Creek, Menominee county. Mary Pethermichel, daughter of a well known German farmer, started from the house to get a pail of water. A storm was threatening, but only a sprinkle of rain was falling. When the girl was some rods from the house there was a flash of lightning and the young woman fell to the ground. Some one ran out and carried the girl into the house, but she was dead before anything could be done to revive her.

Stephenson—Rev. E. D. White of Stephenson has been displaying a freak chicken lately. The chicken has four wings, four legs, two tails, but only one head and it appeared as if there was no breastbone. Mr. White had set a hen on White Wyandotte eggs, and a brood of chickens had been hatched out the previous day. One egg was left in the nest and on the shell being broken it disclosed the chicken, which then appeared to be normal and had life. The next day the chicken had been hatched, but was dead, the old hen evidently having become disgusted with the shape of the youngster.

Loretto—A few days ago Abner Hosking, of the firm of Samuel Perkins & Co., of Loretto, Dickinson county, while using a broom to sweep out some water that had come into the store during the progress of a heavy rain and electrical storm, suddenly dropped to the floor from an electric shock. He remained in a semi-unconscious condition for some hours. There was no warning of any kind, and although there were frequent flashes of lightning no damage was done to buildings or to any other persons.

THREE DIE FROM EATING SAUSAGE.

Little Rock, Ark., June 18.—J. B. Baremore, a farmer residing near Fort Smith, his two children, Emma, aged 5 years ,and James, aged 18 months, died today of ptomaine poisoning. They had eaten bologna sausage. A daughter, aged 7 years is at the point of death. The sausage was purchased from a street lunch stand and eaten at the family meal.

ALBRIGHT PLACED ON TRIAL.

Macon, Mo., June 18.—Edward Albright, former member of the St. Louis house of delegates, was placed on trial today on the charge of perjury in connection with the passage of the suburban street railway franchise bill. After this trial Albright will be tried on a charge of bribery, growing out of the passage of the city lighting bill in the St. Louis.

Grain From Duluth Still Goes at 1 2-3 Cents.

The general situation in lake freights at the close of last week and the opening of this, is a little firmer than it has been for some time. The rate on wheat from Duluth has been 1¾ cents for some time. Line boats are taking most of it, with an occasional outside boat cutting into the trade. Oats cargoes are being taken at 1¼ cents. Plenty of boats are asked for the ore trade, which is paying good rates.

ITALIAN NAVY CONTRACTORS VINDICATED BY REPORT.

Rome, June 18.—A circular has been issued by the Terni company in answer to the stricture passed by the commission of inquiry into the Italian navy on contracts made with the company by the naval authorities.

The circular puts these contracts in a very different light and proves easily and conclusively not only the good faith of both contracting parties, but also that the Italian navy has in its dealings with the company bought in the cheapest market and saved the country very considerable expense.

The most significant statement of the circular, however, is to the effect that the commission of inquiry never called any official connected with the company, to give evidence, that it never asked for any explanation of the figures from the company's directors, and never informed the company of the conclusions which it set forth in its report.

WEST DULUTH

SPRINKLER IS NEEDED

Dust Flying in Clouds Over Pedestrians and Into Stores.

Dry Weather Turns Roadways Loose—Land Lookers Return.

A sprinkler is badly needed on Central avenue these days. Merchants are kicking because of the clouds of dust which are flying, today in particular. The dry spell of the last week has thoroughly dried the roadway, and dust is stirred up with every breeze.

Today one can scarcely see with the clouds of dust which flies into the eyes and mouth. This dust is getting into the stores, and is settling on every piece of goods near the front.

Merchants claim that they are paying for the sprinkling, and feel that they should have it without having to protest about the matter. It is understood that the sprinkling contract was let some time ago, but the sprinkler has not been on the street yet.

During the wet spell, of course, it was not necessary, but now it is absolutely essential for business.

CATCHING FISH.

Land Lookers Do Not Get Land But Many Bites.

A party of West Duluthians went to Ely one day last week to look for timber claims. The party comprised Emil J. Zauft, Dr. W. J. Works, E. G. Kreidler, J. J. Frey and James Stickney. When they returned on Saturday and went to the land office to file, each, with the exception of Mr. Frey, found that the claim he had picked had been filed on the day previous. Therefore, Mr. Frey was the only one who filed. The others, of course, are disappointed, but not so much as they might have been, because during their absence they had exceptionally good fishing. Mr. Frey, in telling about the fishing, claims that it is at Sand lake, southeast of Ely, and says he never saw such fish in his life.

"Why," said he, "those fish simply crowded each other out of the way to get at the bait. They seemed tired of staying in the water, and would get up on the beach and promenade. You never saw such fish in your life. I threw in a hook and trolling line. First one bit the hook in two, and as I started to withdraw, two more fish jumped up and bit the line off in two different places. Believe me or not as you will—that is what actually happened. One does not need bait up there. The fish will bite at a bare hook, and seemed glad when you pulled them out. Why, we caught all kinds of fish—a great deal more than we needed. We caught one pickerel which weighed not an ounce less than 12 or 13 pounds. Of course, we did not have a scale with us, but he was that long."

And Mr. Frey stretched out his arms to dangerously near their full reach. While the actual size of the fish was not confirmed by the others, they indicated that it was a monster, and that the fishing was exceptionally good.

HEROIC RESCUE.

Harry Bronson Saves Charles Larson From Drowning Saturday.

Harry Bronson, 14 years of age, and Charles Larson, 10 years of age, went out on an ill-constructed raft at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west on Saturday, and when some distance out from shore the raft broke. Larson could not swim, but Bronson, who is a good swimmer, caught the younger boy as he came up the first time and swam with him to the shore.

The rescue was well timed and rather heroic, as nobody was near enough to help the two, and Larson would surely have been drowned had the other boy not kept his head and saved him.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

On Possibility of Diverting State Premium Tax to Maintenance.

City Attorney May Be Asked to Give an Opinion.

Despite the statement fo Secretary Wilson of the Firemen's Relief association, that such a thing was impossible under the laws, many of the aldermen and city officials still believe that it would be possible to divert the state appropriation amounting to about $10,000 from the relief association to the maintenance of the fire department.

Following is a copy of sections 1652 and 1653 of the new state code:

"At the end of the fiscal year the state auditor shall issue and deliver to the treasurer of every such municipality his warrant for an amount equal to the total amount of the existing two per cent tax so paid upon premiums received therein, and the same shall be paid out of the general revenue fund.

"Such amount shall be kept as a special revenue fund and disbursed only for the following purposes:

"1. For the relief of sick, injured or disabled members of such fire department, their widows and orphans.

"2. For the equipment and maintenance of such department.

"But if there shall be a duly incorporated fire department relief association in such municipality, organized with consent of the governing body thereof, such amount shall be paid to the treasurer of said relief association, to be disbursed as herein above prescribed for municipalities and as hereinafter prescribed for service pensions."

Under the law, therefore, the money has to be paid over to the treasurer of the relief association, but there seems to be a division of opinion among the city officials as to whether the treasurer may use it for maintenance expenses or not.

The matter will be taken up by the council this evening and the city attorney may be requested to interpret the law on this point.

If the income from the state premium tax could be so used, many of the aldermen would favor the move, as an easy way out of the present financial difficulties.

LAYING OF THE CORNERSTONE

Of New City Hall at Eveleth Was Interesting Ceremony.

Eveleth, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday afternoon Eveleth citizens participated in an interesting ceremony, that of laying the corner stone of the new city hall now under construction. Hon. Neil McInnis acted as chairman of the meeting and City Attorney J. C. McGilvary read a carefully prepared article on the history of Eveleth from its beginning down to the present time, ending with the names of its present city officials. This document with others, including copies of the local newspapers, of that date, also a Duluth Herald and Tribune were placed in a sealed box which was deposited in a niche cut in the stone for that purpose. After a short prayer by Rev. Rankin of the Presbyterian church, L. C. Bannon made a very appropriate and interesting address. He was followed by Hon. P. E. Donling who counselled his auditors to build upward—not down. Mr. McInnis then called upon Solomon Sax, who is chairman of the building committee and one of the most active and useful of our citizens. He made a few appropriate remarks. Then followed the interesting feature, the laying of the stone, which part of the ceremony was attended to by Rev. R. J. Taylor of the Methodist church. Music was furnished by the three bands.

Dr. E. W. Medlar left on Sunday for Superior where on Wednesday he will be married to Miss Mabel Mattice of that city. They will return here in a couple of weeks. They expect to go to housekeeping in the flat at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Greening.

The only other business was to appoint the following committee of nine to make all arrangements, including the appointing of other necessary committees as it is planned to make this the most enthusiastic and successful celebration in the history of the city: Charles Jesmore, Neil McInnis, P. E. Dowling, Judge Vivian Prince, Solomon Sax, George Mulligan, Joseph Thibault, J. J. Gleason and William Murray.

W. D. Harris, who has been attending the University of Nebraska, has returned here and accepted a position at the Fayal laboratory.

M. Stewart and Hugh McInnis were over from Virginia to spend Sunday at the McInnis home.

At a special meeting of the city council Friday evening the sum of $500 was appropriated to defray the expenses of sending our fireman to the tournament at Cass Lake. George Mulligan was elected manager, Merton Trevarrow captain and Fergus Ellsworth treasurer, and the following members of the company also expect to go: R. G. Dilloway, Berg, Host, Trevarthen, Clark, Derbyshire, T. Johnson, Gill, McNell, Nettleblad, Shreck, Murphy and Pryor.

G. A. Whitman returned Saturday evening from a week's visit at his old home in Winona.

Mrs. F. W. Bullen and Miss Agnes Flynn will leave about the middle of the week to visit a few days in Minneapolis, St. Cloud and Litchfield before going to Miss Flynn's home at Beardsley, Minn. Miss Flynn does not expect to teach next year.

S. Cherne & Co. have secured the contract for heating and plumbing for the new city hall. The heating bid was $1,085 and the plumbing $1,142, which were the lowest bids received.

The last of the school festivities were held Friday and Saturday evenings. The banquet and reception by the seniors to the faculty and alumni was at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Penrod, and a fine supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Charles Jesmore and Mrs. W. D. Ellsworth. Musical numbers were given by Miss Marietta Murray, Miss Ella Talboys and Miss Emily Scott, and toasts by Teckla Jackson, one of the juniors, who spoke on "The Seniors;" Miss Emily Scott, on "The Trials of a Substitute;" Rev. Taylor, on "Reminiscences;" Miss McFadden, on "The Coming Year," and Mr. Greening also spoke. Covers were laid for the following guests besides those already mentioned: Mrs. B. O. Greening, Miss Petry, Miss Coombs, Miss Mary Donovan, Miss M. Brown, Messrs. William Ellsworth, Allister Murray and Oscar Hill, seniors; Edward Berg, Earl Ellsworth, John Kellow and Abe Feldman. Two of the sophomore class, Misses Cora Williams and Georgianna Powell, waited on the guests. The function Saturday evening was an informal dancing party at Fayal hall, given by the juniors to the seniors. The evening was concluded with a dainty luncheon. The guests included the high school students and alumni and were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Greening. An alumni association was formed, with Edmond Berg president and Marietta Murray secretary and treasurer. The following committee was appointed to draw up a constitution: Miss Emily Scott, Miss Ella Talboys and William Ellsworth.

MISSION STATIONS TO BE UNDER PUBLIC CONTROL.

Cape Town, June 18.—A bill is published dealing with mission stations. With the consent of the trustees, or by a two-thirds vote of the occupiers without such consent, the government may proclaim individuals tenure, reserving to missionaries their dwellings, churches, schools, and glebe, which will be freehold. The holdings of the people are to be inalienable and will not be liable to be taken in execution for debt, nor will they be transferable without government consent. The control of the stations, which has hitherto been in the hands of the missionaries, involving grave complaints concerning the mixing up of church discipline with temporal affairs, is henceforth to be entrusted to ordinary municipal institutions. There is nothing to prevent a missionary from being at the head, but he will have to be elected on the same footing as others.

RIOTING IS SUBDUED

Bialystok Begins to Resume Its Normal Appearance.

The Authorities Have the Situation Fully in Hand.

Bialystok, June 19.—The night passed quietly, and the town is resuming its normal appearance. Some street cars are running, and several factories have resumed work. Fully half the patrols have been withdrawn from the streets here and in the suburbs.

The bodies of more than a hundred Jews were buried yesterday, but the imposing array of military forces prevented a resumption of the disorders.

The correspondent of the Associated Press last evening saw dozens of Christians of the lower classes with sacks on their backs coming from the desolated Jewish quarter to submit to the examination of the soldiers and police. If the sacks contained plunder none of it was seized.

Gen. Bader, commander of the garrison, and acting governor general, is in personal charge of the troops, which are so disposed that a renewal of the rioting is considered improbable. The Jews, however, continue in a state of panic. As the correspondent passed through the streets strewn with wreckage they could be seen hastily barricading what was left of their houses. Many of them adopted the artifice of placing ikons or crosses on their doors in order to avert the attacks of the Christians.

St. Petersburgh, June 19.—In spite of the government's left handed denial that it intends to order a parliamentary recess, the Rech today expressed the fear that a coup d' etat is imminent, and appealed to the country to make its voice heard in favor of the dismissal of the ministry and a prolongation of the existence of parliament. An official denial has been given out of the report that members of the ministry participate in the sessions of the Trepoff star chamber, at Peterhof, which it is understood has absolutely decided that parliament must be got rid of and is only hesitating in regard to the method. Three ways are proposed:

"First—To order a recess of parliament for three months.

"Second—To dissolve parliament and order new elections based on universal suffrage, in the hope that the temper of the parliament thus elected would be different from that of the present body.

"Third—To declare the council of the empire or upper house the representative body until a new parliament is elected."

There are two features of the situation which make the court camarilla pause—the early necessity for more money and the dismay over the growing disaffection of the troops.

MAY BE OUSTED FROM THE STATE

Insurance Companies Fail to Comply With Commissioner's Order.

San Francisco, June 19.—The following insurance companies by reason of their failing to comply with Insurance Commissioner Wolf's demand that they either sign stipulations extending the time for filing proofs of loss to August 18, or furnish the commissioner with their lists of policyholders, have rendered themselves liable to forfeiture of their right to do business in the state of California: Agricultural, American of Boston, American of Philadelphia, Concordia, Delaware of Philadelphia, Dutchess, Eagle, German of Peoria, Germania, Globe and Rutgers, Girard, New York of New York, Northwestern Fire and Marine, National Union, North German of New York, Spring Garden, Security of Baltimore, Traders, Union of Philadelphia, West Chester, Western Underwriters.

Commissioner Wolf intends to proceed against these companies without delay, unless advised to the contrary by the attorney general of the state. He made this statement yesterday:

"I cannot state what action I will take until I am properly advised by the prosecuting officer of the state.

"I can say, however, that unless I am advised to the contrary by the attorney general, I shall proceed at once to enforce the law passed at the recent special session of the state legislature, and declare that those companies have forfeited their right to do insurance business in California.

"Furthermore it will be my business to see that these companies are compelled to meet their just obligations. If any retire without paying, I shall ask that action be taken against them by the insurance commissioner of the states under whose laws they are incorporated."

LOVE STRUCK ACTOR ENDS HIS EXISTENCE.

New York, June 19.—Benjamin Howard, an actor, committed suicide yesterday in Riverside park. Beside the body was a vial containing poison.

Six years ago, while touring in the West, he became infatuated with a Boston girl, who later married a resident of Milwaukee.

Howard, it is said, then attempted to shoot himself in Denver, but a friend prevented him.

Howard was well known in San Francisco, where he played with the Alcazar company.

AERONAUTS CAUGHT IN THUNDER STORM, SPEND AWFUL NIGHT IN CLOUDS

Dr. Thomas and Companion Have a Frightful Experience.

Everything About Their Balloon Was Charged With Electricity.

Later Suffered From Cold at Altitude of 8,000 Feet.

Binghampton, N. Y., June 19.—The balloon containing Julius P. Thomas and Charles Levee, which left New York Sunday evening, landed near New South Berlin yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock.

Dr. Thomas said that the trip was a success in every way and that it would have been possible for them to have gone much further. During the night a severe rain and electrical storm added much to the discomfort of the aeronauts and for a time it was necessary for them to anchor the balloon to a tree, later resuming the journey.

The distance covered by the balloon is practically 350 miles, and at times an altitude of 8,000 feet was attained. Dr. Thomas and Levee, after landing, hired a farmer to drive them to South New Berlin where the balloon and bag were shipped to New York. Dr. Thomas and assistant left later for New York.

New York, June 19.—Dr. Julian P. Thomas on his return home last night gave the following account of the aerial voyage:

"In the region of Little Falls, N. J., we came within 200 feet of the earth, to get our bearings and called to several persons to telephone my wife that we were safe up to that hour, near 7:30. In less than an hour after we were in the heart of a thunderstorm.

"The effect of the storm was terrifying. Everything we touched was charged with electricity. The rain soaked ropes were alive with the electrical fluid, and if we touched anything with our hands we received a shock, or started a spark. All the time the rain fell in a perfect torrent. With every flash of lightning we could see a decided change in cloud formation about us. The wind blew the clouds into mountain-shapes and hollowed out valleys, leaving here and there gaps between the mountains, and through the gaps tongues of flame would leap and continue to light up the spectacle."

Shortly after 1 o'clock, the areonauts descended to escape the storm and became caught in the branches of a tree, in which they remained for two hours when they got clear and were whirled northward, reaching at one point an altitude of 8,000 feet, when both suffered severely from cold. The balloon descended safely in a field at 8:30 a. m.

WITNESS FALLS DOWN AIR SHAFT

Sheriff Feared Some Injury Would Come to Companions.

Chicago, June 19.—William F. Runnells of Lexington, Texas, fell down an air shaft from the sixth floor of the Grace hotel early today, and was instantly killed. Runnells came to Chicago last night with Sheriff Scarborough and several other persons from Lexington, as a witness against Patrick Lavin, alias "Cyclone Pat," who is under arrest here charged with being an accomplice of Charles Coleman, a safe blower, who was killed May 20 near Giddings, Texas, in a fight with Sheriff Scarborough. Before retiring, Runnells appeared extremely nervous. He said he did not wish to sleep alone, and begged to be allowed to sleep in the room occupied by Thomas Largent, a member of the party. While Largent was asleep Runnells left the bed and, going to a window opening into the airshaft, either jumped or fell into the shaft.

A coincidence in connection with Runnells' death is the fact that Sheriff Scarborough had feared injury to his witnesses, and had asked for police protection. Yesterday he telegraphed to Chicago asking that the train he met by a detail of police. He said he had reason to fear an attempt might be made on the lives of some of his witnesses. The alleged plot was discovered as the train on which the party was coming to Chicago was leaving Kansas City. A man, who was a former friend of Coleman, got on the train and at St. Louis two other men got on and met the one who had boarded the train at Kansas City. Sheriff Scarborough, suspecting some plot, thereupon telegraphed government officials for protection. When the members of the party arrived in Chicago they were met by detectives, but nothing unusual occurred at the station.

GREAT GAIN IN CEMENT.

Washington, June 19.—According to a bulletin issued by the United States geological survey today, trade production of Portland cement in 1905 amounted to 35,246,812 barrels, valued at $33,245,867, which represents a gain of 8,740,931 barrels in quantity, and $3,890,748 in value over 1904.

WILLIAM N. CROMWELL, Who Defies Order of Senate Committee Requiring Him to Answer Certain Questions.

CROMWELL IS STILL DEFIANT

Refuses to Obey Order of Senate Committee to Answer.

Washington, June 19.—In defiance of the order of the senate committee on interoceanic canals that he answer certain questions propounded to him in the investigation of isthmian canal affairs, William Nelson Cromwell repeated his refusals today. He stated that the questions involved confidential relations with his clients, the new Panama Canal company. The questions were read to him by Senator Morgan and when the first one was asked, which concerned the first work he did for the Panama Canal company in America, the witness calmly took from his pocket a brief prepared statement which he proceeded to read. He stated that his knowledge of the subject under discussion was derived in the course of his professional employment, and that he must decline to disclose the interests of his employer concerning any private business matters. In refusing, he said he did so with the profoundest respect for the committee. After going over the previous record at some length in order to give the witness another opportunity to answer, the committee adjourned until next Thursday without having concluded the record.

SAVED FOUR; LOST OWN LIFE.

St. Louis, June 19.—After rescuing four of his fellow-workmen, Charles Gaslotl met his death by waiting in a trench filled with sewer gas until the last man had been raised to the surface. Gaslotl inhaled so much gas that he barely retained consciousness until he had been pulled from the trench, and he died in an ambulance while on the way to a hospital.

POLITICIANS SPECULATE

Over the Policy of the New Governor of Ohio.

Believed Appointments of Pattison Will Not Be Disturbed.

Columbus, Ohio, June 19.—Governor Andrew L. Harris today declined to make any formal statement regarding his policy, but it is maintained at the state house that he is in accord with the late governor in many of the plans he contemplated regarding state affairs. Mr. Harris is still at his home in Eaton, and will not be here until after the funeral of Mr. Pattison.

There is naturally much speculation among politicians as to what he will do regarding the few appointments that the late governor has made. The general notion is that he will not disturb them. The many other appointments to be made will, of course, be made from a Republican party standpoint. There is said to be no doubt about that.

Only the appointments of the executive staff, and that of a state hospital trustee, have been confirmed by the senate. The others are merely on appointment record, and the appointees have their commissions. Governor Harris may send them to the senate when it convenes, or he may annul them and send other names. But as the Democrats control the senate, such new appointments would probably not be confirmed, and the appointees of Governor Pattison being in, would remain in.

GOVERNOR WILL GRANT RESPITE

In Aggie Myers Case, to Fully Investigate Facts.

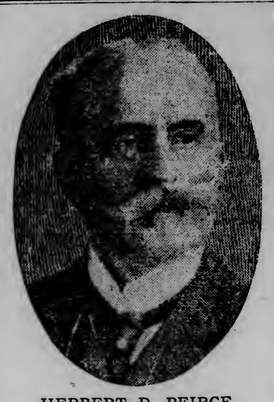

Jefferson City, Mo., June 19.—Division No. 2 of the supreme court today overruled a motion for a rehearing in the case of Mrs. Aggie Myers, sentenced to be hanged on June 29 for the murder of her husband in Kansas City, two years ago. Governor Folk left today for Bloomington, Ind., where he will deliver an address Wednesday. Prior to his departure he said he would return Friday and grant the condemned woman a respite of either thirty or sixty days, in order to permit time for investigation into the facts of the case, and determine whether or not to commute her sentence to life imprisonment.

The supreme court's decision also affects the case of Frank Hottman, the condemned accomplice of Mrs. Aggie Myers, and he will be granted a respite by Governor Folk when the woman's sentence is respited.

DEAD OF HEART FAILURE.

Dassel, Minn., June 19.—Mrs. John Thompson, wife of the landlord of the Dassel house of this village, dropped dead Sunday afternoon of heart failure. She was about 45 years of age.

KIDNAPER IS ARRESTED, TRIED AND GIVEN TWENTY YEARS IN LESS THAN DAY

HERBERT D. PEIRCE, Named by President as United States Minister to Norway.

Short Work Made of Kean, Who Abducted Muth Boy.

Indicted by the Grand Jury Immediately After Hearing.

Pleaded Guilty and Was Sentenced Inside of an Hour.

Philadelphia, June 19.—The grand jury found a true bill against Kean and he was given an immediate trial and convicted in less than an hour. Judge Sulzberger sentenced the prisoner to twenty years. From the time of Kean's arrest until he was on his way to the penitentiary to begin sentence, less than twenty-four hours had elapsed.

When Kean was taken before Judge Sulzberger, he requested that he be allowed to make a statement. He said there were mitigating circumstances in connection with the kidnaping, but the judge told the prisoner he must either plead guilty or not guilty. Kean then pleaded guilty. Three witnesses, the two special policemen, who made the arrest, and the proprietor of the eating house, who had seen Kean and the child together, then gave testimony before the judge. No jury was chosen, and Kean was sentenced immediately.

Philadelphia, June 19.—"Had I the disposition of this case, I would summon a large number of mothers here and turn you over to their tender mercy, but as the law fixes the penalty for crimes like yours, I can do nothing but commit you without bail for the action of the grand jury on the charge of kidnaping."

These words were addressed by Magistrate Eisenbrown to John Joseph Kean, the abductor of Freddie Muth, the 7-year-old son of Charles Muth, the Columbia avenue jeweler, who with his captive was discovered yesterday after a six day's search in a vacant house in West Philadelphia.

Immediately after the hearing, Captain of Detectives Donaghy went before the grand jury with is witnesses and asked for an indictment. District Attorney Bell says he will do everything in his power to facilitate the trial of Kean.

The magistrate's office was crowded when the abductor was arraigned for a hearing, many of the spectators being women, and muttered threats could be heard when the prisoner was placed in the dock.

Freddie Muth was brought to the court room by his father. He was a different boy from the child who was found dirty and hungry in the unoccupied house after a week's enforced absence from home. He was attired in a neat blue flannel sailor suit and a pink rose was pinned to his lapel. Mr. Muth said the child was none the worse for his experience. In strong contrast was the apearance of the abductor. After a sleepless night in the cell, he was haggard and wan. His eyes shifted nervously and his whole frame trembled visibly. He still seemed to fear bodily harm and eyed the spectators suspiciously. The police say he paced the cell all night sobbing and moaning, his wife and children being uppermost in his mind.

When he was placed in the dock Kean nodded to Freddie Muth, who sat beside his father, and the boy smiled. Pointing to Kean, the little fellow said:

"There he is, papa, see,"

Kean appeared to exert a strange influence over the child, who showed a feeling akin to friendship for the man.

The hearing was brief. Special Policemen Clare and Vale told of the arrest. James Lenahan, the messenger boy who delivered the note at the school house by which Freeddie was inveigled from his class room, related the circumstance of his meeting with Kean. Joseph Sager, the baker, testified to seeing the man and boy in Elmer Rhoade's cafe, and the latter verified Sager's testimony.

Kean made a statement, which was a repetition of that made to Superintendent of Police Taylor last night. He denied that he had restrained the child in any way, but said, on the contrary, that Freddie had opprotunities to leave him several times. He said he had not ill-treated the boy, and in this he was corroborated by the Muth child.

PEIRCE GETS GOOD BERTH

Named by President as United States Minister to Norway.

Washington, June 19.—The president today sent to the senate the nominations of Herbert D. Peirce, now third assistant secretary of state, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Norway, and Huntington Wilson of Illinois to succeed Mr. Peirce as third assistant secretary of state.

HEAVY DOWNPOUR OF RAIN IN IOWA.

Des Moines, June 19.—A heavy downpour of rain is falling throughout Iowa. The long protracted drought was broken yesterday when rain began falling in the north and west sections of the state. It became general before nightfall, covering the entire state. Reports from the various Iowa stations indicate a fall of nearly two inches. Crops which had been suffering from the lack of moisture are greatly relieved.

HIGH WATER FLOODS TWELVE COLLIERIES.

Mahanoy City, Pa., June 19.—Twelve collieries in the Mahanoy region, employing about 8,000 men and boys, are flooded as a result of the heavy rain which has continued since Saturday last. Workmen were called out of bed last night to hoist the mules from the mines, the water having partly submerged the animals.

In several of the mines the pumps have been rendered useless by the high water, and it is thought that it will be a week before the collieries can be operated.

TEDDY: "BE CAREFUL OF IT, UNCLE."

AMERICANS PLEASED

Constantinople, June 19.—The announcement that President Roosevelt had appointed John G. Fleishman, ambassador of the United States to Turkey, following the raising of the American legation here to the rank of an embassy, is causing much satisfaction in American missionary and commercial circles, as it is believed that the change will increase the influence of the American representatives in Turkey, and facilitate the settlement of questions with the porte. The Turks for many years opposed the proposal to make the change, on account of the additional expense to Turkey.

PATTISON FUNERAL.

Cincinnati, June 19.—The body of the late Governor Pattison will not be taken to Columbus for a state funeral as was suggested last night. His own wishes and those of his family were for a quiet service at home. A public service will also be held at the Methodist church in Milford, of which Mr. Pattison was a member.

Many telegrams of condolence have been received from all parts of the country, business, social and political acquaintances uniting in expressing regret at the death of Mr. Pattison.

INSPECTION AMENDMENT

To Agricultural Bill Concerning Meat Goes to Conference.

Cannon's Talk Before Committee Brought a Speedy Agreement.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meat inspection amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill was today adopted by the house without division.

The agricultural appropriation bill was then sent to conference. There was some disagreement over the selection of the minority member of the conference, and the speaker stated that he would announce the conferees later.

The committee on agriculture reassembled yesterday afternoon, Speaker Cannon appeared before them, and, occupying the chairman's seat, he addressed the committee on the subject of his conference with the president on the meat inspection amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill. It was the first time that Mr. Cannon has entered the committee room during the session of the committee since he was chosen to preside over the house. No one remembered that a speaker ever appeared before a committee to advocate a measure, as Mr. Cannon did yesterday, but his coming was prolific in results. He finished his talk at 3:15, and before 4 o'clock every point of difference between t he committee and the president had been adjusted, the bill had been framed, and the committee adjourned.

There is a great deal of talk about "victory for the president," and "victory for the committee," but the real facts are that on the main proposition there has never been any difference whatever between the president and the committee. That main point is sanitation and rigid inspection of packing houses, not only in Chicago but in every city of the country. And right here it is not generally understood what the term "packing house" implies. Under the decision of the United States supreme court, in January last, the distributing houses of all the great slaughtering plants of the West are "packing houses." Any establishment where a round of beef or a side of pork is salted, or where bacon and hams are stocked, is a packing house, and after July 1 will be subject to inspection, and the inspection will be as thorough as it is possible to make it.

The "court review clause" about which so much controversy has arisen, was inserted by the committee upon the recommendation of the lawyers of that body. The Beveridge amendment proposed to make the decision of the secretary absolute and final, and it was felt that such power should not be vested in an executive office. Hence, the right to appeal to the courts was inserted. It has been stricken out, and with it has gone the whole appeal section, so that the packer has left his constitutional right to appeal without having that right specifically stated in the law.

Mr. Cannon himself was one of the strongest advocates of the policy of payment of the cost of inspection by the government, and next to him was the entire stock growing interest from Texas to Montana and from the Ohio river to the Pacific coast, and every member of the committee advocated the payment of part of the cost by the government, the difference among the members being where the line should be drawn.

Inasmuch as the pure food bill, which will pass this week, provided for inspectors to be paid by the government, it was argued that the meat inspectors should be paid from the same source. The bill will be sent to conference today, and the fact that it meets the approval of the president insures a prompt agreement by the conferees. Already the secretary of agriculture is preparing to put it in operation immediately, and the civil service commission is preparing to honor requisitions for an eligible list of inspectors. There is an opportunity now for several hundred young veterinary surgeons to obtain lucrative government positions. The supply does not equal the demand, and this year's crop of veterinary college graduates have "careers" all ready for them if they desire employment in the slaughtering houses of the big cities.

WILL BE BUT FEW CHANGES

In the Teaching Forces at the Normals Next Term.

St. Paul, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be few changes in t he teaching forces of several state normal schools this year. At the annual meeting of the board, late yesterday, all the teachers who applied for re-election were accommodated.

The annual reports made by the presidents of the schools to the board showed a remarkable growth for the year. At the St. Cloud normal there was an enrollment of 551 against 254 four years ago. With the model school added, there was a total enrollment of 749.

In the Moorhead school the total enrollment was 897 against 666 two years ago. The increase at the Duluth normal for the year was 25 per cent. The total enrollment is 202 in the normal department. At the Mankato normal the increase was 55 for the year.

President Cooper made the complaint that the facilities for physical culture were entirely inadequate, and for that reason the course had not been a success. He thought a school as large as the Mankato institution should have facilities for physical training.

CLAIMS HE WAS WARNED

McAlpine Says He Was Told to Keep Check on Business.

Testifies That He Made $10,000 Profit For Millen on Cedar.

John McAlpine, who was on the stand yesterday under cross-examination for the defense that John Millen is making in the $150,000 damage action, was recalled for a short time this morning. His testimony yesterday afternoon related to the promissory notes amounting to about $64,000 given by the McAlpine Lumber company to various banks. Mr. McAlpine said that the McAlpine Lumber company was the organization effected at the request of Mr. Millen after they had formed a partnership. The corporation was formed after Mr. McAlpine had been away from the city for some time. It was organized with the idea, Mr. McAlpine said, of keeping the transactions of the partnership separate from Mr. Millen's affairs.

Some of Mr. McAlpine's testimony this morning referred to the cedar removed from the forties in the Richardson & Avery tract and adjoining lands. The witness claimed that when the accounts were closed, he had turned over to Mr. Millen $10,000 as profits on the cedar taken off the lands. The land cost the partners $25 per forty.

Mr. McAlpine denied positively that he ever hired any scalers to scale logs on the Richardson & Avery tract or that he told them to scale all the timber as "straight and sound."

"I was told by half a dozen men," was one of Mr. McAlpine's parting shots, "that if I didn't keep a check on the business, my profits wouldn't amount to much."

The greater part of the morning session was given up to the records of the Scott-Graff Lumber company with a view of showing that concern's transactions with the McAlpine Lumber company on the logging and sawing contract carried out in 1904.

Fred Farmer, secretary of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, produced the daily tally book of the lumber cut for the McAlpine Lumber company, also the inspectors' reports on the lumber sold and shipped from the stock of the latter company. Mr. Farmer testified that the McAlpine logs were kept separate from the other logs at the mill and that while the sawing bill was paid on the daily cut estimates the final settlement was based on the lumber actually measured and sold.

The daily tally records and the inspectors' reports were gone over and checked up by the opposing sides, a proceeding that was devoid of any special interest to those not concerned.

Mr. McAlpine was to resume the stand under cross-examination this afternoon, and it is understood that some more interesting developments were expected in the big damage case.

Mr. Farmer's testimony was the first direct testimony that the defense has thus far introduced.

FREIGHT TROUBLES ADJUSTED

Chicago, June 19.—The troubles between the railroads and freight handlers was practically adjusted today. The Lake Shore, Santa Fe and Michigan Central roads offered the men an increase of 1 cent an hour—just half of the increase they demanded. It was understood that if this was accepted by the men, that the other roads will follow suit.

ADDING NEW ATTRACTIONS

Novel Sleeping Car Tours for Patrons of White City.

Now that the buildings are getting completion, the work of getting in the attractions at the White City is being rushed.

Arrangements were made today to bring the show known as the "Hale Tours" to Duluth for the summer The attraction consists of a large sleeping car, in which imaginary trips are taken through the different countries of the world, by means of a most ingenious arrangement of panorama views.

The tours have been one of the most popular attractions at the Chicago White City, and the car brought to Duluth will not be a cheap imitation, but an exact copy of the Chicago car. It will cost the company approximately $4,000 to fit up the car alone.

The minature railroad has also arrived and being set on the grounds.

This morning, Manager Marshall completed the purchase of a new merry go round, which will be brought to Duluth at once and set up in time for the opening.

The other attractions will be installed just as rapidly as the buildings are completed.

WALTER JOHNSON GAME WARDEN

Walter Johnson of the force of the city engineer, received word today that he has been appointed deputy game warden for this district in place of John Green, who has held the office for about five years. The appointment is made by the state game and fish commission and Johnson was backed by the labor union leaders of the state for the place.

Johnson is to take charge of the new office on July 1. He is a member of the stage employes' union, and is on the surviving force of the city, having been a member of that force for quite a number of years. Generally speaking, there is considerable pleasure among the union men over his appointment. Deputy John Green, whose place Johnson takes, is out of the city at present. He has been deputy for about five years.

Commends Council Action.

Andrew Himle, editor of the Appleton Press, and one of the leading Jacobson delegates at the recent Republican state convention, returned today to his home, after visiting friends here since the convention. In referring to the refusal of the council last evening to amend the peddlers' ordinance so that farmers selling their own produce would come under the provision requiring licenses, he said that a most fortunate thing had been done, for if they had been placed in the class of common peddlers, Duluth would never have heard the last of it from the state press.

COAL DEALERS MEET AT ST. PAUL

St. Paul, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coal dealers of the Northwest are holding their annual convention in the old state capitol today. The delegates were welcomed on behalf of Governor Johnson by his private secretary, Frank Day, and on behalf of the mayor by Corporation Attorney Michael, the mayor and governor being out of the city. Responding to the addresses of welcome, C. M. Morse of Winona, said: "The downtrodden and maligned coal man wants to thank anyone who will give him as hearty a welcome as has been extended by the city and state to us here today."

Charles T. Taylor of Mankato, read the president's report of the work done during the past year. The report said that the organization now represented 2,400 coal yards, and was the largest in the world. Reports of the secretary and treasurer showed how the work done by the association had prospered. The secretary's report showed an expenditure during the past year of over $11,000, and a balance in the treasury of $900.

This afternoon's session was taken up by the reading of various topics of interest to the coal trade.

MRS. SOPHIA CALDWELL, 1122 McGavock St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After doctoring for a year and finding no relief from leucorrhea resulting from prolapsus uteri, and which was sapping my life forces away, I finally tried Peruna, and when I found that it was helping me every day, it seemed almost too good to be true.

"But it not only helped me, it cured me and in a very short time.

"I am strong and free from pain, and I certainly feel that all praise and honor are due to Peruna."

MODEL HOME FOR WARDS OF STATE

Instruction in Housekeeping for Girls of Training School.

Red Wing, Minn., June 19.—For a long time the board of control and superintendent of the state training school have planned the establishment of a cooking school in the girls' department, but have been seriously handicapped for lack of room. It is felt that the girls need instruction, not only in cooking, but in general housekeeping, under as near as possible the conditions that prevail in the ordinary farm home or the home of the mechanic or laborer, most of the girls going to this class of homes when paroled.

After giving the matter careful consideration, the management of the training school has decided to give the girls this chance, and for this purpose has rented the Col. Colvill property, consisting of a nine-room house and about eighteen acres of land.

Here they propose to establish a model home where a small number of the girls, under the care and direction of a competent matron, will live for a time before their release, and receive such instruction in housekeeping, especially in cooking, as near the conditions that prevail in the ordinary home as possible.

The house will be furnished plainly, but neatly, and made as homelike as possible. It will be under the general direction of the superintendent and the matron of the girls' department. It is not unlikely that, besides the girls who live there, a class of the girls from the institution itself may go there daily for instruction in cooking.

The experiment will be carefully watched, not only by Minnesotans, but by similar institutions. Its success or failure will depend largely upon the girls themselves.

Miss Gertrude Holmes of St. Paul has been appointed matron for this new department.

SUSPECT WATCHED IN WARREN MURDER CASE.

Warren, Minn., June 19.—The coroner's jury, sitting to determine the cause of the death of Andrew Lindtroth, found dead in his blacksmith shop, found that he came to his death from a gunshot wound from a gun in the hands of a person unknown.

The authorities have something up their sleeve, but refused to divulge it before the jury. Several persons are under suspicion and an arrest may be looked for at any time. The fact that the gun with which the act was committed having been found on the premises tends to show murder.

No clue to the assailant has been found which is sufficient to base such charge upon as against any one individual, but with the assistance of a good detective who has arrived on the scene, things are expected to move rapidly.

Lindtroth was seen by half a dozen people not more than fifteen minutes before his dead body was found.

FELL FROM LOG AND DROWNED.

Kaukauna, Wis., June 19.—Harry Eaton, of Poysippi, lost his life while working on a drive at Keshena. While riding a log he was seen to throw up his hands and fall backwards into the water. His body was recovered half a mile below where he fell in about ten hours after the accident, and was taken to Shawano, and from there shipped to Poysippi. The deceased was about 40 years old, and is survived by a wife and three children.

What Retail Markets Offer

Clyman plums, 2 dozen for 25 cents.
Peaches, 30 cents a dozen.
Cantaloupes, 15 cents each.
Boiled ham, $2.55 each.
Rhubarb, one yard long, 4 lbs. for 10 cents.

Plums and peaches and muskmelons and cherries are the things the market allows one to have at present in addition to all sorts of delicious vegetables. And if you have got riled at the way the meat trust has been acting and the methods of the packers you may stop calling at the butcher's altogether, and scarcely miss it for the fruits and vegetables are of such a luciousness.

The boiled hams which are daintily boiled and clean looking things are molded some way so they have lost the long known look of a ham and are now a gentle rounding cylindrical shape. For luncheon and picnics and a dozen other uses during the summer every housekeeper ought to have one in the medicine chest or refrigerator or cold storage or some place like that. The melons are getting cheaper and the tomatoes firmer.

Menu for Informal Sunday Night Tea

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

My Dear Mrs. Telford:—

Will you kindly send me a menu for a Sunday night tea, for six to eight persons, suitable for this season of the year and also one for winter?

Thanking you, I remain, sincerely,

IDA E. M. LUDWIG.

Informal Sunday night suppers, served in the elastic English fashion, any friend feeling quite at liberty to drop in, sure that it will not make the slightest difference with the table service, and very popular now.

At these affairs the guests do not sit at the table, but dispose themselves about the room wherever most convenient. The hostess, of course, is at the table, to pour tea, coffee or chocolate; but the guests are expected to wait on themselves and each other in passing things. The table is daintily spread with fresh napery, bright silver and pretty china, with a vase of fresh blossoms in the center. On the table also are generous plates of sandwiches or buns, a fresh loaf of cake or home made cookies, snaps or jumbles, plates or olives or radishes, a salad if desired and a dish of fresh preserves. The only thing hot is the samovar of tea or pot of steaming chocolate.

At this season, an acceptable menu might be the following:

Chicken Aspic Salad, or Tongue in Aspic.
Plain Bread and Butter Sandwiches, or Rose Leaf Sandwiches.
Olives, Crackers spread with Cream Cheese.
Angel Cake. Strawberries with Whipped Cream.
Iced Tea or Hot Chocolate.

For a winter's night this would be better:

Welsh Rarebit.
Pickled Oysters. Celery Sandwiches.
Pound Cake. Preserves or Fruit
Tea, Chocolate or Coffee.

If your guests are mainly men with good appetites these sandwiches never go begging:

Substantial Sandwiches.

Between well butter slices of rye bread cut thin and evenly lay a thin slice of ham with just a suspicion of French mustard, and over this a layer of Bermuda onions shaved in thin rings.

Rose Leaf Sandwiches.

These dainty confections appeal particularly to women. On Saturday put some fresh unsalted butter in a bowl or tin pail with a tight fitting lid, cover with a layer of fragrant rose petals and leave over night. The next day cut white bread into dainty strips or circles, spread with the perfumed butter, put one or two rose leaves between the slices, allowing the edges to show.

Cream Cheese and Ripe Olive Sandwiches.

Stone and chop the olives fine and beat into a cream cheese—Philadelphia or Neufchate!—adding a little sweet cream to moisten and salt and paprika to season. Green olives are also used in the same way and are easier to get here, as the ripe ones cannot be found outside the Syrian and Italian shops. Spread on thin slices of white or brown bread and pile on a pretty plate.

Preserved Ginger Sandwiches.

Chop preserved ginger very fine, moisten with some of the syrup of rich cream to a spreading consistency, and put between rounds of entire wheat bread no larger than a dollar.

Tongue in Aspic.

Select a tongue with as smooth a skin as possible; roughness is a sign of age; wash well, trim off any surplus fat and rough edges, run a strong twine through the tip of the tongue and draw under so that it meets the root and tie firmly in place; if the tongue is smoked it must be soaked in clear cold water over night; put a fresh tongue in a kettle and cover with boiling salted water; let it cook five minutes, then skim thoroughly and push back where it will boil gently, only bubbling one side of the kettle; rapid boiling toughens instead of making tender; if the tongue is smoked it must be put into cold water, brought slowly to the boiling point (an hour is none too long), then simmered three and a half hours, or until tender; after the water in which either a fresh or smoked tongue is cooked has reached the boiling point, and has been skimmed, add to it a small red pepper, minus the seeds, a piece each of onion and carrot, a small bouquet of soup greens and a spice bag of its equivalent in powdered sweet basil, summer savory and marjoram.

With the fresh tongue add salt also to season. When at last the tongue is tender, so that it is easily pierced with a fork, take from the fire and let it cool in the water in which it is cooked. Do not peel until ready to use. If you are to serve it whole, glaze and wind a paper ruche around the root, interspersed with sprigs of parsley. If it is to be sliced in the kitchen, arrange in overlapping circles around a platter, pile watercress in the center, and garnish with nasturtium leaves, or blossoms, parsley or feathery carrot tops. Serve with a sauce tartare, which is simply a mayonnaise with chopped pickle and olives added. The smoked tongue is delicious served in aspic, but the fresh tongue is apt to prove insipid with it.

To Make the Aspic.

Soak one box gelatine in a cup of water for an hour. Put into a saucepan one quart consomme of good soup stock with a stalk of celery, a couple slices of onion and carrot, a bay leaf and a half teaspoonful French spice and salt. Simmer gently ten or fifteen minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste, add the soaked gelatine, stir until dissolved, strain and, having laid the tongue whole in a pan, pour the aspic over and set away to harden. If you prefer to have the tongue sliced in aspic pour a layer of the aspic in a large round mould first and let it stiffen. Then arrange the overlapping slices of tongue on this as a bed and cover with the rest of the aspic. If you are without the necessary stock, and are in a hurry, use beef extract dissolved in hot water, a teaspoonful of extract to each pint of water, then add flavoring vegetables and spices and proceed as before. A little lemon juice or wine may be added to the aspic just before pouring into the mould. If you desire to use it for a garnish, instead of moulding with the meat, pour into a shallow pan and when cold cut in blocks.

DELEGATES NUMEROUS

Swedish Lutheran Augustana Synod Draws Very Large Crowd.

Nearly Every Elected Delegate From Minnesota is Present.

Denver, Colo., June 19.—The annual meeting of the Swedish Lutheran Augustana synod, now in session here, has a larger attendance of delegates than any since 1894. It was expected that merely a handful would go so far West, but the desire to see the great West and the low rates on all roads to Denver, together with the interest in the questions of the church, have brought an unprecedented number of delegates from the different parts of America. Nearly every regularly elected delegate from Minnesota, both lay and clerical is on hand. The Augustana synod has about 300,000 members, more than 1,000 congregations and 550 pastors.

Nothing has been left undone by the Denver people to entertain the delegates. Their homes have been opened and arrangements have been made for seeing the beautiful city under the most pleasant circumstances.

The series of entertainments will end with an excursion by a special train over the famous Georgetown loop. Smaller parties will later go to Colorado Springs and Pike's Peak.

Dr. G. A. Brondelle, pastor of the congregation entertaining the synod, occupies one of the most prominent positions among the Swedes of Colorado, and is one of the most influential men in the Augustana synod.

Politically the most prominent man in Colorado is J. A. Holmberg, state treasurer. Another prominent Denver man is J. E. Holmberg, former sheriff of Hennepin county, who has resided in Denver for several years and carries on a large contracting business in house building. He has taken a prominent part in entertaining the delegates.

The large Lutheran congregation of Denver was organized in 1878 with six charter members, of whom five were women. In the early days the organization bought a lot in what is now near the center of Denver. Here a modest church was erected. Later this property was sold at a profit of over $50,000 and the present beautiful structure was built at another place at a cost of $65,000. Dr. M. Wahlstrom, the former president of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn., was the first pastor of the Denver church, and the oldtimers here yet remember his great work. This was in 1879 and 1880.

Dr. J. Telleen, at present professor in the Lutheran seminary at Red Wing, Minn., was pastor here from 1880 to 1883, during which the congregation had a steady growth in membership.

Sunday was the great festive occasion of the meeting. Sermons were preached in the morning by Rev. C. E. Platt of Philadelphia and Dr. C. M. Esbjorn of Kingsbury, Cal.

In the afternoon twenty-one young men were ordained to the holy ministry. An impressive ordination address was delivered by the venerable president of the synod, Dr. E. Norelius of Vasa, Minn. The names of the young pastors and the places to which they have been assigned are:

P. E. Bergstrom, St. Peter, Minn., to Maple Cheyenne, N. D.; E. A. Lindgren, Hallock, Minn., to Wheaton, Minn.; O. M. Bloom, St. Peter, Minn., to Brooshby, Texas; A. M. Green, Seattle, Wash., to New Orange, Mass.; Andrew Andre, Rock Island, Ill., to Marquette, Mich.; August Samuelson, Lafayetta, Minn., to Camden Place, Minn.; C. O. Swan, Rock Island, Ill., to Worthington, Minn.; Joel Olsenius, Rock Island; V. E. Holmstedt, Minneapolis, to Hutchinson, Kan.; F. W. Hanson, Kansas City, to Manson, Iowa; R. O. Bersell, Rock Island, to Chicago; Hugo Thorene, Stillwater, Minn., to North Easton, Mass.; A. H. Franzen, St. Paul, to Boise City, Idaho; J. E. Oslund, Cokato, Minn., to Wallace, Idaho; H. E. Sandstedt, Rock Island, to Scandia, Kan.

The following persons, who have not taken a complete theological course, were granted ordination: H. Myren, to Newport, R. I.; S. D. Hawkins, to Olympia, Wash.; O. Lindgren, to Alberta, Can.; A. J. Lawson, to Iron River, Wis.; Olaf Nordblad, to Washburn, Wis., and N. P. Sjogren, to Port Arthur, Ontario.

Impressive services were held last night in memory of five pastors who died during the year. Among these were Rev. C. O. Lindell of Vasa, Minn., who died from heart failure in Red Wing last October, and Rev. P. Ahngren, stationed on the mission field in Colorado, who was accidentally killed last February. Dr. G. Rast of Red Wing delivered the commemorative address for the former, and Rev. J. A. Krantz of West Duluth, president of the Minnesota conference, for the latter.

The needs of the vast and important mission field of the synod were taken up yesterday. The mission board reported through its secretary, Dr. C. W. Foss of Rock Island, Ill., contributions from the congregations exceeded previous years, but fewer donations had been received, thus increasing the deficit in the treasury, which is now $11,000. An earnest appeal was made for a heroic effort to increase the financial support to home missions, and it was pointed out that unless this is done the work must soon be seriously hampered.

The total contributions of the year amounted to about $14,000. Each conference, especially Minnesota, has a vast mission field of its own, which does not enter into the reports of the synod.

The synod's mission board has built a church on Douglas island, Alaska, at a cost of $4,000, which is the only Lutheran church in Alaska. Three missionaries have labored among the Mormons in Utah, but progress has been found exceedingly slow. The congregation in Salt Lake City, after twenty-four years' existence, has only eighty-five members. Several new mission places were established in Utah during the year.

It was reported that the greatest and most promising mission field of the synod is Montana, where several pastors are stationed. A separate mission district has been organized.

Fargo Auto Dealer Is Hurled Through Plate Glass Window.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—As a result of what is perhaps the most peculiar automobile accident on record, E. S. Blake, a well-known implement dealer, received serious injuries and barely escaped with his life on Saturday. Only the presence of mind of Dave Rae saved Blake from being fatally hurt.

Blake had been showing a prospective customer one of the big machines his firm had just received from the factory. It stood in the front part of the showroom, near a large plate-glass window, the window being several feet above the street level. Blake had set the power on the machine and had neglected to turn it off.

He passed around to the front of the machine and was explaining by demonstration the mechanism of the starting crank. As he gave the crank a twist the huge car started suddenly forward hurling Blake through the plate glass window and upon the sidewalk. The heavy machine would have followed and fallen upon the prostrate man had not Rae sprang into it and shut off the power just in the nick of time. Blake was seriously cut about the face and hands and received several bad bruises as a result of the fall to the sidewalk.

The contractors have completed work on the courthouse, and the officials will occupy it July 10.

A grand jury term of the United States court has been called by Judge Amidon for June 26. In addition to the usual routine matters to be investigated, many fraudulent homestead entries are to be considered.

The new Cass county courthouse will be turned over to the county about July 10. The contractors completed their work last week, but the electrical and other fixtures are not all in place. The building was erected without a bond issue and is paid for at completion.

Bathgate—Langley Curie, the Great Northern agent of Bathgate, is missing, and the last heard of him was at Plum Coolie, Manitoba, going west. It is reported that a man from Hamilton has gone with him. Curie has been agent here for years and belongs to a fine family.

The Great Northern auditor and two detectives are at work on the books of the railroad and will give out no figures at this time.

S. M. Warner of Hankinson, N. D., is in charge of the office and will be the agent here.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—If a franchise can be secured, an interurban railroad will be built by a syndicate already organized for that purpose. The matter was submitted to the city council last fall and is now in the hands of a special committee. As no report has been made, the promoters will send a communication to the council urging speedy action.

Those interested in the proposed enterprise are all local men, some of whom are farmers. All the details of the new road have been completed with the exception of the motive power to be used. The plans include the construction of a track some ten miles from the city, the direction to be determined by the farmers, from whom right of way privileges will be required. At the temporary terminus a signal station will be established and from that point the tracks will extend into the country as the demand requires.

The syndicate promises to haul grain to this city for three cents a bushel and cost of elevator storage. A central bureau will be established through which farmers can order supplies and have them delivered without having to come here to purchase them.

As submitted to the city council, the franchise provides that the city can acquire possession at any time by purchase.

Sioux Falls—The meeting of the various Masonic societies of South Dakota closed with the initiation of over 100 candidates from different parts of the state to the Mystic Shrine. J. T. Gilbert of Sioux Falls, illustrious potentate, presided. A banquet was served by the ladies of the Eastern Star.

Miller—The large opera house was crowded at the graduating exercises of twenty-four eighth grade students of the schools of the town and county. Prof. A. H. Seymour of Arlington delivered the address. The class was composed of fifteen girls and nine boys.

Six Salvation Army workers have pitched a tent here for a series of meetings. This is the first time that this body has moved upon the town with a determined effort to compel the sinners to surrender.

Deadwood—The site of the coming commercial and railway metropolis of the Dakotas has just been determined upon by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. On the old Grand River military reservation on the eastern bank of the Missouri river will be located the town of Duroc, where the railroad will cross the Big Muddy and halt temporarily in its race to the coast.

LESTER'S BODY SENT HOME.

Washington, June 19.—The body of Representative Rufus E. Lester of Georgia, who died Saturday evening as the result of a fall through the skylight of the apartment house where he was residing, was placed aboard the Southern railroad train leaving here this forenoon and will arrive in Savannah, the deceased's home, tomorrow forenoon. In addition to the family the body was accompanied by the special committees of the senate and house.

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have od is Montana, where several pastors hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home, and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by all leading druggists.

Milk, the most perishable food, will remain fresh and wholesome in a BOHN 72 hours or more.

The food compartment is larger than in any other similar-priced refrigerator, size for size.

The air circulation can be actually proved by holding a lighted match at the bottom of the food compartment where the current starts.

The interior is perfectly dry as may be proved by storing matches in the food section any length of time after which they strike readily.

The temperature is 10 degrees lower than others and with the same or less amount of ice. The enamel of opalite is as easily cleaned as a piece of china. What does your refrigerator do? Do not jeopardize health by being without a BOHN! Now on sale.

KING NEARS TRANDHYJEM

An Elaborate Reception Awaits the Ruler of Norway.

Trondhjem, June 19.—The royal yacht Heimdal, with King Haakon and Queen Maud on board, will reach Trondhjem between 5 and 6 o'clock this evening. Their majesties will land on the elaborately decorated pier, which is flanked by tribunes.

Trondhjem is rapidly filling up with visitors, chiefly inhabitants of the surrounding districts. The city is dressed with flags, a spirit of gaiety is in the air, and the population is eagerly awaiting the coming of the new ruler of Norway.

Christianiasund, June 19.—The inhabitants of Christiansund, the last port of call of the royal yacht Heimdal on its way to Trondhjem with King Haakon, Queen Maud and Crown Prince Olaf for the coronation of the king, gave the sovereigns an enthusiastic sendoff. The entire population participated in the farewell, and wildly cheered the royal party as they appeared on the streets and drove to the pier.

NAVIGATOR IS FOUND GUILTY

For Running the Big Battleship Aground Recently.

Washington, June 19.—Secretary Bonaparte has completed his review of the case of Lieut. Commander Edward T. Witherspoon, U. S. N., the navigator of the battleship Rhode Island, who was tried by court martial in connection with the recent grounding of that vessel. The court found Lieut. Commander Witherspoon guilty of the several charges, and sentenced him to lose ten numbers in his grade, and to be publicly reprimanded by the secretary of the navy. The secretary aproved the proceedings, findings and sentence of the court, but remitted that portion of the sentence involving a public reprimand.

BRIDE, BY PHONE, TELLS PARENTS SHE'S MARRIED.

New York, June 19.—From the bridal suite in the Murray hotel this message was telephoned to Sunnyside, the country estate of Howard S. Jaffray, near Irvington-on-Hudson:

"Arthur and I are married, and we are very happy."

The speaker was Mr. Jaffray's youngest daughter, Mabelle Jaffray. At her side was Arthur W. Jaffray, her first cousin, and husband. Bride and bridegroom are grandchidren of the late Edward S. Jaffray, a merchant and founder of the family which for three generations had held the highest social position in New York, Newport and London. Arthur Jaffray's career has varied in many parts of the globe. He now comes from the mines of Mexico, 6 feet 4½, broad of shoulder and his face as brown as old mahogany.

TO REDISTRIC TNEGRO VOTE.

Baton Rouge, La., June 19.—A primary election bill, containing a provision which is intended to restrict the voting of negroes at the primaries, was passed late last night by the state senate. The house has already passed the bill, but as the negro restrictive clause was inserted by the senate the bill will go back to the house for conference.

Mexico on a Gold Basis.

Mexico is putting itself on a gold basis in a very matter-of-fact way. It is selling its silver reserve at an enhanced value and buying gold in the United States, an order for $5,000,000 worth being recently sent us. Bankers make the claim that the change to gold will greatly strengthen the credit of Mexico. It is always good policy to make any change that will result in lasting benefit, and with this idea in view, thousands of persons have made a change in their medicine and are now taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. They write us that their old remedy did them no good, while the Bitters soon made them well again. If you're not taking Hostetter's, start today. You'll find it quickly relieves indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, heartburn, costiveness, female ills, insomnia, and malaria, fever and ague. Don't accept a substitute.

DATES FOR GOLF MEET

Minnesota Association's Tournament Will Be Held in July.

The Northland Country Club Will Send Its Best Players.

The Northland Country club will be well represented at the annual tournament of the Minnesota Golf association, which will be held on the links of the Minikahda club in Minneapolis, July 25 to 28.

Already, the members of the Duluth organization are preparing for the contests and they confidently expect to win many of them. Duluth golfers have reputations which are widespread and the others will have to be on their mettle when the tournament is on.

E. P. Towne has offered a cup which the Northlanders will play for on the next five Saturdays. They will play against Bogey and the man who makes the best showing at the conclusion of the five weeks, retains the cup. For those who do not understand golf, it must be explained that Bogey is an imaginary competitor which piles up points against the golfer.

Besides the Northfield Country and Minikahda clubs, the Minnesota association is composed of the Town and Country club of St. Paul, the Meadowbrook club of Winona, the Lafayette club of Lake Minnetonka, the Bryn Mawr club of Minneapolis and a Faribault, Minn., club. The interest in the organization is keen and the annual tournaments are invariably interesting affairs. W. W. Walker of Duluth is president of the association.

"The Minikahda club's links, where the state tournament will be held this year, are the prettiest in the country, I think," said E. P. Alexander, Jr., this morning. "They are as smooth as a billiard table and a delight to play on. The club's grounds are beautifully located. The handsome colonial style club house stands on a high bluff overlooking Lake Calhoun and on the other side, the course stretches out. I expect that the attendance will be large this year. The Northland Country club will send its best players.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES

Chosen at State Convention Meet to Select Committee.

St. Paul, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The candidates nominated at the recent Republican state convention at Duluth met this afternoon with A. L. Cole, candidate for governor, and Chairman Sivright, at the Ryan, to select members of the next Republican state central committee. The meeting was secret. It was said that State Treasurer Block would probably be named chairman of the committee. Senator Lord of Kasson was mentioned in connection with the place, but it is said that he declined.

ALUMNI DAY

Is Observed, as Usual, at the University of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—This was alumni day at the university of Wisconsin. The alumni association elected Burr W. Jones of Madison president. Nearly 300 sat down to the annual alumni dinner. The toastmaster was Prof. Charles Noble Gregory, dean of the college of law of the university of Iowa. Class reunions followed throughout the afternoon.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY, MO., HAS A WATER FAMINE.

St. Louis, June 19.—St. Louis county is suffering from a water famine and since 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Kirkwood, Webster Grove, Ferguson, Florisant and a number of smaller towns have been without water. Gangs of laborers have been steadily searching for a broken main, which is believed to be the cause, but up to noon today had not found it. Cisterns and wells have been pumped dry and 5,000 people are in need of water.

SEEK DISSOLUTION.

Stockholders of Duluth Creamery Company Ask for Receiver.

Five of the stockholders of the Duluth Creamery company, an institution that began business on West Fourth street about six months ago, have petitioned the district court for a dissolution of the corporation and the appointment of a receiver. Judge Dibell has ordered a hearing on the petition Saturday, July 14.

The petitioners claim that the debts that have accumulated against the company have reached a considerable sum and it is or will be insolvent. They claim that the business cannot be continued without great loss to the creditors.

C. B. Miller represents the petitioning stockholders.

That values are appreciated by discriminating shoppers will be seen at a glance into the busy salesrooms of the handsome Gidding establishment. Today, notwithstanding the rainy weather, was even busier than Monday. The Gidding firm has a reputation for never doing things by halves and when they advertise reductions one can depend upon it as being absolutely bonafide. This fact, together with the knowledge that everything one buys there is absolutely the very latest in style, are important factors in the large business the Gidding firm has built up.

DEMOCRATS UNITE

With Republicans in Turning Down Tillman's Bank Resolution.

Washington, June 19.—Democratic members of the senate committee on finance united with the Republican members today in opposing action on Senator Tillman's resolution requesting the committee to inquire into the questions of campaign contributions by national banks, the Walsh failure in Chicago and the action of certain Ohio banks in paying county treasurers for deposits of county funds. The minority members agreed that if the senate bill now pending which prohibits campaign contributions by banks becomes a law, there could be no good purpose served in entering upon an investigation such as is contemplated by the resolution.

IVENS CASE HEARD.

PRADELLA WINS ASCOT STAKES

London, June 19.—Although robbed of its picturesque state procession on account of the absence of Queen Alexandra, who is still in mourning; the prince of Wales, who is in Norway, and the duke of Connaught, who also is in mourning, Royal Ascot, England's great social race meeting, presented its usual brilliant scene at the opening of the meeting today. The royal enclosure where King Edward and his guests assembled was, with its gathering of well-dressed men and women, a carnival of color, the stands being crowded with the elite of the social world. The king, who is staying at Windsor for a week, drove with his guests in carriages through the great park at Ascot. There was a great gathering of Americans and Anglo-Americans at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Longworth rode from the Dorchester house, London, to Ascot in the ambassador's automobiles.

In the race for the Ascot stakes, the big race of the day, Mr. Singer's Pradella was first, Outbreak second and Salt Petre third. Twenty-two horses started.

HUGE FISSURES OPEN IN SIERRA MOUNTAINS.

Reno, Nev., June 19.—John Manantl, a prospector and half owner in a saloon at Verdi, has returned from a prospecting trip to report that immense fissures have opened up in the Sierra Nevada mountains about two miles west of Verdi. Not only Menantl, but other prospectors returning to Verdi report the same facts. Some say they have seen smoke and steam issuing from the crevices. The largest abyss opened in the mountain is about a foot wide, and must have opened within the last few days.

The geological department of the University of Nevada is interested in the matter, and an expedition of scientists will set out for the scene at once.

WOMAN IN TERROR ON FIRST RIDE ON TRAIN.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 19.—Seventy-year-old Mrs. Charles Skinner of Jackson, Columbia county, took her first ride on a railroad train yesterday afternoon and was so frightened that the train had to be stopped and she was allowed to alight. She was driven from the farm where she lived all her life, and has only left three or four times, and taken to Benton station, and with her son boarded a train for Danville, after much persuasion. No sooner did the train begin to move, however, than she started to scream, and as the rumble of the wheels and the motion of the train increased and she saw the landtic that her son and the passengers feared she would die.

The conductor stopped the train and she and her son alighted half a mile from the station.

GOLD IS FOUND IN THE PACIFIC COAST SANDS.

Seattle, June 19.—That the black sands of the Pacific coast contain gold in sufficient quantities to amply repay the man or men who discover an economical process by which the yellow grains can be separated from the sands and their accompanying concentrates, has long been known to mining men.

Under a new appropriation, Dr. Day, the head of the department, is conducting a second survey of the Pacific coast, making an accurate record of all deposits and their relative values.

According to a report recently issued by the geological survey, excellent results have been obtained from the analysis of 20 samples of black sand from different localities in California, Colorado, Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The sand contained only a trace of gold, but a sample of 264 pounds was run over a concentrating table and reduced to 17.5 pounds, when it showed gold to the value of 81 cents a ton.

Another small sample, also from Humboldt county, showed an assay value of $1,004 per ton in gold and platinum.

MUST HAVE LICENSES

Only Three Applications for Permission to Sell Fireworks.

Should be in Hands of Council Before Monday Night.

Duluth will have a firecrackerless Fourth unless the dealers take prompt steps to secure their licenses.

Under the city ordinance no person is allowed to dispose of fireworks of any kind, without first securing a license from the city council. Up to the present time only three applications have been received for licenses, and next Monday is the last meeting of the council before the Fourth, at which licenses can be granted and be of any value. The dealers who have not put in their applications before next Monday night, cannot secure licenses before Tuesday, July 3, and by that time they will be of little use.

The license fee is nominal, being but 50 cents, the object of the ordinance being merely to keep control over the dealers, and see that they do not violate the other provisions of the law.

The ordinance fixes a maximum size for cannon crackers, and absolutely prohibits the use of dynamite canes. Any person using or selling canes with dynamite cartridges, or cannon crackers larger than the size prescribed, is liable to arrest and a fine or imprisonment.

There are generally about 100 dealers in fireworks in the city, and all of them have to have their applications in to the council before next Monday night, or be prohibited from selling fireworks until Tuesday, July 3.

All questions pertaining to health and beauty are answered here. Makes people feel as they felt in full-blooded youth. Does business while you sleep. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

REFUSES TO PROSECUTE

Boy When Whipped Says He Got His Just Deserts.

Stating to the police that he had "got what was coming to him," a little 13-year-old Italian boy this morning refused to swear out a warrant for a companion with whom he had been fighting, and who had knocked him unconscious.

The fight occurred early this morning on Michigan street. The boys quarreled over some trivial matter and a fist fight followed. One of the lads was knocked unconscious, and the other participant in the quarrel made good his escape.

Some of the commission men who came up in time to see the finish of the fight, laid the unconscious boy out on the seat of his father's fruit wagon, and he soon recovered his senses.

The police were notified of the affair, and Sergt. Wilcox was sent to the scene. He tried to persuade the boy to go with him to the city hall and swear out a warrant for the other lad, but the boy refused, saying that he was as much to blame as the other boy had been, and that he was going to take his medicine when he was licked.

NEW SENATOR, IN WEEK, WILL DRAW THOUSANDS.

Washington, June 19.—A. W. Benson, the new senator from Kansas, wears a smile that indicates that he enjoys upholstery and the other good things in the senate.

By the time the Kansas legislature which will meet early in January shall have elected his successor, who probably will be sworn in about Jan. 15. Senator Benson will have seen about a week's actual service. It is about 1,300 miles from Ottawa, Kan., to Washington. At 20 cents a mile, which the law allows, Senator Benson, who will cover the distance four times in the course of his brief senatorial career, will draw in mileage a little more than $1,000. To this is to be added approximately $3,000 salary, covering the last seven months, and about $75 for a stationery account.

A select committee to investigate and dispose of the useless papers in the departments was created. Senator Benson was made chairman, and authorized to appoint a clerk to the committee and a messenger. The new senator, therefore, will control official patronage worth $1,890.

CLAMMER MADE RICH BY SINGLE PEARL.

Red Wing, Minn., June 19.—Undoubtedly the most valuable fresh water pearl in the world today has been found by a clamdigger, William Bates, in the Wisconsin channel opposite this city. It is large as a good-sized marble, perfectly round and without a flaw, and with a luster rarely equalled even in small gems.

The pearl is translucent, and almost transparent, and when exposed to a light glistens with marvelous coloring. Its weight is eighty-five grains, diamond weight.

A pearl smaller than this and less perfect sold for $70,000. It is impossible to estimate the true value of this gem, perhaps $10,000, perhaps $100,000, depending upon the rivalry between wealthy gem collectors. Bates says he will give $1,000 to the one giving the nearest correst estimate of its value.

Bates and his wife, who are among the few remaining clamfishers here, had been working hard in a scorching sun with little reward and decided to make one more drag. Mrs. Bates examined the clams and found this fortune hidden in one of them. She was almost overcome with joy, knowing they had stepped in one moment from poverty to riches.

WEST DULUTH

BRIDGE TO BE PUT IN

Steel Will Be Put Across Jenswold Street Subway.

Northern Pacific Will Then Bridge Ravine—Fire Hall Reopened.

The western end of the city had a good deal of the council's attention last night. Among other things and one of the most important done, was the adopting of a resolution to begin work at the earliest possible date to build a steel bridge across the Jenswold street subway. When the Northern Pacific permitted the subway to be put in it was with the distinct understanding that a steel bridge would be placed across it and that in turn the Northern Pacific would put a steel bridge across the ravine a little further west under which its trains run. The steel bridge has never been put across the subway and the council's attention to the matter was called by a letter from Supt. Blanchard last night. Hence the resolution. Following this the steel bridge will be put in by the road.

Supt. Blanchard also replied to the resolution by Alderman Barnes of a few weeks ago regarding the blocking of the railroad crossing at Central avenue. He says that the men have been instructed not to block this crossing and the city may bank on it that it will not be done.

It was also decided to reopen the fire hall at New Duluth which was closed a short time in curtailing expenses. A delegation from New Duluth was at the council meeting and worked effectively in the matter.

BARBERS GO FISHING.

Series of Stirring Adventures---More Scrapes Than Shaving.

Wilfred Lirette, John Graham, George Smith and a party of other West Duluth barbers, spent Sunday at Fond du Lac fishing. They did not tell about it, for good reasons, but those who saw them there are letting the story out. It seems that they had a whole circus of adventure, and spent yesterday in trying to keep it quiet.

The beginning of the whirlwind gait hit by the crowd was Smith falling into the water. He thought he had a bite, and arose in the boat to haul in. Somebody gave the boat a lurch, and in he went. When he came up he caught the side of the craft, and others crowding that way to help him, tipped the boat, and all went in. In coming up, Lirette struck his nose on the bottom of the boat, and thought he had been bitten by a fish. He broke the surface with a yell, and with the blood streaming from his nostrils, started for the bank. The others thought a serpent or something dangerous was after him, and the blood set them in a panic, so they deserted the boat, and all headed for the bank, swimming frantically.

After they got ashore, they realized their foolishness, and wanted to get the boat, but as there was no other boat at hand with which to go out, John Graham took off his clothes and, clad in a sweet smile, started out, with the assistance of a small log, to get the boat. Before he reached it, however, he fell off the log four separate and distinct times, and twice had to race after the log as fast as he could.

Regaining the boat, he had quite a time righting it, and both he and the boat went under twice. However, being a good swimmer, he got the boat righted, and then had to swim for the oars, which had lodged in different places on refuse in the river. The other adventures of the party were too numerous to mention. They lost their tackle and, therefore, the only thing they caught was cold.

Takes 8 Days to Make Perfect Malt

Malt Made This Way Is Richest In Food Value and Makes the Best Beer.

You know if you plant a grain of wheat or oats or corn in midsummer where the ground is moist and warm it will sprout and grow up very quick and rank and with a sickly color—not strong and tough and a healthy bright green as the stalks do when the grain is planted in the spring. This is because the heat and moisture sprout and grow it so fast in midsummer that it does not have time to develop the vital elements of the grain, while in the spring it is cooler, and thus slower in sprouting and growing, giving time for the grain to develop all of its nourishing, vital food elements. These same considerations are true in making barley malt from which to brew beer. The usual method of making malt for brewing beer is the quick four-day process which compares with the growth of grain planted in midsummer and produces a malt that lacks the nutritious food elements of the barley.

Pabst, the master brewer, found by experience that it required careful steady sprouting for 8 days to get all of the nutrition—all of the life-giving, strength-sustaining food elements—out of the barley and into the malt, and it is the exclusive 8-day method of making malt that makes Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer the richest and most wholesome as well as the best flavored and most mellow beer on the market.

Pabst scrupulously cleanly method of brewing with Pabst exclusive 8-day malt makes Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer the superior of all others. Doctors recommend it because they appreciate that it is absolutely clean and the richest in food value. As one well known Chicago doctor put it, "I prescribe Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer and drink it myself because it is the beer that is never touched by human hands and never comes in contact with anything but sterilized air from brew to glass."

RECEPTION FOR SCHMAHL.

Nominee for Secretary of State Greeted on Return Home.

Redwood Falls, Minn., June 19.—Upon his return Sunday evening from Duluth, Julius A. Schmahl was given a rousing reception as a fitting recognition of the honor conferred upon him at Duluth Wednesday when he was nominated secretary of state. Mr. Schmahl was met at the Minneapolis & St. Louis train by a number of citizens accompanied by a band. As he stepped from the car he was borne aloft the length of the platform on the shoulders of a quartet of county officers and deposited on a baggage truck where he shook hands for a few minutes and then made a little speech. Arriving in the center of town the candidate was escorted to Knights of Pythias hall where he was given an informal reception and "smoker." H. A. Baldwin, cashier of the First National bank, presided, and short speeches were made by Mr. Schmahl's political friends. He responded briefly, thanking his friends for their efforts in his behalf and asking them to support the Duluth ticket. The party broke up about midnight.

STRANGE FAIRY TALES

Afloat in Compiegne---Oil King's Gold Dazzles the French.

Compiegne, June 19.—Fairy tales are circulating among the peasants around here. Their imaginations have been fired by Achille, a garrulous cabman, a character among his fellows, who drives all the nobility and chrages twice as much fare as the other cabbies.

Immediately after Mr. Rockefeller's arrival Achille confided to everybody that "Monsier le Millard" had brought with him 100 great chests full of gold and a huge safe stuffed with banknotes and bonds. These riches were buried at night in the chateau grounds. For their further safety Mr. Rockefeller set a guard of armed men and fierce dogs to patrol the grounds from sunset to sunrise. "And myself, I, myself, provided the trusty men for the watch," Achille said.

Some of the townspeople laugh at Achille's stories and chaff him. Said one to him: "You drive the petroleum king, but you never get a tip."

"I don't eh?" cried the indignant Achille drowing a handful of silver from his pocket. "Look at all this money Monsieur Rockefeller gave me, besides $3 for my cab, $4 to spend at the fete today. He is a true king."

The chief of police tells your correspondent that Mr. Rockefeller looked like a man relieved of a haunting fear when, with the chief as his guide, he inspected the Bertillion system of photographs and measurements in this town hall. He satisfied himself that 25,000 rogues, thieves and anarchists, French, American, Russian and English, are known to the police here, and that none can breathe the air of Compiegne, for the French law forbids an ex-convict to enter a palace town.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Boy Falls Off Trolley Car at Menominee and Soon Dies.

Menominee—Tony Muellar, son of G. A. Muellar, a Marinette baker, was killed late Sunday afternoon by being run over by a street car at a resort in this city. He was riding on the bumpers between two cars and fell, both legs being cut off and his head crushed. He was 15.

The second trial of the case of Jessie Vandebogart against the Menominee & Marinette Paper company was closed today by the jury finding a verdict of $14,000 damages for the plaintiff. Miss Vandebogart was injured in one of the company's mills in 1903, her hair being caught in a revolving shaft, her skull crushed and her mind deranged as a result of the accident.

The first trial, in 1904, resulted in a verdict for $12,000 damages, but the company appealed and secured a new one. It is expected there will be another appeal. Miss Vandebogart is now only 16.

Gustaf Trader and Michael Yunk, moulders, were seriously injured at the Prescott steel foundry today. A huge sand core, weighing several hundred pounds, was being hoisted to the oven when the men crept under it to see if there were any obstructions. The core fell, badly crushing their heads.

Marquette—Under the lead of the affiliated interests of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, which are much the largest industrial taxpayers, Alger county is going in for good roads, having adopted the county road system and voted to raise $100,000 by loan as the initial expenditure. A. W. Hall, city engineer at Flint, Mich., for six years, has been engaged as county road engineer, and has assumed his duties.

At Munising the county seat, the Cleveland Cliffs company has undertaken to build a model thoroughfare which will serve as a sample to the street committee of the village. It already pays 50 per cent of the village taxes, and, in addition, for every dollar the municipality expends for street work it has offered to contribute a similar amount.

Marquette will do less street work than usual this summer, in consequence of a deficit in municipal funds, and one of its fifteen-ton steam rollers will be rented to the Alger county seat.

A jury empanelled by Coroner Crary in the case of the drowning of Joseph Surprenaut, a laborer who lost his life Friday afternoon by falling into the lake, near the South Shore ore dock, Saturday returned a verdict of accidental drowning. There was no evidence showing that the man was struck by timbers which were being hoisted to the top of the dock, and as there was no eye-witness to the accident it is supposed the man missed his footing and fell from the raft. The body was shipped to Lake Linden, Saturday afternoon, accompanied by the father of the deceased.

Houghton—Sheriff Beck returned from a trip to Otter Lake, where he learned the facts in the suicide of Jacob Krum, a woodsman, who took his own life by shooting last Thursday. Krum fired two bullets into his head. The weapon used was a rifle. Krum was about 60 years of age and had spent about fifteen years in lumber camps. He had lived in the little Finnish settlement at Otter Lake for about a year. There is no known reason for his suicide except that he is believed to have become demented recently. Wife and one son survive him.

The average mortality in Paris in 1905 has been 17.4 per 1,000 inhabitants. There have been no serious epidemics of contagious diseases, such as measles, typhoid, scarlet fever, etc. Even isolated cases of these diseases have been very rare during the past year.

SHOWS GOOD SENSE.

The city council is to be congratulated on the good sense it has shown in quietly laying away for keeps the piece of legislation designed to make farmers that wish to sell their produce in Duluth take out peddlers' licenses.

This means that Duluth wishes to encourage such industries, not to discourage and annoy them. It means that hereafter, as heretofore, the streets are free to farmers and gardeners of this vicinity who wish to bring thir stuff to market and peddle it from door to door. It means that in doing this they will not be hampered by the expense and trouble of procuring peddlers' licenses.

While it is possible that in leaving the way open to actual raisers of garden products it has also been left open to some peddlers that really ought to be required to pay licenses, still it is much better as it is. It would be a very serious matter indeed, when Duluth is trying her best to settle up the vacant farm lands of Northeastern Minnesota, if the news went forth that the city was to class farmers and market gardeners with vagrant peddlers, and to compel them to take out licenses.

It is possible that licenses should be required of those who buy produce at wholesale, from the regular commission houses, and then hawk it upon the streets, but a distinction should be clearly made between such hucksters and those who are actually tilling the soil. The latter add to the wealth of the state and particularly of this section of it with every spadeful of earth they turn, while those who simply peddle what other people raise add nothing whatever to any wealth but their own.

The incident, in view of the attitude taken toward the measure by the council last night, can now be considered closed, and it is well closed and well out of the way. It should be stated that the object of the amendment was to cure a supposed constitutional defect in the present peddlers' license ordinance, due to the belief that to except farmers would be to make it class legislation.

The Herald does not set itself up as an authority on law, but in its opinion there is nothing to this point, and a distinction drawn between peddlers of farm produce that they have raised themselves, and peddlers of goods bought in the open market, would not only be wholesome but entirely lawful and constitutional. It would be a distinction founded upon good reason and sound public policy, and it should by all means be made.

THE POLITICAL TENDENCY.

The Chicago Journal recently made an interesting canvass of the political sentiments of the country editors gathered at the annual convention of the National Editorial association.

This association is composed almost entirely of editors of country papers—with small dailies and a few city dailies included. The country paper is perhaps on the average closer to public sentiment than the city paper. The editor of the country paper knows practically all of the people of his community, and most of those in surrounding territory. He talks with them daily, and knows what they are thinking about the political issues of the day. The editor of the city paper meets, necessarily, only a limited number of the people of his community, and while nobody in his community has a better chance of sounding public sentiment than he, yet it is true that nobody in a city can have as complete knowledge of public sentiment as is possible in a smaller city or village.

Therefore the views of these country editors mean something. They are quite clear and well defined.

It was shown that William Jennings Bryan is the unanimous choice of the Democratic editors for the presidency.

It was shown that the Republicans are almost as enthusiastic and as unanimous for President Roosevelt if he will run again.

The Democratic editors are for tariff revision and legislation to curb the trusts—"the platform of 1900 without free silver", as some of them expressed it.

Also, it was shown that a large number of Republicans also want revision of the tariff and curbing of the trusts. In short, there is very little difference between the principal demands of the Democrats and those of the Republicans. Incidentally, it was shown that the so-called Gold Democrats are returning to the fold of the party organization.

The demand for curbing of the trusts and a distribution of the profits and savings arising from the elimination of competition and useless friction is not confined to any party. It is an outspoken demand of the people, regardless of party. And in seeking to secure this reform the people are likely to be rather nonpartisan. They will vote for the man that they believe will do what he can to bring it about, no matter under what party banner his candidacy may be traveling.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

It is always instructive to learn how others view us. That is true of individuals and of nations. The packing house revelations are being made the occasion of some reflections from abroad that are perhaps unnecessarily severe and somewhat exaggerated, but that are nevertheless in a measure justified.

A dispatch from abroad to the New York Sun says that the revelations of the Sinclair novel "The Jungle" and the newspaper reports have caused a world-wide fury and horror. It is said there that while American memories are short and the American public the most tolerant of abuses of any in the world, the manufacturers of American food products are not likely to find these characteristics among European consumers.

"The old world," says the dispatch, "has come to believe in general terms that American business methods are rotten. It will take more than a paper reorganization of the great life insurance companies and a cleaning of the Augean stables at Chicago to restore European belief in American honesty and fair dealing. It will be a long time before this side of the Atlantic will have any confidence in corporate reform."

Now such a belief is not justified, of course, though you will find people who will dispute that statement; but it certainly is entirely natural. There are many abuses in connection with business in this country, savoring very strongly of dishonesty and corruption, and when we find out about them we are very frank in expressing our opinion about it. It does not sound very well to the rest of the world, but it is the only way we have of bringing about a change, because our legislative bodies move very slowly and reluctantly along the line of reform. The only thing that will make them act is a very decided public opinion, and that can be made manifest only by a terrific uproar that makes the awe-stricken Europeans think we are the most corrupt people on earth. We are not, but we are the frankest, and we do an amount of talking about our own defects that would make us fighting mad if anybody else said it.

But nevertheless there is a good deal of graft and dishonesty and corruption, and the only thing that will stop it is a revival of old fashioned honesty, the kind that does not ask "Is it unlawful?" but "Is it right?" There is too much of the kind of honesty that is honest because it has to be, and not enough of the kind that is honest because it wants to be and because that is the only truly successful way to be.

GAMBLING.

Canfield, the famous New York gambler who has come into more notoriety, perhaps, than any other American gamester of recent years, has given the public a few sentences of his views on the pursuit to which he has devoted his life—that of other men's money. Said he:

> Life is a gamble. Man is a born gambler. Adam and Eve were the first gamblers. The gambler wins and the sucker loses.

All of which is unquestionably true, though it is not the whole truth. The most truthful part of it is the last sentence: "The gambler wins and the sucker loses." And while most of us think we are gamblers, as a matter of fact we are suckers, and we continually contribute with more or less grace to the prosperity of the gamblers.

Life is a gamble to those that make it so. It is a gamble with those that do little thinking, but chance their ventures upon the hazard of pure luck. To those that think, that study out their moves and base them upon thorough investigation and deepest consideration, there is no such thing as luck or gambling. It is a coldblooded, straightforward proposition, and they are betting their money upon a sure thing and sweeping in the stakes of those that venture their investments upon chance.

As to downright gambling, the kind Canfield talks about, he told the people something about that, too. He said, candidly enough, that whenever you go against a gambler's game, you are giving him odds. His wheel and his cards are all doctored that way, against you and in favor of the house.

He said that the house bets $90 against your $100, which is a very modest percentage in favor of the house. If you insist upon gambling, you are very lucky indeed if you do not encounter a percentage even greater than that against you. So long as the gambler arranges that the odds shall favor him, nothing but his own modesty prevents him from making the odds 2 to 1 instead of 10 to 9. You, poor innocent lamb bringing your fleece eagerly to the shearer, will never know the difference. When he gets your money you will curse the luck, and never give a thought to the gambler's skill.

In short, when you go against another man's game it is not gambling at all, because gambling necessarily involves the element of chance. There is none here. You have no chance at all. If you keep at it you are sure to lose, and the gambler is sure to win. Canfield knows. The gambler is not in business to provide you with pleasure and profit, nor for his own health. He is in business for your money, and if you venture it with him, he gets it.

And gambling palaces like Canfield's are not the only ones where games of chance are carried on.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Alderman Edward R. Ribenack of the Lenox, went fishing the other day, and the result was a string of fish and a story, which is circulating freely around the lobby of the hotel. The story is about the fish, and probably wouldn't be going the rounds now if it hadn't been for the generosity of the city father in giving several of them to a St. Paul friend.

The hotel man likes to fish, but he never had an opportunity until recently of enjoying the sport along a trout stream. The guests and others of his friends have been saying so much about the fun that was to be derived from following a trout stream through the sun and mosquitoes that he determined to try it himself. In company with a bosom friend who was equally green at the business, he boarded a train and arrived in due time at Sucker river, which has gained quite a reputation among local fishermen.

The two amateur enthusiasts were well supplied with rods, lines and flies, and with experience in handling them, and a good stream to fish in, they should have had little trouble in filling their creels. They thought they had struck the right stream, all right, for the natives told them of numerous big catches that had been made this year, as natives in the fishing regions have a habit of doing. With these stories came plenty of advice, and with the latter was the suggestion, if the trout didn't take to the flies well, worms be used instead. Followers of the trout say the fish often will bite on worms when they refuse flies. It is generally agreed that it is more sportsmanlike to use flies than any other kind of bait, but under certain conditions the change from the most approved method is understood to be allowable.

Anyway, Mr. Ribenack, after fishing vainly for half a day without as much as a nibble, so the story goes, decided to try the experiment of using worms. He had taken the precaution to provide himself with a small can of them before leaving town, so as to be prepared for just such an emergency. After fighting mosquitoes for several hours, and losing more or less avoirdupois in clambering over rocks and fallen trees, with a broiling sun camped on his trail all the time, he felt that any means, almost, were justifiable in his attempt to make a creditable showing upon his return home.

It wasn't long before he was glad he dispensed with the flies. Scarcely five minutes elapsed before he landed a finned beauty, and after that he pulled them out of the water with gratifying regularity, scarcely having to move from one position on the bank. In two hours he had thirty nice big ones, and decided that that was enough. Accordingly he and his brother fishermen, who had gotten a good string by the same methods, started for town, and arrived there in plenty of time to enjoy a smoke and rest before the train arrived. The fish seemed to attract a good deal of attention on the train, but the alderman saw no one with whom he was acquainted, so he didn't have a chance to hear the remarks that were passed upon them.

He arrived at the hotel in safety, and just as he was about to enter the door encountered a friend who was starting for the St. Paul train. It took about three minutes to transfer half a dozen of the fish, rolled thickly in paper, to the departing guest's grip, and the guest didn't know he had suckers instead of trout until his wife called his attention to the fact that were were no spots on the alleged speckled trout. The cook meantime had notified Mr. Ribenack something to the same effect, but the alderman managed to keep the matter hushed up until a friend of the St. Paul friend happened in town. That is how the story got out.

"An aerial bridge such as Duluth has across its harbor entrance, connecting the city with the island out in Lake Superior, Milwaukee should erect to connect Jones Island with the city," said Capt. R. J. Franke, a retired marine man, at the St. Charles hotel in Milwaukee, according to the Evening Wisconsin of that city. "It is not only not feasible, but wholly impracticable to place a swing bridge in the Milwaukee channel leading into Lake Michigan, and a bascule would be almost continually kept on the move. The aerial bridge at Duluth, which has been admired by tourists far and near, and is, I believe, the only one of its kind in operation in this country, does splendid service, and since it was put in commission, two years ago, not a single accident has marred its existence. It is a hanging bridge, suspended on high girders, and wide enough to permit several teams to stand upon it and will also accommodate 100 people on one trip. The bridge is moved back and forth, operated by electricity, and whenever a boat passes, simply halts until the path is clear. It is a marvelous mechanical contrivance, but the results more than reward the expenditure. The entrance to Milwaukee harbor is a busy place, and to put a swing bridge down there is, I say, quite impossible. A bascule, probably, would be more acceptable, yet in my judgment not as practical as an aerial passage. It would pay Mayor Becker and the board of public works to make a trip to Duluth to get an idea how our bridge works. If it an unending delight to the denizens inhabiting our unique island which extends for a mile or more out into Lake Superior, and is, by the way, the most delightful summer resort of any spot in this country."

THE WEATHER.

You had to get up pretty early this morning to catch the fine weather, because while the sun was shining and everything was bright and cheerful in the early morning, before most of us were up it grew cloudy and damp and threatening. The weather man does not expect much from the threats, however, because he says the weather will be generally fair tonight and tomorrow, with variable winds becoming westerly. Last night's lowest temperature was 47, and yesterday it got up to 79 deg.

A year ago today the weather was fine, with a southwest breeze bringing abundant warmth.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas central over Manitoba and eastern portions of Iowa and Missouri caused showers Monday or during last night in Western Canada, the Missouri, Upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, lake region and North Atlantic states. It is somewhat cooler in Eastern Canada and from Minnesota southward to Arkansas. The Arizona low barometer area remains stationary, while the Far Western high pressure has greatly increased. There is considerable clearing weather to the westward behind the low pressures now affecting this locality, and the conditions favor partly cloudy skies here tonight and Wednesday following the easterly movement of these disturbances."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Arabian Knights.

The dewy morn is on the hill,
It must be sweet to know its thrill!
But though this city is to me
Under the city's smoky sky,
With never a robin's note for mine,
Nor fledgling in the swinging vine,
A morning song drifts up my way,
To summon me at break of day—
"Strawbehhy, strawbehhy, straw-straw-strawbewhy!"

Lilting, light, and sweet it runs;
My Arab hucksters, browned with suns
Of forty summers, know the chant
That stirs the city habitant.
He passes, and I turn to nap
A little longer, when a rap
Upon the country eaves is heard,
And then a far, stentorian word—
"Any ra-a-gs, any bones, any bottles today!"

Fainter the echo falls and fades,
And after wishing him in Hades,
I take a desperate chance to snooze
Ere Duty brings me to my shoes;
A tinkling bell, a strident note
From out a trained and trusty throat;
Its clarion challenge draws more near,
And on the morning air I hear—
"Hok-e-y, Po-k-e-y! hokey, pokey, ma-a-a-n!!"

Brave knights, their studied routes they go,
Turning the morning into "dough;"
Sweet voices of Arabian pith
To conjure idle pennies with,
While I, despairing, leap from bed
In time to hear a shuffling tread,
And down the pavement, clear and strong,
The Ethiopian Arab's song—

—Baltimore Sun.

The Government Cook-Book.

New York World: Just at the moment when the Chicago packers' scandal has created a general distaste for their products, the department of agriculture considerately issues a pamphlet on the "Preparation of Vegetables for the Table," by Miss Maria Parloa. A truly benevolent government could not decently cut off a people's meat diet and leave it to subsist on potatoes and cabbage without offering at least a few words of timely advice. For that matter, bad cooking causes more real suffering than bad trusts. Some day we may have to have our kitchen ranges regulated.

The plain, everyday housekeeper may be a trifle puzzled when she reads: "Plants are made up of innumerable cells, each consisting of a thin membranous wall inclosing a semi-fluid mass, in which lies the nucleus or center of cell activity and minute grains of starch or other material which the plant has elaborated." That is the kind of thing to be taken on faith, unless the cook happens to have a love for microscopic studies and chemical analyses.

What to have for dinner "for a change" is the important thing. Potatoes roast, baked, fried, boiled, become tiresome. Fortunately the Roosevelt administration rushes into the breach with its cook-book. It declares officially that there are five ways to use a cabbage—boiled, with pork, creamed, with sausage and in a puree. Thirteen recipes for fresh and dried beans are authorized as a relief measure. Escalloped potatoes are especially recommended. There are fourteen varieties of soups for which no beef stock is needed.

The pamphlet should be placed in every cook's hand. It is a pity the season is so far advanced. If it were a few weeks earlier a package of free seeds might have been enclosed with each free recipe book.

The Wholesouled Chap.

What though a butcher bill he owes
Some two years overdue,
And is in debt for cash and clothes
And other items too?
What though his little girls must sew
Their daily food to earn?
He's a good fellow, don't you know,
And always "buys" in turn.

What though his wife is worn and bent,
Ill-clad, abjectly dumb?
What though he takes her every cent
And puts it all in rum?
Should we refuse his hand, mayhap,
And his acquaintance spurn?
Oh, no, for he's a whole-souled chap
And always "buys" in turn.

—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

The excellent quality of Lake Superior water is evidenced in the fact that venders of summer drinks in Duluth are almost as scarce as investors in real estate at Superior. The assertion is believed that in no other city of 25,000 people in America is there but one soda water fountain.

J. H. Froom, a solo clarionet player, arrived in the city last evening, to become a member of Brooke's orchestra. The band and orchestra now number fifteen first class artists.

E. D. Connings of the Duluth Dock corporation came up from St. Paul yesterday.

A. H. Wigdahl came up this afternoon from Fond du Lac.

The Omaha road will inaugurate fast night trains between Duluth and St. Paul, on Sunday, leaving at 9:40 p. m. and reaching St. Paul at 6 a. m.

T. A. Lynch has superseded Fred Harlow as day clerk at the Merchants' hotel.

The State Medical society, in session at St. Paul, has decided to hold the next convention in Duluth, in June, 1887.

A large number of leading business men met in the Y. M. C. A. hall last evening and took steps to organize the Duluth Chamber of Commerce, the old organization of that name having ceased to exist. Judge White was chairman and Charles A. Long was secretary. Messrs. Shannon, Parkhurst, Seville, Simonds and Norton were appointed a committee to draft articles of incorporation. The following officers were selected: President, O. H. Simonds; vice president, G. G. Hartley; directors, B. Silberstein, D. G. Bash, A. L. Ordean, C. A. Duncan, E. V. Mundy, J. R. Myers, John R. Dr. A. A. Ames, mayor of Minneapolis, and a party of friends, are expected to reach Duluth this evening on their way to the Brule to fish for trout.

A. M. Govey, of the firm of George R. Stuntz & Co., is laying out a new addition to West Superior.

Duluth has put in a bid for the location of the second state penitentiary. The matter will be decided in September.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded:

R. H. Hartley to Henry Nolte, lot 43, East First street, First division, $2,750.

J. D. Ray to P. N. Olson, lot 16, block 33, Portland division, $350.

J. R. Myers to Thomas Simpson, lot 21, block 106, Second division, $650.

Miss Belle Thompson of the City restaurant, accidentally fell down stairs a day or two ago and broke her collarbone. She is doing well.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Breckenridge Gazette: And the voice of the spellbinder will soon be heard in the land. Funny, isn't it, that this country will not stay saved longer than two years?

Badger Herald-Rustler: They say in Chicago that the packers use everything about the pig but the squeal, but it is clear that they are letting the smell get away.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Let the slogan be, "Strong Men for the State Legislature."

Sunbeam Sunbeam: This campaign will demonstrate to the people that the primary election law is the best for the nomination of state as well as county officials.

Virginia Enterprise: And the rest of the candidates will go home and jot down in their journal figures which will prove that experience is one teacher that always collects salary.

Two Harbors Journal: There should be a whole lot of consolation to many people in Soule's prophecy that the human race will soon become dumb on account of the talking machines.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The bass are beginning to bite, and the man who loves his country and his fellow men should be happy in this perfect June weather. A good catch of fish is better than some other things that people strive for much harder.

Cass Lake Times: It is becoming more and more difficult every day to secure material for that series of articles on "Self-made Men," without colliding with the report of some grand jury or investigating committee. With all due respect to the Success magazine.

Park Rapids Enterprise: Let the Wadena drainage convention name responsible officials for the organization, and with the impetus that the movement has received by means of the pre-convention campaign, something can be accomplished.

Bemidji Pioneer: If the president is right—and he usually is—the beef trust must have some warm friends in the house of representatives. Strange what a difference just a few dollars make.

Deer River News: One thing Republican leaders want to take into consideration. It is a far cry from now to 1908, but the Bryan of 1896 and 1900 is not the Bryan of today. There is but one man in the country who could beat him for the presidency if an election were held this fall, and that man is Theodore Roosevelt.

Crookston Times: It is said that one of John D. Rockefeller's mottoes is to "do a little more than is expected of you." John has certainly lived up to it in "doing" the public.

Northfield News: But by far the most important thing now before the Republicans of Minnesota is the selection of the right kind of men for the legislature. They are yet to be nominated and if the right kind of men are sent to the legislature, the interests of the people can be protected.

"What's the Use?"

Stories are nothing but clusters of words;
Reading is nothing but looking at print;
Money is nothing—folks throw it at birds;
Pictures are nothing but color and tint;
Dinners are nothing but something to eat;
Walking is nothing but moving your feet—
What's the use?

Dancing is nothing but prancing in tune;
Riding is nothing but moving along;
Sleeping is nothing but waking too soon;
Singing is nothing but talking a song;
Playing is nothing but fooling around;
Boxing is nothing but learning to pound—
What's the use?

Working is nothing but earning your pay;
Loafing is nothing—and harder to do;
Silence is nothing with nothing to say;
Dressing is nothing but garment and shoe;
Smiling is nothing but twisting your face;
Moving is nothing but changing your base—
What's the use?

What is the use of it? What is the use?
Smoking is pumping stuff into your lungs;
Having your way is to kick like the deuce;
Fame is a ladder with grease on the rungs.
What is the sense of it all, anyway?
What is the— Why is the— Hang it all! Say,
What's the use?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: By any other name the devil would be as tempting.

A woman seems to have a special grudge against any kind of chair that is comfortable.

It's a good deal meaner to have money and not spend it than to spend when you haven't got it.

A girl has to have a mighty poor complexion not to be afraid it might get spoiled by sunburn.

The thing that puzzles a man is how it is that a woman can't get on the shoe that another whose feet are so much bigger than hers.

Might Help Some.

Washington Post: If this keeps up, the American consumer is apt to get a notion that he would like to have the tariff removed long enough to allow him to sample the pauper beef of foreign countries like Canada, Argentina and Mexico.

An Essential.

Washington Post: Somebody has discovered that long ago one of King Edward's ancestors was a bricklayer. But that will not add to the king's popularity in this country unless it can be shown that his ancestors belonged to the union.

LAUGHING GAS.

Philadelphia Ledger: Ragson Tatters—What does deese society papers mean be a "man about town?"

Weary Willie—Well, Ragsy, that's nothin' in the world but a hobo that always manages to have the price.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "A man who sails a flying machine is known as an acronaut, but what would you call a woman in an airship?"

"I'd call her down."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Do you believe there really is any such thing as a painless dentist?"

"Yes. I attended the funeral of one a few days ago."

Somerville Journal: Lawson—Here is an advertisement in the paper of a man who says he has $100,000 and wants to go into business.

Dawson—Well?

Lawson—Well, why does a man who has $100,000 want to go into business?

Philadelphia Bulletin: "Can't I induce you to go to church?" asked the earnest evangelist.

"O, not for mine, Doc!" replied the hobo.

"Perhaps you have some feeling against the church that may be—"

"No, I ain't got no grudge agin it; mine was a home weddin'."

Milwaukee Sentinel: "Poor Mrs. Wilkins! She is so young and her wedded life has been such a bitter disappointment."

"In what way?"

"She wedded that wealthy old Wilkins under the impression that he had heart disease, and the doctor says he's perfectly well."

Somerville Journal: Cynical Bachelor—How long do you think the honeymoon lasts?

Sweet Sixteen (with open-eyed wonder)—Why, forever.

The Making of Man.

Before the beginning of years
There came to the making of man,
Time, with a gift of tears;
Grief, with a glass that ran;
Pleasure, with pain for leaven;
Summer, with flowers that tell;
Remembrance fallen from heaven,
And madness risen from hell,
Strength without hands to smite;
Love that endures for a breath;
Night, the shadow of light,
And life, the shadow of death.

And the high gods took in hand
Fire and the falling of tears;
And a measure of shining sand
From under the feet of the years;
And froth and drift from the sea;
And the dust of the laboring earth;
And bodies of things to be
In the houses of death and birth;
And wrought with weeping and laughter,
And fashioned with loathing and love,
With life before and after
And death beneath and above,
For a day, and a night, and a morrow,
That his strength might endure for a span
With travail and heavy sorrow,
The holy spirit of man.

From the winds of the north and the south,
They gathered as unto strife;
They breathed upon his mouth,
They filled his body with life;
Eyesight and speech they wrought
For the veils of the soul therein;
A time for labor and thought,
A time to serve and to sin.
They gave him light in his ways,
And love, and a space for delight,
And beauty, and length of days,
And night, and sleep in the night.

His speech is a burning fire;
With his lips he travaileth;
In his heart is a blank desire;
In his eyes foreknowledge of death;
He weaves and is clothed in derision;
Sows, and he shall not reap;
His life is a watch or a vision
Between a sleep and a sleep.

—Swinburne.

The Anarchist's Revenge.

Milwaukee Sentinel: It was fete day and the magnificent procession was just passing. Bands played martial airs and loud huzzas came from the throngs at brief intervals.

Overhead the sun shone forth from an azure tinted sky. The day was perfect.

Suddenly and without warning, a man, dishevled, hurled a small dark object at a carriage in which rode nobility. There came a terrific report and in a twinkling all was confusion.

In the excitement the man slunk away and was lost to view.

The scene immediately following the explosion was beyond description. The royal occupants of the carriage were blown to pieces. In gathering of the remains pieces of the object that had accomplished the deadly work were found. It was a sausage.

The Republican Conflict.

Washington Post: The factional trouble in Iowa is merely the forerunner of the split that is impending among Republicans everywhere. The sudden excitement over Mr. Bryan has caused superficial observers to believe that the coming fight will be between this great conservative and a radical Republican, preferably Mr. Roosevelt himself. If the Bryanites do not discover that their excitement is induced by skilful managers who are aiming to destroy Mr. Hearst, the superficial indications may faithfully reflect after all, what is to come. But even if the Bryan boom is composed of lasting stuff, the fact remains that the Republicans must fight among themselves before they can go up against the enemy. They must face the Iowa idea and either adopt it or throttle it. The next Republican nominee for the presidency must have won his place either as the representative of the victorious standpatters or as the standard-bearer of the revisionists. No strideur can ride in the next race.

Hard to Believe.

Los Angeles Times: One of the hardest things in this world to believe is that no man ever told a woman the secrets of a secret society.

LAKE GENEVA Y. M. C. A. CAMP

A Popular Vacation and Educational Resort in Wisconsin.

Among the members and friends of Young Men's Christian associations of the Middle West, there is no more popular resort for a summer outing than the Association encampment at Lake Geneva, Wis. With characteristic foresight, the Y. M. C. A. has secured possession of a tract of twenty-three acres of land, fronting on Lake Geneva, and has converted it into a recreative and educational center that has no equal in the West, if anywhere in the country. The grounds are the property of the institute and training school of Young Men's Christian associations.

The lake regions of Wisconsin is justly famous for its beauty, and Lake Geneva possesses charms unequaled among these inland bodies of water. It is nine miles long by three broad; its water deep and clear as crystal. The camp, with six hundred feet frontage on the lake, affords unexcelled opportunity for all forms of water sports, and with its athletic field and baseball grounds, its golf course and tennis courts and its shady walks through the woods, it offers a variety of recreation that makes it a delightful place to spend one's vacation days.

This vacation resort is unique, in that it is also one of the great Christian training grounds of the world. The Institute and Training school conducts here through the month of July a summer school for secretaries and physical directors of Young Men's Christian associations. This summer school attracts men from every section of the United States and Canada, and from foreign lands. The physical director's section is the largest of its kind in the world. Besides the summer school, there are held also numerous conferences.

For the season of 1906, the following are announced:

1. The college men's conference, June 15th. This will attract at least 500 college men from some 150 educational institutions of the Central West; its purpose is the training of leaders for Christian work in the colleges.

2. The conference of the young people's missionary movement, June 26-July 4. This gathering is promoted by a committee representing the missionary boards of the leading Protestant denominations, and is conducted in the interests of home and foreign missions.

3. The summer school of the institute and training school, July 4-31.

4. The boys' conference and institute for workers with boys, August 1-6. Boys, 14 to 18 years of age, representing the boys' divisions of young men's Christian associations are eligible to attend the conference, as are also boys' secretaries and others especially interested in boys' work.

5. The vacation conference, Aug. 10-19, is designed primarily for association members and their friends and families. It is largely recreative in character, with Bible study and conference hours each day, under the best leadership obtainable.

6. The season closes with the conference of the city section of the Young Women's Christian association, Aug. 21-31.

The camp is open to guests, June 26th to Aug. 31st.

MANAGER REMEMBERED.

John L. Fuller Presented With Handsome Ring by Employes.

John L. Fuller, local manager for the North American Telegraph company, was pleasantly surprised last evening, when the employes of his office presented him with a handsome seal ring to commemorate his twentieth anniversary as manager of the company in Duluth, and as a testimonial of their esteem and regard.

Mr. Fuller assumed the management of the telegraph company's local office June 18, 1886, and has been in the harness ever since.

The presentation speech was made by Night Chief Percy Sullivan.

The ring bears an Elk's emblem, also Mr. Fuller's monogram, and the figure "86-06."

WORK PROGRESSING.

Contractors Are Pushing Seventeenth Avenue East Paving Job.

Sang & Preston, who have the contract for paving Seventeenth avenue east from Superior street to London road with tar macadam, will complete the rock excavation at the Superior street intersection today. They have been blasting and removing the rock for nearly two weeks. The material removed is being spread over the roadway below Jefferson to form a good foundation for the pavement. The coarse rock will be covered with a finer crushed rock before the tar macadam is applied.

The curbing has been set through to London road, and the contractors will be ready for the tar macadam mixer as soon as its work is completed on new paving west of Mesaba avenue. There will be a considerable amount of new sidewalk needed on Seventeenth avenue as soon as the paving job is completed, as the wooden walks are in poor condition, and either below or above the grade.

HEARING ON PETITION.

Wisconsin Central's Application Before Court in Superior.

The hearing on the application of the Wisconsin Central Railway company's application for the appointment of appraisers in condemnation proceedings for about forty miles of right-of-way for its tracks southeast from Superior occurred in the circuit court of Douglas county, Wis., today. There are about sixty descriptions involved in the condemnation proceedings, most of which cover lands owned by the Musser-Sauntry interests.

The Wisconsin Central company has taken no further steps toward acquiring the 80-acre tract west of Hill avenue, and south of the South Shore tracks in Superior. The land was vacated by the Land & River company, some time ago, the supposition being that the railway company would secure the property for a shop site. There is said to be a possibility that the company may select a site elsewhere for its shops.

THREE ARE AFTER IT.

Candidates Want Places on Wisconsin Grain Commission.

Governor Davidson of Wisconsin is being importuned by three Superior men for the appointment as a member of the Wisconsin grain and warehouse commission, to succeed the late Homer Andrew. H. A. Johnson, W. R. Fanning and Samuel Crumpton, the three candidates, are each bringing all the influence possible to bear on the governor to secure the position, and it is said that their efforts are likely to result in a tie-up of the appointment for the present, or the selection of a fourth man.

Mr. Johnson received the indorsement of the Superior Board of Trade, at a meeting when nine members were present, but Mr. Fanning and Mr. Crumpton are said to have received the support of a large number of the members of the organization outside of the meeting. While the governor may receive the suggestions of the board of trade as to his choice, these are not mandatory in any way, and it is thought he may prevent a factional fight by selecting some man not yet mentioned for the position.

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr. M. F. Burroughs, an old and well-known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it." This remedy is almost sure to be needed before the summer is over. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? For sale by all leading druggists.

Middle River Claims Victim.

Wm. J. Connolly of Barnaby River, N. B., was drowned while swimming in Middle river, near Gordon, yesterday. Connolly and a companion, named O'Donnell, had finished work for the day at the St. Croix Boom company's camp, and were taking a swim in the river before supper. When about 200 yards away from O'Donnell, Connolly, who was an expert swimmer, suddenly called for help, and sank. His companion went to his assistance, but arrived in time to see Connolly sink for the last time. It is supposed that he was seized with cramps. The body was recovered shortly afterward with grappling hooks, and was taken to Superior. Connolly's parents reside in New Brunswick, where the body will probably be shipped for burial.

WEST END

ACCIDENTS TAKE PLACE

Two Suffer From Fractured Limbs, One From Bruises.

L. A. Larsen in Bad Shape —Paving About Finished.

During the past few days quite a number of more or less serious accidents have happened folks at the West end. One of the most serious was that which happened to L. A. Larsen, chief engineer of the city schools, and who lives at 3331 West Sixth street. With some others, he was launching a small gasoline launch, and while doing something about this work, one of the rollers under the boat rolled over his foot. The result was a broken leg and a dislocated ankle.

The leg is broken directly above the ankle, and it is said to be quite a delicate break and no easy one to knit. Mr. Larsen is likely to be laid up for some time, and is also likely to be compelled to have support in walking for a long time.

The 3-year-old son of C. Carlson of 2614 West Third street broke his left thigh bone near the hip a day or two ago in a rather unusual manner—for a child at least. He was playing about the house, and while playing on a small porch, fell off. His drop to the ground was less than three feet, which ordinarily never matters to a child, but would jar a big person. It is not known if he got his leg under him or how it happened, but it was found that the thigh bone had simply snapped off. The boy is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mrs. T. B. Perry of Twenty-ninth avenue west and Third street was out driving a few days ago in the country with a friend, and as a result of a sharp turn and start of the horse, fell from the buggy. She was considerably hurt and was brought back with difficulty. She is still laid up.

SLOWLY CHOKING TO DEATH.

String Tied Around Dog's Neck Was Slowly Killing It.

A West end dog and its owner both feel relieved today—and the dog probably has the best of it at that. William Schnuckle, the broommaker, has a fine large dog of a long-haired type and no matter what breed, of which he is very fond. For the past ten days or two weeks, the dog has been ailing and refused to eat. All kinds of remedies were tried, but did no good.

Sunday Mr. Schnuckle concluded that the best thing was to chloroform the dog, as it seemed to be in misery and refused absolutely to eat. He went out to do so, but before starting in to kill, examined the beast's throat, as it seemed to be at that point where the trouble was. He found a swelling clear around the neck, which the dog would not let him touch. Finally, Mr. Schnuckle found imbedded partly in the skin a thick cord. Evidently some children in playing had tied the cord around the dog's neck too tightly and it had worked under the hair. When the cord was removed the dog was instantly relieved and seems to be getting better.

PAVING ALMOST DONE.

Only About Block Remains Unfinished on Superior Street.

Only about a block remains to complete the paving of West Superior street. Contractor Steele's men have the street paved on both sides of the car tracks all the way down, with the exception of about a block on the north side of the tracks right at the intersection of Twelfth avenue west and Superior street.

These places are delayed because of excavations for wires, etc., to be used by the power coempany; but, aside from these, which will be finished in a few days, the street is wholly open and can be used all the way out to Twenty-fifth avenue west. The paving is in excellent condition.

Prof. N. E. Erickson will hold a recital of his pupils at the First Swedish Baptist church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street on Friday evening.

CUMMINS PICKS UP MORE VOTES

Sioux City, Iowa, June 19.—With Scott county, which instructed on Saturday, Governor Cummins now has 802 uncontested delegates to the state convention. This is more than enough to give him control of the temporary organization of the state convention, as the ninety-four contested delegates will reduce the number of uncontested ones to 1,546. So 777 votes only will be required to control the convention.

But it is as certain as anything can be politically, that Cummins will have a majority of the full number of delegates to the state convention. He needs only nineteen more to do this, and Carroll, Allamakee, Shelby, Buchanan, Marion and Winneshiek are all considered certain to go for him. This would mean eighty-eight more delegates, or a total of 890. So, even if Scott county's contest is carried to the state convention, he would still have an uncontested majority of the full number of delegates in the state convention.

Amazing as it seems, Mr. Perkins' newspaper here claims to have carried Scott county. The facts, as attended by both the Davenport Times, owned by a Perkins supporter, and the Davenport Democrat, is that not even any of the regular Perkins delegates bolted, the convention. Forty-five contesting Perkins delegates walked out, but all the twenty-nine regular Perkins men stayed in the convention. The forty-five contesting delegates held a sort of convention, amid uproar and confusion, requiring but about three minutes to read a previously prepared "typewritten convention."

The influential Perkins men of Davenport are said to be opposed to making any contest from that county, and it is likely their wishes will be respected. The vote in the convention on instructions for Cummins was 128 to 29.

TARIFF REVISION IN MINNESOTA

Declaration of the Republican State Platform Interests Washington.

Washington, June 19.—According to an article which appeared in Sunday's Washington Post, much attention is being given and much importance attached to the declaration of Minnesota Republicans at the recent Duluth convention on the tariff question.

The fact that the North Star state Republicans declared that the time is now ripe for a revision of some of the existing Dingley schedules is regarded here as being an interpretation of the last national Republican platform and therefore makes it incumbent on congress to modify the existing tariff act.

Peculiar interest attaches to the action of the Minnesota Republicans inasmuch as the Minnesota member of the ways and means committee, Mr. McCleary, of the Second district, is an original standpatter, and according to the Post story, the tariff plank in the Republican platform will be of decided advantage to Mr. McCleary's opponent, who declared himself in favor of revision, as against Mr. McCleary's stand-pat position.

It is pointed out that both Senators Nelson and Clapp and all members of the house delegation except Mr. McCleary are addicted to "the Iowa idea" of tariff revision.

Senator Knute Nelson's vote for the Mills tariff bill when he was a member of the house is pointed out and also the fact that since the vote, the state has given him the highest honors within its bestowal.

The Iowa situation is also causing much comment in political circles at the capital. It is a really serious Republican family row, according to the story Secretary Shaw brought back to President Roosevelt from that state. Moreover, it threatens to take on national proportions. As Secretary Shaw, Senator Allison and others see it, the whole fight is over the revision of the tariff. The Cummins faction, which has apparently won out for the control of the state convention, is heart and soul for tariff revision.

Many of Cummins' county conventions, in their resolutions as to tariff, used such ugly words about the Dingley measure as "extortion," "robbery" and "shelter for the trusts." This has not been nice in the ears of the stand-pat people who fear that Cummins people, if they control the convention, will use such words in the resolutions put in the state convention platform.

KIND WORDS BY WALKER

Copper Mining Writer Boosts Calumet & Arizona in Letter.

Waxes Very Enthusiastic After Visiting the Company's Properties.

George L. Walker, the copper mining writer, is making a tour of the Southwestern mines, and has been at Bisbee recently. In his last letter he devotes considerable attention to the Calumet & Arizona property. His statements are as enthusiastic as the most ardent stockholder of Calumet & Arizona could wish. Mr. Walker's views are as follows:

"Calumet & Arizona's value has not been greatly overstated even by its most enthusiastic friends. It impresses me as being every inch 'as big and rich as advertised.' There is an astonishingly large amount of ore in sight in its two mines, and I believe its present phenomenal record of production can be maintained for a considerable period of years.

"The advance in its dividend rate to $3 quarterly was in every way warranted by the strictest interpretation of all the rules of conservatism. Current net earnings are at the rate of more than $4,000,000 annually, or better than $20 per share on its 200,000 shares of stock; and its surplus now amounts to approximately $3,000,000. It is making about 36,000,000 pounds of copper annually from its own ores at a gross cost of 6¾ cents or less per pound. It is easy to see, therefore, that the dividends of $12 per share could be earned and paid on a 14-cent copper market. The company can pay $12 per share this year and increase its surplus to $4,000,000, and certainly the most exacting could hardly ask for a greater achievement than this.

"The Calumet & Arizona property adjoins the Copper Queen, and the two companies are mining ore within a few feet of each other at different points along the boundary lines. Calumet & Arizona's ores are of exactly the same character, and just as rich as those of its big neighbor. Indeed, the Lowell shaft has opened one of the richest mines the Copper Queen owns, on a claim that lies directly between the Calumet & Arizona's two mines.

"There are a considerable number of miles of drifts in the Calumet & Arizona mines, and a surprisingly large proportion of the total openings are in a good grade of ore. One drift shows forty feet of 40 per cent ore, and another sixty-five feet of 0 per cent ore. At one point what is practically the same ore body is opened by the drifts on the 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th levels.

"The first development work done by the company was in the Irish Mag claim, and nearly all of the 105,000,000 pounds of copper so far produced has come from that mine. During the past two or three years a new mine has been opened through the Oliver shaft in the Senator and Senator No. 2 claims, which now promises to be almost as large and rich as the one that made the Calumet & Arizona famous. The two mines are connected underground by a long semi-circular drift from the south end of the Mag through the Pride and Senator No. 2 claims, and this drift is in barren lime and leached ground almost all the distance. At the time it was opened it was considered a somewhat discouraging showing, as nearly all of the openings in the north half of the Mag are in ore. It is now known that leached ground, as it is called, is equivalent to an underground gossan, or ore capping; and also that drifts sometimes pass by, over or under great ore deposits without revealing their location.

"Exploratory drifts have now been extended south into the Buckeye claim, and one of them is 172 feet in an ore body, which shows only a few streaks of waste. Another drift has been extended through intervening ground, owned by other companies, to the company's Hope and Wagner claims, some distance farther south, and these will be explored immediately. The developments in the Shuttuck property adjoining make it appear certain that the Hope and Wagner contain big valuable ore bodies.

"Some time ago I presented a statement, obtained from a reliable source, that during the month of February the ores sent to the smelter by the Calumet & Arizona company yielded an average of approximately 200 pounds of copper to the ton, or 10 per cent. I have now confirmed that statement, and I have also learned from reliable sources that previous to the recent change in management, rich ores were given the preference in the shipments from all mines. The present management has made a radical change in this connection, increasing the shipments of low grade ores and working up such an ideal combination for the smelter that the tonnage per furnace per day has been greatly augmented. As a result the company is producing about the same amount of copper monthly from ores which yield 7½ per cent, and at the same time keeping the gross cost of its copper, including both Western and Eastern expenses, somewhere between 6½ and 7 cents per pound.

"It seems to be the policy of the present management to clean up all the low grade ore as it comes and to gradually accumulate in the mine slarge reserves of high grade ore. Such a policy, of course, makes for permanency and guarantees the continuance of the present low copper cost for many years, even though there should unexpectedly be large developments of low grade ores.

"The only reason that the Calumet & Arizona can never be another Copper Queen is that it does not own nearly as large an acreage of favorably located ground. There is abundant room on its 160 acres of ground, however, to develop ore enough to supply the present tonnage to the smelter and continue dividends at the rate of $3 quarterly for decades to come. The general character of the rock, the appearance of the underground openings, and all other indications strongly encourage the belief that the Calumet & Arizona mine is still in its infancy. It is a characteristic of the ore bodies that practically every one of the mproves to be very much larger before it is worked out than anyone would estimate when it was first opened.

"The Calumet & Arizona is just completing the installation of a high grade, up-to-date hoist and other equipment, to match, at its Oliver shaft. This shaft is very favorably located for economical work, and it is the intention of the management to make it the main working shaft of the property. A steam turbine and electric generator have been installed to provide underground electric haulage, and a line will be established immediately to handle the ore between the Irish Mag and Oliver shafts. It is not improbable that the Mag shaft will eventually discontinue hoisting ore altogether, but there is no imediate prospect that this change will be made.

"The statement in the consolidation circular, issued recently, that the other mines in this district, which have substantially the same management as the Calumet & Arizona, will soon be called upon to provide smelting facilities for their ores, is at least a suggestion that the plan is to have Calumet & Arizona utilize the full capacity of its own plant. This would call for an increase of 100 per cent in its ore output, and make its annual production 60,000,000 to 75,000,000 pounds of fine copper. Such a scale of operations would, of course, hasten the exhaustion of the company's ore reserves, but it would meanwhile provide for greatly increased dividends. Some high authorities believe that the greatest economy is obtained by taking ore out of the ground as quickly as possible and turning it into cash.

"The Calumet & Arizona smelter is located at Douglas, twenty-eight miles from the mine. It contains five blast furnaces, one of which is just being completed. Each is capable of smelting about 325 tons of ore daily. Three furnaces are in blast, and the fourth is held in reserve. About 925 tons of ore is being smelted daily, of which 650 tons come from its own mines. There are also three stands of converters, a briquetting machine, etc. The management is considering the advisability of building a reverberatory furnace to smelt its flue dust.

"Viewed from an investment standpoint, Calumet & Arizona stock certainly looks attractive. Even though its properties should prove short lived, it would require ten or a dozen years for the company to earn and distribute in dividends an equal amount to the present selling price of the stock. The chances are all favorable, however, that large resources will be developed in the south workings of its mines, and also in the Hope and Wagner claims. There are competent authorities who believe that ore bodies will be found, also, in the upper levels of the mine, where little or no work has yet been done. There is at least one point on which stockholders may rest assured—the price of copper will never go low enough to cause even a temporary suspension of Calumet & Arizona dividends."

Mr. Walker says of the copper metal and the share markets:

"Copper is quiet, but continues very strong. Lake is held at 18¾ to 19 cents per pound for August and September delivery; electrolytic for nearby delivery is 18¾ cents, for September and October delivery, 18½ to 18⅝ cents; casting is 18¼ to 18⅜ cents. There is a strong demand for prime grades of casting copper. The domestic situation is quiet at the moment, and without special feature. Demand from European consumers continues strong. The recent activity of the foreign buying shows its effect in the copper exports for Europe, which are increasing steadily.

"Producers generally do not look for a very large increase this year over the output of 1905. Meanwhile the metal is going into consumption as rapidly as it can be produced, and there are many indications that this condition will continue for several months to come.

"Some activity has been shown in a few copper stocks during the past week, but it did not last, and the market relapsed into dullness and weakness, the latter not pronounced. There have been no important developments. The failure of the Utah Consolidated directors to increase the dividend rate has occasioned some unfavorable comment, and has induced some selling, not only of that stock, but of other coppers. Amalgamated has moved within a very narrow range, and has attracted very little outside buying. While it has dropped only a little, its action has been weak. This has influenced the Boston list. Public interest is still lacking. Boston traders are doing scarcely anything in the coppers. New York has been responsible for most of the trading."

SESSION OF IMPORTANCE

County Commissioners to Hold Semi-Annual Meeting in July.

Will Provide for Levy to Care for Old Bonds.

The semi-annual meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held Monday, July 9, following the regular monthly meeting of the commissioners July 6.

The semi-annual meeting is one of the two meetings that are especially provided for the county board each year. Whether the commissioners hold any other sessions to transact the county's business, they must, under the statutes, hold their annual meeting the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January and a semi-annual meeting the first Monday in July.

In St. Louis county, the commissioners have been in the habit of meeting monthly and there have been numerous instances where they have met twice a month. Even with one meeting a month, there is usually enough work to keep the commissioners busy two days, one in committee work and the other in the usual routine work of hearing petitions, passing on bills, etc.

At the semi-annual meeting, appropriations are made to pay salaries in the same offices for the remainder of the year, otherwise the business disposed of hardly differs from the routine of any other meeting.

This year, however, the county board will have some business to take care of at its semi-annual meeting that is a little out of the ordinary. It will be the making of some provision by a levy to take care of the $90,000 worth of old Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad bonds that become due Jan. 1, 1907. These bonds were issued about twenty years ago in lieu of some other old railroad bonds issued some years prior to that time and the payment to be made the first of the coming year will be the clean-up of the last of those outstanding papers against the county. The bonds have been drawing a much higher rate of interest than any issued in recent years and, from the standpoint of an investment, have been a pretty good thing for the people holding them.

The semi-annual meeting will be followed by a protacted session of the commissioners sitting with the auditor as the county board of equalization. In such capacity, the commissioners are sometimes in session anywhere from a week to three weeks.

How to Break Up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. # ROAD TO DULUTH.

Over the Wrenshall-Fond du Lac Route Is Proposed.

The Carlton County Good Roads association has issued a circular stating that it is proposed to lay out that part of the tri-city highway between Carlton and Duluth along the "Wrenshall-Fond du Lac route." The proposed route will lead from Carlton to Wrenshall—then direct to Fond du Lac—cross the St. Louis river at that point and follow its beautiful valley to Duluth. This route is favored because it is absolutely free from hills; is direct and straight; has beautiful scenery; is already an excellent road, sixteen miles being a city street; is not expensive to maintain; those living along its line welcome the autos and are willing to do all in their power towards its development and maintenance. If this route be decided upon, but one obstacle presents itself—the absence of a bridge at Fond du Lac.

It is proposed to raise the largest amount possible through subscriptions by the counties, townships, cities and villages, clubs and associations, auto men, business men and farmers, and all those interested in the construction of this bridge; then to go before the State and make a vigorous effort to persuade it to furnish the balance and build the bridge.

All who desire to aid can send a subscription agreement to the secretary of the Carlton County Good Roads association, Box 35, Wrenshall, Minn.

This road is of special interest to Duluth because it opens up a vast new territory to settlement and affords an outlet to hundreds of farmers to this city.

LOVELY GIRL IS A KLEPTOMANIAC

Sham Deaconess at Los Angeles Serving Sentence in Jail.

Los Angeles, June 19.—Leaning with her dimpled chin resting in the upturned palms of her white hands, Florence Hunter, otherwise known as "Deaconess Leighton," gazed from a cell window at the city jail, listless and forlorn, says the Los Angeles, Cal., Herald.

In her deaconess garb Miss Hunter played an emotional role that opened hospitable doors to her in Los Angeles, and afforded opportunities for petty thefts.

Of a peculiar, dreamy, sometimes morbid disposition, Miss Hunter has been a puzzle to the police. She says she is a puzzle to herself sometimes.

"I don't know why I stole," she said, twisting a coil of gold-red hair in her nervous fingers and lifting her head from its former position of abandonment. "I do not regard myself as a kleptomaniac, but at times I simply cannot resist the inclination to steal."

The woman with the heavy masses of what poets call Titian hair is suspected of many petty acts of theft, but the police were merciful and accepted her plea of guilty Saturday. She is now serving a sentence of fifty days, and long days they seem to her, she says.

She first appeared in Los Angeles when all were opening their hearts and homes at the time of San Francisco's distress.

Clad in Quaker gray, with a little coquettish cap perched on her stately head, Miss Hunter was daily seen at the Arcade station, helping to minister to the needs of the stricken city of the north.

Her work won commendation from all who met her, and when she fell fainting from exhaustion one day, Mrs. Lyman A. Craig bade her welcome to her beautiful home at No. 803 West Thirteenth street.

While there it is said that the beautiful deaconess nurse began to inquire from the servants about Mrs. Craig's jewelry and valuables.

She left that home under a cloud, it is said, and next took up her abode with Mrs. W. H. Packard, No. 1914 Twentieth street.

When she left Mrs. Packard it is claimed that she took with her a purse containing a small sum.

Denounced as an imposter by church people, by the officials of the Associated Charities, and by the matron of the Deaconess' home, the police were asked to investigate the career of "Deaconess Leighton," and the investigation resulted in her arrest by Sergeant Craig while the floral parade was winding its way down Spring street.

At the police station the young woman became tearfully indignant, and bitterly reproached the officers for the indignity of her arrest. But on the following day, confronted by the damaging evidence, the woman broke down and confessed her wrong doing.

When her short sentence has expired, it is said that the police will advise her to seek some other abode.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Of Crookston District Epworth League Held at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sixth annual convention of the Crookston District Epworth League closed on Sunday. There were delegates in attendance from Park Rapids, St. Hilaire, Crookston, Ada, Alexandria, Bemidji, Breckenridge, Deer Creek, Detroit, Frazee, Fergus Falls, Hallock, Hawley, Hewitt, Moorhead, Motley, Rothsay, Staples, Thief River Falls, Warren and Wadena.

Among the pastors in attendance were: Rev. George E. Satterlee, of Crookston; Rev. E. K. Copper of Staples; Rev. G. E. Tindahl, of Warren; Rev. J. T. B. Smith, of Frazee; Rev. A. H. McKee, of Detroit; Rev. Mr. Long, of Deer Creek; Rev Mr. Parmeter, of Moorhead and Rev Dr. Koch, of Motley.

At the business session, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. B. Auxer, Moorhead; first vice president, L. K. Denison, Moorhead; second vice president, Matie Nobes, Wadena; third vice president, Mildred Woodruff, Bemidji, fourth vice president; Mary Gatton, Crookston, recording secretary, W. A. Rice, Fergus Falls; corresponding secretary, Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith, Frazee; treasurer, A. W. Dokken, Hallock; superintendent of junior leagues, Mrs. T. H. McKee, Detroit.

A proposal was made that at future conventions, the expenses of the delegates should be paid prorata by all in attendance, the idea being that those coming from a distance should not be made to pay more in railroad fare than those living near the place where the convention was held. The proposition was defeated by a vote of 20 to 46, a large number declining to vote. It was decided to hold the next convention in Wadena.

ENORMOUS FEES CHARGED BY EUROPEAN PHYSICIANS

London, June 19.—Apropos of the calling to Constantinople of the great German specialist, Dr. Bergmann, to operate on the sultan's daughter for appendicitis, some interesting facts are published here regarding the enormous fees demanded by eminent physicians for cases involving a journey.

Dr. Pagenstacker, the great oculist of Weisbaden, usually receives a thousand guineas (£5,250) for attending a patient in England.

The highest fees for out-of-town cases are charged by Parisian specialists. One recently sent in a bill for $20,000 to an American woman whom he visited in Cherbourg twice a week for a month.

Four thousand dollars was the fee demanded recently by a famous surgeon for going to Biarritz to perform a simple operation.

The usual charge of English specialists called out of London is a gulnea (£5.25) a mile in addition to the ordinary fee.

A great English doctor once accomplished a feat of treating a wealthy patient—the late Cecil Rhodes—at a distance of 6,000 miles, without leaving London. The patient's symptoms, changes of temperature, etc., were cabled to the doctor, who cabled back his instructions to Capetown.

WESTERN TRACTS FOR CIVIL WAR VETERANS.

Columbus, Ohio, June 18.—Much interest is being aroused by the approach of the time for the opening of the Shoshone or Wind River Indian reservation, which is set for Aug. 15, and particularly by old soldiers, for the reason that they are specially favored in the distribution.

The lands to be thus thrown open to settlement comprises about 2,000 square miles.

The reservation lies just west of the center of Wyoming, and so is south of, and not far from, Yellowstone Park.

The land is said to have great agricultural, mineral and timber wealth. Gold in both vein and placers is said to be found all through the tract, while copper and silver are believed to be found in paying quantities. The rougher part of the land is covered with fine hardwood trees. This is all virgin forest, and, in fact, the whole wealth of the region is undeveloped.

Any soldier, sailor, seaman or marine, whether officer or not, who served in the war of the rebellion or the Spanish-Philippine war for at least ninety days, and has an honorable discharge, and who has remained loyal to the United States, may file a claim for a section of 160 acres, through an agent; providing he can make affidavit that he does not own in any other state or territory of the United States, more than 160 acres of land, and that he has not taken a homestead before.

All who take lands in the reservation when it is opened—soldiers as well, must do so, under the homestead provisions which include residence upon it for the next five years with its improvement—provided that in the case of soldiers they may deduct from the five years required the length of service in the wars. However, residence of at least one year will be required in any case. If a soldier was discharged for wounds or disability, he may deduct the full term of his enlistment from the homestead residence period.

Nothing to say my brothers,
Nothing at all to say?
Fans that get beat, I've noticed,
Generally act that way.

The blooming peggers skinned us,
Beat us five to two,
And everyhting considered,
'Twas a low down thing to do.

In our mad pursuit of Calumet
We badly needed that game,
And some of our men were injured,
And some of our men were lame.

There's joy in King Edward's realm,
And little they reck our pain,
But that's not the worst of the story,
They're likely to do it again.

The Sox worked a lot of dumb plays out of their systems yesterday afternoon.

They should feel better after getting rid of such a collection of boots, bungles and bonehead muffs.

They worked behind Cummings like a bunch of girls playing catch in the back yard lawn.

The errors weren't the worst of it. The three misplays chalked up against the Sox would have been excusable if they had been playing fast ball, but they were soggy and ran bases like a team of dray horses on a steep grade.

It was the relapse after the last game played here with Calumet, but it took the heart out of Cummings. "Al" would have pitched a nice game yesterday if he had been given any kind of support. He did not hit a man or give a single base on balls, and most of the hits came when the side should have been retired.

The first inning was enough to make almost any pitcher quit his job, and take to selling life insurance. Piper, the first man up, got a hit, and "Spike" sacrificed him to second. The speedy little outfielder then stole third, and came home when Summers bungled Zeider's hit. Zeider stole second a moment later and came home on Summer's wild throw to first base, making two unearned runs for the inning.

There was another bad session in the third, when Spike and his tribe got two more. Piper led with a long three-bager, and Spike scored him with a clean single. Anderson then went to second on a wild pitch by Cummings, to third on Zeider's sacrifice, and scored on a passed ball.

But even with such support as he had been getting, Cummings continued to pitch good ball, and with the exception of Anderson's home run hit in the seventh he kept the visitors from scoring duirng the remaining six innings.

Meanwhile the Maroons had been playing a ragged game themselves, but their errors did not prove as costly as those of the White Sox. Duluth got a run in the third on a two-bagger by Summers and a long single by McCormick. Another came in the fourth when Helbing was hit, went to second on an error by Somerlott and to third on another by Voss, scoring on a clean single by Cummings.

But the Sox could do nothing with Sporer when there were men on bases, and after the fourth they were never able to get a man past second.

The crippled condition of the team was largely responsible for the showing yesterday. McCormick is laid up with a flat wheel, and can do little more than walk around in the left garden. Adams was put out of business yesterday by striking his knee against the bench when trying for a foul tip, and two or three of the other men are nursing stiff shoulders and bunged up fingers.

KEEPS WINNING GAIT.

Calumet Wins From Grand Forks in Well Played Game.

Calumet, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks was easy for Calumet yesterday afternoon, when the Aristocrats beat the Browns by the score of 5 to 2. At only one stage of the game did the visitors look at all dangerous, when by three hits and an error they managed to score two runs. The Calumet team put up one of the best games they have played so far this season. The infield worked with clock-like precision. Kaiser, Vorpagel and Bufka showed work in their respective positions seldom equaled. Except for one excusable error by Kaiser, the infield accepted every chance offered without a miss, and at that had to go after some hard ones.

The most amusing feature of the game was in the seventh inning. Mutter was to bat, and in attempting to avoid being struck by the ball, tried to dodge. The ball struck his bat, and for a moment he stood still until he noticed that it was a safe hit. Harris by this time likewise saw the play, but Mutter was safe on first. Harris threw to first and sent the ball over Lunderus' head, Mutter getting to third on this play, which at first he thought was a foul. A moment later Shear singled to center, letting him come home.

The Aristocrats scored in the first inning after Bufka had got to first on Harris' exhibition of juggling the ball. He stole second and went to third on Ott's wild throw to head him off from the steal, he coming home on Kaiser's two-bagger. In the third inning Foulkes struck out the first two men up, after which three men hit safely and an error of Shear's let in two runs. This ended the scoring for the Browns. Glencke's inability to put the ball over the base at critical times cost the Grand Forks team two runs. Corrigan received passes in both the third and fifth innings and eventually scored. In the seventh, Calumet's luck inning, the game was cinched by two more scores being registered. Mutter and Shear both hit safely, as did Corrigan, who got a two-bagger. These three hits counted for two runs.

CANNOT LOSE HIS HOODOO.

Rogers of Hancock Seems to Have One ---Fargo Wins.

Houghton, Mich., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Neddie Roger's hoodoo still pursues him relentlessly, he losing another game to Fargo yesterday by the score of 4 to 3. Stripp's men found him for but five hits, three of them being bunched for one run, but they piled up enough runs on Rogers' wildness and errors to win the game.

McMillan was shooting them over for Fargo, and he held the Climbers to six hits and one earned run. The one run would have been Hancock's whole portion had it not been for Stripp missing a throw home in the sixth and letting two men score. Outside of the one error, McMillan's support was faultless.

Bassen's work yesterday was unsatisfactory to both teams and he was scored by the crowd. He seemed to give Rogers a little the worst of the deal on balls and strikes, while several of his decisions on the bases didn't please the Fargo men at all.

Elliott Prosser, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Prosser, 615 East Third street, was dashed to his death in a runaway accident about 8 o'clock last evening.

He was driving a delivery wagon and his horse became unmanageable and started to run away. When the rig struck a corner, the lad was thrown from his seat and came down with terrific force on the ground.

When he was picked up near the Endion depot, he was unconscious and was removed to St. Mary's hospital at once. There is was found that his skull was fractured, his nose broken and several teeth knocked out. He died within a short time after the accident.

The horse was said to be a skittish colt and to have become frightened when another horse came quickly from behind. No one witnessed the entire affair. When the boy was thrown from the rig, he struck on his head.

GOVERNOR PATTISON

Dies Suddenly After Apparently Being on Road to Recovery.

Lieutenant Governor Harris Now Becomes Executive of Ohio.

Cincinnati, June 19.—John M. Pattison, governor of Ohio, died of Bright's disease or chronic intestinal nephritis, at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home in Milford, fifteen miles east of this city. On a beautiful hillside near his home his body will be laid to rest on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after services in the Methodist church. His death came suddenly, and was unexpected, even by his physicians and family, and was caused by a relapse. The declining stage of Governor Pattison's final illness dates from last Friday, when his wish to be taken out on the front porch of his home, was granted. He looked over the familiar scenes he loved so well, and was in great spirits, when suddenly he complained of severe pain. The sick cot was hurriedly wheeled into the house, and the attendants applied stimulants, and Dr. Bell was hastily summoned. This attack was really the beginning of the end, though the governor soon rallied and Friday evening seemed as well as he had been before. Sunday night at 8 o'clock the governor became restless and suffered considerable acute pain, but later in the night he sank into a quiet sleep. At 10 o'clock Dr. Bell made his usual morning visit and found his patient in a comotose state. All was done that medical skill could do, but the governor never rallied, and death came peacefully. At the governor's bedside when he died were Mrs. Pattison and his two daughters, Misses Althea and Ernestine, and the nurses.

That the death of the governor was entirely unexpected, was evident when it is remembered that in a contest over the requisition of Ellsworth Liverpool in the courts in this city yesterday, both of the governor's physicians appeared to testify that his condition was such that he was able to transact official business. His private secretary, L. B. Houck, also testified to his good condition.

Governor Pattison entered upon the responsibilities of his office in a somewhat weakened condition, the strain of the political campaign having so worn on him that a trip to the South was taken in November and December in the hope of regaining health. However, when he returned he was still weak and, under the advice of his physician, his part of the inauguration ceremonies was gone through with the utmost care.

The severest backset during his illness came about the middle of March, and for several days he hovered between life and death. During this time his every thought seemed to be on a return to his country home at Milford, and as soon as his weakened condition permitted, he was brought to Cincinnati, spending several weeks in Christ hospital, until the physicians thought him ready for the trip to his country home. One week ago he seemed to have so far recovered his strength that no ill effects were anticipated from the trip to Milford, and a special electric car carried him to within a short distance of his home, an ambulance taking him the balance of the way. He semed benefited by the trip rather than otherwise, and has been reported as steadily gaining since then.

John M. Pattison, boy soldier, lawyer, state legislator, member of congress and governor of Ohio, was a native of Clermont county, Ohio. Born June 13, 1847, he enlisted as a volunteer in the United States army when but 16 years of age, in 1864, and entered college immediately after being mustered out, graduating at the Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, Ohio, with the class of 1869, having been a college mate of United States Senator James B. Foraker. He was admitted to the bar in 1872, and elected to the lower house of the Ohio legislature in 1873. He became a member of the Ohio senate in 1890, and was elected to the Fifty-second congress. For the past fifteen years he has been president of the Union Central Life Insurance company.

He was a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was a trustee as well as an alumnus of the Ohio Wesleyan university, the leading institution of that church in this section.

Andrew Lintner Harris, lieutenant governor, under the constitution, becomes governor during the balance of the term for which Pattison was elected.

Columbus, June 19.—The news of Governor Pattison's death cast a gloom over the state capitol. Nearly all the state offices were closed when the bulletin announcing his sudden death was received. The flag on the capitol was ordered at half mast, and the state officials immediately arranged for an informal conference when arrangements were made for a formal meeting of state officials to take appropriate action and arrange to attend the funeral. By the death of Governor Pattison, Gen. Andrew L. Harris of Eaton, Ohio, becomes the acting governor.

Gen. Harris is a Republican, Governor Pattison having been the only Democrat on the state ticket elected last fall.

FARMERS MAY SELL THEIR PRODUCE UNDISTURBED

Plan to Include Them in Class of Peddlers Defeated.

Fire Board is Censured by Council For Extravagance.

No action is likely to be taken by the council in regard to the proposed changes in the peddlers' ordinance, which are believed to be required to make the ordinance constitutional.

In a communication received last evening from the Public Affairs committee of the Commercial club, the council was asked to have the amendment laid over for one week in order that the committee might have a chance to investigate more thoroughly.

There was also a communication from the Duluth Produce & Fruit Exchange, asking that the city protect business men who are compelled to pay high taxes and rent, against peddlers, by some form of legislation which it is possible to enforce.

Both communications were received, and the committee submitted a report against the proposed amendment, on the ground that the sale of produce in the city by farmers should not be restricted in any manner, and that the property owners and citizens in general should be allowed to secure their vegetables as cheaply as possible.

The report was endorsed by the council as a whole, and the amended ordinance was not passed.

The amendment was introduced for the purpose of making the ordinance stand the test of the courts, as at present it is believed by the attorneys to come under the head of class legislation, although the court has never ruled upon it.

Extravagance in the fire department was the subject of several rather heated speeches last evening, when the discussion of the present financial crisis in the department came up.

The council took up the plan outlined in The Herald Saturday evening, and asked the city attorney to give his opinion as to whether or not the $10,000 which will be received from the state premium tax can be diverted to the general maintenance of the department, instead of being devoted to the relief association, which is in a very comfortable financial condition. There is some question as to the legality of this, but the amount is just about the sum needed for the purpose.

The committee in reporting on the question scored the fire board for not living within its appropriation.

"While we consider that the money has been well expended," the report read, "we find that it has been the opinion of the conference committee and this council for several years that the expenses of the fire department have been out of proportion to those of other departments, and in making the appropriations for the year the fire department was allowed the maximum which it was deemed advisable to expend under the current levy. We consider that the fire department and all of the other departments should carefully consider the amount available, and keep within the appropriation.

"While we consider that the board has been negligent in so conducting the departmental affairs that the present condition exists, we believe it would be disastrous to the city to make up such a shortage by closing some of the fire halls, and we believe it wise to arrange some plan for meeting the deficiency, urging the department hereafter to keep within its appropriation."

This communication appeared to express the sentiments of all of the members of the council. While they believed that the board should be compelled to live within its appropriations, they did not want to cripple the department.

The vexed question of the litigation between the Modern Steel Structural company, the city and the old Duluth Canal & Bridge company, was once more up for discussion. The facts of the case were briefly outlined by City Attorney Fesler, who laid before the council for consideration a plan for ending all litigation.

Briefly, the situation, as explained by the attorney, is as follows: The city still owes the Waukesha company about $62,000 on the bridge. The money is lying in the bank, drawing 2 per cent interest, and the city is paying the company 6 per cent interest, making a net loss of something like $200 a month in interest charges. The city is being prevented paying over the money by the old Duluth Canal & Bridge company, which is trying to collect $1,500, which it claims is still due on the price of the old foundations of the bridge. The city is a passive spectator to the suit, which is between the two bridge companies, but it is the loser in the battle, owing to the interest charges.

There is also a question of the right of the Waukesha company to do business in this state, involved. The Duluth Canal & Bridge company claims that the Waukesha company never had a license to do business in this state, and that, therefore, the entire $65,000 cannot be collected.

To close up all this litigation the Waukesha company has agreed to pay $1,000 of the $1,500 demanded by the old bridge company, if the city will pay the remaining $500.

Aldermen Wilson and Moore opposed the plan, saying that it was nothing but a holdup.

"I have heard that there was even honor among thieves" said Alderman Moore. "But this seems to be nothing but a barefaced holdup. I am in favor of fighting it if it costs us much more than the $500.

"It's all very well to talk of fighting it out" said Alderman McEwen, "but we are doing it with other people's money. This is merely a matter of expediency with me. This money will be tied up until next spring at least if we don't settle affairs, and we will lose far more than the $500 in interest. I know it's a holdup, but it's a question of being held up for $500 or for several times that amount."

Alderman Haven wanted to know what assurance the city would have that it would not be again held up.

"I wouldn't deliver the warrant until all litigation had been withdrawn and the money in payment for the bridge turned over" said the city attorney. "This would free the city from all further connection with the affair."

The motion was finally carried, Aldermen Moore and Wilson voting against it.

* * *

The council approved the agreement between the water board and the Stacey Manufacturing company, whereby the latter is to bid in 30,000 of the bonds, in part payment of the new gas holder which is being erected. The contract for the holder was made last February when it was believed that the bonds would be sold immediately. The board has since been compelled to make this supplemental agreement with the company, whereby $30,000 of the contract price is taken in bonds. The board will advance the remainder as the work progresses.

* * *

Circuses charging an admission fee of more than twenty-five cents, may be barred from the city by the amendment to the amusement ordinance passed last evening. The license fee for such circuses was fixed at $500, while those having an admission fee of twenty-five cents or less will be charged but $100. The change will not take effect until after the visit of the Ringling circus, as the contracts for this show had already been made.

The old license was $250 a day for all circuses.

* * *

Last night was the date set for the hearing of the proposed changes in the section of the building ordinance covering elevators, but owing to a misunderstanding, some of the people who wished to be heard, were not present.

Alderman Wilson announced that it would be made a special order of business next Monday night.

* * *

On a motion by Alderman Staples, the fire department will be requested to give more complete information regarding the horse sales.

"I have here notice of the sale of a horse to John McKay," said the alderman. "Now Dr. McKay condemns the horses in the department as being unfit for service. Then he buys this one himself, and he is also the agent for Stone-Ordean-Wells and gets a commission on the horses he sells for them.

"The council ought to have more information on these sales."

The motion carried.

The Duluth Edison Electric company submitted a flat rate for power to run the ferry bridge, of $66 a month. This is considerably less than is being paid at the present meter rate, and the offer was accepted, on the recommendation of the board of public works.

A petition asking for the pavement of Third avenue west from the railroad right-of-way to Second street, was received.

MARKET IS VERY DULL.

Wheat is Quiet and Prices are a Little Lower.

Flax is Also Dull But Closes at Higher Prices.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 19.—The wheat market was dull today and prices were lower in all the American markets except Winnipeg, where the July option was unchanged. The declines were not heavy, however, and were accounted for by more favorable weather reports from Kansas and Nebraska. Liverpool closed ½d to ½d lower; Berlin, unchanged; Budapest, 1⅝c lower, and Paris, ¼c to ½c higher.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 2,830,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat. East of the Rockies there was a decrease of 2,030,000 bus, and in Europe and afloat a decrease of 300,000 bus.

The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅛@¼c in Chicago and Minneapolis, ½c in New York, ½c in St. Louis, a shade off in Kansas City and unchanged in Winnipeg. The September option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth, ⅛@¼c in Chicago, ¼@⅜c in Minneapolis, ½c in New York and Kansas City and ½c in St. Louis. The October option closed ½c lower in Winnipeg.

Corn was weaker, the July option closing ⅛ lower in Chicago. It was ⅝d to ¾d lower in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅛@⅛c lower in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 107, against 26 last year, and at Minneapolis 130, against 149 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 237, against 175 last year. Chicago received 4, against 3 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 267,000 bus; last year, 242,000 bus. Shipments, 117,000 bus; last year, 296,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 5,000 bus.

September wheat opened unchanged at 83¼c, advanced to 83⅝@¾c, declined to 82⅜c, rallied to 82⅞c and closed at 82¾c, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Flax was fairly active at the opening, but dull after that. Some flax was sold for export. Prices were stronger. Antwerp closed unchanged and Hull ⅞c lower. July flax opened unchanged at $1.15, advanced to $1.16⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September flax opened unchanged at $1.15, advanced to $1.16⅝ and closed at that price, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.14, advanced to $1.14½ and closed at that price, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

The Prices of Wheat Steady With But Little Trading.

Chicago, June 19.—There was little trading in any of the grain markets today. Prices for wheat were steady on fair buying by commission houses and some covering by shorts. July opened a shade lower to ⅛@¼c higher at 82⅞c to 83¼c, advanced to 81¼c ad reacted to 83c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 241 cars, against 228 cars last week and 180 cars one year ago.

The market became weak late in the day in sympathy with corn and oats. There was considerable selling by pit traders, and the price of July went down to 82¼c. The close was easy, with July ⅛@¼c lower at 82¾c.

The corn market was weak at the opening, chiefly because of continued rains in the corn belt. July opened ¼c to ½c lower at 51⅞c to 52⅛c and held steady around 52c. Local receipts were 355 cars, with 323 of contract grade.

The market became quite weak in the latter part of the day, July declining to 51¼c. The close was weak, with July down 1c at 51⅜c.

The oats market was weak, chiefly because of wet weather in Illinois, Missouri and the Ohio valley. July was ⅜@½c lower at the opening at 40c to 40¼c and then declined to 40c. Local receipts were 240 cars.

Provisions were weak because of lower prices for live hogs. September pork opened unchanged to 2½c lower at $16.17½ to $16.75 and declined to $16.65. Lard opened unchanged at $8.97½ and declined to $8.90. Ribs were unchanged at $9.25.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Futures lost 3-16c only for the day. Considering the heaviness in coarse grains, and the dullness of the market, this is a remarkably stubborn showing for wheat. Each time the local talent pressed the selling a little on the decline, a prompt rally followed. While bulls are not overconfident, the bears are certainly timid. Southwest advices say that early movement of wheat is likely to be small. Millers were active buyers of all the cash wheat at Minneapolis at slightly increased premiums. Oklahoma and South-ern Kansas have a wet harvest. There is some grumbling about excessive wet weather in the Northwest. Crop prospects in France, Germany and Argentina are not the best. In view of the chance of further accidents to both winter and spring wheat, we think buyers have the best of it on all soft spots.

Corn—There is no "cinch" in the corn market for either bull or bear at present. The excellent rains over the entire sections where drought threatened the crop have changed the outlook. Very liberal receipts may be expected, because the country is refusing all bids sent out. Hedging sales by the cash people were the chief bear influence in the market. A rally of only ¼c was recorded at the close. It is a good trading market and the bulls and bears have about an equal chance for the money.

Oats—The country sold oats very freely on Chicago bids over night. The result was considerable selling by cash people. Outside selling orders came from the rain section. On the further break of one cent or more there was good buying for December and May. Watch the crop news.

* * *

Broomhall's summary of foreign crop conditions:

United Kingdom—The crop outlook is fair.

Germany—Recent weather conditions have been unfavorable. Fine weather with warmth is urgently needed.

Roumania—Weather conditions have proved good and outlook for the crop is fair.

Russia—Odessa reports hot weather. Prospects in the South and Southwest are generally favorable, although there are some complaints of lodging. Supplies at Odessa are very small and elsewhere smaller than last week.

North Africa—The crop outlook is favorable.

* * *

E. W. Dennis, Chicago: I am looking for disappointing threshing returns and small early wheat deliveries in all the winter wheat territory, except possibly South Central Kansas. The bears are none too confident in their position now and foreign indications are a little more favorable, fourteen loads of wheat, mostly Manitoba, sold yesterday. If we now contract the rain habit for the winter wheat harvest or get too much rain in the Northwest, we could put five cents on the price quickly. Wheat purchases are about a fifteen to three proposition. Possibly three-cent loss to chance for fifteen-cent profit. I am rather favoring December purchases for investment.

KING EDWARD PRAISED AS CRITIC OF PICTURES.

Paris, June 19.—The artistic knowledge possessed by King Edward was remarked by a well known French writer who accompanied his majesty round the two salons, when the king displayed a very acute critical sense.

The writer says: "One can see in a minute whether the king likes a picture or not. If he does so, the mask of official urbanity drops immediately. He looks Art straight in the face and seriously, without saying a word for a moment or two.

"Then he expresses his admiration, and mentions what he admires in the picture, and his judgment is a good deal better than that of many of the members of the hanging committee. If, as it often happens, a daub is shown him, the official smile appears and the king says, 'charming!' Then he passes on."

TUBERCULOMANIA SAID TO BE LATEST COMPLAINT.

Paris, June 19.—"Tuberculomania" is the latest complaint, which is almost exclusively restricted to the young physicians. At a recent meeting of the academy of medicine, the older members warned the young men against what they called "tuberculomania." They said that tuberculosis was a craze with young doctors. That they saw signs of consumption in every symptom that their patients had. The slightest anemia or bronichial trouble or neuralgia or indigestion was at once set down by the young doctors as tuberculosis. So much has been said about consumption of late years that half of the world believes itself afflicted with the dread disease, and they are encouraged in that belief by many physicians, who are themselves deceived.

DID NOT CONSULT GIRL.

Man Had Banns Read Although He Had Been Rejected.

Pittsburg, June 19.—Father H. McHugh, priest of St. Agnes Roman Catholic church in this city, had to go through the novel experience Sunday of recalling marriage banns he read out the previous Sunday. Annie Curran, the young woman in the case, had never been consulted.

Some time ago a man forced his attentions on her until she ordered him from the house. Last Sunday Father McHugh read the banns in which he announced the coming wedding of Miss Curran and Michael Mulkerran. Miss Curran was not at the church and the first she knew of it was when the parishioners began to congratulate her. At first she thought it was a joke. When she learned the truth she sued Mulkerran for $1,000 damages.

THE SHORTS ARE ROUTED

Excited Stock Market and Good Advances Scored.

Steadier in the Afternoon and Closing Firm and Dull.

New York, June 19.—Trading in stocks at the opening today was excited and active at a smart rebound from yesterday's depression. Many of the speculative favorites showed wide advances. Pennsylvania was especially affected by the conclusion of the negotiations for a loan in Paris. The first sale was of 100 shares at 130⅜, followed by 200 shares at 130½ and then followed by 15,000 shares all the way from 131 to 133, compared with 129½ last night. Northern Pacific rose 4 points, Anaconda 2½, Great Northern preferred 2, Reading 1¾ and Union Pacific, St. Paul, Illinois Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Consolidated Gas, Amalgamated Copper, Smelting, Locomotive, Colorado Fuel and Brooklyn Transit from 1 to 1½. There were many gains of a large fraction. Interborough Metropolitan stock, which has been pegged at 50 for several days past broke with a decline of 3¼ points on the enormous offerings.

The rout of the short interest furnished a good market for profit taking. This selling wiped out a considerable portion of the opening rise. Anaconda reached 2½; Pennsylvania, 2¼; Northern Pacific, 1½; and St. Paul, Reading, Great Northern preferred, Locomotive and Consolidated aGs, 1. Interborough Metropolitan went down to 46¾ and the preferred also lost 1. Renewed purchases on a large scale rallied the market substantially. St. Paul, Reading and Union Pacific sold fractionally higher than before, Union Pacific gain reaching 2 points. Pennsylvania recovered a point to 131¾ and became feverish. On this rise a number of additional gains of consequence were made, such as 5 in Michigan Central, 3 in General Electric, 2 in Northwestern and Delaware & Hudson, 1¾ in Colorado Fuel, 1½ in Lead, 1¼ in New York Central and 1 in Cleveland, C. C. and St. Louis, Denver & Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific and Norfolk & Western. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo exceptionally fell off 2; Sloss-Sheffield Steel, 1½, and Tennessee Coal, 1. Interborough Metropolitan broke again to 46¼ and the market became unsettled.

Prices made another advance with conspicuous strength in Reading, St. Paul and the metal stocks. Gains reached in Lead, 3¾; Anaconda, 4; Reading and Delaware & Hudson, 3; Smelting, 2⅝; St. Paul, 2¼; Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake, 1¾, and the United States Steel stocks, Louisville & Nashville, Erie, the second preferred and Southern Pacific, 1. The successive breaks in Interborough Metropolitan had an unsettling influence on the rising tendency elsewhere. The preferred lost 2½; Westinghouse Electric, 5; New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred and St. Paul preferred, 1¼, and Lake Erie & Western, 1. Bonds were irregular at noon.

The market continued nervous, but the fluctuations were narrow, very few of the leaders varying more than half per cent. St. Paul rose to 179 and slipped back to 178.

More steadiness was observed in the afternoon than in the morning, though business was very meagre. The Pennsylvania group rallied to 132, Reading crossed 133, Baltimore & Ohio reached 118 and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a point.

Norfolk & Western was carried up an extreme 2⅛ in the extension of the movement in the Pennsylvania group. There was geenral selling to take profits on the day's rise and reactions ran to a point and upwards in a number of the market leaders. People Gas fell 1⅛ and corn products preferred and American Car preferred, 1. The realizing was well absorbed and recoveries followed. Locomotive rose 2. The closing was firm and dull.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Very dull and featureless market today, with trading light and market inclined to sag. Amalgamated was strong up to within half hour before the close, when it declined quickly to 103⅝. At one time today there was heavy buying of Amalgamated in Boston market at 105 from New York, but the stock was unable to hold the advance. Raven was weak on curb with sales at 1⅝. Nothing in sight yet to change present conditions of market.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Minneapolis, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word was received here today of the death in Tacoma, Wash., yesterday, of Gregor Menzel, head of the Menzel foundry at that city, and one of the most representative men of the state. Mr. Menzel was born in Prussia and came to Minneapolis, in 1870.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 19.—Robert McMillen, one of the most prominent and wealthy manufacturers of Oshkosh, died last night at his home, after a long illness of lung trouble. He was president of the R. McMillen Co. of Oshkosh, a sash and door company and also vice president of the Fox River Paper company of Appleton. His father was the late Robert McMillen, who was a pioneer lumberman of this city.

SPEAKER SENDS WITTY REPLY TO A MINISTER.

Washington, June 19.—Rev. Henry Colman of Milwaukee is greatly stirred up over the course of the speaker in relation to the meat inspection and pure food bills. Today Speaker Cannon received the following from him:

"Though I have never in fifty years of voting supported the Democratic ticket, your course on the meat inspection and pure food bills turns me strongly toward the Democrats for relief."

To this the speaker in his characteristic way replied:

"When I was a boy on the Wabash the maxim ascribed to Davy Crockett, 'Be sure you're right, then go ahead,' was in universal use, I commend it to you."

SECRETARY HOUSER IS HELD FOR TRIAL.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—Secretary of State Walter L. Houser was today held for trial in the municipal court by Judge Donovan. Houser appeared in the court last week on a warrant issued on complaint of Insurance Commissioner Zeno M. Host in connection with an alleged bribe of $2,000, said to have been offered for the state Republican campaign if Host would render a favorable decision to the Equitable Life Assurance society in the case concerning distribution of dividends. Houser's bond was fixed at $2,000, which he furnished. The case will probably be tried late this month.

COMMITTEE APPROVES

Appropriation of $50,000 For Traveling Expenses of President.

Washington, June 19.—The house committee on appropriations today voted a favorable report on the Watson bill, authorizing an annual appropriation of $50,000 to pay the traveling expenses of the president of the United States and such guests as he may invite. Chairman Tawney was authorized to call the bill up, and a suspension of the rules and action probably will be secured tomorrow.

DIPLOMA FOR DEAD GIRL.

Chicago, June 19.—A pathetic feature of the Northwestern university commencement Thursday will be the presentation of the diploma of Miss Emma Patten, the senior who died three weeks ago, to her father, Prof. Amos W. Patten, head of the department of Biblical literature at the Evanston school.

Never before in the history of the school has such an incident occurred, but in view of the fact that she completed all her work while suffering from the illness which caused her death as well as her often-expressed desire that she might be graduated, the faculty voted to issue the diploma.

Two Aground at Lime Kilns.

Amherstburg, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While trying to enter Lime Kilns crossing during the heavy fog, the ore-laden steamer Amerika backed onto the east bank and is out eighteen inches. Tugs worked all morning without releasing the stranded steamer. Part of the cargo will have to be lightered.

The barge Manda, in tow of the steamer Rockefeller, collided with an unknown steamer while navigating the lower Lime Kilns in the fog at 2 o'clock this morning. About thirty feet of the rail and bulwarks were injured and the vessel was forced aground. The tug Home Rule is working on the boat, but it is thought she will have to be lightered.

Fog Causes Heavy Losses.

Chicago, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dense fogs which have prevailed over the upper lakes for a fortnight past are adding very heavily to the insurance losses. For the past five days the straits of Mackinac, the Soo passage and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers have been covered by dense fog banks during at least a portion of the day. Three vessels were reported ashore this morning on account of the fog. The most serious losses so far have been the sinking of the steamer John Duncan by the Anchor liner Lehigh near the Manitous, Lake Michigan, and the collision between the steamers Steel King and Manchester off Harbor beach, Lake Huron. An underwriter estimated the loss directly due to fog the past few weeks at $250,000.

DRUIDISM GATHERING

Grand Grove is in Annual Convention in Duluth.

Reports Read at First Session—Degree Work and Banquet.

Minnesota Druidism is meeting today in annual convention in Duluth. The affair is being held in Eagles hall and everything is done in secret session. Fifty-six delegates are in attendance and the convention is hard at work. The Minnesota delegations come from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Duluth, Virginia, Hibbing, Crookston, Watertown, Winona, Lewiston, Barnesville, Two Harbors, and Litchfield. Buffalo, Minn., is also entitled to delegates but has sent none as yet although some may come before the sessions are ended which will be tomorrow afternoon or night.

A good many other Druids besides the delegates are in the city and it is expected that fully 100 visitors of this order will be here by this evening. A special car containing the degree team of Myrtle Grove, of Minneapolis, and others of the Minneapolis lodges arrived here this morning and some excellent work will be done. Three sessions will be the result of today's work. The Druids met this morning at 10 o'clock, are meeting this afternoon and will meet again tonight. This evening work on the second degree will be exemplified on a class of fifteen candidates. The Minneapolis degree team mentioned will have charge of the proceedings tonight. Tomorrow further business will be transacted and in the afternoon a boat ride will be taken and in the evening a banquet will be held.

The Noble and Ancient Order of Druids, it is claimed, is the oldest secret order in the world, not barring even the Masons. It is claimed to have been founded fully 2,000 years before Christ, and is founded on the rites of the Druid priests of ancient times. The legislators and priests of that time formed the order, which was handed down, and was well known among the Britons at the time the Romans invaded and conquered the British isles. The Romans then stole the ceremonials, and formed an order of their own. Later Druidism was re-established in England, and has been continued in the old form until 125 years ago, when it was reorganized into modern form. On May 6 of this year the British Druids celebrated the 125th anniversary of reorganization. It is claimed that the Druids were the first of all organizations to teach belief in a supreme being, in spite of the fact that Druids of old have been looked upon by moderns as almost heathen.

At this morning's session of the grand grove, the reports of officers were received, those making reports being Noble Grand Arch J. F. Kremer of Winona, Noble Grand Secretary George A. Johnson of St. Paul, Noble Grand Treasurer Fred Down of Minneapolis, the finance commitee, consisting of A. T. Larson of Minneapolis, William Marquardt of St. Paul and Dr. C. C. Miller of St. Paul, and the representatives to the supreme grove, who are A. J. Smith of Winona and W. B. Boyd of St. Paul. The substance of the reports is that in the widows and orphans' fund of the grand grove there was collected during the past year $29,632.34, and disbursed $26,270.75, and that the total collected for every fund was $43,646.88, and expended in them $39,618.56; and that at present all told the grand grove has $8,953.22 on hand. Between 500 and 600 new members were received within the past year in Minnesota, and the net increase is almost 400.

A number of resolutions and proposed changes of by-laws were introduced this morning, all of which have been referred to committees and will be reported on later. The election of officers will take place tomorrow. It is expected that the present officers will be re-elected. These are:

Past noble grand arch, Dr. C. C. Miller; noble grand arch, J. F. Kremer; deputy grand arch, A. W. Harris; grand secretary, George A. Johnson; grand treasurer, Fred Down; grand marshal, M. Imbertson; grand herald, F. Rudberg; grand guard, Peter Nelson. The representatives to the grand grove present this morning were:

RAILROADS ARE AFTER GOOD TIME

G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Members Holding Their Meeting in Duluth.

"Bill" Bailey Arrested—Program of Toasts for Banquet.

The Get As Much Business As You Can club is meeting in Duluth today. At noon ninety-four members were registered. They are here to have a good time, and are having it, despite the unfavorable attitude the weather man has taken. This morning they went for a bouvelard drive, seven tally-hos of them, and they didn't appear to care because the sun was obscured by threatening clouds. But at Fourteenth avenue East it rained, and they returned to the hotel. This afternoon they are enjoying an excursion on the steamer America, and the weather be hanged.

The express purpose of this railroad men's organization, is the promotion of goodfellowship. No business is ever transacted at its meetings, except for the election of officers, and that takes very little time. The gatherings are for pleasure only, and while the members get together only once a year, many of them coming long distances to get here, they are pretty apt to enjoy themselves while in the city, rain or shine, for all of them seem to be thus happily constituted. The full membership is not here yet, and probably will not be, because there are many who cannot leave their regular duties, but more will arrive this afternoon and tonight. By tomorrow morning from 130 to 150 names should be on the register. Most of the members are district or traveling freight and passenger agents.

F. D LYON,
President of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Club.

Headquarters have been established in parlor X at the Spalding, and there the vistors register and are provided with badges immediately upon their arrival in the city. They are also provided with caps. Any one wearing a small black cap and a purple and gold badge may be set down as a member of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club.

The fun began around headquarters early this morning. Everybody was glad to see everybody else. "Bill" Bailey, Northwestern passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville was at work on a system whereby he expected to make some of his friends pay all his expenses while in the city, greatly to the amusement of the merry crowd of onlookers, when in walked a policeman and placed him under arrest, on the grounds that he was obtaining money under false pretenses. The man who had put the cop wise could not be found.

"Bill" entered a vigorous protest, and said there was no false pretense about it, for his intentions were plain enough from the start, but the man in the blue coat couldn't see his way clear to release his prisoner. He said that while the intentions were clear enough to the average man, they should have been announced in the first place, so as to allow the inexperienced an opportunity to protect themselves. Mr. Bailey was led away, still protesting, amid howls of joy from the others in the room. He returned in ten minutes, not much the worse for wear ,and was warmly congratulated on his escape. He ordered the doors locked, and was for starting in to get revenge, when the tally-ho drive was announced.

Before the America returns to port this afternoon a planked whitefish dinner will be served on board. The Third Regiment band is along. Tomorrow morning an excursion to Hibbing is scheduled. A special train will leave over the Missabe road, at 8:15 a. m., returning at 5 p. m. The Duluth Commercial club will serve lunch on the train. Supper will be served at the Spalding hotel at 6 o'clock, and this will wind up the meeting. A program of toasts will be responded to.

W. S. CHADWICK,
Secretary Treasurer of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Club.

W. S. Chadwick will act as toastmaster, it is rumored. F. T. Lally, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, with headquarters at St. Paul, will speak on "How to Bring Out the Best There is in a Man." F. M. Rugg, Northwestern passenger agent of the same road, and familiarly known as "Oriental" Rugg, has been assigned "A Practical Demonstration of the Art of Terpsichore as it is Practiced in the Far East" as a subject. W. L. Hathaway, district passenger agent of the Rock Island, with headquarters at Minneapolis, and better known as "Baptist Bill," will tell "Why a Railroad Man Should Go to Church." "The Purity of Lake Superior's Water" will be handled in an interesting manner by L. K. McConnell, traveling passenger agent of the Milwaukee road. "The Dice Evil" and "What I Think of the Duluth Force" will be two subjects allotted Bill Bailey. Advance copies of the latter address have not been furnished the press. Mr. Bailey says he has given the topic so much thought and consideration that it will be unnecessary for him to prepare it before hand. That is only one reason why he does not want his remarks published, however. W. S. Chadwick, aside from being toastmaster, will himself respond to the toast, "The Cartoonist as an Aid to Fame." F. D. Lyon, president of the association, will speak on "The Attainment of Happiness Under Adverse Circumstances."

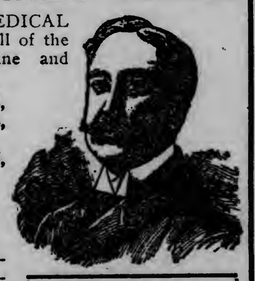

The weather man says tomorrow will probably be a nice day.

Following is a list of those who have registered up to an early hour this afternoon:

In addition to those named above there are several honorary members in Duluth, including representatives of the News Tribune and Evening Herald, A. W. Kuehnow, manager of the Duluth base ball team, Chief of Police Troyer, Chief Black of the fire department, James Sullivan of the Board of Trade livery and H. E. Stewart of the Stewart Transfer company. The boulevard drive this morning was complimentary on the part of the last named gentlemen. When Mr. Stewart came to register he found his name already on the book. Investigation showed, however, that the signature was that of H. E. Stewart of Houghton, Mich., general agent of the Milwaukee. It is rather a strange coincidence that the two names, whose owners are unacquainted with each other, should be registered one directly below the other.

VOLIVA SHOWS LOSSES OF ZION CITY INDUSTRIES TO HAVE BEEN ENORMOUS

Present Manager Appears for Defense Before Judge Landis.

Says Zion Bank Has $500,000 Deposits, But No Funds.

Found Many People on the Verge of Starvation.

Chicago, June 20.—Wilbur G. Voliva, the present head of Zion City, who succeeded Dowie as manager of the city and its properties, was the first witness today for the defense in the hearing now going on before Judge Landis, in the federal court, to determine the rightful manager of the city and its interests. Voliva testified that when he assumed control of Zion City he found in the candy industry a paid up stock of $155,000, an actual investment of $18,000 and a total operating loss, up to Jan. 31, 1906, of $93,000. In the Supply Manufacturing association, invested in stock, $257,000; amount actually invested, $22,000; total loss in operation, $249,000. In the lace industry, paid on the stock, $2,824,000; actually invested, $415,000; operating loss, $1,200,000.

Losses on the other industries were, on Jan. 31, 1906, as follows:

Food supply, $27,000; railway construction, $4,000; printing houses, $450,000; hotels, $173,000; transportation, $11,000.

"Zion City bank," said witness, "has deposits amounting to $500,000, but not one dollar in the bank to pay any of the $500,000. Every day there was a long line of people in front of the bank looking for their money. Some of them would get 50 cents, some 75 cents, and some nothing at all. Everyone of the people had $1,000 or more on deposit. I found that $2,000,000 had been diverted, and that the losses of operating the different industries up to that time amounted to $2,525,800.

"I found that the laboring men were receiving only enough to exist on, and their pay was far behind. Many of them were paid in coupons, and when I assumed the management, about $30,000 in these coupons was outstanding. I found many people on the verge of starvation, notably a Mr. Haskins, who had an annual income in Australia of $5,000. I gave him a ton of coal and food to keep him alive."

ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Subsidiary Companies to the Tobacco Trust Make Answer.

New York, June 20.—Pleas of not guilty of conspiracy and unlawful combination for the restraint of trade was entered in the United States circuit court today by Karl Jungbluth, president of the J. S. Young company, as individuals and the two companies named as corporations. The two individual defendants were held in $5,000 bail each, and all the defendants were given until July 9 to file demurrers on motions to dismiss the indictments.

The two firms named in the indictments are subsidiary companies of the American Tobacco company. The indictments were returned last Monday by a United States grand jury, which long had been engaged in an investigation into the so-called tobacco trust.

It is alleged that the defendants by combination and agreement sought to control the licorice paste supply, which is used in the manufacture of plug tobacco.

ALL HIS RIBS BROKEN.

Albert Rung of Madison, Minn., Dies From His Injuries.

Crookston, Minn., June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert Rung of Madison, Minn., who was struck by a freight train at Hixon and brought to this city last evening, died at 1:30 this morning at St. Vincent hospital. He was 40 years of age and a stranger here. It is supposed he fell from a train. All his ribs were broken and he had three scalp wounds.

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOARDS TRAIN AND TAKES RIDE.

Mankato, Minn., June 20.—The 2-year old son of Thomas Davidson, president of the Minnesota Funeral Directors' association, slipped away from home and boarded a Milwaukee road passenger train, south-bound. The conductor saw him, but supposed he belonged to someone on the train until an inquiry was made. A young lady passenger recognized the little fellow and took him off with her at Good Thunder. His parents were notified and he was returned on the next train.

EXPLOSION OF RESIN.

Red Wing, Minn., June 20.—A pailful of resin, placed on a stove in the tin shop in the third story of Johns & Augustine's hardware store, exploded yesterday morning. The walls and ceiling were demolished by the force of the explosion. Nobody was injured. The fire department put out the blaze.

EVADES CENSOR

Correspondent Gets Out Story of Outrages at Bialystok.

Believed That No More Outbreaks Will be Allowed.

Grodno, Russia, June 20.—Owing to the refusal of the censor at Bialystok to permit the free telegraphing of the result of the investigation of the massacre of Jews there, the correspondent of the Associated Press came here. The anti-Jewish rioting at Bialystok is now ended. The troops are in full control, and in view of the outcry raised it is certain that he authorities will not permit a renewal of the horrors recently witnessed at Bialystok.

This entire region is greatly excited owing to fear that the Bialystok massacre was only the signal for a general attack on the Jews throughout the pale and in Poland, but if any such conspiracy existed it is too late to carry out the plans, as the most imperative orders to prevent further outbreaks have been issued to the governors and governor generals from St. Petersburg.

When the correspondent arrived at Bialystok, Sunday morning, the worst was already over, but on all sides there was revolting evidence of savage bestiality on the part of the blood-drunken mobs, who sacked and burned the Jewish houses, shops and stores. For seventy-two hours, with a slight abatement during the day time, the mad orgie of blood and pillage went on unchecked. The inhumanity displayed would have done credit to the Mongol hordes of Genghis Khan, in his conquests of China and Central Asia, early in the thirteenth century. At first police and troops urged on the mob, but finally, when dismayed by the bloody deeds accomplished, they reluctantly sought to obey the orders of their superiors to put an end to the work of the rapacious bands of roughs who were so far beyond control of the local forces that regiment after regiment had to be thrown into the city before order could be restored.

According to the investigation of the parliamentary commission, whose members were especially anxious to elucidate this point, M. Schepkin of Odessa, a member of the commission, said:

"We wished especially to bring home the responsibility to the government, if the massacre was organized in St. Petersburg. But our conclusions are that it was not planned in St. Petersburg. Neither do we find proof that Chief of Police Sheromotieff of Bialystok was a party to the plot. However, the responsibility of his subordinates, together with that of the rank and file of the police, and some of the military officers who fondly imagine that the odius system of Von Plehve and Trepoff has not ended, is clearly proven.

"We have failed to clear up whether a policeman or an anarchist threw the bomb. Our investigations only demonstrate that the real cause of this and similar tragedies is the position of the Jews which makes the ignorant Russians consider them to be pariahs outside the protection of the law. The Jews everywhere are now organizing societies for self defense, and as soon as they show the slightest resistance to persecution they will be treated by the troops and ignorant populace as revolutionists for whom a simple death is too good. Parliament must insist on the punishment of the guilty."

As proof of the charge that the massacre was prepared in advance, the Jews claim that the keepers of the government wine shops received notice the day before the outbreak to remove their cash from the shops to safer places.

The tales of atrocities committed are innumerable, and while some of them may be exaggerated, enough has been established to make almost anything creditable.

The mob seemed to delight in torturing the victims. Strips of flesh were cut from their bodies, children were snatched from their mother's arms and taken by the legs and brained on the pavement before the eyes of their parents. An old Jew was beheaded, and the ghastly trophy was carried all day at the end of a pike through the streets. In many cases the heads of victims were beaten to a jelly with stones.

At the Bialystok railroad station where the mob searched the trains for Jews, a rioter seized a 5-year-old girl by the throat and held her at arm's length until she strangled to death.

Little children seemed to take pleasure in pointing out the hiding places of the Jews. Mutilated corpses, swarming with flies, were left lying about the streets in some cases for days.

A badly injured Jewess in the hospital, describing the scenes, said:

"Hell was within human beings, and they enacted the role of demons," then the woman suddenly went into convulsions at the memory of the horrors she witnessed.

REGULARS DO BETTER

At North Dakota Republican Primaries Than Was Expected.

Insurgents More Successful With Candidates Than Delegates.

Fargo, N. D., June 20.—More complete returns from over the state up to noon today shows that the regular Republicans gained a greater victory at yesterday's primaries than was estimated last night. The certain vote for the regulars in the state convention is now placed at 348 out of 467. The anti-primary estimate was 300. The "insurgent" legislative candidates were more successful than the delegates to the convention, and a factional house will be more evenly divided, with the regulars in control. As a result of close votes in some counties there will be split delegations in the state convention, July 12. In Fargo, late returns from country precincts cut down the estimated lead of 600 to 200 for delegates, and the legislative candidates in the three districts of the county are about evenly divided.

REFUSES WRIT TO RICHARD IVENS

Will be Hanged on Friday Unless the Governor Interferes.

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—The supreme court today denied a writ of supercedas to Richard Ivens, sentenced to hang in Chicago next Friday, for the murder of Mrs. Franklin C. Hollister. Chief Justice Scott read the opinion of the court. The decision reviewed at some length the testimony, particularly dwelling on the confessions of Ivens, and said that there was nothing to show that Ivens had been unduly influenced to make the confessions, and that the evidence warranted the verdict of the jury. Ivens' attorney announced an intention to take the case to Governor Deneen and endeavor to secure a stay of execution until the state board of pardons can hear the case.

Chicago, June 20.—When told that the supreme court had refused him a stay of execution, Ivens at first refused to believe it. He stood with hands tightly clutching the bars of the cell, and was apparently very nervous.

"I won't believe it," he said. "I'll have to hear from my attorney before I'll believe it."

Jailer Whitman informed Ivens that he had received the same information.

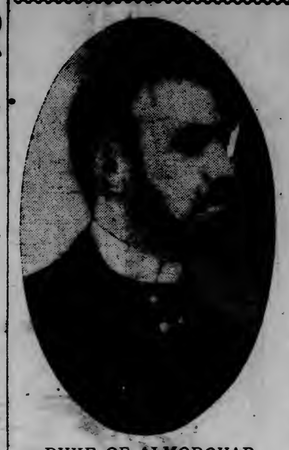

"Well," said Ivens, "I'll wait until I hear from my attorney."

His extreme nervousness was noticed by the jailer, who said:

"If you are satisfied of the truth of the report, are you ready for the outcome?"

"I have been here five months, and I guess I ought to be," replied Ivens.

AMERICAN FIRM HOLDS CONTRACT

To Supply Three British Military Stations With Meat.

London, June 20.—William Field, member of parliament for the St. Patrick's division of Dublin and champion of the British meat dealers who has been so actively questioning the ministers for the last week, in reply to a further question in the house today, elicited the information from War Secretary Haldane that "an American firm long established in the London meat market" holds contracts to supply meat to three military stations in the United Kingdom. These contracts do not include the supply of canned provisions, but occasionally preserved meat is issued from the army reserve stores in order to insure a turn over of the stock. The proportion of frozen mutton is not allowed to exceed two-sevenths of the mutton supplied to the troops.

The interest of Mr. Field in the meat question is undoubtedly due to the fact that he is in the provision business. He is president of the Irish Cattle Traders and Stock Owners association, vice president of the National Federation of Meat Trades of the United Kingdom, honorary secretary of the Dublin Victualler's association and governor of the Royal Irish veterinary college.

She declares that every time he became angry he would bring up the question of the mislaid socks, and that on various occasions he tried to shoot her.

LOSE LIVES IN TUNNEL

Serious Accident in Shield Under New York Harbor.

Two Men Blown Into River and Six Severely Hurt.

New York, June 20.—Two men lost their lives, another was fatally injured, and six more were severely hurt as a result of an accident in the Pennsylvania tunnel between Thirty-fourth street, this city, and Long Island City today. Twenty-four of the thirty-five men, who were at work in the tunnel at the time of the accident, escaped without serious injury, after having faced death by drowning.

The accident was caused by the tremendous air pressure necessary at the head of the tunnel to hold back the soft mud into which the shield is forced. The mud under this shield was blown out, and two of the workmen, who were caught in the flow of air, were swept to death in the river. When the heading was emptied of air, water rushed in through the opening and threatened to drown the survivors. In the struggle which followed between the workmen to escape from the chamber through the little door which connects with the finished part of the tunnel, several of them were severely hurt. Finally, however, the cooler heads among the men prevailed, and all of the survivors, either by their own efforts or the assistance of others, found safety in the completed tunnel. So rapidly did the water flow into the unfinished compartment that before the last man's turn came to pass through the little door he was standing neck deep in the water.

TRAIN WRECKED AT BROOKSTON

Engine Plunged Into Rear and Went Over an Embankment.

Brookston, Minn., June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 11:55 last night, engine No. 1509 and fifteen loaded ore cars were wrecked on the Great Northern, two miles west of Brookston. The ore train was standing on the grade and had just started up when engine 1509 plunged into the rear. The engine ran on the ties for 150 feet and went down a 24-foot embankment into the ditch. The caboose was demolished and burned. The engineer jumped, sustaining a sprained ankle. The fireman remained on the tender and was uninjured. The track was torn up for 300 feet. A wrecker came from Superior and cleared the track.

TEMPTING FATE.

A BAND OF PULAJANES CAPTURE TOWN ON LEYTE AND DESTROY RECORDS

Kill Five Policemen and Wound and Capture Remainder.

Three Hundred Bandits Swoop Down on Burauen.

Burning of Papers Most Serious Phase of the Raid.

Manila, June 20.—A band of 300 Pulajanes, under Caesrio Pastor, attacked the town of Burauen on the island of Leyte yesterday. They killed five policemen, wounded five, and captured the remainder of the force except the lieutenant, who was in command. Pastor, the leader, was killed during the encounter.

The attack occurred at an early hour in the morning. The police were caught unawares, and their sentinel was rushed from his post. The bandits then entered the tribunal, and a hand to hand fight took place. The police fought desperately, but were overcome by superior numbers.

The loss of the Pulajanes is believed to be great, but it cannot be estimated, as they carried off their dead and wounded after the fight.

The municipal records were taken from the tribunal, piled in the street, and burned. The destruction of these papers was one of the most serious phases of the raid, as they included deeds, licenses, receipts, etc. The safe containing the town funds was not destroyed. The bandits carried away the arms of the police, and a quantity of ammunition.

A detachment of constabulary under Lieut. Johnson immediately started in pursuit of the Pulajanes.

At the time the raid was made, Provincial Governor Veyra was in another part of the island securing evidence wanted by the pardons commission to obtain the release of prisoners in the Bilibid penitentiary.

EMBASSIES ARRIVING

To Attend Coronation of King Haakon at Trondhjem.

Old Norwegian Capital is Fast Filling With Visitors.

Trondhjem, Norway, June 20.—The French armored cruiser Admiral Aube, carrying the special French embassy to the coronation of King Haakon, arrived here this morning. Immediately after she reached the anchorage specially selected for the vessel, her guns awakened the echoes of the Fiord with a salute. She then "dressed ship" and the Norwegian men-of-war and shore batteries answered her salute.

A spanking breeze swept the harbor, causing the flags and bunting to flutter in a lively fashion and raising a sea in which the launches and cutters were tossed about like corks. But in spite of the breeze a dense fog prevailed near the entrance of the Fiord and delayed the arrival of the other warships and steamers, including the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, having on board the prince and princess of Wales, and convoyed by the cruisers Juno and Talbot. These vessels are anchored outside the Fiord, but will not arrive at Trondhjem until the afternoon.

The members of the French embassy landed at 11 o'clock this morning. They were received by officers of the royal household, were given a guard of honor and were driven to the palace where King Haakon received the embassy and thanked them and their nation for their presence here on the occasion of his coronation. The leading members of the Norwegian cabinet, headed by Premier Michelsen, will leave Christiania today for Trondhjem.

Maj. Willam W. Gibson, the American military attache at St. Petersburg, arrived here today to attend the coronation.

Trondhjem continues to fill with visitors, and crowds throng the streets. The palace and cathedral are the centers of interest.

BIG TREES TO BE PURCHASED

Government Surveyors Begin Work in the Calaveras Grove.

Stockton, Cal., June 20.—It is stated that a force of nine men with United States Forest Engineer E. J. Plummer will begin making a survey of the south grove of the Calaveras big trees, in Calaveres county, for the government, which will purchase the trees for a national park or preserve. It is expected that it will take about three weeks or a month to complete the work, which will determine the stumpage, as lumbermen term it.

Last summer what is known as the home grove was surveyed, and an estimate made of the timber, so that the government could place a price on the trees. The owner of this fine forest, Robert B. Whiteside of Duluth, Minn., offered to sell it to the government at a certain figure, but the price was considered too high by some of the officials, and it was suggested that data be secured by a survey such as lumbermen make to determine from a commercial standpoint.

It is understood that the figures secured last year have shown that the price set upon the big trees was far less than they would bring if sold to a sawmill, but the government determined to continue the survey until both groves were averaged by experts who are familiar with this kind of work.

The big trees are one of the wonders of the world, and at one time it was reported that they had been sold to a company, and would be turned into lumber. This caused a big protest from all over the West, and particularly in Northern California. Steps were taken at once to have this famous grove turned into a national park, but it will probably be three years yet before this can be accomplished, even if the owners and government come to terms.

LOS ANGELES HAS A BAD MORNING FIRE.

Los Angeles, June 20.—Fire broke out early today in the two story brick building occupied by the hardware firm of Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson, on Los Angeles street, and raged for more than two hours before it was finally quelled by the fire department, which turned out in full force in response to three alarms. The building where the blaze started, is situated in the heart of the wholesale district and in the immediate vicinity are oil concerns which miraculously escaped from the flames. For a time the entire block extending from Commercial street to East Market street on Los Angeles street was endangered and occupants of resorts and cheap lodging houses situated in the proximity fled for safety. The building occupied by Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson was completely gutted. The loss is roughly estimated at $150,000.

INSISTS SHE IS INNOCENT

Mrs. Myers Says Hottman Could Save Her If He Would.

Liberty, Mo., June 20.—Mrs. Aggie Myers convicted of killing her husband, Clarence Myers, and to whom Governor Folk has promised to grant a respite, talked in her cell here last night of her case. She had regained her composure following the announcement that the state supreme court had denied her a new trial.

"I am truly thankful," said Mrs. Myers, "to the governor for giving me additional time in which to take the few legal measures remaining. If every legal measure fails and the good women of Missouri and the newspapers who are endeavoring to secure a commutation of my sentence are unsuccessful, then I will mount the scaffold and pay the penalty of the people's prejudice without fear of the future, for I am innocent of killing my husband, Clarence Myers, and Hottman knows it. He should tell the truth and prepare to meet his God with clean lips."

REPRIMAND BY COURT

Believed to Have Caused Death of Alderman at Easton, Pa.

Breininger returned to criminal court the case of an 7-year-old boy, who was accused of mischievousness, and the trial was set for yesterday. The court dismissed the lad, and severely scored the alderman, and those who were associated with him in the case. Breininger became greatly excited during the ordeal before the court, and it is thought that this was the cause of death.

FAIRY BOATS

By Agnes Grozier Herbertson.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The sun was beating hotly down upon the wide stretch of yellow sand. Ladies in bright costumes reclined under gay parasols and talked intermittently, not of the beauties of the sea, but of the glories of the towns they had left behind them.

In one of the shady places under the rocks a man reclined languidly. He was not sleeping or reading or watching the gay crowd before him. His eyes, set in a haggard face, were gazing out towards the sea with a listless expression.

The morning passed slowly as he lay there, and the crowd on the sands began to thin.

Just upon the rim of the shadow within which the man rested law a rounded, gray-white stone. Towards this a small child, whose feet and legs were still shining and wet with the warm sea water, made her way with a shout of happy glee; and the man sighed.

He glanced at the small intruder with some annoyance visible upon his face, but she was not noticing. She had seated herself upon the stone, and all her attention was given to the task of disentangling a pair of long black stockings which were twisted about her neck. He looked away again and became once more lost in his own thoughts. Then came a small, grumbling voice with the suspicion of a tremor in it.

"If you weren't dreffful unpolite, you would help a little girl," it ran. "Only dreffful unpolite people don't help little girls."

It was some few seconds before the man realized that she was talking to him. Then he turned his head and caught a vision of a pair of reproachful blue eyes on the point of tears. He muttered an exclamation and, half rising, set about the task of entanglement. When he had finished he began to cough, and the cough shook him through and through. He leaned back panting against the rocks.

The owner of the blue eyes paused in the act of pulling on a black stocking to look at him doubtfully.

"You coughs very hard. Haven't you any candy?" she asked.

He smiled. "No, I'm afraid I haven't."

"I haven't, either now. I eated all mine, or I'd give you half to make you better." She put on her shoe and tied the laces in a one-sided knot. "Well, you can easily get some, can't you, in the stores?"

"Quite easily."

"Can't I make nice bows?" She tied the laces of her second shoe with hot and somewhat dirty fingers, and eyed the result with a fond pride.

"Very nice," said the man absently. He was not looking at them, but she did not notice. She did not resent the absent tone, either, being too absorbed in the contemplation of her footgear.

"'Pisn't a bit easy to tie bows, now—not since I've growed so much. I growed all this much since Christmas." She indicated on a sturdy black-stockinged leg a space of about three inches. Her tone held a subtle expectation of his astonishment.

The man was coughing again. When he could find his voice, he said, "Really!" with quite the requisite note of awe in his voice, and she rippled into a gleeful laugh.

"Just you wait till I've growed all I've got in me! Then you'll be s'prised." She laughed again at the thought of it. "I'm going to be 'mense big. You can, if you're good, you know."

"I shouldn't wonder," said he.

"You're very big!" she drew a long breath. "I s'pose you're dreffful good. What makes you all like—bony? 'Cause you growed too fast?"

He laughed a little bitterly. "I suppose that must have been it."

The child looked at him earnestly. She wondered vaguely what he was looking at and why he seemed so sad. The answers to the questions were beyond her. She supposed he did not like being so very bony; but she felt there was something else the matter. She put a tiny hand out and touched him.

"I'm Bess, and I'm 6," she said wistfully.

"Indeed!" said he, somewhat amused. He pressed a hand to his side to stifle a laugh, but soon the smile faded from his lips. "I'm Langham, and I'm very much older than 6, Bess," he said, after a pause.

Bess clasped her hands in front of one knee, and her brows puckered. "When I broked my doll, I was horrid sorry," she said. "I s'pose you haven't got no doll?"

"No."

"When I eated all my candy, too, I cried hard—once. P'r'aps—p'r'aps—you've eated all your candy."

"You've hit it, Bess, this time. That's just it. I've eated all my candy."

"There's more—in the shops."

"You're right—so there is." A shadow came into the man's eyes. That was just the bitter part of it; there were more sweets in the shops, but not for him—not for him.

Bess went back to her seat. A steamer was passing over the water to the pier, and her attention was caught by it. "Do steaming-boats go to bed at night?" she inquired abruptly.

"I don't know. No, I don't think they do. Of course they do not."

"It would be a dreffful big bed. I s'pose the shops hadn't any big enough, so they couldn't have none," said Bess, thoughtfully. Then her mood changed. She crushed her wide hat down over her ears and laughed out at him from under the improvised bonnet. "When the sun shines—hard, then I do this," she said. "What do you do?"

"Grin and bear it," said Langham, carelessly. Then he caught her puzzled glance and reproached himself. "I come here, Bess, and lie in the shade, as you see. It's the best plan."

"'Tis' dreffful dull. Don't you ever play yourself?" The childish eyes almost held pain at the thought of his dullness.

"Oh, yes, of course—what am I thinking about! You never saw anyone play as I do. Why, I play at heaps of things!"

"What first?" asked Bess, the inexorable.

Langham cudgeled his brains. "Oh, Curiosity, thy name is Woman," he muttered. A struggle to repress the laughter which he felt would offend the small Miss Dignity beside him brought but another fit of coughing. When it was over, "Well, I make fairy boats, to begin with," was his declaration.

The rejoinder was inevitable. "Make some now," commanded Bess.

The man's hand went weakly to his pocket. He brought out a letter and shook it out of its envelope. The two sheets of notepaper were yellow and a little worn. He looked at them for a moment. Then he folded a sheet in two. Bess forsook her seat and crept over the sand to watch. She dug a little elbow into his chest to steady herself, and he bit his lips and then panted; but he did not ask her to move it. As best he could, he fashioned a boat out of paper, and as he did so there came a rush of remembrance of his own childish days, and his fingers trembled.

"It takes a dreffful long time to make a boat," complained the small maid, with a sigh; and "It does," said the boatmaker, with a sigh not less deep than hers.

At last it was made and Bess clapped her hands with delight. The boat had a charming sail in the middle of it, and looked quite real, and was beautifully light. There was a little space underneath into which you poke your little finger, and so hold the interesting vessel up to view. Then there was some writing on one side which looked just like the name, Bess said. Her little form quivered with glee. She was in raptures. "Now I'll go right down and sail it," she cried, shrilly. "I can quite easy put my finger underneath it and hold it a weeny, weeny bit. It won't know."

Langham shook his head. "It won't do, Bess. It won't sail on the sea, you know. My boats never do sail." The last sentence was spoken under his breath, but Bess' ears were sharp, and she heard it. She dug her elbow in a little deeper. "Never mind, it looks nice," she said, comfortingly.

Presently another thought came to her. She patted the tiny craft with a loving forefinger. "Of course the fairies sail in it; I almost forgetted. When you're asleep—sound—then they come—heaps—an' sail, an' sail, an' sail—"

"And where do they sail to?' asked the man.

"I don't know," said Bess, dreamily. "Somewhere dreffful good, I expec'," she said, after a pause, and she took up the little yellow-white boat and kissed it.

Then she was surprised; for the boatmaker lifted his head and kissed her; but she did not mind. She threw her arms around his neck and hugged him; and when she had finished his eyes were wet as if with the bright sea-brine.

Then she started to her feet. "There's nurse now, and she's looking—that's for me. You must take care—heaps—of the fairy boat till tomorrow-day, and watch. Then you can tell, when I've comed, how the fairies sail in it. 'Cause I'm coming tomorrow-day, an' the next, an' the next, an' you must make heaps of fairy boats. O course, you must be dreffful careful the fairies don't see you watching, you know!"

Langham had recovered his breath by the time she had stated her intention and instructed him in his duties.

She turned when a few yards away and kissed her hand to him. "I'll be sure an' come tomorrow-day," she cried; and her eyes said, "Be dreffful careful."

Langham lay and looked at the little boat. A fairy vessel it was—and fashioned from an old, old love-letter—of the woman who had married somebody else. He lay for a long time. Then he made a little hole in the sand and buried the fairy boat. "The last one," he muttered, "and they none of them sailed."

Well, perhaps, the fairies sailed in them. He would soon find out.

When at last he rose, it was with an effort and with a gray tinge about his lips. He looked along the yellow shore. A week since he had been able to crawl up and down it; today he had with difficulty managed to creep up slowly, slowly, to the shadow under the first rocks; tomorrow—

He raised his handkerchief in a vain endeavor to check a cough, and moved painfully away.

The morrow came to the shore, and with it Bess with her dancing curls. She searched every nook and cranny by the rocks, and then searched them again; but the fairy boat-maker was not there.

TIMOTHY HENNESSY DEAD.

Stillwater, Minn., June 20.—Timothy Hennessy, an eccentric and retired capitalist, is dead, aged about 77 years. He began logging on the St. Croix fifty-four years ago. Lately he lived at hotels. He never told much about his history and relatives. He had money in St. Paul and Stillwater banks. It is supposed that his nephew, Morgan Sheehy, lives in St. Paul, and other relatives live in Boston. His body will be kept a few days in the hopes of hearing from relatives.

BURLESQUE FOR DULUTH

Duluth is Not Cut Out of Circuit After All.

Empire Circuit Shows to Play at Metropolitan Next Season.

After all, Duluth is not to be cut out of the burlesque circuit. The Metropolitan Opera house will play in the Empire league of burlesque and vaudeville houses next season.

W. H. Longstreet has closed a contract with the circuit which entitles him to membership for ten years and insures the production of the Empire shows in his theater in Duluth for that length of time. For a time it looked as if this city would be cut off the list as were all the towns West of this city which were visited last season, but it was finally decided to include the Head of the Lakes.

All along, the Eastern burlesque magnates have wanted to include this city in the circuit but they were desirous of securing a contract with Longstreet which would net the companies playing the "Met" a larger percentage of the gross receipts than they got in the past. The Duluth man was unwilling to give up any more to them, however, and the matter hung fire for quite a time. Finally, they came to terms and Longstreet has gone into the Empire circuit for ten years.

The Metropolitan's season will open about August 19, and all the shows in the wheel" will play the house. Two hundred and fifty English "Pony ballet" and other dancing girls have been engaged and twenty-four European vaudeville novelties. Every effort is being made to strengthen the shows and make them of a higher class. The circuit has acquired three new theaters in New York city and with them come three shows belonging to Sullivan and Kraus, which have been leaders in the Columbia circuit.

The companies will jump from Minneapolis to Duluth and play St. Paul afterward. This will insure for this city just as square a deal as the other towns on the circuit get. There will be no cutting down as none of the companies will go to the Pacific coast. The coast trips were losing propositions last season.

Longstreet is preparing for a profitable season next year, and, with a ten year contract with the Empire people in his inside pocket, is looking very cheerful.

HIS SPECIALTY WAS OVERCOATS

Frank Chute is Given Sentence on Petty Larceny Charge.

Frank Chute, who is claimed by the police to be a confirmed sneak thief, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a charge of stealing an overcoat.

During the last few days the police have received reports of four or five stolen coats, and they have been trying to locate the thieves.

Yesterday Chute was seen trying to sell a coat for fifty cents, and was promptly placed under arrest. The police located the owner of the coat in one of the West Superior street hotels, and Chute was arraigned on the charge of petty larceny this morning. He entered a plea of not guilty, but the evidence against him was too strong, and he was fined $25 and costs with the alternative of spending thirty days in jail.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Hailstone at Bismarck Cuts Big Gash in Citizen's Head.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—The most remarkable hail and thunderstorm ever known in these parts passed over the city Monday. The lightning was severe and the thunder simply deafening. A light rain was followed by a fall of the largest hailstones on record. Many of them weighed from eight to twelve ounces and were from three to five inches in diameter, the avergae being as large as walnuts. Many windows were broken.

J. R. Clark, contractor in charge of construction work at Fort Lincoln, was driving to the city from the post when he was struck on the head by a hailstone and made unconscious. His horse then ran away, and in endeavoring to stop him a man named Murphy was trampled by the animal. Clark sustained a cut over the forehead, and the doctors are of the opinion he has a slight fracture of the skull. He is at the hospital.

Alex George and his wife of Wishek and Mrs. Chittle of this city were standing at an open window of the Home hotel when a blinding flash of lightning knocked them down. Mrs. George's arm was paralyzed and she was taken to a hospital. Mr. George was out of his head for a time. The house was not struck and there are no signs that the bolt struck in the vicinity.

The lightning struck the office of the Palladium, knocking off a chimney and damaging the roof.

There were several runaways and some very narrow escapes. Fortunately there was but little wind and the crops suffered little damage, though the hail whitened the ground. The worst of the storm passed to the north of the city.

Dickinson—Herbert Wood of St. Paul was drowned while bathing in Heart river at Dickinson. It is supposed that he was attacked by cramps. Two companions were with him, but could not reach him, as the body rose but once. The river was dragged and the body recovered in about two hours. Wood was about 22 and came from St. Paul last week to work in a cement-block factory. The remains are being sent to the family in St. Paul.

The crops could not be better. After a week of fine growing weather, rain fell again last night. Shearing is in full blast and will be rushed, being three weeks behind the usual time on account of the protracted rains.

Finley—Long & Peterson's hardware store was burglarized Monday night and about $300 of Waltham and Elgin watches and four revolvers and ammunition taken. Entrance was gained by prying open a back window of the tinshop. No clue as yet.

Lightning struck the St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator company's engine-room, displacing the brick on one corner. No further damage is reported.

Underwood—While hauling coal on his father's claim, Charles Brophy, 14 years old, fell from the wagon and was kicked to death by a horse.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sisseton—C. W. Martin, a farmer living in Minnesota township, 15 miles north of Sisseton, brought his wife and three children, aged 7, 5 and 3, to see the circus Monday and now they are all cold in death.

He started for home late at night and when attempting to cross the Little Minnesota river, near Bossco, he drove off the brink in the dark and the whole family and one of the horses were drowned.

The river was badly swollen by the recent rains. A searching party is now looking for the remains, and up to this writing the only body recovered is that of the 3-year-old child.

Milbank—The postage stamps stolen from the postoffice at Reville have been found in a straw stack, near Albee, a few miles from the scene of the robbery. About $90 worth of stamps were stolen from the Reville office, the safe being blown open and money and stamps taken. Two suspicious-looking strangers were supposed to have done the job.

George Friday of Albee was working around an old straw stack when he unearthed the stolen stamps and two drills that were used to bore into the safe. The stamps show signs of being smoked up by the powder explosion. They have been turned over to a postoffice inspector.

The postoffice at Brown Valley was robbed shortly aftbr the Reville office and the methods used in blowing the safe were identical and the description of the supposed robbers at Brown Valley fits the Reville suspects. It is supposed there are two men, and the postal authorities are using every effort to run them down.

Webster—While filling a gasoline stove, Mrs. George Hammerbacher allowed some of the fluid to run over into a pan beneath the stove. When she lighted the stove the oil in the pan caught fire and exploded the feed tank, throwing blazing oil over her clothing. She ran screaming into the yard and threw herself on the ground in an endeavor to extinguish the flames.

David McWilliams, a neighbor, was mowing grass in the next yard, and hearing her screams and seeing her danger, seized a huge armful of dewy grass, and with this succeeded in extinguishing the flames and saving her life. Mrs. Hammerbacher was badly burned about the arms and face, and her hair almost entirely burned off.

Mitchell—J. L. Quinn, William Moeller, John Zenphinning and A. P. Shaw of Parkston were in the city last evening on their way to Sioux Falls to be present at the hearing of the Kaufmann case. They had with them the clothes which the murdered girl had on when she was so brutally beaten, and they will be used in evidence at the examination, which will begin tomorrow. The men are thoroughly in earnest in their efforts to locate the person who committed the crime.

Sioux Falls—A sensation has been created in local Salvation Army circles by the involuntary retirement from office of Adjutant McKenzie, who for some time has been in charge of the Army in Sioux Falls.

The first inkling the public had of trouble was when Maj. J. G. Galley of Omaha, on a visit to the city, announced that Adjutant McKenzie was no longer identified with the Army, having been dropped from its roll of officers on account of not obeying and living up to the Army's discipline. He further announced that the adjutant is not authorized to solicit funds for, or in any way use the name of the Salvation Army.

Adjutant McKenzie will be succeeded by Ensign Thorpe of Kansas City, who is expected to arrive in Sioux Falls on Friday.

Woonsocket—As the result of a raid made by Sheriff Webber of Sanborn county, a "blindpig" which has caused the authorities of Forestburg much annoyance has been put out of business. Sheriff Webber arrested C. E. Cooper, the alleged proprietor.

Rapid City—The way car attached to a stock train on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad was overturned by a tornado near Fairburn. Several stockmen from Omaha, including L. F. Mitchell, J. Prosser and A. T. Cassell, were injured, but will recover.

CANCER RESULTS FATALLY.

Removal of Tongue Failed to Save Actor's Life.

Chicago, June 20.—Frederick L. Power, 40 years old, stage director of the Bush Temple theater, whose tongue was cut out last December, in order to check a cancerous growth, died Monday at his old home in Dowagiac, Mich., the operation having failed to check the progress of the disease.

Mr. Power had been in the theatrical business for twenty-seven years. His first metropolitan engagement as an actor was at Hooley's (now Power's) theater, with John T. Raymond, in the "Gilded Age," when he was twelve years old. He played in Richard Mansfield's and Walker Whitesides' companies and was leading man with Margaret Mather. He was best known in late years as a director of stock companies.

The cancerous growth, which required the amputation of the tongue, was a slow one, thought to have been caused by excessive smoking. While in Chicago, Mr. Power resided with his mother, Mrs. George Ober, herself an actress and writer of plays, who survives him.

Home Economics to be Taught in Chicago High Schools.

Chicago, June 20.—Every girl in the public high schools is to be taught how to feed a husband and three children on $5 a week and still have enough food left over to satisfy her own hunger.

Those who hold themselves to be immune from the matrimonial germ are to be taught how to keep bachelor quarters on what the sociologists call "starvation wages" without the danger of starving.

In the school rooms, too, the homemakers of tomorrow are to be taught parlor and table manners, how a hostess should act under all circumstances, how to go marketing, how to discriminate between pure and adulterated foods and a thousand and one other useful things which the school trustees believe every up-to-date housewife should know.

Instructions in all these differen branches of household economics is provided for in a new course in domestic science, provided by a committee of teachers and approved by the school management committee, which will be acted upon by the board of education at its meeting tonight.

TAMS BIXBY WILL BE IN GUBERNATORIAL RACE

Washington, June 20.—Sam Powell of Muskogee, I. T., tells the people of Washington that Tams Bixby, formerly of Minnesota, will probably capture the Republican nomination for governor of the new state of Oklahoma and that the political irons are already in the fire for that purpose.

Powell is the head of the territorial lobby which has been looking after statehood matters here for the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and presumably he knows what he is talking about. Robert Williams, national committeeman for Indian Territory, says he will be the Democratic nominee for governor and will be elected by 20,000 majority. He also asserts that the legislature will be solidly Democratic.

HANAN SHOES

Not only bill boards and Columbia ads praise the virtues of Hanan shoes, but every wearer is a volunteer advertiser.

From one end of the United States to the other, you can't find better shoes than Hanans.

The old reliable makers never sacrifice the quality in times of high leather prices as is done at present by a great many manufacturers.

Nothing but a guaranteed and solid quality of materials goes into a Hanan shoe, and they always excel in "Fit." No end of trouble is taken in making absolutely true and correct lasts. The consequence is that Hanan shoe customers can buy their shoes without renewed fitting, and without the dreaded torture of "breaking them in."

CAUSE OF MASSACRE

Of Jews at Bialystok is Being Carefully Investigated.

No Doubt Bomb Was Thrown at Corpus Christi Procession.

St. Petersburgq, June 20.—During the riots the Jews were hunted down by ferocious pursuers, who were not content with killing more victims, but tore them to pieces, like wild animals. And while this was in progress, the troops either stood idly by, or as was more frequently the case, fired into the houses and shops with their guns where Jews were concealed under the pretext that they believed them to be revolutionists, but really to make way for the murderers and plunderers who followed in the soldiers' wake.

While it is impossible to give the exact figures, the visits of the correspondent to the hospital and cemeteries enables him to approximate the killed at 100 Jews and 20 Christians, and the wounded at 150 Jews and 7 Christians.

The question of the origin of the massacre was carefully investigated. Although many of the Jews denied that a bomb was thrown at the Corpus Christi procession Thursday, the fact that a bomb was thrown is established beyond a doubt, but the question of who threw the bomb remains unsettled. The accounts of impartial witnesses, however, demonstrate that an insulting cry enraged the Jews, who attacked the religious procession. Then from one end of the city to the other the police spread the report of the attack, thus fanning the religious fanaticism of the Christians, and setting loose the worst elements upon the Jews, on whom the crowds watching the procession had already turned. The Jews at first fought with revolvers and bombs, and with their weapons the majority of the Christian victims were killed. But the Jews were soon overwhelmed and fled for shelter, like rabbits to warrens, into cellars or attics. The soldiers watched this chase and butchery, sometimes laughing with indifference, but never failing to fire into the houses where Jews, sometimes to the number of a hundred, were making a stand against their assailants. The soldiers said the Jews were revolutionists, and that was their excuse for firing on them. The authorities who wanted to do something to stop the massacre were, with the police and troops in open sympathy with the mob, utterly powerless.

Although it is freely charged that the higher authorities of Bialystok deliberately organized the massacre, or, if this was not the case, that it was carried out under orders from St. Petersburg, there is no evidence to support either charge.

MANY CENTURIES OLD.

Table Service, Dug Up Near Naples, Given to Museum.

Chicago, June 20.—Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair has presented to the Field Columbian museum a set of early Roman silver service dug up recently near Naples and believed to be at least nineteen centuries old. The antiquities, which number twenty individual pieces, are the only silver set of the date in America and are valued at a fabulous sum.

Recent excavations early last spring at the ancient city of Tivoli, now known as Tibur, revealed, among other important discoveries, this service, which probably is intact, with the exception of a small spoon.

Mrs. Blair, who was in Italy at the time, secured the entire service, and, on account of its great importance historically, decided to give it to the Field museum.

The silver, which arrived yesterday from Italy, consists of the following pieces:

One plate fifteen inches in diameter, decorated on the edge; three plates eight inches in diameter; three small, round dishes; one large cup, decorated around the top and bottom; one small, shell-shaped scoop; six large spoons and five small spoons.

People who are clean inside will look like it and act it. They will work with energy, think clearly, act clearly and have healthy thoughts. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It makes clean people. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

RUINED AND DISGRACED.

Former Prosperous Citizen of LaCrosse Takes His Own Life.

La Crosse, Wis., June 20.—Humiliated by the thought of his own condition, brooding over the recent death of his wife, and thinking of his son's disgrace, who is spending his time in the penitentiary, Lorenz Pepperi, aged 78, and at one time a prosperous citizen of La Crosse, committed suicide by leaping from a fire escape landing on the second floor of the county poor house, Monday.

Lorenz Pepperl's is a sad story. At one time he was considered a wealthy man, but as he grew older it was readily seen that his son was fast making ducks and drakes of the property. His affairs passed from bad to worse, and during the early part of the past winter, young Pepperl was arrested, tried and convicted of stealing his father's overcoat. He was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. It was then discovered that the old folks had no visible means of support, and they were taken to the poor farm. The mother soon sickened and died, and now the father ends his own life, leaving only the son, whose thefts broke up this family, serving his sentence at Waupaun.

DANGERS OF SOUTH SEAS

Were Braved By Massachusetts Captain and His Crew.

Sea Elephant Oil Was the Object of the Trip.

New Bedford, Mass., June 20.—Escaping the perils of being crushed between huge icebergs and being blown ashore on the inhospitable coasts of Kerguelen island, in the far Southern ocean, which few vessels visit in the course of several years, the staunch brig Daisy, Capt. B. D. Cleveland, sailed into port here and dropped her anchor at quarantine after an absence of eleven months and eighteen days.

Snugly stowed in her lower hold is 2,450 barrels of sea elephant oil. This beats Capt. Cleveland's trip in the bark Swallow to the same place, when he was gone eleven months and six days, but only brought back 1,800 barrels of oil that trip. The Daisy made a fine passage out and a quick trip home, and, taken altogether, it was a successful cruise.

"I could have brought home 600 barrels more than I have in the vessel," said Capt. Cleveland to a reporter, "but as we had lost one of our anchors in a gale and the season was getting late. I did not care to take the chances of trying to hold on in the heavy weather we had all the time with one anchor. Blow! We had the worst weather I have experienced in all my four trips to Desolation; nothing but a succession of heavy gales all the time."

The Daisy left this port June 6, last year, and, making a quick run across the Atlantic ocean to Cape Verde islands, she recruited a few Cape Verders and then started on her long passage to Desolation, and made a fairly good run of it down to the island.

She arrived at Table bay, where all of her hunting for the sea elephants was done, on Sept. 17. Capt. Cleveland is a worker, and his men fell into the spirit of the business under the good example set by their commander, and they went to work with a will.

The sea elephants were found in abundance, and it was no trouble in knocking them in over and getting a fair catch each day. The officers with Capt. Cleveland were old sea elephant hunters, and they soon coached the men how to do the work of killing and skinning and cutting up the blubber. The work was new to many of the men, who had been on sperm whaling voyages and knew all about getting blubber from the whale, but had to be taught to get the sea elephant blubber.

When the crew shipped at this port it was expected that the heavy work of rowing the whaleboats from the vessel to and from the elephant ground, a pull of some ten miles or more, would be done away with by the use of a powerful motor boat that was shipped on the Daisy.

The motor boat worked all right while in this harbor before the Daisy sailed, and an engineer, James Parr, was shipped to run the boat. But when the boat was taken out on the arrival of the Daisy at Table bay, it was found that the engineer could not get the motor to working, and as nobody else on the vessel knew anything about motor boats, the attempt had to be given up, and the boat was not used.

The men had the same old, long, tiresome pull from the anchorage ground of the brig near the head of the harbor to the end every day, when the weather allowed. Engineer Parr was sick after the Daisy arrived in Table bay, and on Oct. 15 he had a paralytic stroke and died a short time afterward, and was buried ashore. This was the only death during the cruise.

The Daisy was anchored near the head of the harbor, and, while Capt. Cleveland felt pretty sure of his anchors, the heavy and hard weather made him take all the precautions possible. Besides his two large anchors he ran four heavy lines ashore and made them fast around large boulders, but the force of the wind was so strong that all the lines were parted, one after the other.

The Daisy had her narrowest escape on Jan. 31. On the morning of that day the wind began to blow early, and by 7 a. m. it was fairly howling. All the crews were on deck, expecting that something was going to happen, and it did shortly after the gale was at its height. It was blowing with hurricane force, and the force of the wind proved to be too much for the starboard cable, which parted 35 fathoms from the anchor.

The port anchor held for a while, and then the ship began to drag toward the shore. It was a rocky coast line, and the crew all knew that if the Daisy once struck she would be ground to pieces like so much kindling wood. The Daisy surely, but slowly, dragged across the end of the harbor, the anchor allowing her to move slowly, but not bringing up. It was a terrible half-hour for the crew, with their vessel seemingly being blown to her destruction, but when within 200 yards of the rocks on the lee shore the Daisy got into a kelp bed, and the port anchor brought the vessel up.

On Jan. 17, the Daisy had been threatened with destruction of another kind. The constant and hard southwest winds had brought a quantity of icebergs up from the south into the waters surrounding Kerguelen island, and three very large bergs were blown directly into the harbor. On they came before the southerly winds, and some smaller bergs were chasing them up.

Capt. Cleveland had never seen any of the icebergs before in his four years at the island, and the crew thought the brig was doomed to be crushed by the bergs, which looked menacingly large to the inexperienced sailors. But the shallowness of the harbor entrance saved the brig, for the bergs grounded and were broken to pieces by the smaller bergs blown into them before they had a chance to seriously menace the Daisy.

Early in the season, while the three boats of the brig were bound up in the harbor to the grounds where the sea elephants pod, a sudden gale of wind overtook the craft, and all had to make for the shore in the quickest possible time. All were blown up on the beach, and the captain's boat, which was in charge of Boatsteerer Briggs, was badly stoven. The crews had a hard struggle in saving the other boats, on account of the rocky nature of the shore.

Capt. Cleveland saw three schools of sperm whales to the northward of the Gulf stream four days ago, in the vicinity of Hatteras. No whalers were in sight, probably being to the northward of where the whales were sighted.

Capt. Cleveland intended to visit some of the other harbors at Kerguelen island to get a full ship toward the end of the summer season in that latitude, but the loss of his anchor made him decide to remain at Table bay and take what he could in the time he had to stay.

All the men are high in the praise of Capt. Cleveland for his seamanship, and they say he got the Daisy out of her hard stay at the island in first class condition and made her come home in short time. The latter part of the passage was made in light airs, and considerable head wind was encountered.

An interesting incident is told in connection with the cruise of the Daisy. A week or two ago some person interested in the brig went to a fortune teller and asked some questions about the brig and the crew. The fortune teller said that the Daisy was all right, but a death had occurred on board. When the brig arrived it was found the prediction made was true.

Kerguelen or Desolation island and Heards island have been the principal hunting grounds for sea elephants. From these two islands during the last fifty years American sealing vessels have brought home some 250,000 barrels of oil and a considerable number of fur seal skins.

The sea elephant had been taken for a number of years by whalers before the vessels specially fitted for the work were sent out. The headquarters of the business was at New London, which place continued in the business up to within ten years, when it was taken up by New Bedford people.

The fishery at Desolation was begun by the Americans in earnest in 1837. Prior to that date English vessels had taken quantities of oil of that seal, but the Americans had taken no active part in the business.

At Heads island the fishing began in 1854. The two islands were usually worked together, Desolation in the colder months and Heards islands for a brief period in the Antarctic summer.

The islands are about 300 miles apart, in the Southern Indian ocean. Kerguelen island extends from lat. 48.39 to 49.44 south, and from long. 70.35 to 68.42 east. Heards island lies to the south and the east of Kerguelen, and in lat. 53.10 south and long. 53.30 east. Some twenty-five miles to the westward of Heards island, upon which seals are said to congregate in considerable numbers. But the shores are so precipitious that boats cannot land.

Kerguelen island was discovered in 1772 by M. de Kerguelen, a French navigator. He mistook it for a southern continent and so reported it to his government. A further examination was made in 1773 and the mistake discovered. About 1776 Capt. Cook visited the islands, but considered them of such little value or importance that he named the principal one of the group the "Island of Desolation."

Snow covers all of the higher hills, against which the abrupt outlines of their dark basaltic ridges are clearly defined.

Only along the shore is a narrow belt of herbage, of which the singular Kerguelen cabbage is at once the largest and most conspicuous component. The weather is also extremely inclement, there being scarcely a day without snow or rain. In former years Kerguelen has been noted as a famous breeding place for the sea elephants, and whalers frequented it on account of the great security of Three Island harbor.

The sea elephants have been killed off so recklessly year after year, no precautions having been taken to secure the preservation of the species, that they have become very rare.

Probably the sea elephants would have deserted Kerguelen long ago but for the fact that there is one inacsible stretch of beach coast, "Bonfire Beach," where they still "haul up" every spring (October and November) and breed in considerable numbers. The beach is limited at each end by precipiteous cliffs, across which it is quite impossible to transport oil in casks, nor can boats land from the sea or vessels lie in the offing, from the fact that the beach is on the west or windward side of the island and exposed to the full violence of the wind.

The increasing scarcity of the sea elephant, and consequent uncertainty in hunting it, together with the limited demand for the oil, caused a great falling off in the business of sea elephant hunting, which was only recently revived by Capt. Cleveland.

HARD LUCK SUITOR SUED.

Court Accepts His Excuses for Not Proposing to the Widow.

New York, June 20.—A Vienna cable to the Sun says: A rich widow at Koloczvar sued a wealthy landowner, named Szabo, for damaging her reputation by a long courtship without proposing marriage. The defendant admitted that he had courted the widow, but pleaded that fate had prevented him from proposing to her, and he told the court a touching hard luck story.

He said he had made strenuous efforts to ask the widow to marry him, but all were unsuccessful. The first time he was just on the point of proposing, when he stepped on the tail of the lady's pet dog. The consequences of this misdaventure so upset him that he did not dare suggest marriage.

Subsequently his courage again reached the sticking point, and he drove to the widow's house in a carriage drawn by four horses. He was determined that nothing should prevent him from proposing this time, but fate again reached out its hand, and his courage and determination availed him nothing. The carriage upset, and he was thrown into a muddy puddle. His plight caused his bravery to ooze, and he returned home to await a more favorable opportunity.

The third time he started to walk to the widow's, but heedless of the ill luck that is bound to follow such a foolhardy venture, attempted to pass under a painter's ladder. Fate again had its eye upon him, and just as he got under the ladder the painter upset a pot of green paint all over him. Szabo took this last warning to heart, and concluded that the widow was not for him. He produced witnesses to prove his statements, which the court accepted, and he was acquitted.

The committees of the Women's Council are busy with the various undertakings of this organization, and especially interesting at this time is the work of the cooking school committee, of which Mrs. A. H. Comstock is chairman, and the members of which are Mrs. A. M. Marshall, Mrs. T. D. Merrill, Mrs. F. E. House and Mrs. W. S. Bishop. The committee has secured nearly $200 for the maintenance of the school during the summer. All interested in the work are delighted that Mrs. Hugh McCurdy of Chicago is to return as instructor of the school.

Those who were interested in the work last year, the first year of the school, will remember that 120 young girls were received, each attending two classes a week. The school was in session during July and August, and the work accomplished was of incalculable benefit. The use of a room in the basement of the Adams school, on West Superior street, was allowed by the board of education, and was fitted out with gas stoves and cooking utensils for twenty pupils. The session this year will open soon after July 4, with Mrs. McCurdy in charge.

LEVY-ZALK.

Beautiful Ceremony Takes Place at Temple Emanuel.

One of the prettiest of the June weddings was that of Miss Estelle Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Levy, and Louis Zalk, which took place last evening at Temple Emanuel. The Temple was decorated in palms, smilax and daisies, and the ceremony took place at 5:30 o'clock. The setting for the service was very beautiful and with the pretty gowns of the wedding party made the affair one of the prettiest of the June weddings.

La Brosse's orchestra played the wedding music and at 5:30 the wedding party entered the church. The bridesmaids, were Miss Hattie Levy, Miss Marion Hirschman, of St. Paul, Miss Hilda Hirschman of Chicago, and Miss Eva Zalk, and, attired in dainty gowns of the rainbow shades and carrying daisies entered first. The ring bearer, Master Joy Hirschman of Chicago, followed bearing the ring on a smilax trimmed satin pillow and immediately preceding the bride with her father was the maid of honor, Miss May Levy. The groom with his best man, S. Y. Josephs, awaited the bride at the altar and the wedding service was read by Rabbi Mendel Silber. The orchestra played softly during the service. The bride wore a dainty gown of white silk mull trimmed in lace and a veil caught with clusters of lilies of the valley She carried a shower boquet of the same flowers. Her maid of honor wore a gown of white net and carried sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the St. Louis hotel. The decorations were daisies and smilax and covers were laid for sixty-five guests. In the evening a large reception was held at Steinway hall and during the receiving hours a large number of guests called.

Mr. and Mrs. Zalk left on the Tionesta for a three weeks' wedding trip. The bride's going away gown was of grey checked silk with coral trimmings and a hat to match. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Zalk will be at home on Park Point for the summer.

She played from memory a program including Bach, Beethoven, Grieg, Schuman, Chaminade and Chopin numbers, and especially in the group of four Chopin numbers, she was heard with much pleasure.

Assisting were three of the vocal pupils of Mrs. Murphy, and the Nevn and Hadley numbers sung by little Miss Olga Jensen ,the soprano solo by Miss Gertrude Wallace, and the tenor solo by Frank Penstermacher were all much enjoyed. A large audience was present.

The maid was gowned in delicate shade of blue and carried pink roses. After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, at 2320 Michigan street. Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley left on an evening train for a wedding trip. They will be at home after July 10 at Hibbing.

What Retail Markets Offer

Wild goose plums, 2 quarts for 25 cents.

California peaches, 50 cents a basket.

Black raspberries, 15 cents a quart box.

Spinach, 20 cents a peck.

Pig hocks, 10 cents a lb.

Delicious little wild plums, the first of the season, are in the market, and ought to make a desert that will remove all bitterness which may exist for any cause, such as hash, against the housekeeper. The pie cherries are in the market, and if you are not getting your full share of cherry pie, kick and kick hard, for you have a kick coming. The cherries are fine, reasonable and nothing on earth is quite so good as a chunck of cherry pie, that drips and drips with great gobs of delicious richness. The housekeeper who is not giving those who sit at her bounty cherry pie is lacking in hygienic cookery, and has a grudge against pies. Whatever the reason, exert yourself to the uttermost to get cherry pie.

The ptaches are remarkably fine for this time of year, and small baskets of nice pink ones may be got for 50 cents. The black raspberries are in the market, and the spinach is especially fine.

Delicious Ways Soft Shell Crabs Are Cooked

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Soft Shell Crabs.

Dear Mrs. Telford:

Will you kindly publish recipe for cooking, cleaning and serving soft shell crabs; and if it is not trespassing too much, may I have a recipe for potatoes au gratin?

MRS. J. B. S.

The fresher soft shelled crabs are from the water the better the taste. After twenty-four hours their shells harden. In selecting them choose the livellest specimens, plump and full. Pull off the sand bags and the feathery substance under the sides of the shell, using shears for that purpose; then wash and wipe dry. Season with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and fry about three minutes in very hot fat, putting in but two at a time. Many good cooks prefer to dip the crabs in egg, then in very fine crumbs before frying, but the majority of up-to-date to taste, and three tablespoonfuls of crumbs.

Broiled Crabs.

Another good way to serve crabs is to dip them in olive oil or melted butter, then serve with lemon on hot dry toast.

Cold With Sauce Tartare.

Cold, fried soft shell crabs make an appetizing luncheon dish served with sauce tartare. They may also be mixed with mayonnaise and dressed on lettuce for a salad.

Soft Shell Crabs a la Maitre d'Hotel.

Brush over half a dozen well washed and dried soft shell crabs with oil or butter, and broil over a clear fire about five minutes on each side. Serve on buttered toast or bread fried in butter, then spread with maitre d'hotel butter.

Crab Terrapin.

For one cupful of crab meat, minced fine, allow three-fourths of a cupful of rich milk or cream; one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, the yolks of two hard boiled eggs, salt and cayenne cooks advocate flour instead of egg and sherry. Scald the milk, put the butter in a saucepan, and when melted, add the flour. Stir until blended, add the hot milk and the sifted yolks of the eggs. Stir until smooth and creamy; add seasonings, meat and wine, and serve.

Crab Eracis.

Mix crab meat with rich white sauce, pack in the well washed shells and place in the oven until lightly browned.

Potatoes au Gratin.

Cut cold boiled potatoes into dice. Make a good cream sauce, using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and two cupfuls of hot milk. Season with salt and pepper, add the potatoes, spread smoothly in a buttered baking dish and cover the top with finely grated crumbs, grated cheese and dots of butter. Put in a hot oven, brown and serve in the dish in which they were baked.

Fruit Preserving.

Dear Mrs. Telford:—

Kindly let me know if I can do up all other fruits in water, the same as rhubarb?

A. S.

The cold water process of canning is only used with rhubarb, cranberries and green gooseberries. These are the only fruits in which no germs will live on account of their acid. With other fruits sugar is used as a preservative.

Caramel Pudding.

Dear Mrs. Telford:—

May I ask that you give a receipe for caramel pudding? I take a great deal of pleasure in reading and using your recipes, which are very reliable. I am

Very Respectfully,

MRS. MONTROSS.

Put into a frying pan one cup dry sugar and stir it until it turns yellow. Then add one-half cup water and stir until smooth. Cut out small squares of toast and push them down into the caramel. Set the pan over hot water where the caramel will keep hot while you make a custard. Beat two eggs lightly, add one cup milk, a saltspoonful salt and a level tablespoonful sugar. Cook until thickened. Put the caramel in a double boiler or chafing dish blazer, add the custard spoonful by spoonful, cover and cook fifteen or twenty minutes until custard is set.

Caramel Rice Pudding.

Wash one cupful rice through several waters, then put into a double boiler with five cupfuls milk, a pinch of salt and an inch piece stick cinnamon. Cover and cook two hours. Put a half cup sugar in a saucepan and melt over the fire. The moment it is liquid (and it must be closely watched) pour into a warm mold and tip up and down, letting the chocolate run so as to coat it all over. You will have to work quickly as in cooling the sugar hardens. As soon as the rice is tender add two well beaten eggs and a saltspoonful of salt, mix well and turn into the mould. Cover, stand in a pan of hot water, bake half an hour, take out, let it stand five or ten minutes, then turn out on a platter.

Caramel Custard.

Melt a quarter cup sugar in a pan until liquid and richly colored. Have ready one cup thin cream that has been brought to the boiling point, stir into it the hot caramel, add a saltspoonful salt, a teaspoonful vanilla, a quarter cup sugar and simmer gently until the caramel is absorbed. Cool, then mix with the well beaten yolks of four eggs. Turn into a dish for serving cover with a meringue made by beating the whites of the eggs until stiff, then folding in four tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. Flavor slightly with vanilla and caramel and spread over the top of the custard. Sprinkle with fine chopped almonds and set on a board in a coolish oven until the meringue rises, becomes firm and colors a golden brown.

Double Drowning Occurs in the River at Menominee.

Menominee.—While swimming in the Menominee river here Tuesday morning with three companions, Joseph Lezotte, aged 10, and Edward Meunier, aged 14, were drowned.

Meunier tried to save Lezotte and both went down, locked in a close embrace. Their bodies were recovered shortly after. The other boys escaped.

Calumet.—Isaiah Blythe, justice of the peace at Mass City, who became separated from a fishing party and lost in the woods, was found Tuesday morning. He had spent the night in the top of a tree with five timber wolves under him anxiously awaiting his descent.

Manistique.—At a Republican county convention held Monday afternoon George Holbein, W. H. Nelson, V. I. Hixson, C. G. Gunnarson were chosen delegates to the state convention. Contrary to the custom, delegates were also chosen to the congressional, senatorial and representative conventions yet to be called.

Norway.—Mrs. Oliver Belland attempted suicide Monday night by drinking bedbug poison. She recently married Belland, having been divorced from her first husband, Joseph Lawrence, who is serving a term in Marquette prison. It is expected she will recover.

Norway.—The 3-year-old son of Peter Solheim accidentally drank carbolic acid Monday afternoon, but he may recover.

Sault Ste. Marie.—The Port Royal Dock company of the Soo has leased from the Michigan Lake Superior Power company the latter's dock property lying east of the power house. A contract to furnish the South Shorle road with 20,000 tons of coal to be used during the coming year has been given to the Port Royal people. A big steel derrick has been built especially for the dock. It is expected to make the dock one for general merchandise as well as for coal, and while no extensive improvements will be made this year, it is the intention to later on erect large warehouses and hard coal sheds, and thus enable the company to compete for the coal business at many points on the railroads entering the Soo.

GAMES TODAY.
Winnipeg at Duluth.
Grand Forks at Calumet.
Fargo at Hancock.
Houghton at Lake Linden.

At the end of the first month of the pennant race in the Northern and Copper Country league, the contest appears to have developed into a three-cornered affair between the teams from the three big cities, Calumet, Duluth and Winnipeg.

The Maroons have been coming up with a rush during the last week, and they must now be counted on to figure in the fight for the flag.

Houghton, Hancock and Fargo appear to be on about even terms for the other first division place, while Lake Linden and Grand Forks are fighting it out for last place.

From the present outlook, however, the race lies between Calumet, Duluth and Winnipeg, with honors about even.

Duluth has struck rough sledding since the brief sojourn at the top, and has lost three straight games. Another defeat this afternoon by Winnipeg would put the Sox down in third place.

During the next two weeks Duluth has, if anything, a little the better of the schedule, playing the weaker teams in the league. Tomorrow a series of four games will be begun with Grand Forks, following which the Sox will leave for the Copper Country for three games at Hancock and two games at Lake Linden. Lake Linden will then come to Duluth for two games, and will be followed by Fargo for four games. The next fifteen games, therefore, will be played with the second division teams, and all but five of them on the home grounds.

Meanwhile, Winnipeg will be away from home for all but three games, and in the thirteen games played between now and July 4, three will be with Calumet, three with Houghton, three with Hancock, and the remainder with Grand Forks.

Between now and July 4, Calumet will have three games with Winnipeg, four games with Houghton, four with Fargo, and four with Lake Linden.

Both Winnipeg and Calumet, therefore, have to meet two first division teams before July 4, while Duluth will be playing with second division nines.

It is the chance of the season for the Sox to get a lead in the pennant race, and it is up to them to take advantage of it. If they play the kind of ball they did on the last home series, they will be leading the league by July 4.

NOT PITCHER'S FAULT.

Grand Forks' Poor Support Robbed Bushelman of Victory.

Calumet, Mich., June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bushelman, Grand Forks' crack pitcher, was robbed of a victory by his teammates yesterday afternoon, when the Browns helped the Aristocrats out by bunching three errors with the three singles which Bushelman allowed the Calumets to secure. Bushelman pitched fine ball all through. The three hits were scattered through three innings, and it looked for a time as though he had the game right in his grip.

In the meantime the Browns were hitting Morrison rather hard. Ten hits they secured, but only in the first inning were they able to bunch them at all, and after that, with men on bases, Morrison tightened up wonderfully.

The visitors started out the first inning as though they meant business. Ludwig, the first man up, went out on an easy grounder to Kaiser. Leighty came up next and hit safely to left. Miller did likewise and Tucker also rapped out a safe one. Slear, by a fine throw from left field to home, caught Leighty at the plate. Harris, the next man up, sent out a grounder to Kaiser, who juggled the ball, letting Miller get home and Tucker land on third. A safe hit to left by Lunderus sent Tucker scampering home. Morrison then steadied down, striking out Wilson.

Corrigan, the first man up for the Aristocrats, was given transportation to first. Leighty sacrificed and sent him to second, and he came home on Kaiser's long drive to center. In the third, Calumet tied the score, when Corrigan again circled the bases. Harris juggled a grounder which was sent his way, and Again Leahy sacrificed, sending Corrigan to second. The next ball pitched Ott let pass him, and Corrigan landed on third. A fine sacrifice by Bufka let the Calumet right fielder bring in another man. Neither side scored again until their eighth inning, when Leahy brought in the winning run.

In the fifth it looked as though the Browns would rap out a victory. With a man on third and only one out, things looked easy. The next two men, though, were easy outs. In the eighth Leahy sent a grounder to Wilson, but by the time he found the little sphere the Calumet catcher was safe on first. A minute later Wilson threw wild to first, letting Leahy reach second, and when Bufka rapped out a safe one to left, Leahy scored the winning run.

SPEISER VERY LAME.

Had Poor Control and Fargo Hammered Him Hard.

Houghton, Mich., June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Speiser didn't have a taing yesterday and Fred Stripp's convalescing invalids took advantage of the fact and pounded out a shut out victory. Singles, two-baggers and triples were sent out with alarming rapidity and when the slaughter was over, the Trolley Dodgers had 12 hits and 8 runs to their credit, while the total of the Hancock run column was nil.

Speiser had no fine points to work and the only thing he could do was throw balls, or put it in the groove. As a result of the former tendency, he passed six men, and the hits made by the Fargo men tell the story of what they did to the nice ones sent down the alley. Stripp's men batted like fiends and when hits were needed, they were forthcoming every time. They started in the first inning when two men were down and a two bagger by Stripp, a triple by Rose and a single by Dolan followed in quick succession, scoring two runs. In the fifth, Fitzgerald walked, Grogan hit safely and Stripp sacrificed Fitz in. Then Rose was on deck again with his three bagger, scoring Grogan and he himself scored on Dolan's single. Speiser's wildness cost him two runs in the ninth, when he passed two men, who scored on Dolan's double.

Rose carried off the batting honors with two triples at oportune times, while Dolan fougat hard for the honor, by cracking out two singles and a double. Fargo won on clean hitting and Speiser's wildness, Monahan's error not counting in the run-getting.

Pat Flannigan was working for Fargo and he had the Climbers where he wanted them. Four singles scattered through as many innings were all the Patriots secured and only two men saw second base during the whole game. His support was perfect and Wreath's men never had a chance to win the game, and when there was any danger of their scoring, Finnegan was closer with his hits than Russell Sage with his money.

WILL BEGIN THIS WEEK

Regular Yacht Racing Season Will Start Next Saturday.

Three Classes of Boats Will Enter Pennant Series.

The Duluth Yacht club will inaugurate its regular racing season next Saturday afternoon, commencing with the pennant series for each class, which includes the 28-foot sloops, 22-foot cat boats and 18-foot cat boats. All races in the pennant series will be sailed each alternate Saturday until Aug. 25.

Commencing June 30, and continuing each alternate Saturday until Sept. 1, the 28-footers will sail the Commercial club cup races, the 22-footers the vice commodore cup races, and the 18-footers the commodore cup races. Special midweek races will be arranged for the 18 and 22-foot cat boats, commencing Wednesday, June 27, for which series special prizes will be offered for each class.

This will be the most interesting schedule ever arranged by the club, and all races will no doubt be keenly contested, as the enthusiasm among the yachtsmen is at high pitch. All the new boats which were built this spring have arrived, and have been given trial spins, preparatory for the season's work.

The club now has twenty-five racing boats, divided into the various classes, as follows: Ten 28-foot sloops, seven 22-foot cat boats, four 18-foot cat boats and four 32-foot sloops. Two of the last named are owned by Messrs. De Forrest and Chase of Superior, but they are members of the Duluth Yacht club. The series for the 32-foot sloops, to be known as class "B," competing for the J. B. Cotton cup, will commence July 14. This will include five races, three of which will be sailed at Duluth and two at Superior. This will also be a most interesting series, as the boats are the fastest ever seen in local waters, or elsewhere for that matter. These were built for racing purposes only, being known as the "sidewalk" type and they carry an enormous amount of canvas. Altogether the Duluth harbor will present a gala appearance on Saturday afternoons during the summer as there are more than three times as many boats as were raced last year.

The Duluth Yacht club has made every provision for handling these races according to the standard racing rules adopted by all the prominent yacht clubs.

A large blackboard will be stationed at the club house showing the name and number of each boat in each class, the course to be sailed and the number and location of buoys, etc. This will enable visitors to keep track of the boats and their positions on the course at long range.

The club house veranda and float afford an excellent view of the starting and finishing buoy which is located directly in front, while the lookout on top of the new launch house reveals an unobstructed view of the entire course.

The club house will undoubtedly be thronged by its members and their friends at the opening races Saturday, as more interest has been manifested this year than ever before. Many who were members last year but took no active part in its affairs are now beginning to realize what an excellent organization it is. The many improvements made the past spring have excited the curiosity of those who never before visited the place and many exclamations of surprise and commendation are heard of the neat and attractive appearance of the surroundings, and the comfort and pleasure to be derived.

The cafe is proving a strong drawing card and many special dinner parties were in evidence last week. It is the aim of the club to make the cafe service first class in every way and although having been open only a little over a week the business has been just double what was anticipated. The furnishings throughout are new. The weathered oak tables which were ordered some time ago arrived Monday and are now in place which adds materially to the attractiveness of the cafe.

WINS RACE IN STRAIGHT HEATS

Sher's May Willow Easily Defeats Fred Wolvin's "Costa A."

In a match race between Fred Wolvin's "Costa A" and Ben Sher's "May Willow," which was pulled off Monday evening on London road, May Willow won in straight heats.

The race was for half mile heats, the finish being at the watering tank on London road. It was impossible to catch the time on the horses, but Sher's mare had no difficulty in winning both the first and the second heats, and the race.

The race was witnessed by quite a number of spectators, including many horsemen who had heard of the arrangements.

SWITCHMAN STABBED

At Two Harbors and Companion Placed Under Arrest.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 20. — With two deep knife wounds in his left breast, and two in his back and left side, C. W. Clough, a switchman, lies at the Knauff hospital, where he was taken after an affray in front of a saloon on First avenue. For a time it was feared Clough would die from his injuries, but now doctors are confident of his recovery.

C. L. Survant, also a switchman, is charged with having done the stabbing, and was placed under arrest. Last evening he was brought before Justice W. S. Andrews on a charge of second degree assault, but owing to the fact that the prosecuting witness was unable to be present the hearing was postponed until Friday. Survant is out on $500 bail.

Clough claims that the two were somewhat intoxicated and got into a dispute over some trivial matter. Survant, he says, without provocation, grabbed him by the neck and stabbed him four times. No one witnessed the affair.

NEARLY DROWNED.

Four Fishermen Have Battle for Their Lives Near Sparta.

Sparta, Minn., June 20.—By the overturning of a skiff on Cedar Island lake yesterday, four fishermen, John Gehringer, William Zellar, John Hilary and Frank Burkholder, all from the southern part of the state had a battle for their lives.

The accident was caused by Hilary having an attack of vertigo, Hilary weighs 210 pounds and while seated in the bow of the boat became ill and fell over the side, but not entirely overboard. His head was in the water while his feet and legs remained in the boat. Zellar tried to lift the prostrate man back in the boat, but was unsuccessful. Gehringer and Burkholder, then went to his assistance, and while trying to rescue Hilary the boat partly overturned and finally sank.

Zellar, Burkholder and Gehringer are good swimmers but they were handicapped by their clothing and it was with some difficulty that they succeeded in reaching shore with their helpless companion. The latter was rolled on the bank for nearly 20 minutes before he was fully resuscitated.

John A. Keyes was elected president of the Duluth branch of the People's Sovereignty league, at a meeting held last evening in the public library. G. H. Schulenburg was named secretary, and Samuel Nixon treasurer.

The election of these officers was a mere ratification of selections of the nominating committee, and was practically the only business transacted last evening.

LYING FOOD LABELS.

If it is impossible to get legislation requiring food to be pure, it may help a good deal if we can arrange a compromise by requiring labels to tell the truth and nothing but the truth.

Of course, while the house has been trying to throttle the pure food bill to death, it is too early to give it up and say that there will be no pure food legislation, because the public has become more than ordinarily interested in the subject, and the expressions of public opinion that prove this are coming so thickly that before adjournment the pure food measure may yet become a law.

But if it does not, let us sow a new crop of public opinion, and have it demand honest labels. Let it be demanded by the law that cans containing "pure maple syrup" shall contain pure maple syrup, and not cheap, adulterated imitations. If dealers are to be allowed to sell such imitations, make them put upon the labels "Imitation maple syrup," that he who buys may buy with knowledge of what he gets.

Even if the manufacture and sale of impure and adulterated goods were permitted, there would be much less objection if there were no deception about it. To put lying labels upon food products is swindling, pure and simple, and nothing can make it anything else.

The most shameful thing about it all is that the poor, who must buy cheaper brands than the best, are the ones that get the most adulterants and imitations. Very likely there is fraud and deception even about the high priced goods that well-to-do people buy, but where "pure maple syrup", for instance, is offered for half the regular price, it is a pretty safe conclusion to draw that the label is a lie.

The Kansas City Star reports a conversation with a wholesale grocer who was protesting against a proposed pure food ordinance, and who took up as an example the case of horse radish. He admitted that most horse radish is mixed with ground turnip, as there is more profit in ground turnip than in ground horse radish. But, he added, it is better for the consumer to eat horse radish mixed with turnip than to eat pure horse radish.

Very specious reasoning, this. It does not excuse the fact that the label reads "horse radish", not "mixed horse radish and turnip". The consumer thinks he is buying horse radish, when he is paying horse radish price for cheap turnip.

These are but two examples of a horde of others that might be mentioned. Make the manufacturers tell the truth on their labels, or go out of business.

SENATOR REED SMOOT.

If the senate does not get into action on the Smoot case very suddenly, adjournment will come with Reed Smoot of Utah still drawing pay as a member of that body.

There has been much popular misapprehension as to this case, and doubtless thousands of those that have signed petitions asking for Smoot's removal have done it believing him to have a plurality of wives. As a matter of fact he has but one, and never had more. But in the opinion of the majority of the committee that has been investigating his case he "is no more entitled to a seat in the senate than he would be if he were associating in polygamous cohabitation with a plurality of wives."

The main point against Smoot is that "he is an inseparable part of the governing body of the Mormon church, and those who compose that organization form a unit, and whatever is done by that organization is the act of each and every member thereof, and whatever policy is adopted and pursued by the body which controls the Mormon church Mr. Smoot must be held responsible for as a member of that body." This might be held to be a rather strained conclusion, but there is another and a better reason why the man should be put out of the legislative body to which his people sent him. This is the "oath of vengeance," administered to those who go through the ceremony known as the "taking the endowments." The committee says it was proven that Smoot took this oath:

"You and each of you do convenant and promise that you will pray and never cease to pray Almighty God to avenge the blood of the prophets upon this nation, and that you will teach the same to your children and to your children's children unto the third and fourth generation."

This oath of vengeance against the nation is clearly inconsistent with the oath that Smoot must have taken when he assumed his seat in the senate. He then swore to support the constitution and the laws of his country, and all the while he was nursing an oath to take vengeance upon the nation "for the blood of the prophets." The committee points out that it is difficult to see how one could discharge his official duties and promote the welfare of the people of the United States while at the same time he was calling down the vengeance of heaven on his nation because of the killing of the founders of the Mormon church sixty years ago.

So while Smoot is no bigamist, there appears to be reason enough why he should be dropped from the rolls of the United States senate and sent back to Utah.

CARELESSNESS.

There are certain news stories that can be depended upon to recur with great frequency and regularity. One familiar kind is that of the man who takes a dose of poison by mistake for medicine, and presently dies in great agony.

The other day, for instance, a prominent citizen of Philadelphia threw his life away by carelessness of this nature. It had been his custom to drop a couple of lithia tablets into a glass of water each night and drink it, and in the dark he reached for the familiar bottle, took two tablets, dissolved and drank them.

Then he discovered, too late, that he had taken bichloride of mercury instead of lithia, and died in spite of all efforts to save him. It is a curious feature of the case that the victim of this accident was a chemist himself.

How many times this terribly tragic error is made. Sometimes the wrong medicine is administered to others in the same manner. A bottle of soothing syrup side by side on a closet shelf with a bottle of poisonous drug forms a combination that has often resulted in killing innocent children.

One would naturally think, when these occurrences are so common, that by and by people would take warning from them, and not risk their lives and the lives of their associates in a careless selection of an unseen bottle on a dark shelf.

In perhaps nearly every home in the city there is a shelf full of bottles, some containing harmless stuff and some containing deadly poisons. If they are properly labelled with the warning skull and crossbones and with the large-typed "POISON", there should be no danger from them, providing children do not have access to the shelf. But let some careless individual, self-sufficient and secure in his knowledge of just where every bottle is located, attempt to pick out one of them in the dark, and it is pretty certain to turn out that that day somebody has shifted the relative positions of the bottles, and that tragedy is lurking grimly in that dark closet.

There isn't much excuse for the distressing frequency of these cases. It is a simple matter to turn on the light or to strike a match, and many lives would have been saved had such precautions always been taken.

Don't drink anything out of strange and unlabelled bottels; don't pick out your bottle of medicine in the dark; know what you are putting into your mouth or don't put anything in it.

THE NEW STATE.

The new state of Oklahoma, consisting of the area formerly occupied by Oklahoma Territory and Indian Territory, springs into the condition of statehood much farther advanced than any of its sisters did. It will take its place at once well up in the roll of states in agriculture, education, wealth and commerce.

At once a constitutional convention will be called, consisting of 112 delegates, which will frame the fundamental law of the new states, such constitution to be ratified by the voters at an election held for that purpose. The state will have two judicial districts, and it will have the usual two senators and five members of the house of representatives. Suffrage is well guarded, and there are strong anti-polygamy clauses in the law. The capital of Oklahoma will be at Guthrie until 1915, when the people can change its location if they desire.

The interests of Arizona and New Mexico appear to have been sufficiently safeguarded by the compromise that was finally agreed upon. They need not accept joint statehood unless they wish it, and the people of both territories will have to agree to it before it becomes effective. It will not be possible for joint statehood to be brought about by a number of affirmative votes in one territory sufficient to overcome a negative majority in the other.

It is not expected that joint statehood for these two territories will result. Under the terms of the bill, if the people should accept statehood, it would have to be done in not less than about seven and a half months nor more than about eleven months after the approval of the act. The state would be called Arizona, and the capital would be at Santa Fe until 1915, when it could be changed by popular vote.

Provisions for carrying out the statehood plan are as nearly the same in both cases as possible. Proper provision for land grants are made, and as usual 5 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of public lands is to go into the state school funds. Oklahoma gets two sections of nonmineral land in each township, and Arizona, because of the arid character of the land, will get four sections. Each state will get $5,000,000 from the government to make a foundation for school funds.

But unless the attitude of the people of Arizona has been misrepresented, there will be no state of Arizona. The proposal is pretty certain to be rejected in Arizona, and it is said that it is not improbable that New Mexico, too, will reject it, though the fact that it would have the capital may gain it some votes there.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Every man of intelligence ought to be in business for himself," said T. C. Campbell of Chicago, at the St. Louis. "Of course, that would really be impossible, for if all of the intelligent ones were working for themselves, they would be doing so at a loss. There would be too many in all lines of business. One man lacking the initiative spirit may plug along all his life for another fellow on a salary basis, while another with less ability will launch out and get rich. Everybody has the same opportunities, I suppose, only the trouble is we cannot all recognize them and take advantage of the chances that come up.

"It is all right for a person to work on a salary at first, but he should get a little money ahead and then watch for a chance to put it in where he can make some more. Anybody will tell you that, and yet there are not many who do it, comparatively speaking. It seems as if the average man can do more for somebody else than he can for himself. As long as there is some one over him to fire him if he doesn't do his work, he is all right, but as soon as he starts in for himself his work shows a falling off, and he doesn't appear to know where he is at or what he is about."

"There are some fellows who are never really interested in a ball game, horse race or anything else in the sporting line unless they have money up on the result," said C. A. Warren of Toledo, O., at the Spalding. "A fellow I used to room with back East was that way. We couldn't go to a corner lot ball game that he didn't have some money up, and he would risk his cash on a proposition that was sure to lose if he couldn't get an equal chance. The excitement was what he was after more than the fun of watching what was going on. He was like one of these fellows who cannot enjoy a meal without first taking a drink of whiskey as an appetizer.

"I remember one game in particular that we attended. A friend of his was manager of one of the contesting teams, and was confident that his side would win out. Some of his confidence was imparted to Charlie, which was my roommate's name, with the result that he put up $25 as a wager with a backer of the opposing aggregation. Things looked all right at the start, for our side ran in two scores in the first inning, and the others didn't get a man around the bases until the sixth inning. Meantime we had gotten one more man across sthe home plate.

"Then the complexion of things changed. In the seventh our side put up a ragged game, and the opposing nine took a brace and played a star article of ball. They tied the score, and in the eighth put themselves three to the good. That made it look pretty bad for Charlie's $25. I roasted him for his foolish venture, but my lectures came so often that he didn't mind them in the least. He told me to wait and see. In the ninth the wrong side brought in another score, and it looked worse.

"Charlie put up another $10, betting we would score in the ninth, and it seemed that he was going to lose that also, for the first man up to bat fanned out promptly. Then an enthusiast offered to bet $50 against $25 that our side would lose. I wouldn't have risked 10 cents against the bet myself, but Charlie pricked up his ears and said the odds weren't big enough. He finally managed to get $75 placed against his $25. I guess he had just gotten a remittance from home. Anyway he was flush that day.

"The next man to bat got to first on balls, and on a clean single of the third man up got to third. Another man walked to first, and that left three men on bases. The pitcher got rattled, and allowed another single to be made. This brought in a score, and a two-bagger brought in two more. I never saw a team go to pieces quicker than those fellows. Before three men were put out the game was won. The memory of the supper we enjoyed that night on part of the winnings still lingers in my mind."

"There is a great activity in business circles all through the Northwest and Canada this year," said F. N. Price of Winnipeg, Man., at the Spalding. "Good times are very evident in St. Paul and Minneapolis, and from the looks of things, Duluth has no grounds for entering objections on this score. Winnipeg is also enjoying a fine era of prosperity. Manitoba is a great province, and its capital is a remarkable city.

"Winnipeg continues to grow rapidly, and big buildings are constantly being erected, as well as numerous houses in the residence districts. The Canadian Northern and other lines are tapping new agricultural and timber regions and bringing the produce into and through Winnipeg. The population of the city is more than 100,000, and Winnipeg bids fair to become one of the greatest cities on the continent."

THE WEATHER.

Though it has been persistenly cloudy, and though occasional showers have visited the city, it has been warm and pleasant, and this morning there were indications that clearing weather was imminent. The wind was right for a change, and there really appeared to be no more necessity for any more dampness. Last night's lowest temperature was 52 degs. and yesterday's highest was 58 degs. The weather man expects it to be generally fair tonight and tomorrow, though it will be partly cloudy and slightly cooler tonight, with brisk westerly winds.

A year ago today the weather was fine and hot, with a southwest breeze.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The slow moving disturbance that has been affecting the Northwest during the past few days is central this morning over Lake Michigan. It caused a continuance of showery weather Tuesday or last night in the Northwest, lake region and central valleys. The Western high pressure has advanced to Wyoming, its influence causing somewhat cooler temperature over Rocky Mountains and eastern slopes. The easterly movement of the Lake Michigan low and the Wyoming high pressure areas will likely be attended by mostly fair weather in this section tonight and Thursday."

For His Own Good.

New York Sun: Iowa furnishes a new and melancholy example of the essential wickedness and cussedness of human nature, prone to think evil. The Hon. Leslie Mortier Shaw wanted to go to his "home state" in order to relieve his mind of its thick-coming and congested thoughts. He asked Mr. Roosevelt if he should go. Mr. Roosevelt said yes. The fact that the great apostle of high prices was to instruct his fellow citizens at home is telegraphed thither. Wild fluttering in the flock of the Cumminsites, the faithful followers of Governor Albert Baird Cummins and his Iowa Ideas. Was Mr. Shaw coming in war, a standpatter, to fight revisionists? Was the administration "interfering" in the domestic politics of Iowa? Was he to bring his powerful intellect to the side of Mr. Cummin's Republican rival, the Hon. George Douglas Perkins of Sioux City? Indignation sent a telegram. Mr. Roosevelt had to deny any intention of interfering. The telegrams had to be published to calm the fevered souls of the Cumminsites.

Is there so little knowledge in Iowa of the intimate psychology of Mr. Shaw? He has a message to deliver, a gospel to preach, solemn thoughts that boil and burn for utterance. If Mr. Roosevelt had impeded the secretary's free circulation and forbidden his exodus from Washington the secretary would have obeyed. He might even have been flattered by the implication that without his presence at the capital the machinery of government could not go on and that the iowa. He would not be happy. His health might even suffer from clogging and congestion of the thought ducts and word passages. So it was an act of kindness to bid him go in peace. No longer a candidate, seeing himself in the future a simple banker in Iowa, he can speak without being suspected of ambitious motives. He will not speak as a candidate, not as a member of the administration, but as a plain though handsome Iowan, who is homesick when a political canvass is going on and he is far away.

But if ever the time comes when the eyes of the blind are opened to see the full beauty and nobility of the Shavian theory, "The more you pay for things the happier you are," then the name of Leslie Mortier Shaw will move in hearts all rocky now the late remorse of love; and Cumminsite and Perkinsite will fall in tears together upon that beneficient bosom.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Sauk Center Herald: The only genuine standpatter with the trademark blown in the bottle is an Egyptian mummy.

Walker Pilot: Are you a student of human nature? # DISCORD AMONG SPIRITUALISTS

Alleged "Spirit Pictures" Were Taken From the Newspapers.

St. Louis, Mo., June 20.—The mystery of occult science was given a three-hour airing in Judge Taylor's court at the hearing of the petition of the Society of Scientific and Religious Truth-seekers for a pro forma decree of incorporation, to which Attorney J. Lionberger Davis, referee, reported adversely. The application was filed last November. It was signed by Josie K. Folsom-Stewart, president; Charles W. Stewart, secretary, and Phoebe S. Wolf, treasurer.

Treasurer Stewart and Mrs. Josie K. Folsom, now Mrs. Folsom-Stewart, were expelled from the State Progressive Spiritualists' association of Missouri in June, 1905, and the action was upheld by the national body. They then decided to form a new denomination.

Their application states that "any person of good moral character may become a member of the society, which is formed for the purpose of mutual helpfulness of persons of similar religious belief, whose faith is founded on the teachings of the bible, and who accept the absolute proof of immortality based on the ethical and scriptural principles taught in the revised version of the New Testament, especially in chapters xii., xiii., xiv. and xv. of Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians.

Judge Taylor stated that his impression of the referee's adverse report was that Mr. Davis opposed this particular body as one organized for commercial purposes.

Miss Mattie Gossman was the first and only witness heard for the defense after the plaintiff's case had been finished. She testified that she was once a member of Mrs. Folsom's class, but left it when she learned of things which caused her to doubt the sincerity of her teacher's work. Once, she said, Mrs. Folsom produced several pictures on cards, claiming they were from friends of Miss Gossman in the spirit world. Miss Gossman later discovered, she claims, that all of the pictures had been traced from imprints in newspapers, one from a patent medicine advertisement.

Charles W. Stewart, lecturer for the society, was the first witness called for the plaintiff. He explained that the purpose of the organization was to give demonstrations of immortal life; that the teachings of the order are believed by eminent men, a number of whom he named, including physicians, to whose science the doctrine of the Spiritualist is closely linked. The society has branches in all portions of the civilized world, he said, and has a membership in St. Louis of about sixty. More than 300 persons attended its meetings in the Masonic Temple last Sunday afternoon. The only qualification is good behavior. There is no admittance fee, but a collection is taken.

Mrs. Folsom-Stewart testified that the society was maintained through voluntary contributions and funds raised by entertainments; that it now has a fund of $030, and wishes to incorporate in order that it may hold property, and some day be able to build a school or temple for religious teachings. Regarding her own powers, she said she was never in a normal condition when successful in giving manifestations of Spiritualism, and that she was not aware of any sensation passing through her. She was not even positive that she could hold communication with spirits, but relied upon the testimony of others for the strength of her powers.

IN DEMAND BY CHINESE

Americans Receive Large Orders for Manufactures and Cereals.

Celestials to Install Electric Traction and Lighting Systems.

New York, June 20.—For eight years the persons who advocated the holding of the Philippines on the grounds that they would be of immense value to us in the important affair of Asiatic commerce have had to trust in the future for the proof of the accuracy of their statements, but that future has at last become the present, and the great Asiatic purchasing movement is now fairly inaugurated.

China seems no longer hostile to our trade interests, and is placing large orders for materials that we manufacture and articles that we produce.

The most stubborn opponents of modern civilization and modern appliances and methods in that country have at last yielded to the inevitable, and the projected steam railway lines in the empire will now be pushed to speedy completion while American and European systems of electric traction and lighting are being examined and studied by representatives of the Emperor, who has instructed them to report which are the best adapted to produce the very best results.

The empress has ordered a private car for use on the railways of the country, which is being fitted up with the best and most luxurious equipments and is to be entirely lighted up with electricity.

Nearly every article which we produce in the way of cereals is now in good demand in China, and that demand is steadily increasing. China and India are the ultimate purchasers of the greater part of the millions of ounces of silver which we produce.

United States Special Agent Burrill of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has just made a report to that department showing the enormous value of the shoe trade of China and suggests to our shoe manufacturers that they can successfully place in the markets of China shoes of such kinds as the Chinese wear at prices that will defy competition by the hand labor methods employed at present by the native manufacturers. Agent Burrill has "caught on" to one great reason for the increased trade with China, and uses these words:

"The market is expanding steadily because of the constantly increasing purchasing power of the Chinese," and he applies this to the increased demand for shoes for the 400,000,000 people supposed to be in that great hive of humanity. Agent Burrill is absolutely right. It is the increased purchasing power of the people which sustains the demand for shoes, and for all other articles, and as the increased purchasing power increases the business in all lines will increase. The building of the railways will give employment to hundreds of thousands, the transportation of materials for those roads will give work to other hundreds of thousands. As the miles of the lines open up they will bring into touch with the outer world millions of industrious workers and producers whose earning power will be increased and whose demands and needs will grow with their earning power.

So it will be with the electric traction and lighting systems that will soon be in process of installation in the cities of China. These systems will not be for sea coast and nearby coast cities and towns alone. In less than ten years from now they will be in every important city and town from the borders of Cochin China and Thibet to the Siberian line and from Kurdistan to the coasts of the China Sea. There are men living who remember distinctly the construction of the first railway line in the United States, and from the 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 of inhabitants we then had, we have increased to nearly 100,000,000 today.

In the eighty years covered since that event what a tremendous commerce has grown up, promoted by the railways directly, created by them and only existing because they exist and operate. It has taken thousands of millions of dollars and more than three score years to enable us to reach these attainments.

So with the electric traction, electric lighting, the telephone and telegraph systems. America and Europe have perfected them after many years of work, and what millions of men have now increased earning power through these marvels, and how the continents of Europe and America have been transformed by them in every way! The earning powers of millions of men employed directly upon producing the materials entering into their construction has been increased, the earning powers of the millions of persons employed in their operation has been increased, and the earning powers of nearly every human being who has come within their radius of action has been increased. These have all added to the trade of the world. Now let us see what is at our hand today. The millions of inhabitants of the Chinese empire number fully as many as the inhabitants of the United Staes, Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Italy and Spain combined, possibly more.

They lack all of the wonedrful appliances that have transformed, enriched and advanced these other nations. At last they are willing, eager and ready to receive them, and we know the same results will follow their introduction in China as has followed in every other country.

Mark how much speedier the results will come to the Chinese than it did to the others dating from the time of introduction, and how much swifter and with such tremendously increased volume the trade and commerce of China and of the entire outside commercial and financial world will feel the effects. China receives at once the perfected systems; she receives the benefit from the day they begin to be constructed.

Twenty years from now at the furthest, possibly in ten years, her most remote populations will be in speedy and complete commercial touch with every country in the world, but in that twenty years those millions of China, with their constantly increasing purchasing power, will be steadily absorbing the manufacturers and the agricultural products of America and Europe. Four hundred millions of industrious men at work at home with constantly increasing purchasing power and all willing to buy and ready to pay for that which they purchase. There has never been presented to the commercial world in the entire history of the world such a stupendous opportunity for an increase of business in all lines, such a certainty of steady and continued demand for all we can produce from the soil or turn out from mill, shop and factory. The money expended in Manchuria and in other portions of China by Japan and Russia during the recent war stimulated and aided the increase in purchasing power among the masses of the Chinese people, and now the open declaration of approval given by the emperor to the introduction of the foreign methods of transacting business affairs has changed the entire situation and makes for the most favorable and speedy results. Our trade with Asia today is only in its swaddling clothes. It will require the outfit of a giant within ten years.

ONLY FOUR LEFT IN TOURNAMENT

Golf Championship Will be Decided Before End of Week.

Only four players are left in the open championship tournament of the Northland Country club, and the finals will probably be reached before the end of the week.

L. J. Hopkins, after a hard struggle has reached the final round. He has had several close games, including those with A. M. Miller, Jr., and J. Q. A. Crosby.

His opponent will be either Ward Ames, Jr., E. P. Towne or D. G. Cutler, Jr. The two latter players will meet this afternoon, if the weather permits, and the winner will play Ames, to decide who shall enter the final round against Hopkins.

P. L. Finkenstaedt, one of the members of the local club, covered himself with glory recently, at the Lumbermen's Golf association meet. The following is a clipping from the Chicago Record-Herald.

"F. L. Finkenstaedt, a tall sycamore from Duluth, who plays golf at the Northland Country club, won the net score prize in the handicap event of the Lumbermen's Golf association at the Midlothian Country club.

"The victor, unknown to the handicap committee, received the generous allowance of twenty-six strokes which permitted him to finish with a net total of seventy-six.

"Nearly forty of the men who deal in two-by-fours turned out for the annual golf event of the lumber trade and enjoyed the outing over the fine course at Midlothian."

SETTLES TROUBLE.

Carpenters at Work on White City Have a Little Misunderstanding.

G. W. Davis, business agent of the Carpenters' union, has straightened out a little trouble which existed between the carpenters and the superintendent of building at the White City on Park Point. The carpenters were working on the ordinary scale of eight hours a day, and last Saturday Supt. Ivy, who is building the White City, asked them to work nine hours a day. There was some misunderstanding and 16 of the men threatened to quit.

The matter was held open however until G. W. Davis, business agent for the carpenters investigated and found that it was more of a misunderstanding than anything else and straightened maters out. The men are working eight hours a day and when they work nine hours will get over time. This is the straight understanding at present and there will likely be no more trouble from either side while the work is going on.

JEWISH QUESTION

Cannot be Solved in Russia Under the Present Conditions.

Count Witte Expresses Himself on the Prevailing Situation.

Vichy, France, June 20.—Count Witte, the former premier of Russia, who came here for a rest and to take the cure, his health being somewhat impaired by the hard work and worry of the premiership, refuses to be quoted in connection with Russian politics, taking the ground that it would be not only against his own personal interest, but also against the interests of his country. On this condition he was pleased to receive a correspondent of the Associated Press who had known him at the Portsmouth peace conference, and have a long, interesting conversation, recalling pleasantly the time spent together at the Hotel Wentworth.

The Russian statesman is at the Hotel des Ambassadeurs, and has the companionship of his wife and his grandson, 16 months old, to whom the count is devotedly attached. The boy meets his grandfather when the latter returns from his daily walk and is carried in the statesman's arms up to his apartment.

Witte's colossal figure, to which high boots under his trousers give a soldierly air, now bears a more melancholy air than when in America, as though many of his illusions had vanished. In one thing he is entirely unchanged—he still constantly smokes cigarettes, which he puffs from his customary exaggeratedly long holder.

Faithful to the promise given to Count Witte, the correspondent is unable to cable a direct interview with him, but can give the following brief review of the situation in Russia as looked on possibly from Witte's point of view:

"It is generally known that Witte is favorable to the progressive development of Russian institutions, while maintaining order. Therefore he cannot approve of the action of the lower house of parliament, which, according to the count, is doing its utmost to develop into a revolutionary body, and not only delays the reforms which it advocates, but contributes to create and maintain a state of chaos resulting from the conflict between the legislative and executive branches of the government. Russia needs peace, order and confidence in the men who earnestly desire to heal her wounds, and to enter upon a period of economic, moral and intellectual resurrection. Instead of this, the revolutionists, under the pretext of patriotism, which really is false patriotism, are serving the interests of the foreign enemies of their country by transforming Russia into the powder magazine of Europe. This is not generally known abroad, and is especially regrettable with regard to the Americans, who always have been good friends of the Russians. The two countries should know each other better to their reciprocal advantage.

"It is also known that Witte is personally favorable to the Hebrews and their desires, as contained in the memorandum presented to him when at Portsmouth by the committee of prominent American Jews, but he roundly condemns the attitude which the Jews are assuming in Russia in placing themselves at the head of the revolutionary movement against the advice of their enlightened leaders, thus making it impossible for their non-Jewish friends to assist them. Witte thinks the Russian Jews who are acting in this manner are blind, for if they are defeated they will be more oppressed than before, whereas if successful the remainder of the population, which is more anti-Semitic than in any other country, will oblige them to fly the country.

"Russian aversion to Jewish preponderance, the former premier thinks, should not occasion surprise because the same feeling exists to a greater or less degree in all countries, including the United States, where some of the rules regarding immigration have been designed chiefly to exclude Russian Jews, whose numbers especially in New York, Americans feel, is becoming threatening. The Jews of Russia had only one proper course to pursue, and that was to insist that all rights granted other races be also granted to them, nothing more and nothing less. Having resorted to violence, they provoked reprisals and reaction, especially from the conservative elements, known as the "Black Hundred," which element from conservatism has become as revolutionary as those whom they fight. Count Witte explains that the conservatives originally were called the "Black Hundred" in derision. Their rising has shown what large forces they control and more easily a struggle between two parties may degenerate into civil war and anarchy. The troubles of the past week at Bialystok are the best illustration of the situation, as they were caused by Jews, who killed Chief of Police Derkatcheff, who happened to be an exceptionally conservative official whose entire aim was to maintain order and tranquility.

"Count Witte thinks that under such conditions it is natural that the Jewish question in Russia cannot be solved to the satisfaction of the Jews and their friends.

"Besides the Jewish question, there is a higher and greater question that the whole of Russia must consider, namely, the necessity of preventing inconsiderate action by revolutionists of all kinds and opinions, endangering reform measures already put in effect and threatening the future program of the empire. On this, Count Witte believes there can be no difference of opinion among those who know Russia. The government will not permit any consideration to interfere with measures it deems necessary to be adopted to stop the evils mentioned. In these days of heated discussions about the possibility of the dissolution of parliament, those who oppose such action and claim that it would be a coup d'etat forget that parliament is not the only power in Russia. On the contrary, it is subject as are all representative legislative chambers in Europe, to dissolution on condition that a new parliament be convoked with in six months. Those who ignore all this seem also not to know Russia's real education of the masses, the political education of the masses, the illiteracy of her people, the immensity of her territory and the conflicting interests of the different provinces which make it difficult for any parliamentary government to work in harmony as it may in other smaller and homogenous countries.

"Count Witte's daughter, who went to St. Petersburg to attend the funeral of her father-in-law, is expected here in a few days. Count Witte will remain in Vichy until July 10 and will then go to Aix-Les-Baines, where he will remain until August 10. After that, if the weather is not too hot, he will go to Italy; otherwise he will go to Switzerland or the Tyrol and will return to Russia in October."

CELEBRATION BEGINS.

Swedish Methodists Observe Twentieth Anniversary in Duluth.

This evening the beginning of the celebration in the First Swedish Methodist church at Twentieth avenue west and Third street will begin. The celebration will take four days, and will be in observance of the twentieth anniversary of Swedish Methodism in Duluth. Elaborate programs have been prepared for each day, and it is expected that the attendance will be large right up to the close of the affair on Saturday evening. In connection with the affair, suppers will be given at the church tonight and Saturday night, and for each, speeches have been arranged.

Rev. John A. Anderson, pastor of the First Swedish Methodist church, has worked hard on this affair, and believes that it will meet with the success it deserves.

Fine Program at Bijou.

"That Girl" is the title of the musical and conversational skit given by the Medallion Trio at the Bijou this week, and by far the best thing on a long program of vaudeville good things. Their selections are pleasing, and their comedy is not tiresome.

Baton juggling is always interesting when done in front of a band on the street, but it takes a clever manipulator—one who has some new stunts—to make it so on the stage. Maj. McLaughlin is fairly successful.

Edward Gray and company have a dramatic little bit, called "His Last Fight," which sounds like the name of the spectacle at the Wild West show. Edward Kellie has an amusing monologue. Some of his stuff is new. The Waltons are pleasing novelty artists, and Morcy Long sings "He Lives in a Little White House." The motion pictures concern the career of "The Miller's Daughter."

COMMITTEE NOT CHOSEN.

Republican Candidates for State Offices Fail to Make Selection.

St. Paul, June 20.—No announcement was made yesterday of the Republican state central committee. All of the delegates nominated met in the rooms of A. L. Cole at the Ryan hotel in the afternoon, but no agreement could be reached as to a selection. It was thought better to let the matter rest for a week, when each candidate will have a name to propose for the committee.

W. W. Sivright, chairman of the convention, met with the committee and it is likely that he will send out a call for a meeting during the early part of next week.

David H. Lawrence of Two Harbors, who was in the city yesterday, predicts a sweeping victory for the Republicans this fall. He has met many persons from the northern part of the state and he states that they are all very enthusiastic for the nominee of the party.

A. L. Cole has already begun to receive a number of letters from office seekers pledging their valuable support if he will promise them a nice plum. Cole claims that he won his nomination without pledging an office, and that he will enter the office, if elected, untrammeled.

CURE FOR MENINGITIS.

Baths at a Mild Temperature Instead of Opium Used.

New York, June 20.—What the physicians at the Long Island college hospital consider to be a practically demonstrated cure for cerebro spinal meningitis, a disease which is fatal in from 70 to 75 per cent of the cases, is being employed by Dr. Joseph W. Goldsmith, of the house staff. Dr. Goldsmith has been using his method of treatment for a year, and has effected cures in ten out of twelve cases.

In describing the new treatment, Dr. Goldsmith said that, heretofore, opium or some derivative of opium has been used to relieve the congestion.

His method is to employ baths of 110 degrees in temperature for fifteen minutes at a time. These draw the blood away from the internal organs to the surface and relieve the congestion and subject the blood to a process of radiation.

A vigorous rubbing is employed during the bath to relieve its depressing effect, and a drug treatment, consisting of secale cornutum, equalizes the circulation.

By this method Motel Asiliski, a boy who, three times in one day, appeared to be dying, was restored to health.

The weazened faced little man protruded his head around the door at police headquarters, and coughed apologetically.

The officers did not notice him.

He carefully removed his hat, wiped his feet on the mat, and took one or two halting steps forward.

Still the officers did not look up.

The little man fumbled nervously with his hat, cleared his throat once or twice, and began:

"Is this where you get warrants?"

"What's the trouble?" asked the officer in charge, turning to survey his interlocutor, who visibly shrank before the gaze.

"I want to get somebody arrested," replied the meek owner of the weazened face.

"Who is it?" asked the officer.

"My wife."

"Your wife?"

"Yes, sir."

"What's she been doing? Eloped?"

"No. But she used me most shamefully."

"What did she do?"

"Well, last night I got home a little late. I met some of my friends down town, and I must have been a little congenial."

The weazened little man smiled a sickly, sympathy-craving smile at the officer, and continued:

"When I got home I found the door locked. I tried the key, but the door had been bolted on the inside. Then I rang the bell, and the next minute I was drenched with a pitcher of water from the window upstairs."

"That ought to have been a gentle hint," said the officer.

"Every time I tried a window or a door, she poured water on me."

"Why didn't you go back down town and stay at a hotel?"

"I hadn't any money left. I had to sit out on the steps all night."

"And your wife treated you that way?"

"Yes, sir."

"And now you want a warrant?"

"Yes, sir," said the little man eagerly.

"No you don't," said the officer. "You want a guardian. But go up and see the city attorney, and he may fix you out."

And the little man carried his troubles to another tribunal.

G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Members Go to Hibbing on a Special Train.

Northern Pacific Excursion Brings 900 People to Duluth.

A special Duluth, Missabe & Northern train, carrying upwards of 100 members of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. association, which opened its annual meeting in Duluth yesterday, left the Union depot this morning at 8:15 o'clock for Hibbing and other range points.

All the members who were in the city did not catch the train. Owing to a misunderstanding, they arrived at the depot too late to make connections. They thought the starting time was 8:30 a. m., instead of 8:15 o'clock. The special is due to return at 5 o'clock this afternoon, and at 6 o'clock supper will be held. A committee, composed of W. B. Dixon, T. E. Blanche, A. G. Shearman, J. B. Hanson and F. M. Rugg has been appointed to investigate the matter of making the organization permanent, and to report on what appears to be desirable plans for the future of the organization.

Yesterday afternoon the visitors were given an excursion on the lake in the steamer America, compliments of A. Booth & Co. This included a whitefish dinner, which even the Duluthians pronounced a little bit the finest of anything of the kind ever served around the Head of the Lakes. The outside railroad men were delighted with it, and with the excursion as a whole. There was plenty of room inside the cabins, so they were not bothered with the rain, except when marching to the boat, headed by Flaaten's Third Regiment band, and with an ambulance bringing up the rear.

The America went as far as Two Harbors, but did not allow the passengers to land. On the return it reached Duluth at 7:30 o'clock, and the railroad men lined up and marched to the Spalding, again led by the band. Afterwards "Bill" Bailey acted as drum major, and paraded the streets with the musicians. On leaving the boat the passengers gave three cheers and a tiger for Capt. J. C. Hector, W. H. Northmore, George Pratt and the cook. They also took occasion during the day to show their appreciation of the act of Capt. James Sullivan of the Board of Trade livery, and H. E. Stewart of the Stewart Transfer company, in furnishing the tally-hos for the boulevard drive, which was not completed because of the rain.

The railroaders are getting a good many complimentaries. The badges they are wearing were furnished by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, the special train today by the Missabe, and the luncheon served on the train by the Commercial club.

EXCURSION BRINGS MANY.

Northern Pacific Runs Two-Section Special From Wahpeton, N. D.

The Northern Pacific excursion into Duluth from Wahpeton, N. D., yesterday afternoon, brought between 800 and 900 people to the city. Typical excursion weather prevailed, and the people from the West were content to seek out their hotels and remain there until evening, when a rainbow notified them it would be safe to venture out.

Today is much of an improvement so far as weather is concerned, but the excursionists are visiting different parts of the city, and expressing satisfaction that it isn't hot, anyway. They say they would rather be cool and comfortable, than warm and uncomfortable, even if they do have to bear with clouds in the former condition. Quite a few are in attendance at the ball game this afternoon. The train arrived in two sections of sixteen cars.

Friday afternoon a special train of excursionists, probably in two sections, will arrive over the Great Northern, from Grand Forks and intermediate points. Between 1,000 and 1,500 persons are expected to take advantage of the special rates to visit Duluth. They will leave on the return trip Sunday afternoon.

CLUB MEETS FRIDAY.

Northern Railway Club Will Listen to Reading of Two Papers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club will be held next Friday evening, June 22, at the Commercial club. The members were to gather at the Yacht club on Park Point, but as extensive alterations and repairs are being made there just now, it was decided that it would be better to hold the meeting somewhere else.

Two papers which promise to be interesting will be read at the meeting, and there will be the usual musical and vaudeville program. There will be a general discussion of the papers and other subjects which may come up.

The booklet giving the official proceedings of the May meeting is off the press today. It is made up in its usual attractive style, and contains as a frontpiece an excellent likeness of C. L. Kennedy, secretary of the club and commercial agent in Duluth of the Milwaukee road.

NEW DUSTLESS BALLAST.

Prospects of Dustless Roadbed Without Oil or Cut Stone.

Prospects of a dustless roadbed without the use of oil or cut stone, is pleasing officers of the Illinois Central road. Though gravel is conceded to make the easiest riding roadbed, its dust feature has made it a nuisance to the traveling public. General Manager Rawn, of the Illinois Central, and his assistant, Mr. Fritch, have made a "find" in the way of dustless gravel. Recently the company began taking gravel out of the Mississippi river at the Memphis bars. It is taken out with a centrifugal pump at the rate of about sixty carloads every ten hours. The gravel, being washed for centuries, is free from soil. the only thing on it is sand, and all but 25 per cent of this sand is washed off after it is taken from the river. The first of this new ballast is being used on the Yazoo Valley line. It is clear and clean as a crystal, and must ever be dustless. Gravel taken from pits and hills has ages of soil clinging to it which can never be washed off, meaning that the track under which it is placed must always be dusty. The reverse is true of the gravel now being taken from the Mississippi. As the pumping betters the river channel the Illinois Central is free to take all it wants from the Mississippi. The gravel runs in spots from Memphis to New Orleans. As the cost of getting it out is way below pit digging, and with its own tracks to the edge of the river, the Illinois Central will extend the new found ballast over all lines of the system, giving it an easy riding, and at the same time a dustless roadbed. Soon the output will be increased by a night force.

LOST BIRD IN OREGON

She is a Waif of the Battle of Wounded Knee.

Gen. Leonard Colby Took Her Home and Adopted Her.

Washington, June 20.—Lost Bird has been found; that is, here whereabouts is known. She is in Oregon, far from the maddening crowd and further still from the alfalfa covered plains of her childhood. Lost Bird is an Indian maiden, comely as Indian maidens go, but more Caucasian than Indian in her ideas and mode of living, for it has been more than fifteen years since Lost Bird was last in the wigwam of her father.

Lost Bird was a waif of battle. In the winter of 1890-91, when her people, the Rosebud agency Sioux, were mowed down by the bullets of the paleface soldiers at Wounded Knee, Lost Bird was left, a helpless, blanket bound papoose, in the deserted tepee of her parents. With the American troops was a citizen soldier, Gen. Leonard Wright Colby, a lawyer of Beatrice, Neb. He took the Indian baby home with him, and he and his wife adopted her. They called her Lost Bird, because the name seemed appropriate.

Last Saturday the Sioux chief Little made a raid on the residence of Gen. made araid on the residence of Gen. Colby at Beatrice. He had been in the Wounded Knee fight and when he fled before the pursuing bluecoats his girl papoose was left behind. Little Cloud heard recently that his daughter had been taken away from the Rosebud agency by Gen. Colby, and it so happened that the circus with which Little Cloud is doing Wild West stunts was billed to appear Saturday at Beatrice.

So Little Cloud, gathering his warriors, started off to abduct Lost Bird from the Colby residence. Waving tomahawks, the Indians made a forcible entry into the home of the Nebraska general. But Lost Bird was not there. Neither was Gen. Colby. The day before he had been married to his second wife and was off on his wedding trip. It is supposed that he had received warning of Little Cloud's intention.

But where was Lost Bird? The question was answered by officials of the United States Indian bureau. She is out in Oregon—nobody could remember the postoffice address—with Mrs. Clara Bewick Colby, the divorced wife of the general, whom he had married in 1871. When Lost Bird was taken from the Rosebud agency the Colbys were living together. In addition to being a citizen-soldier at that time, Gen. Colby was an assistant attorney general of the United States, stationed in Washington. So Lost Bird was brought to the capital by the general and his wife.

The Colbys remained here until a change of administration left Gen. Colby without an office. Then they went back to Beatrice and took Lost Bird with them. This was in 1893. Subsequently Gen. Colby served two terms in the Nebraska state senate. He had been in the Civil war when a mere boy and had served as lieutenant, captain, colonel and brigadier-general of the Nebraska state troops. It was while an officer of the Nebraska militia that he participated in the Wounded Knee campaign and found Lost Bird. In the Spanish-American war President McKinley commissioned him a brigadier-general of volunteers in recognition of his services in organizing the Cuban-American Volunteer Legion. From 1901 to 1903 he was adjutant-general of Nebraska.

Mrs. Colby was also prominent. She took a deep interest in the cause of woman suffrage and favored dress reform. At one of the congresses of women's organizations here she put forth the merits of Turkish trousers as a garb for her sex. Domestic difficulties between the Colbys resulted in a divorce. Gen. Colby remained in Nebraska. Mrs. Colby kept Lost Bird and for a time lived in Washington. Recently she wrote to the Indian bureau with reference to an application for an allotment of Indian funds for her foster child. The letter was sent from Oregon, where the Indian bureau's officials say that she and Lost Bird now are. No appeal has been made by Little Cloud to the bureau to help him secure Lost Bird. It is not by any means certain that the Indian maiden is his daughter. There were many Indian babies deserted after the Wounded Knee fight, and some of these, Lost Bird among them, were taken away by the soldiers.

It costs, but—

It costs to do things right; but it is worth all the money we put into it—all the strain on brain and heart—to do what's best for the American public, and do it first.

Each month we put into our magazine the very best we can get. We hold nothing back to "help out" the next issue—we take care of that number when its time comes. This is how it works:

We sent Vance Thompson to St. Petersburg to get the story of the opening of the Russian Duma, expecting it in time for August; but, after the July magazine had been on the presses a week, the story unexpectedly arrived—and it made us sit up. We confess that we didn't know much about the situation in Russia—no more than other careful observers—but this brilliant fact-story gave us our first real comprehensive view of what is going on there: The struggle-to-the-death between the puny Tsar, strong only in his "divine right," and the dead-in-earnest representatives of Russia's hundred and forty millions.

We didn't hesitate a minute or count the costs—any more than we counted consequences before publishing Lawson's attack upon the Big Life Insurance Companies or Sinclair's exposure of Beef Trust Horrors. We felt that you ought to have the real inside facts now—that you may fully understand the biggest movement going on in the world today and the greater events that will surely happen.

So we split open the already completed July number, jammed into it the sixteen extra pages (you see their peculiar numbering) at an extra cost of several thousand dollars, a lot of night-work, and the chance of coming out late.

It will be your loss, and ours, if you don't read it.

The July number was a "corker" already—hot shot from Lawson; from Teague on Bucket-Shop Steals; Russell on how the Japs are outdoing us; and exquisitely pathetic fact-story of Sophie Wright, the saint of New Orleans; the funniest Sea-serpent Story in a dog's age and nine other fiction stories of the highest order.

With this Duma fact-story, Everybody's is worth twenty-five cents of anybody's money. To the Tsar, if he heeds its warning, it is worth his Empire, perhaps his life.

STATE MAY NOT INVEST

County Official Says Water Bonds May Not be Taken.

Villages and School Districts Absorb All the Available Funds.

"While I have no doubt in the ultimate success of the city in floating its $375,000 water and light bonds for the new improvements, I am reasonably certain that the state of Minnesota will not buy the bonds," said one of the St. Louis county officials who is in a position to get pretty accurate information as to the usual action of the state board of investment, today.

"I do not wish to be understood as saying that the bonds would not be a good investment for the state or anybody else, individual or corporation, but the fact of the matter is that the state board of investment has not followed the practice of dipping so heavily into city bonds of any sort. In the first place, the money is not available from the school and university fund, or trust fund as it is called, and if it were, the investment board has so many urgent calls from towns and school districts for smaller loans than the city wishes to make, that the members of the board would be disposed to heed them first. The cities are usually able to dispose of their bonds in large amounts in the Eastern markets at a greater or less premium while the smaller divisions, such as villages and school districts have to look to the state as their money lender.

"The state investment board has a big demand on the trust fund from the villages and school districts which can as a rule, offer the very best of security. The amounts asked are not so very large and the investment board limits its loan to a cerain percentage of the assessed valuation of the corporation desiring to sell bonds. At the present time, I understand, the board has more applications for loans than it can take care of and such being the case the city of Duluth can hardly hope to receive consideration.

"Although the state may have a $20,000,000 trust fund it should be remembered that a large amount of this is already out on bonds and is not available yet for new loans. The money is generally put out by the investment board as fast as it comes in so that the state is continually doing a big loan business.

"I call to mind one instance last year when one of the prosperous range school districts wished to borrow $25,000 from the state and had the best security, but the investment board could do nothing as the funds were low at that time. The state auditor, who is a member of the investment board wrote a letter here explaining the situation.

"There are a surprisingly large number of towns and school districts over the state that are in need of funds for special purpose, usually some important improvement and the state could undoubtedly loan out twice as much as it does if it had the available funds. The state is well secured on the valuation for the principal and interest on the bonds is placed in the tax levy and if the taxes are not met the realty under assessment is sold to pay the state what it has due."

THE CANANEA TROUBLE.

Not Likely a Spread---Mexican Miners Generally Well Fixed.

Mexico City, Mex., June 20.—The labor troubles in the Cananea mining district are not likely to spread to other parts of this country. The strike of Mexican miners and smelter employes at Cananea was due to the decrease in wages. There has been a general increase in wages throughout Mexico during the past few years. At Cananea the rate of wages has been considered exorbitant, as compared with that pair to miners in other parts of the country.

The wage situation is satisfactory to laborers in the mining camps. On the ranches and farms extremely low wages are paid, 33 cents per day being probably an average scale. In most of the mining districts of Mexico such a thing as a strike is unknown. With some exceptions, as for instance the important mining camp of El Oro, the schedule for day wages is practically uniform. The majority of the mines carry on their underground work in two ways, that is to say, by contract or by the day.

In the former case the barretero, or drill man, earns an average of $1 a day, or pueblo, as it is called among them, and the average shift is five or six hours. Ore dressers, or pependadores, earn from 50 to 75 cents, according to the class of ore with which they deal and their knowledge of the work. Waste men or faineros receive about the same amount. The wages of cabos and sobrestantes vary, and expert native timbermen, or ademadores, earn from $1.50 to $2. This may be said to be the general estimate of wages for the day work, though, of course, every camp varies.

A great deal of the work in some mines is done by contract, and the prices, of course, are in accordance with the nature of the rock, depth at which work is being carried on, whether there is water in the mine or not, and other local conditions. Mexican miners in the districts alluded to are always ready to take up these contracts, or destajos, as they are called. Throughout the state of Guerrero, and particularly in the Taxco camp, there are men who have by long practice become wonderfully expert in estimating contract work of all kinds, and the instances when these taxquenos have taken such work and made good profits at it are numerous.

As a general rule there is but little friction between mine owners and operatives in making adjustments. Day work, as already mentioned, is generally at a fixed rate which has been in force for many years, and such a thing as lowering the scale of payment is unknown. Should such action be taken up by any particular mine, the result would be that the operatives would leave peaceably and in a body, finding work almost immediately in any other of the surrounding mines.

MUSIC, LIKE EATING, IS ONE OF LIFE'S PLEASURES.

Providence, R. I., June 20.—A most remarkable school report has reached this city from the town of Gloucester, in which the superintendent, Jesse B. Mowry, thus expresses himself on the subject of music:

"Music is the art most universally cultivated by the mass of the people, and if education is viewed as a means of human happiness, this subject deserves a foremost place in the public schools. No other thing has the advantage of conbining so much pleasure with great cultural value.

"Every child has some mucical talent, and it should not be neglected. It is a mistake to ignore or repress a child's interest in music simply because he may not have an exceptionally fine voice.

Most people sing because they know singing to be like eating, one of the chief joys of life and a passport to social privileges, and not because they are afflicted with the self-deception that their voices are very musical. Comparatively few vocalists produce a wide compass of tones which are decidedly pleasurable to an impartial critic.

"Singing is, in its origin and basis, sexual—being the means employed by the male to find and charm his mate, and man harks back to the lusty singing, crowing, whistling, cooing and barking of the lower animals.

"The wild gorilla in his native jungle shuffles gleefully to the rhythmic kh-ah! koo-loo! of his own voice, and we all like to holler and shout and sing and the resulting psychological and anatomical stimulus is profound, every fibre of our bodies vibrating with a surplusage of life and a sort of tintinabulous gusto.

"Yes, the pleasure, the culture, the moral uplifting of singing is subjective as well as objective and, therefore, every child should be taught to sing. I hope that it may be possible soon to have a special teacher of music, or to unite with some other town in the employment of such a teacher."

COULD WALK, SWIM OR FLY.

Strange Animal With Wings, Head and Legs, But No Body.

Reno, Nev., June 20.—What looks like a combination of Chinese devil and nightmare was brought to Carson, by J. B. Kenny and Edward Wallis, who found the uncanny object high up on Mount Davidson. It is mummified and has a head like a human being, a pair of noses, mouth and eyes, but it has no body. It is provided with wings like a bat and apparently when alive could do most anything from swimming in water to sailing in the air like a kite. Prof. Smith took a photograph of it and will send a copy to Prof. Frandsend, of the University of Nevada.

The head is about the size of a baseball and has legs like a frog. Six teeth, three of them broken, grace a mouth which perpetually grins.

It is an absolutely unique species of some animal that used to walk, swim or fly, according as its fancy chose.

EXCAVATORS STRIKE.

Mammoth Cave and Subterranean River, With Indian Relics.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 20.—A mammoth cave extending some miles in length and of irregular width has been accidentally discovered near the town of Jellico, on the Kentucky border.

The Jellico Water company has a number of men at work near the top of Pine Mountain, excavating at a spring which flows from the side of the mountain. In following the chasm they cut into a wide cavern and a large stream which is teeming with fish. The cave extends along the center of the mountain, south of Elk valley, for nine miles, and in many places is very large and beautiful, with the water twelve to sixteen feet deep. They have found a number of Indian relics, bones of beasts that are now extinct, and which filled the mountains in prehistoric days. Many peculiar shaped stones, like images of gods or idols, have also been brought out.

The exploration is still going on and will be pushed forward until the end of the cave is found. Motor boats can be operated successfully for miles up and down the subterranean waterway.

The water company has its engineering work for mains about completed and will soon be putting down pipes. The fall for the water which will give a cheap supply to the city will be 300 feet, and will come out of the cave in the Pine Mountains.

HUMAN GLUTTON BEATS DOG IN EATING MATCH.

Berlin, June 20.—In an eating match held at Leipzig the other day between a St. Bernard dog and a man, the human gourmand won easily.

The dog was with his master at a cafe and a dispute arose in relation to the eating capacity of animals. A man backed himself to eat more than the dog and the latter's owner accepted the wager.

The match took place the next evening, when two steaks were ordered for the challenger and Tiras, the St. Bernard. Tiras bolted his in ten seconds, while the man was naturally more deliberate. Two more steaks were disposed of and then the third course was served.

It consisted of dry bread, which the man quickly devoured, but from which Tiras turned away in disgust.

The dog's owner, losing the wager, paid for the meal and a case of wine for the winner.

Office - In your own Vest Pocket
On call any Minute - Day or Night

When Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Headache, Bad Breath, Coated Tongue, Belching of Stomach Gas, or any of these forerunners of Indigestion appear, Old Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot in your pocket.

He wants to check the coming trouble instantly before it can grow into a habit of the Bowels to be costive.

Ladies, who extend to Dr. Cascaret the hospitality of their Purses or their Dress Pockets, will be rewarded with a fine complexion, and healthy Happiness.

These will about fifty times repay for the trifling space occupied, and the ten cents per week at cost.

* * *

Dr. Cascaret guarantees to cure the most obstinate cases of Constipation and Indigestion, without discomfort or inconvenience.

His medicine does not gripe nor purge, nor create a drug habit.

Because it is not a "Bile-driver," nor a Gastric-Juice Waster, but a direct Tonic to the Bowel Muscles.

It exercises naturally the muscles that line the walls of the Intestines and Bowels.

Want of Exercise weakens and relaxes these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg muscles.

Old Dr. Cascaret goes directly after these Bowel-Muscles. He wakes them up just as a cold bath would wake up a lazy person.

Then he works them (through the nerves) till they get so strong from that Exercise that they don't need any more help to do their duty.

But Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot, in your Pocket or Purse, where he can regulate these Bowel-Muscles all the time, in health, and out of health.

Because, even the strongest Bowel-Muscles may be overworked.

Heavy dinners, late suppers, whiskey, wine, or beer drinking, nervous excitement, sudden exposure to cold or heat and a dozen other every day likelihoods tire the Bowel Muscles.

In such cases a little Cascaret in time is worth fifty dollars worth of Treatment later on, to say nothing of the suffering, discomfort, loss of Business Energy, and loss of Social Sunshine it saves.

NEW ARMY RATIONS BEING TURNED OUT

One Tin Contains Day's Supply for Uncle Sam's Soldiers.

Leavenworth, Kas., June 20.—The war department does not want its soldiers to eat anything they do not know the components of, but because all of the soldiers at Fort Leavenworth could not be given transportation to go to Kansas City and visit one of the packing houses where the new army ration is being prepared, it sent to that place a delegation of seventy-five officers, infantry and cavalry captains and lieutenants, members of the infantry and cavalry school, staff college and signal school, to make an investigation.

Other officers in charge of the party swelled the number to eighty-six. The latter came from Fort Riley, San Antonio, Tex., and some from as far away as New York.

In one of Kansas City's packing-houses the government is having prepared an emergency ration for troops in the field. In all 235,000 rations are to be made.

The party visited a building in which sixty men and women were working with machinery especially designed for the purpose of preparing the rations and putting them in long tin cans. Each can contains three cakes of bread-and-meat component, that are compressed under a weight of 6,400 pounds; three cakes of chocolate, wrapped in tinfoil; three-fourths of an ounce of salt and a gram of black pepper for seasoning.

The weight of the can when filled is twenty-one ounces, and its contents are sufficient to supply the wants of a soldier for one full day. The rations are being put up at the rate of 4,000 a day, and are being sent to the different army posts throughout the United States and in the Philippines.

The government has been experimenting for years with an emergency ration. But a few years ago the troops at Fort Leavenworth were forced to subsist on hash prepared in a packing-house, and the cooks were furnished with receipts for putting it up in all kinds of ways so as to make it palatable for the men, but they could not disguise the fact that it was hash, and the soldier did not take to it at all.

Then experiments were made with chocolate alone, and troops made forced marches with this as their only ration. While it did them no great harm, it was decided to give them something besides the chocolate, and for this reason the new ration is being tried.

Officers who represented the United States army in the East made notes on the emergency ration carried by the Japanese troops. This consisted of rice and dried fish. But an officer who did duty in the Orient is of the opinion that this newest ration will be in general use, referring to it as an evolution of the Indian ration of parched corn and buffalo meat.

Some time in the near future or as soon as all of the troops are supplied with the new emergency ration, troops are to be given it and then sent out on long hikes. It is not improbable that they will use it on their long marches, which commence July 15.

On that date the order is to be given by the president for the concentration of the army at about seven different camps, but troops at the different posts do not know when they will be given the order or where they will go.

The order has stated that nothing shall detain them, not even target practice, at which most of the army is employed during June. This time very little money is to be expended for railway transportation.

The troops at Fort Leavenworth will, it is thought, go to Fort Riley, and all will be required to cover the 200 miles on foot or horseback.

S.S.S. RIDS THE SYSTEM OF MALARIA

The healthy color of the skin is given to it by the millions of little red corpuscles in the blood. These are the carriers of nourishment, health and strength to all parts of the body—in other words the very life of the blood. When the germs of Malaria get into this vital fluid they destroy these corpuscles and rob the blood of its rich, lifes-ustaining qualities, rendering it thin, weak and watery and unable to supply the system with the needed strength to resist disease. Then the symptoms of Malaria such as pale, sallow complexions, weak vitality, poor appetite, deranged digestion, a general "let down" condition of the system, and perhaps chills and slight fever, show that this insidious disease is gradually affecting the entire health. Malaria must be removed from the system through the circulation, and the medicine to accomplish this is S. S. S. It not only cleanses the blood of all impure, unhealthy matter, but rids the system of Malaria, and restores the blood to a strong, healthy condition. S. S. S., besides removing the germs of Malaria, builds up and gives tone and vigor to the entire system by its fine tonic effects. Malaria is a blood disease, and S. S. S. cures it because it is a perfect blood purifier. Book on the blood and any medical advice without charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

AGED WOMAN ATTACKS

Infuriated Bull With Ax and Saves Her Husband's Life.

Springfield, June 20.—Aroused by the cries of her husband, Mrs. George Fitch, of near Strafford, arose from bed early today, and, grasping an ax, attacked and finally drove off a gigantic infuriated bull which had attacked and almost killed her husband.

Fitch had arisen early and gone to the barnyard to feed the stock. He was attempting to drive the bull, a large and powerful animal, into a feeding stall, when it became enraged and turned on him with such fierceness that he was knocked to the ground and gored before he could defend himself. The animal gored Fitch in the side and back several times, and he was almost unconscious from loss of blood when his wife came to his rescue with an ax.

Mrs. Fitch, who is past 60 years of age, attacked the bull, and, after belaboring the animal about the head with the sharp edge of the ax, succeeded in driving him away and in dragging her unconscious husband out of danger.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

GLOWING TRIBUTE

To Great Republican Leaders Paid by the National League.

Roosevelt Proclaimed the First Citizen of the World.

Philadelphia, June 20.—Reaffirming allegiance to the principles of the Republican party and condemning combinations in restraint of trade, the National League of Republican Clubs yesterday ended its convention.

The resolutions adopted by the convention are in part as follows:

"We pay tribute to our great leaders, from our first standard-bearer, John C. Fremont, and Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president, to Theodore Roosevelt, our present leader, the world's first citizen, who, through his rugged honesty, his persistent determination, his unflagging courage, and his demand for a 'square deal' for every person and every interest, has gained not only the respect and love of his fellow-countrymen, but the esteem and admiration of all mankind.

"We endorse the sentiment of William McKinley that the principle of a protective tariff is sacred, but that schedules should be changed when conditions of industry, commerce and finance demand, and not until then.

"We emphasize the results of the Dingley tariff, which is giving us a surplus of revenue, unparalleled activity in our factories, forests and mines; profitable prices for the products of our farms; greater, bank clearings and relatively less failures than ever before; a continually larger volume of employment at higher wages, resulting in unprecedented consumption of not only the necessaries, but comforts, conveniences and luxuries of life, augmented by larger savings and investments than have previously been recorded in our history.

"We approve of the action of the present congress in carrying out the recommendations of President Roosevelt by more advanced legislation than has been given us in a single session since the days of the Civil war.

"We have a just pride in our party's record in its settlement of the currency question through the adoption of the gold standard; in the establishment and development of the rural free delivery system now extended to more than 30,000 routes and 8,000,000 homes; in the progress made in opening our arid lands to cultivation through irrigation; in the well begun work of connecting ocean and ocean with an isthmian canal; in the many laws looking to the welfare of labor, and in the completed or pending legislation providing for equitable railroad legislation in interstate commerce; for better inspection of all food products; for free alcohol; for a new state; for an American merchant marine, and the many other important measures which have been or are to be considered.

"We are opposed to all illegal combinations in restraint of trade whereby the interests of either producers or consumers are injured, or whereby through monopoly rates and prices of products, are controlled at the expense of the masses. We wage no war on capital or corporations as such, but we do ask for equity and justice to all, by all and for all.

"We are opposed to inequality which permits one-twelfth of the voters of the country to wield one-quarter of the national legislative power. The suppression and denial of suffrage demands the reduction of the power so usurped, and the denial of suffrage should never be rewarded with political premiums. The Democracy of, at least, eleven states should be deprived of its unfair preponderance of power, and the full measure of political rights secured to every qualified citizen, white or black, who is capable and willing to assert his political manhood. The political party that profits by the suppression of the ballot is not to be trusted with the making or administration of the nation's laws.

"We reiterate the demand of our last national platform that our Republican majority in congress should courageously carry out the principles and pledges of the party and enact such legislation as will make all the constitutional amendments absolutely and finally effective.

"We ask for immediate legislation looking to the establishment of a parcels post and postal currency or notes to facilitate trade through orders by mail."

The following officers were elected: President, Gen. E. A. McAlpine, New York; vice president, H. H. Myers, Little Rock; secretary, Chauncey Dewey, Hamilton, Ohio; treasurer, W. G. Porter, South Dakota.

The selection of the next place of meeting was left to the executive committee.

SCALY ECZEMA ALL OVER BODY

Eruptions Appeared on Chest, and Face and Neck Were All Broken Out—Scales and Crusts Formed—Iowa Lady Has Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies for Skin Diseases.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"I had an eruption appear on my chest and body and extend upwards and downwards, so that my neck and face were all broken out; also my arms and the lower limbs as far as the knees. I at first thought it was prickly heat. But soon scales or crusts formed where the breaking out was. Instead of going to a physician, I purchased a complete treatment of the Cuticura Remedies, in which I had great faith, and all was satisfactory. A year or two later the eruption appeared again, only a little lower; but before it had time to spread I procured another supply of the Cuticura Remedies, and continued their use until the cure was complete. It is now five years since the last attack, and have not seen any signs of a return. I have taken about three bottles of the Cuticura Resolvent, and do not know how much of the Soap or Ointment, as I always keep them with me; probably one half dozen of each.

"I decided to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial after I had seen the results of their treatment of eczema on an infant belonging to one of our neighbors. The parent took the child to the nearest physician, but his treatment did no good. So they procured the Cuticura Remedies and cured her with them. When they began using Cuticura Remedies her face was terribly disfigured with sores, but she was entirely cured, for I saw the same child at the age of five years, and her mother told me the eczema had never broken out since. I have more faith in Cuticura Remedies for skin diseases than anything I know of. I am, respectfully yours, Emma E. Wilson, Liscomb, Iowa, Oct. 1, 1905."

The Gould Arrives.

The steamer George J. Gould arrived in port this morning. She and the steamer Wawatam had a collision in Lake Huron a few days ago while the Gould was on her way up to Duluth. Both were somewhat damaged, but whether or not the Gould will be docked here is not yet given out.

Does Not Break Record.

The new 600-foot steamer J. Pierpont Morgan, which was at Two Harbors Monday and yesterday, did not attempt to break the ore carrying record from Lake Superior now held by the E. H. Gary. She took only a moderate load for the reason that her pumps were not working well. On her next trip here it is expected she will go against the record even in view of the fact that the shallowness of water will interfere materially.

The Gladstone Goes Ashore.

Escanaba, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Gladstone of the Bradley fleet, is reported ashore on Pilot Island, at Deaths Door entrance to Green Bay. The Gladstone left Milwaukee last night for this port to take on a cargo of ore. The spot where the steamer stranded is one of the most dangerous on Lake Michigan. The accident was caused by fog.

Big Load Next Time.

It was expected that when she left the ore docks at Two Harbors, the new steamer J. Pierpont Morgan would have a record-breaking cargo, but she did not. Her pumps were not in the best of condition coming up and some water got in her hold. She will probably take a record-breaking cargo next time, however, as her owners are anxious to see what she can do.

Women's Suits Reduced ½ of Their Former Prices

No thrifty, prudent woman whose wardrobe has room for one of these suits will attempt to resist such opportunities. Many women will take two or three. You know, while tailored suits are "fashion demanded" all the season long, women generally procure them early. Some don't. These women will consider themselves lucky that they were tardy in their purchase.

FARM IS NOT A PICNIC GROUND

Jean Du Luth Company Compelled to Adopt Stringent Rules.

Because the Jean DuLuth farm on the East Duluth and Lester river road, has been overrun by picnic and pleasure parties and people from the city, who have not used the judgment that might be expected of visitors who have been treated with a liberal hospitality, C. P. Craig and John G. Williams, proprietors of the farm, have been compelled to protect their interests by adopting some stringent rules that will hereafter be enforced at the farm.

Signs are being prepared, stating that the farm is a private business enterprise, and not a public pleasure resort; that picnicking, hunting and fishing on the grounds are strictly forbidden, and that horses will not be stabled or people fed at the farm.

Mr. Craig says they have disliked very much to take a step of this nature, and have hesitated until the last moment. The way things have been going at the Jean DuLuth farm this season, particularly on Sundays, is demoralizing the large force of employes on the place and endangering the whole enterprise from a business standpoint.

"It is not that we wish to keep people away, or that we do not welcome persons who are interested in stock farm matters," says Mr. Craig, "but things have come to such a pass that picnic parties, fishermen and pleasure seekers seem to have the notion that the stock farm is a pleasure resort, and we have no privacy for ourselves or our friends when we wish to entertain them.

"The greatest danger is the likelihood that somebody will drive out from town with a horse afflicted with distemper or glanders. One diseased horse stabled at the farm endangers for us several hundred valuable horses and colts.

"We have had one experience with a distempered horse from the city, and do not wish another."

SAYS FAULTY SCALES FAVORS THE CONSUMER.

St. Paul, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At today's session of the Northwestern Coal Dealers' convention, C. C. Neals, state scale inspector, made a technical address on "The Inaccuracies of Scales." His argument was that the inaccuracy of scales caused by rusty parts and faulty foundations of scales gave the purchaser more coal than the scales weighed.

E. E. Johnson of Minneapolis and others discussed "Cures for Short Weights." This afternoon the entire convention took a trip to Lake Minnetonka.

SUNSHINE GREETS THE CREWS AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 20.—For the first time in more than a week the crews rowed today in sunshine. The weather heretofore has been cloudy, muggy and showery. Today the weather conditions went to the other extreme, it being a typical hot June day, with a blistering sun. The Wisconsin crews were the only ones that did not go out for early practice, because it was too hot. There is no question that the change in the Wisconsin varsity is permanent, and Coach O'Dea said today that unless something unforeseen occurs the men will row in this order:

Bow—Burling; 2—Richter; 3—Bechlem; 4—Levisee; 5—Davis; 6—Ruth; 7—Wilder; stroke—Lee.

SOUNDS OF THE NIGHT.

New York Sun: "Well," said Mr. Flatdweller, "summer has come again, with the windows all open and once more do we listen to the familiar sounds of the summer's night.

"Once more we hear the alternately yearning and explosive playing of the man who is learning to play the cornet. And I can't say that I think he has learned much through the winter.

"He still sharps and flats in a frightful manner, and he still gets the bugle all choked up every now and then with a lot of notes wedged in together, which at last, by one supreme convulsive effort, he blows out all together, in a dismayed discordant bunch. As a matter of fact, I can't say that I think he's improved at all, but, strange as it may seem, I like to hear him play; and I should miss him—who can doubt that?—if he went away.

And now we hear the pianos again, pianos on all sides, and back and front, pianos innumerable; the atmospheric interstices between being filled up largely with the sounds of multitudious phonographs; and, listen! the pensive but permeating notes of a flute!

"How we should have missed that! And I can fancy the flute player playing, in the midst of this musical tumult, all wrapped up in and hearing his own notes alone, and finding in them a joy. And it is a blessed provision of Providence that this is so; that each is satisfied with himself and his own; else how wretched should we be!

"And now comes cleaving the air the sabre-like and soaring voice of the neighborhood soprano, sure of an audience because the people can't move away; the wailing of small children and the shouts of bigger ones in the street at play, and shouts of laughter. And now the bland bassoon and the sonorous trombone and the somewhat nasal toned concertina; all, all are here; and the air is perforated, the night is punctured and punctuated with many, many sounds. Nothing gone, and all so familiar.

"And up around where I live, there is a big summer picnic park, where at night, in the season, they always shoot off fireworks, these being mainly bombs, which start skyward from the earth with a report like that of a cannon, to burst high in the air and scatter smaller bombs whose explosions are like the rattle of musketry.

"I never feel that the summer season in my neighborhood has been really and fairly opened until they have the first big picnic at the picnic grounds, and begin firing those bombs, which they did last night. The pianos were playing and the singers were singing and the cornets and phonographs and bass horns and bassoons and flutes and concertinas were going, the air was a waving, billowing, surf smashed sea of sound, and yet there seemed something, something lacking.

"And then there came a glow in the sky, the light of a bursting bomb—the picnic season had opened; and that was the thing that was needed to complete the effect upon the ear, just that one thing, the sound of the bursting bombs; and now that the park's cannonading had been added to the din, I pronounce the open window season, the neighborhood musical season for the summer of 1906 to be in official full blast.

"And for myself so far from being disturbed by it, I rather like this musical clamor, for it tells me that the people have all come through the winter nicely and comfortably to enter upon the bright summer buoyantly."

ODD ROYAL HOBBY.

One of the oddest of royal hobbies is that followed by Queen Maud of Denmark, who for years has made ivory her hobby. Not only has she a fine collection of ivory statues and other art objects, but she collects ivory in the tusk as well, and has a large collection of trophies of the elephant chase, many of which were sent to her by her brother, the present prince of Wales, who has doubtless added to the collection during his trip through India. Most of these are supplied with tiny gold plates, telling where and under what circumstances the animal from which the tusk was taken, was killed.

RECEIVED A MEDAL.

William Watkins, a young man of Edwardsville, Pa., is the first anthracite miner to receive a Carnegie medal for heroism and $1,200 from the hero fund. On September 3, 1904, there was an explosion in No. 4 colliery of the Kingston Coal company. All but three of the workers rushed out of the mine. The three were at the bottom of the slope, where the explosion occurred. Watkins, at the imminent peril of his life, rushed down the slope, which was rapidly filling with black damp, and by desperate efforts managed to rescue the three men, half carrying one of them who was badly hurt.

LETTERS PRODUCED

Defense Seeks to Show That McAlpine Ran Logging Business.

The Big Case is Not Yet Near Its Close.

John McAlpine was on the witness stand all the morning under cross-examination, in the trial of the McAlpine-Millen damage case. A few days ago Mr. McAlpine, under direct and cross-examination, claimed that the affairs of the McAlpine Lumber company, which corporation bought and handled the Richardson & Avery timber, was run entirely by John Millen, and that he, McAlpine, had little to do with the business except when requested by Mr. Millen.

Mr. Millen sought to bring out in the cross-examination today that McAlpine really had a great deal to do with the operations of the partnership in the Richardson & Avery timber, and that he pretty nearly ran the logging operations.

With this end in view, a mass of letters, orders, and papers relating to various matters pertaining to logging and camps, and purported to be signed by Mr. McAlpine, were presented to him by L. C. Harris, for identification of signature.

Mr. McAlpine, following his tactics of yesterday afternoon, was very cautious, and refused to say whether it was his signature or not until he had the papers placed in his hands and had looked them over. He identified his signature on some of the papers, and expressed doubt or direct denial as to his signature on other papers, even though they were on letter heads from his office. Mr. McAlpine claimed that this latter fact signified nothing, as some of his letterheads were kept at the office of the McAlpine Lumber company.

In the main the papers introduced for the identification of Mr. McAlpine's signature were orders directing payment for supplies, for services rendered by various employes, and the sending of men to the camps. The defense claims to have a large amount of documentary evidence of similar nature with a view of supporting its claim that Mr. McAlpine had more to do with the affairs of the McAlpine Lumber company than he at first admitted.

Some amusement was caused this morning by Mr. McAlpine's answer to the query of Mr. Harris relative to a telegram that he sent to Elmer Whyte, secretary of the lumber company. The telegram directed the forwarding of Mr. McAlpine's mail to Caledonia Springs, where he was then staying, and ended with the words "how is everything going?" After attempting unsuccessfully for some minutes to corner the witness and get him to explain what he meant by the words, Mr. Harris finally asked:

"You meant that you had such complete confidence in Mr. Whyte's judgment of the general condition of mundane affairs that you wanted to let him know you were at Caledonia Springs if he wanted to tell you something?"

"Yes, sir, that's about it," said Mr. McAlpine, amid the laughter.

In denying his signature on some of the papers, Mr. McAlpine based his denial on the ground that "they did not look regular."

A. B. Chapin, president of the St. Louis Lumber company, which sawed some of the logs owned by Mr. McAlpine and Mr. Millen, was called as a witness for Mr. Millen, and produced the books, records, etc., showing the business transactions of the mill company with the lumber company. There was a lively legal sparring match between the attorneys as to the admission of the documentary evidence.

About the most interesting, and an amusing feature, brought out in the proceedings of yesterday afternoon was the disclosure that Patrick Nester of Baker City, Or., who is employed by Mr. Millen to look up timber for him at the coast, and who is a witness for Mr. Millen, came from the coast to Duluth on transportation bought with Mr. McAlpine's money. Mr. McAlpine had subpoenaed Mr. Nester as his own witness, not knowing until his arrival here that he was employed by Mr. Millen.

Mr. Nester's testimony related to the estimating, buying and selling of timber tracts, and was based on his thirty years' experience. He claimed that estimators' figures might vary 40 to 50 per cent, and that there are various conditions that might transpire to cause men's judgment to differ widely.

It is understood that Mr. Millen has a considerable amount of evidence yet to introduce, and that the case will not be completed for several days.

DEMAND THEIR PAY.

Teamster and Blacksmith Sue Logging Concern.

James McPherson, a teamster and George Simmons, a blacksmith, have begun suits in the district court to recover wages alleged to be due them from Randolph & Berger who conducted logging camps on Randolph's bay on the North shore.

McPherson claims that he hired out to the loggers at $40 per month, and served from Oct. 7, 1905, to March 26, following. He calims that his entire wages amounting to $148 are still owing him and asks that the logs on which he has filed a llen be sold to pay his claim.

Simmons claims he hired out for $65 per month and earned $143.33 which he did not get. He also asks that the logs on which he filed a llen be sold to satisfy the claim.

C. E. Adams represents both McPherson and Simmons.

WEST DULUTH

ADVANCES LOOKED FOR

Real Estate Men Find Property Situation Stronger.

Hint at Possibility of Another Industry Coming Here.

Real estate men at West Duluth are hearing of another manufacturing plant on tap at West Duluth. They already feel the effect of the increased demand for property for manufacturing in the increased prices asked and offered for residence property. Rents, however, have not suffered a raise in West Duluth, except in isolated cases.

It is firmly believed that with the coming of more manufacturing plants, raises all around will occur, but the delay in getting the water power into the city, from July to November, has held matters back to a considerable extent. However, as soon as the water power gets in, prices will soar, it is expected.

The work on the preparation of the American Carbolite company's plant progresses well, and workmen are engaged day after day in making the necessary improvements, building and putting in foundations for machinery. The works are receiving a new coat of paint, and are assuming a better appearance.

REPUBLICANS OF VERMONT

Name Senator Proctor's Son for Governor and Endorse Roosevelt.

Montpelier, Vt., June 20.—Fletcher D. Proctor, son of United States Senator Redfield Proctor, was nominated by acclamation for governor of Vermont, at the Republican convention today.

With the exception of two planks the platform adopted dealt with state issues. Of the exceptions, one was the endorsement of President Roosevelt, and the other expressing sympathy with the movement against discrimination in interstate commerce. The resolutions said on these subjects:

"We heartily and cordially endorse the splendid administration of President Theodore Roosevelt, and we commend the president as a fearless champion of the welfare of the people. He has, without fear or favor, uncovered and punished those guilty of malfeasance in public service; he has zealously assailed the violators of the federal statutes; he has promoted friendly relations with other nations of the earth and gained for us a front rank in the world's diplomacy; he has encouraged wise and helpful legislation and has shown his determination to continue to promote protection of home industries, commercial expansion and other national policies that have helped the American people to enjoy prosperity and progress without a parallel in the annals of national development.

"We are in hearty sympathy with the great battles fought by the Republican party in behalf of the people against the evil of rebating, favoritism and discrimination in interstate commerce. We are in favor, by proper state legislation of protecting the people of the state against like evils within the state in non-interstate commerce."

FIVE GENERATIONS OF WOMEN.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, June 20.—Five generations living under the same roof is the unique social condition recently revealed at Waterloo, where the great-great grandmother, great grandmother, grandmother, mother and daughter reside. The old lady, aged 89 years, who enjoys the distinction shared by few women of being a great great grandmother, is Elizabeth Kessel; the great grandmother is Sarah Conrad, aged 57; the grandmother, Harriet Gough, aged 33; the mother Eva Edwards and the daughter, Muriel Edwards, aged 1 year and 2 months. Next to the great-great grandmother, the most remarkable fact is a grandmother at the age of 33, as few women of the age of Mrs. Gough can claim the title.

SUICIDE OF YOUNG WOMAN.

Worthington, Minn., June 20.—Rose Caspers, a young woman living eight miles north of here, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. No cause can be assigned.

CLOSING BUSINESS

Druids' Grand Grove Will Finish Work in Afternoon.

Election of Officers and Elaborate Banquet Will Wind It Up.

At this morning's session of the grand grove of Druids, which is holding its annual meeting in Eagles' hall, a great deal of business was discussed. Certain changes in insurance matters were proposed and were under hot discussion during the morning, but nothing has been done as yet and the matter is again under discussion this afternoon. It is understood that the session, which was secret, was a hot one, and much argument was indulged in for and against proposed changes. It is expected that the matters under discussion will be settled this afternoon. One of the most important changes proposed is that of issuing insurance policies to unmarried men. Heretofore the only policy issued was for $1,000. It is now desired to allow policies from $250 up to be issued.

This afternoon, at 5:30, the Druids will go in a body to the foot of Fifth avenue west, where they will board the steamer Newsboy for a trip around the horn and about the bay to the various points of interest. Returning, they will go to dinner, at 8 o'clock, at Eagles' hall, which banquet will end the sessions. At this banquet which, it is promised will be very elaborate, a number of prominent speakers will be present and will make addresses, among them Mayor M. B. Cullum, who will be one of the leading speakers of the evening.

Last night the degree team of Mistletoe grove, No. 17, of Minneapolis, exemplified the second degree on a class of candidates, and it is said that the work was exceptionally fine. The class of Duluth men who were made Druids were: Charles J. Kugler, Charles C. Murray, John Heidmen, Harry Fenner, Edward Hanson, M. Solberg, Charles Bostrom, George Rohr and Axel Bloom.

This afternoon the annual election of officers will take place, and it is expected that Deputy Grand Arch A. W. Harris of Odin grove, No. 29, Minneapolis, will succeed J. F. Kremer of Winona, who is the present incumbent of the office. It is expected that the rest of the present officers will be re-elected.

LOST THE CASE.

Boston Herald: The late ex-Governor Robinson used to tell a story in which he acknowledged that the only witness who ever made him throw up his hands and leave the courtroom was a green Irishman.

Mr. Robinson, at the time, was counsel for one of the big railroads. A section hand had been killed by an express train and his widow was suing for damages. The railroad had a good case, but Mr. Robinson made the mistake of trying to turn the main witness inside out.

The witness, in his quaint way, had given a graphic description of the fatality, occasionally shedding tears and calling on the saints. Among other things he swore positively the locomotive whistle was not sounded until after the whole train had passed over his departed friend. Then Mr. Robinson thought he had him.

"See here, Mr. McGinnis," said Mr. Robinson, "you admit that the whistle blew."

"Yes, sor, it blew sor."

"Now, if that whistle sounded in time to give Michael warning the fact would be in favor of the company, wouldn't it?"

"Yes, sor, and Mike would be testifying here this day." The jury giggled.

"Never mind that. You were Mike's friend, and you would like to help his widow, but just tell me now what earthly purpose there could be for the engineer to blow that whistle after Mike had been struck?"

"I presume that the whistle wor for the nixt man on the thrack, sor."

Mr. Robinson retired, and the widow got all she asked for.

"If a man does not make new acquaintances as he passes through life he will soon find himself left alone. A man must keep his friendship in constant repair."—Johnson. Herald want ads. have introduced more people to each other in this city than have met through any other means.

FINISH IT NEXT YEAR

Southeastern Will Not be Completed Before September, 1907.

Contractor Balch Says Roadbed is Finest in Northwest.

"Trains will not be running in Duluth or Superior over the Lake Superior & Southeastern road before the fall of 1907," said H. F. Balch of Minneapolis today. Mr. Balch, who has the contract for the construction of the new line from Ladysmith, Wis., to the Head of the Lakes, a distance of 110 miles, is in the city today, registered at the Spalding.

"Work on the road is progressing in a manner that is entirely satisfactory to all concerned, and no criticism is being offered on the speed with which it is being carried through. We have had no expectations at any time of being able to complete the Southeastern until next year. The job should be finished in September, 1907, and trains will probably begin running very soon thereafter.

"Crews of men and construction outfits are busy all the way from the Head of the Lakes to Ladysmith. Probably not more than 2,000 men are employed altogether, however, because of the fact that we have ten steam shovels working. Each one of these is equivalent to 1,000 or 1,200 men. Where a man handles twenty yards of earth a day, a shovel will take care of 2,000 yards or more. The force and outfits are being added to right along, and two more shovels will be started on the work this month. Half a million yards will be dug during June. We are meeting with no difficulty in getting enough men to put on the work. I am handling four dinky outfits myself, and the remainder of the work is let to subcontractors.

"When completed, the road bed of the Southeastern will be the finest in the entire Northwest. It is a very low grade all the way. With two exceptions, the steepest grade on the line is three-tenths of one per cent. The exceptions are two very short pieces of track. This means a grade of 15 feet to the mile in the steep places, and you can see that is not very much.

"Our steam shovel in the vicinity of Gordon is handling 500 carloads of dirt a day, and each car holds 4½ yards."

Mexico on a Gold Basis.

Mexico is putting itself on a gold basis in a very matter-of-fact way. It is selling its silver reserve at an enhanced value and buying gold in the United States, an order for $5,000,000 worth being recently sent us. Bankers make the claim that the change to gold will greatly strengthen the credit of Mexico. It is always good policy to make any change that will result in lasting benefit, and with this idea in view, thousands of persons have made a change in their medicine and are now taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. They write us that their old remedy did them no good, while the Bitters soon made them well again. If you're not taking Hostetter's, start today. You'll find it quickly relieves indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, heartburn, costiveness, female ills, insomnia, and malaria, fever and ague. Don't accept a substitute.

ALUMNI TO HOLD BANQUET

Northern Association of University of Minnesota Graduates to Feast.

Just a week from this evening, the members of the Northern Alumni Association of the University of Minnesota will gather at the annual banquet, which will be held at the Commercial club. Dr. F. C. Bowman, president of the association, and other members of the committee on arrangements say that the attendance this year will surpass any function previously attempted by the former University of Minnesota students at the Head of the Lakes.

Among those who are scheduled to give talks at the banquet are Prof. Henry F. Nachtrieb, Prof. F. S. Jones and E. B. Johnson, the well known registrar of the institution. The local alumni will also be asked to contribute some of the responses and it is planned to have the affair less formal than it was a year ago.

Last year's affair was very successful and the attendance was an agreeable surprise for those who had the banquet in charge. But this year, from all indications, the attendance will be larger than ever and there will be plenty of "Ski-u-mah, 'varisty,'varisty, Minne-so-ta" spirit manifested.

AMERICAN APPIAN WAY.

A national pike to run from the Atlantic to the Pacific is the latest proposition in this land of big schemes.

The first step has been taken. In a sentence almost as long as the proposed pike itself, the Washington Post announces the fact thus:

"The creation of the American Appian Way, beginning at Washington, on Atlantic tidewater, following the trail of the historic National Pike through the passes of the Appalachians and across the Ohio, though the great Middle West to St. Louis, and then in two great boulevards on to the Pacific, one of which will cross Montana to Puget Sount and the other through Denver and Salt Lake over the Rockels and Sierras to San Francisco.

(Stop here for rest and refreshment.)

will be the magnificent fruition of plans the first tentative steps of which have been taken in the introduction of a bill in congress by Representative Pearre of Maryland for an appropriation for the restoration of the monuments and landmarks and the reconstruction of the ancient Cumberland road that by its building made an empire possible."

Automobile associations and good roads folk all over the country are pledged to the support of the bill. "Honk! Honk!" is the war cry of the new movement.

Save to the historian and those who live along the dusty thread of macadam that binds together Washington and St. Louis, the story of the old National Pike is an unknown chapter.

The route is prehistoric. Even before the Indians invaded America herds of buffalo roamed the continent. They were America's first road makers. They did their work so well that a map of their trails and "traces" would duplicate the great highway and railway systems of today.

The National Pike, or the Cumberland Road, as it was popularly called, was first a buffalo trace worn deep across the Appalachians by the pounding hoofs of millions of bison. When the Indians came they followed this same trail in their hunting excursions and war expeditions, retreating over it to the West before the ever advancing, relentless frontier of the white man.

Over this patch came the Anglo-Saxon hunter and trapper, followed by the home maker, until at last the tide of emigration poured in a deluge through the mountain passes to the land of promise.

To supply the trade demands of this growing Western population in the early days, long trains of pack ponies picked their way to and fro over the old Cumberland trail, to be displaced by the great Sonestoga freight wagons and speeding mail coaches of the early days of the century, they in turn to vanish when the steam railroad accomplished the supposedly impossible feat of climbing the mountains.

Every mile of the old Cumberland Road is historic ground. Over it toiled the young surveyor, Washington. Later the British grenadiers tramped the route, led by Braddock, whose grave is still green beside the trail.

Discontent followed the settlement of the country beyond the Appalachians. Despised by the tidewater patricians, the settlers of the Western valleys turned to the support of the Burr conspiracy. Just at this crisis there was a successful demand for a great road, which should bind the two sections together.

In 1802 Jefferson signed a bill for the survey of the National Pike. The first contract was awarded in 1811 and the road was completed in 1818. In 1825 was begun the extension of the National Pike from Wheeling to St. Louis.

The reconstruction of the old national road will resurrect in a measure the vanished glories of the famous stage coach days. Scattered along the road were the old taverns, of which only a few remain. It is expected that many of these will be rebuilt, thus restoring the most picturesque feature of the old turnpike.

The first taverns along the route were built of logs, and consisted of only two rooms and a great fireplace, before which the tired travellers slept in their blankets, curled up on the puncheon floors. They sported such names as Sign of the Rising Sun, Sign of the Orange Tree, Temple of June, Six Mile House, Sign of the Golden Swan, Sign of the Indian Queen, Sign of the Green Tree, Sign of the Cross Keys.

Around the blaze gathered the merry crowd of travellers, and it was a gala event for the inn when the central figure of the group would be Clay, Jackson, Harrison, Lincoln, Douglas, Cass, Dickens, Mrs. Trollope, Prince Maximilian of Weid, Rafinesque and many other travellers from Europe were guests of the old taverns and left entertaining accounts of their impressions.

At the side of the old fireplace hung the flip iron and the huge poker, sometimes seven or eight feet long. Its use was jealously guarded as a perogative of the tavern landlord.

Before the advent of the railroad twenty speeding coaches in a single line made a famillilar spectacle, and the caravan of huge freighters, each wagon carrying six to eight thousand pounds, sometimes numbered close to a hundred.

The occasion when the life of the old highway throbbed in its greatest intensity was when a president or a president-elect passed in triumphant procession along its dusty stretches. It was the gala day of the "pikeboys." All the taverns and houses along the route were bedecked in the welcome and cheering crowds from miles around thronged the stopping places and crossroads.

The finest horses and the most gorgeous coach procurable were assigned to the task, and the proud position of "charloteer to the president" was given to the pick of the jehus on the line, who ever afterward were marked and noted. Jackson, Vth Buren, Monroe, Harrison, Polk and Tyler passed over portions of the old road in dignified presidential pageant, like the triumphal processions of the Roman emperors.

Clay, the great champion of the road, and of the policy of internal improvements, was a favorite in every hamlet, and in the records of those old days along the pike occur the names of Benton, Cass, Lafayette, Santa Ana, Black Hawk, Jenny Lind, Barnum, John Quiney Adams and a host of others.

The first steps toward renewing the life of the old highways are being taken.

At its session just adjourned the Maryland legislature made an appropriation for the reconstruction as a boulevard of the road between Baltimore and Washington, and at a recent convention of the Southern automobile associations the plan for rebuilding the old pike from Washington south to Jacksonville took tangible shape.

RESPECTFULLY REFERRED.

Saturday Evening Post: Before the last presidential campaign, Don Cameron, the former senator and political leader of Pennsylvania, went to the White House to talk with the president about making Senator Penrose of that state, chairman of the Republican National committee.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was there, and Joseph Bucklin Bishop, who is now of the Panama Canal Commission.

The president heard Mr. Cameron and then said: "That is very interesting, Senator Cameron, but I wish you would consult President Butler about the practicability of it."

"What, Mr. President?" asked the astonished Cameron.

"Just talk it over with President Butler. He is one of my political advisers."

Cameron drew Bishop aside. "Now, what do you think of that?" he whispered hoarsely. "Here I am, 71 years old and seventy of those years in politics, and he asks me to consult with Nicholas Murray Butler!"

THE WAY WITH LAWYERS.

Los Angeles Times: The late Abraham Barker, the Philadelphia banker, was one of the founders of the famous Union league, and a member of this club said of him recently:

"Mr. Barker, with his pleasant voice and his ready smile, will be missed sadly at the Union league. He was a brilliant conversationalist. I remember listening, one night in the restaurant, to an argument that he had with a lawyer.

"In the course of his argument, Mr. Barker said:

"'You lawyers have a remarkable way of putting a case. You all put a case in the same way. It is amazing.'

"Then he illustrated his meaning. He said a lawyer was defending a man who had fired a revolver at another, and in return had been hit over the head with a stick.

"He said that the lawyer put the case to the jury like this:

"'The discussion, gentlemen, grew animated. My client (voice very mild and low) happened to let off his tiny toy pocket pistol when (voice raised to fierce and stentorian tones) his brutal opponent dealt him a ferocious blow over the head with a great, murderous club.'"

HOW CONVICTS KILL TIME.

London Tit-Bits: The convict whose idle hours are the bitterest of his term of imprisonment, must kill time clandestinely unless the governor or the chaplain is willing to take a very broad view of the regulations in order to help him. Sometimes a skilled workman of an industrious turn of mind will appeal to one or the other of these gentlemen to find him some employment for his spare time. Thus a clever wood carver mentioned in a recent report of the prison commissioners was able to present to the chapel a really magnificently carved eagle lectern in oak, entirely the work of his own hands, and done in hours which might otherwise have been spent in solitude and idleness.

An ex-governor of a great prison has in his possession a remarkably handsome sideboard in walnut, which was made for him by a convict of a prison where he was governor for some ten years. The man appealed to him for some means of killing time, and, knowing the man to be a cabinetmaker, he provided him with wood and tools. The sideboard was the surprising result, and in consequence of it, when the convict took his discharge, there was a substantial present from the governor to help him in making a fresh start in life. Moreover, while thus employed his hand was not losing its cunning nor his mind lying fallow, and his chances of leading an hoest life thereafter were therefore greatly increased.

On the other hand, prisoners have been known to kill time secretly by such melancholy devices as making mats and baskets of straw taken from their beds, rather than simply sit and brood. Others have set themselves to count the number of times certain letters occur in the Bible, with a copy of which every convict is provided, and it is quite a common practice for prisoners to learn whole chapters, gospels, and epistles by heart. A certain hardened character once committed to memory the whole of the Old Testament, but the moral good it did him could not have been very great, for two days after his release he committed a burglary, for which he was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The chaplain of a prison possesses considerable powers in the way of providing convicts with spare occupations, and with his co-operation an educated convict will sometimes indulge in such "literary purposes" as indicting his autobiorgraphy, which many chaplains consider an excellent method for getting a prisoner to weigh his own character, though they are often disappointed by the measure of hypocritical claptrap such autobiographies contain.

HIS IMPRESSIONS.

The King of Portugal is a man of many accomplishments—splendid shot, excellent swimmer, expert fencer and enthusiastic angler. On the occasion of his recent visit to England he was chatting with a royal host who asked what had impressed him most during his visit. His majesty repited thoughtfully: "Well I think the English roast beef is very delightful." "Oh," laughed his royal highness, "but surely something else has impressed your majesty as well?" "Ah!" enthusiastically replied the king, "of course, the English boiled beef is also delightful."

"Some men can never state an ordinary fact in ordinary terms. All their geese are swans, till you see the birds." By Herald want advertising you can sell both geese and swans—but not geese masquerading as swans.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Steady With Fair Demand From Commission Houses.

Chicago, June 20.—The wheat market opened steady with a fair demand from commission houses. There was little early news affecting the market, but additional rains in the Southwest, which have interfered with harvesting, were an influence against higher prices. July wheat opened ⅛c lower at 82⅝c, sold down to 82⅛@82¼c and advanced to 82¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 262 cars, against 122 cars last week and 149 cars one year ago.

At the end of the first hour the market became strong because of an improved demand for cash wheat at Kansas City, and small receipts in the Southwest. The high point for July was at 84c. The close was strong, with July up 1c at 83⅜c.

The corn market was weak at the opening on general selling caused by wet weather in the corn belt, but later prices became firm, and all the loss was regained on buying by shorts. July opened ¼c to ⅝c lower at 51c to 51¼c, declined to 50¾@51c and then advanced to 51½@51¾c. Local receipts were 371 cars, with 153 of contract grade.

The market was strong all day, the high point for July being 52⅛c. Light acceptances in the country was one cause of the firmness. The close was strong, with July up ½c at 51⅞c.

Oats opened weak because of continual wet weather, but became steady on good buying by commission houses and pit traders. July opened ¼c to ⅜c lower at 38⅜c to 39¼c, declined to 38⅝c and then advanced to 39c. Local receipts were 132 cars.

Provisions were steady and trading dull. September pork opened unchanged at $16.65. aLrd was down 2½c at $8.92½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $9.25.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—There was a little speculative explosion in wheat today. The constant hammering of the last two or three days in trying to force the market back seemed to be overdone, and the strong rebound was the natural result. The efforts to put the market back in sympathy with coarse grains the last day or two created quite a short interest. This sort of interest was run in today on an advance of 1¾c from the low point when the September price touched 84¼c, the close 1½c up for the day. Northwestern markets were strong. Some cash business was done in wheat here, and the inquiry seems to improve. Until the market is of a broader character, we think profits might be taken on the swells, but on any fair break the buying side looks like the profitable one in this market.

Corn—There is a higher range and change in front of us today. The good crop weather was less of a factor today, the letup in the hedging sales by the cash people and the recovery of nearly 1 cent in the cash market, were the bullish features. There is little accumulation of stocks. Cash market was up ½ cent at Kansas City. The country keeps in mind the chances for crop accident through July and August.

Oats—There was less swing to the oats market than for some time. The feature of the trade was the excellent buying of the December and May in which the local trade and the Southwest joined. There was some doubt about the good rains have done to oats in many states. This market is likely to rebound so that buying on breaks will be profitable.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Robert Fringle sticks to the bull side of wheat and says: "I believe it is a purchase. The time to buy is when the price is feeling the effects of the anticipated movement and the weakness in coarse grains. I believe the farmer is not going to sell his wheat freely. His action will be a strong element in enlarging or curtailing supplies, and so long as prices are not a great inducement he will not sell."

THE MERCHANT'S SECRET.

Receipt for Keeping Clerks Without Raising Pay.

There is a merchant in downtown New York who thinks he has discovered a way to keep his clerks for years at low salaries and yet get uniformly good service from them, says the New York Sun. He has about a dozen employes in his office, ranging from youths of 16 to graybeards of 60.

The system is simple. Pay day is nominally every Saturday, but when that day comes around not a soul except the two office boys, who are exempt from the system, goes to the cashier's window. All the rest have overdrawn their accounts, and are in debt to their employer.

By direction of the boss, the cashier is easy. Every employe is allowed to overdraw his salary account within certain limits.

Periodically one of these bond-slaves thinks of asking for an increase in salary. He resolves that he will live on what he has been getting hereafter and will apply the increase to the settlement of the debt.

He enters the old man's private office with a bold face, but with heart unusually fluttering. The chief receives him courteously, asks him to sit down, and sends for the cashier.

"Mr. Smith, how has Mr. Jones been doing his work?"

"Very well, sir. He is entirely satisfactory."

"I'm glad to hear it. You may give him —but wait a moment. By the way, is he ever drawn on his salary account, and if so, how much?"

"I'll see, sir. One hundred and forty-eight dollars and sixty-four cents."

"Thank you, Mr. Smith. That is all."

Exit the cashier. The young man who wants an increase has been getting more uncomfortable every minute. He did not think he was so much to the bad.

In fact, he hadn't kept much track of what he had drawn. He would give anything if he hadn't left his desk and bragged before he came in how he was "going to put a crimp in the old man for more salary."

The employer's face wears a frown.

"One hundred and forty-eight dollars and sixty-four cents overdraft on a salary of $18 a week. This sort of thing must stop. I don't see how you can expect me to increase your salary in the face of such a condition as that. If you had taken on the swells, but on any fair break the buying side looks like the profitable one in this market.

Corn—There is a higher range and change in front of us today. The good crop weather was less of a factor today, the letup in the hedging sales by the cash people and the recovery of nearly 1 cent in the cash market, were the bullish features. # STRENGTH EXHIBITED

By the Stock Market But It Dropped Toward the Close.

Heavy Buying of Baltimore & Ohio Made New Record Price.

New York, June 20.—Prices at the opening of the stock market today showed brisk advances over last night with the usual speculative favorites leading. Great Northern preferred rose 3½, National Lead 2, American Smelting 1½, Interborough Metropolitan preferred and Reading 1⅛, Chesapeake & Ohio, Locomotive and D. & H. 1, and St. Paul, O. & W., Canadian Pacific and Colorado Fuel large fractions. Michigan Central sold at an advance of 5 points. B. & O. yielded ¾ on realizing and Interborough Metropolitan ran off nearly a point.

Selling orders in Baltimore & Ohio and Interborough Metropolitan carried them off 1 and 1¼, respectively, but their weakness had only a slight effect on the general market, which continued active at some further advance. Large blocks of stocks were handled freely, the opening in Norfolk & Western being 6,000 shares at 89½ to 90½ against 88⅝ yesterday's close. Some effective profit-taking occurred from time to time in Great Northern preferred, Lead and Locomotive. Michigan Central improved ⅝, Northern Pacific, 2¼; Reading, 1⅜; Allis-Chalmers preferred, 1. The demand was freely fed to take profits and the rise halted at 11 o'clock.

There was a notable shrinkage in the volume of activity in the second hour. Some new points of strength developed, but the market became spotty and irregular. Michigan Central rose 20 points in all. Northwestern and Interborough Metropolitan preferred rose 2; St. Paul, 1⅝; Amalgamated Copper, 1. Realizing caused reactions in some of the earlier strong stocks and the general tone at noon was heavy. Bonds were steady at midday.

Profit taking was hastened by signs of a renewed break in the Interborough Metropolitan stocks, the common falling to 41⅝ and the preferred to 76¾. Coincidentally there was a slump of 7 in Metropolitan Street railway. Declines from the best prices were widespread and did not reach large dimensions, except in St. Paul, Reading and some of the metal stocks, which fell off 1 to 1½. The market grew better before 1 o'clock.

The market became feverish and unsettled during the afternoon. Locomotive fell to 1 below last night on realizing upon the dividend declaration. Gains elsewhere were largely reduced or wiped out. A rise of 2½ in Southern Pacific was the leader of a rally, and Baltimore & Ohio rose to the best again at 118½ on the dividend increase. Prices wavered uncertainly after the rally. The decline in Metropolitan Street railway ran to 8 points, and Interborough Metropolitan touched 41. Pullman sold at an advance of 3¾. Tennessee Coal rose 1, and Kansas & Texas preferred, 1½. United Copper was the feature, buying by Bache & Company carried that stock up 1½ to 119½, a record price. This served to partially overcome the bad effect of the stocks during response to the dividend increase.

C. & O. gained 5⅝, Southern Pacific rose an extreme 3⅜ and Union Pacific 1⅝.

Great Northern preferred rose 5¼, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, Chicago Union Traction preferred 2, Erie second preferred 1¾, Atlantic Coast Line, 1½ and Rock Island preferred and Northern Pacific 1.

Prices did not generally rise higher than before and the market became dull and drooping again. American Pneumatic Service preferred sold at a decline of 5, Cotton Oil preferred 2, D. & H. 1¼ and Corn Products, 1. The closing was irregular.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There seemed to be a decided change in sentiment. There has been a lot of short covering and this has been an important factor. There still seems apprehension over the future course of the money market, and this argument is generally used by the conservatives in order to check bullish enthusiasm. After six days of declining prices a recovery should be only natural, but the public interest at present is still small.

* * *

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was strong and active. After the declaration of dividend on Baltimore & Ohio and American Locomotive, there was covering by shorts. There was also good buying in the good rails and the whole tone was much better. The short covering was a large feature of the buying and helped prices very much. We look for a better market tomorrow and London is apt to come in and buy some of the good stocks. The Pacific stocks are also due for an advance.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, June 20.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $168,733,398; gold, $88,453,710; gold certificates, $37,303,850.

Chicago Live Stock.

Chicago, June 20.—Cattle receipts, 22,000; market, best, steady; others weak to 10c lower; beeves, $3.90@6.65; cows and heifers, $1.50@5.10; stockers and feeders, $2.75@4.60; Texans, $3.75@4.30; calves, $5@$6.25. Hogs receipts, 28,000; market steady to shade lower; estimated tomorrow, 24,000; mixed and butchers, $6.40@6.67½; good heavy, $6.57½@6.70; rough heavy, $6.40@6.50; light, $6.30@6.60; pigs, $5.50@6.30; bulk of sales, $6.55@6.62½. Sheep receipts, 16,000; steady; sheep, $4.75@6.25; lambs, $6.90@7.55.

The Cotton Market.

New York, June 20.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 points on July, but generally unchanged, which was a poor response to better cables and dry weather in Texas. Fluctuations immediately following the call were very erratic. There was a renewal of heavy July liquidation and that month broke to 10.23, or 8 points net lower, while October sold off to 10.30, or 3 points net lower, and following this there was a rally to 10.33 for July and 10.34 for October on covering of shorts, with the general list about 1 to 2 points higher in the middle of the morning. Trading was active the first hour and the undertone continued very strong.

Cotton spot closed steady; middling uplands, 10.95; do gulf, 11.20. Sales, 400 bales. Futures closed steady. Closing bid: June, 10.37; July, 10.39; Aug., 10.42; Sept., 10.39; Oct., 10.41; Nov., 10.41; Dec., 10.47; Jan. and Feb., 10.51; March, 10.55.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co. The market was very quiet today and most stocks a shade weaker. Shannon was quiet buy strong on buying by Hayden and others. United Copper was the feature, buying by Bache & Company of New York. There was no news to account for the advance. Some of the good investment coppers are getting down now where buying on a scale ought to show good profits within the next few weeks.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The Boston News Bureau says: "A prominent mining interest says: "I find a great many intelligent copper people have sold their Amalgamated because they do not like the idea of parties having a large financial interest in Butte Coalition and a comparatively small interest in Amalgamated, having the sole disposition of the settlement between the two companies. You see it is a natural conclusion that the Butte Coalition company will get the big end of the stick."

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers.

RUMOR SAYS THAT MOODY WILL RETIRE IN JULY.

Washington, June 20.—It is reported that Attorney General Moody is to retire from the cabinet on July 14; that he is to be succeeded by Charles J. Bonaparte, now secretary of the navy, and that either George von L. Meyer, ambassador to Russia, or Truman H. Newberry, assistant secretary of the navy, will go to the head of that department. Mr. Moody said, when asked if the story was true:

"I am going out of the cabinet, but not for several months. I have not seen the president to fix a date. When a date is fixed I shall make a formal announcement, and until that announcement is made by me all stories relating to my retirement can be denied. I presume the story originated in the fact that the original date for my retirement was July 1 next. There are some matters I desire to close, and I cannot say when I shall retire, but it will not be for some months."

YIELDS TO FRANCE.

Tangier, June 20.—The Moroccan government today announced that it yields to the French demands for an indemnity for the murder of M. Charbonnier, a French citizen, as the result of which a French squadron was dispatched to Tangier.

GUESTS OF A DUCHESS.

London, June 20.—Mrs. Reid, wife of the American ambassador, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth were the guests of the duchess of Albany this afternoon at Clearmont, near Esher, Surrey.

THE PACKERS SHOULD PAY

For the Inspection of Meat, Says Senator Proctor.

Disagrees With Two Provisions of the House Amendment.

Washington, June 20.—Senator Proctor today called up in the senate the agricultural appropriation bill and made the usual motion for agreement to the request for a conference. He then made a statement concerning the house substitute for the meat inspection provision saying that there were two essential points of difference between the two houses. One of these, he said, was the omission by the house of the senate provision requiring that the date of inspection be placed on cans containing meat and the other the transfer of the cost of inspection from the packers to the national treasury. Speaking of the latter change he said that it was radical and in his opinion, unwise and advised that the house amendment on that point be not accepted. The packers could, he declared, afford the expense as an advertisement, for, looked at in that light, the government certificate would be of immense benefits. Mr. Proctor also charged that the numerous protests which have been coming to the senator on this subject have a common origin in Chicago and in support of his statement read a number of protests to show the language to be practically the same wherever they may be dated.

Senator Beveridge, agreed with Mr. Proctor as to the unwisdom of the house changes in the matters of date of labels and cost of inspection, but expressed gratification that the provision for night surveillance had been retained. The two essential changes he considered as most important, declaring that if the date is not to be used, it will be possible to pass off as fresh meat that which may have been inspected five years ago. He said that the date is stamped on meat shipped abroad and argued that the same plan should be pursued with reference to meat consumed at home. Why, he asked, should the people pay for the packers' inspection and not the packers themselves and, agreeing with Mr. Proctor, said the government stamp would be worth $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 for advertising purposes. Looking at the matter in that light the cost of inspection would not be a burden because the inspection would be a great benefit. The cost would at the most be infinitesimal, 8 cents per head for cattle and 5 cents for swine. It would be impossible for packers to increase the price of meat or decrease that of stock on account of this slight charge; hence the alarm on this act was groundless. The charge should be paid out of the profits of the packers themselves, and neither by the government, the stock growers or the consumers. He predicted that the house appropriation would be inadequate to meet all the demands on it, while the fee system provided by the senate would adjust itself to the demands upon it. He pointed out that national banks pay for their inspector, as do oleomargarine manufacturers and even immigrants coming into the United States. Hence the proposition is not novel. If, he said, the plan is to be changed there will be a vast drain on the treasury and predicted that $10,000,000 a year would soon be required for meat inspection alone.

Senator Lodge also spoke for the senate provisions, although he said it might be considered "audacious to do so in view of the announcement that the house had perfected the measure and the president had accepted it."

He pleaded especially for the dating of labels, because the public has the right to know what it is buying. "If canned meat is just as good, five years after canning as it is five months afterwards, why it can't hurt these tender creatures, the packers, to have the public know the age of the article," he said. It would be said, of course that there is a prejudice and he would admit that such is probably the case. Moreover, he considered the prejudice to be justified. He did not agree that the producers and the consumers would not feel the effect of the tax, for judging the future by the past the packers would find in a tax of a few mills an excuse for an increase of several cents a pound on the meat they sell and a similar decreases on stock they buy. Nevertheless he thought the packers should pay the cost.

He charged the Chicago packers with trying to defeat the legislation. The attack from Europe did not alarm Mr. Lodge very much for he said that practices in foreign countries are no whit better than our own. He read newspaper extracts to show that in England rotten eggs are used for making pastry and fevered cattle are butchered for beef, and also quoted an article from an English review to show that morals in that country are not all they should be. He brought these matters in only to show that while English methods are different from ours the English are not better than we are. They cover up offenses while we exhibit them to the world. He believed the American people to be honest and this was the reason he felt so keenly the exceptional conduct of the Chicago packers. They had undertaken to cover up their offenses and to prevent congressional action. He defended the inspection report of Messrs. Neill and Reynolds, saying that their charges had been justified by the orders given yesterday by the Chicago city government for greater cleanliness.

Mr. Lodge declared that the conditions described by Neill and Reynolds were true at the time they were written and Mr. Hansbrough read a telegram which said the one writer had visited one of the big packing houses in Chicago and had found the walls of the killing room covered with damp kalsomine showing that an attempt had been made recently to clean up.

Discussing the group of men in control of the packing industry Mr. Lodge said their history has been of utter defiance of law and public opinion. He referred to a recently published interview with Nelson Morris in which this great packer showed contempt for writers of books and the Massachusetts senator said the writing of a book brought about the present situation and it may occur to the packers that "The writing of books is not so contemptible." The men responsible for the meat packing and Standard Oil monopolies, said Mr. Lodge, have done more to advance socialism, anarchy, unrest and unwholesome conditions in the United States than all of the socialists in the world.

SURVEY OF THE DULUTH HARBOR

Bede Secures Passage of Concurrent Resolution by House.

Washington, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede today secured the passage of his concurrent resolution which authorizes the secretary of war to cause an examination and survey to be made of the harbor at Duluth, including the entrance thereto, with a view to determining what modifications of the present plan, if any, are desirable.

Frank Paine, wife and daughter of Duluth, are in Washington, and this morning were escorted about the capitol building by Representative Bede.

SECRETARY TO CHIEF JUSTICE

Falls or Jumps From Window of Hospital—Dies Later.

Washington, June 20.—Clarence M. York, private secretary to Chief Justice Fuller of the supreme court of the United States, about 3 o'clock this morning jumped or fell from a window at Garfield hospital and received injuries from which he afterwards died. No one saw him when he went through the window.

It was learned today that York yesterday at the Emergency hospital was treated for a slight injury to his face, which he said had been received by falling from a street car. At the Emergency hospital it was said that York had been drinking. Later he was conveyed to his apartments in the Logan, where he was attended by his family physician. When the physician visited him again at night he found the dressing had been removed. It then was decided to take the patient to Garfield hospital to have a new dressing applied. This done York was sent to a ward. He was perfectly rational at the time and it is said would have been sent to his home but for the lateness of the hour and the fact that his wife was out of the city. Mr. York was about 40 years old and had held his position with Chief Justice Fuller for many years.

IMPRESSED BY IMMENSITY.

George W. Smith of England Finds America Vast Country.

George W. Smith of England, brother of A. H. Smith of this city, who has been here for several weeks, will leave this evening on his return to England, going to Toronto, Montreal and home by that way. He has seen most of the large eastern cities and has been as far west as the Red River valley and north to Winnipeg and has thereby gained some idea of American distances. He says it is the immensity of America that most impresses the Englishmen. On his side of the water a journey of 200 miles is a long one and to tell a Londoner of taking journeys of 1,000 miles arouses his incredulity.

Another of the things that has made a great impression upon Mr. Smith is the vast amount of uncultivated land. Land not in use in his country is a rarity, not a thing unknown but very unusual, and he can see possibilities for a population many times greater than that the country now has.

He also, like all foreigners traveling in America, finds the equipment of railroads here much above that of those abroad. He attributes this very largely, however, to the fact that distances are so vast and travelers therefore want greater comfort.

LIST ABOUT COMPLETE.

Arrangements Made for Practically All the White City Attractions.

All the attractions which will be included in the White City grounds this summer, with the exception of the "shoot the chutes" and the figure eight, have now been secured, and are either on their way to Duluth, or already on the grounds.

The latest addition to the list is a photo gallery, where photographs can be printed on postal cards in from ten to fifteen minutes.

DREDGE ON FIRE.

One of the large hydraulic dredges owned by the Duluth Dredge & Dock company was damaged by fire about noon today.

The dredge was lying in the harbor near 800 Garfield avenue, when the fire broke out from an overheated stovepipe. The fire department was summoned, and two streams of water were turned on the blaze, in addition to the line of hose operated by the tug. The amount of the loss is hard to estimate, but the dredge will need a number of repairs before it is fit for service again.

WOMEN ARE ARRESTED

For Creating Disturbance in Front of Asquith's House.

Five Female Suffragists Taken to Jail and Leader Fined.

London, June 21.—Miss Billington, Miss Kenney and three other leaders of the militant women suffragists were arrested in Cavendish square today for creating a disturbance outside of the chancellor of the exchequer's house. Mr. Asquith is the particular bugbear, in the present ministry of the women suffragists, and special police have been stationed in front of his residence to prevent threatened attacks upon it. A score of women with banners flying assembled in Cavendish square this forenoon and announced their determination to be heard by Mr. Asquith. They defied the police until their leaders were arrested and dragged off to the police station.

The women arrested were arraigned in a police court later. Miss Billington was fined $50, or two months imprisonment, whereupon she expressed the intention of becoming a martyr and of going to jail. The hearing of the other cases was adjourned.

The countess of Carlisle, herself an ardent suffragist, referred to the affair of this morning, at today's meeting of the women's liberal federation. She said she was shocked when passing through Cavendish square to see "so-called women suffragists fighting police, and making an impertinent mockery of womanhood."

The countess repudiated any connection with the "poor, misguided women" who attempted to mob the chancelior of the exchequer in his own house."

UNKNOWN MAN BADLY INJURED

Found Unconscious on Great Northern Track Near Sandstone.

Sandstone, Minn., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unknown man was picked up near the Great Northern track, two miles north of Sandstone, yesterday morning. He was seriously bruised about the head and face, and his recovery is doubtful. There is nothing on his person to identify him. He wore a dark brown suit, black satin shirt, soft black hat. He is 5 feet, 10 inches high, weight 170 pounds, smooth shaven, and is about 30 years old. It is presumed that he fell from a freight train. He has not as yet regained consciousness.

A PANIC IN AN ASYLUM

Caused by Fire in Amusement Hall—One Man Killed.

Middletown, Conn., June 21.—Fire in the amusement hall connected with the state hospital for the insane early today caused one death, and nearly created a panic among the inmates of the asylum who were removed from a dormitory nearby to another building during the height of the fire.

The dead man was F. L. Lichtenstein, general manager of the Merchants' Silk company. Part of a falling wall struck him, throwing him against a fire escape with such force that his body was cut nearly in two. Mr. Lichtenstein was about 32 years old, and came here a short time ago from York, Pa. The loss on the burned building and contents is estimated at $35,000.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, June 21.—W. F. Ketring shot and probably fatally wounded his divorced wife and her niece, Miss Bessie O'Day, at the home of the former, early today. Ketring has been separated from his wife for the last two years. Calling upon her last night, he asked her to return to him. She refused, and Miss O'Day stepped to the telephone to call the police. As she did so Ketring shot both women.

A SERIOUS MUTINY OF SOLDIERS BREAKS OUT AT SEVASTOPOL FORTRESS

Battalion of Artillery Refuses to Obey and is Disarmed.

Two More Battalions Rebel and Seize Fortress Guns.

The Loyal Troops Finally Put Down the Mutineers.

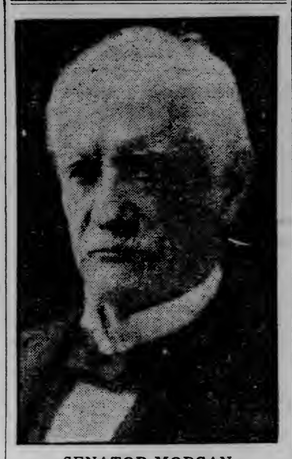

St. Petersburg, June 21.—A serious mutiny, which for a time threatened to place the fortress of Sevastopol in possession of the mutineers, was suppressed yesterday, according to a special dispatch to the Novoe Vremya. The mutiny was started by a battalion of fortress artillery, which declined to obey orders, whereupon the men were promptly disarmed. Two other battalions then mutinied and took possession of the guns in the north shore batteries, but on the appearance of several loyal regiments of infantry, the mutineers abandoned the idea of fighting and returned to their barracks.

Gen. Nepluefl, commander of the fortress of Sevastopol, is represented to be greatly concerned about the temper of the sailors, as well as the soldiers of the fortress. That the morale of the whole army is being shaken by the revolutionary propaganda is proved by the continual extension of the rebellious outbreaks among the troops. It appears to be confirmed that the Bolschoff regiment at Ryazan has driven out its officers and burned the armory. Another report says the soldiers deliberately attacked the officers' club at Ryazan, killing one and wounding two officers. A panic prevails in the town.

Four companies of the Viborg regiment, stationed at St. Petersburg have presented demands which were acceded to and they have now returned to duty.

The soldiers of the notorious Semenovsky regiment, whose name became synonymous with repression owing to the deeds committed by these troops at Moscow, are reported to have held a meeting and to have decided that they cannot any longer endure the public opprobrium and must wipe out the stain on the regiment.

The tenderness with which the military authorities are treating these and recurring exhibitions of the mutinous spirit among the troops is sufficient evidence that they fear the entire army is infected.

SENATOR MORGAN,
Who celebrated his 82nd birthday on Wednesday by making a long speech in the senate in support of a sea-level canal across the Isthmus.

MUST PREPARE FOR TARIFF WAR

Germans Warned to Get Ready to Meet United States.

Berlin, June 21.—At a meeting of the Central Association of German Manufacturers, embracing most of the great manufacturers' organizations of the country, held at New Remburg yesterday, the general secretary, Herr Bueck, referring to the trade arrangements with the United States said the association supported the temporary extension of the treaty duties to the United States because German industry at this moment was not sufficiently prepared for a tariff war with the United States. A continuance of the situation created by the temporary arrangement, however, would be irreconciliable either with the economic interests or dignity of the German empire. The general secretary felt it necessary, therefore, to warn German industry to prepare in good time for a tariff war which would be unavoidable if the United States thinks it can continue treating German goods unfairly.

LEE BROUGHT TO BALTIMORE.

Baltimore, June 21.—William Lee, a negro who confessed to assaulting several women, was brought here today from Norfolk, Va., for safe keeping until his trial. Threats of lynching were openly made, and the precaution was deemed necessary.

HOUSER SLATED FOR RETIREMENT

La Follette and Lenroot Find Him a Heavy Load.

Madison, Wis., June 21.—The La Follette-Lenroot combine is preparing to drop Wallace Houser if it can. The binding of Houser over for trial made the necessity of this course plain to the leaderss.

Houser does not want to go and thinks the combine should carry him through as a candidate for secretary of state.

The pressure upon Houser, however, is so strong that despite the hold which he evidently has on the La Follette men he will probably retire, but the terms of his retirement will be dictated by him, and if he retires it will be in favor of J. A. Stone of Reedsburg, as the candidate on the Lenroot ticket, for the nomination of secretary of state.

When Mr. Houser took advantage of a technical plea in his preliminary examination, Senator La Follette realized that the condition was still more serious, and it is said he had a talk of a half hour's duration with Mr. Houser over the long-distance telephone.

SINGER BOYCOTTED FOR SINGING "PARSIFAL."

Vienna, June 21.—Because she sang in "Farsifal" at the Metropolitan opera house when the much-discussed music drama was produced there two seasons ago against the wish of Frau Wagner, wife of the composer, Marion Weed has been boycotted in Bayreuth. Music masters refuse to accept her as a pupil, one hotel has treated her shabbily, and music folk shun her.

Miss Weed went from New York to Bayreuth, with the intention of studying during the summer, and on her arrival last week went to the Hotel Anker, where she was seated at a table with several orchestra leaders and singers who were in the village rehearsing. Her reception was anything but cordial, and the next night when she went to the hotel she found her table deserted.

Counsellor von Gros informed her that no musical director in Bayreuth would be permitted to teach her.

WENDT WANTED IN IOWA.

Former Member of a Farmers' Company Charged With a Shortage.

Mason City, Iowa, June 21.—A shortage of $1,200 was discovered at a meeting of the board of directors of the Dougherty Farmers' Co-operative association in the books of Former Manager H. C. Wendt. Wendt is in Dakota and has been summoned here to a meeting of the board. It is said he has admitted the shortage and that he has no money to make good. The company lost about an equal amount last winter on the corn market.

CAN NAME MURDERER

Mother of Mrs. Kinan Talks on Daughter's Death.

Coroner Begins Preliminary Hearing on the Bronx Tragedy.

New York, June 21.—Mrs. Louise Stenton, the aged mother of Mrs. Alice Kinan, who was clubbed to death at her mother's home in the Bronx on June 8, declared today that she could name her daughter's slayer, or the person who inspired the crime. Mrs. Stenton had been closely questioned by the police many times since Mrs. Kinan's death, but until today she has persistently denied she knew anything whatever of the affair.

A hearing preliminary to the inquest into Mrs. Kinan's death was begun today by Coroner McDonald.

MAHER RIDES THE VICTOR

The American Jockey Wins the Gold Cup at Ascot.

London, June 21.—Although every day of Ascot week has attractions, Thursday, Gold Cup day, is considered the great one of the meeting. This year was no exception, immense crowds going down to see the people gathered in the enclosures, and incidentally to witness the races.

The Americans were out in force again, going from their hotels in coaches and automobiles. Ambassador and Mrs. Reid, Congressman Longworth and Mrs. Longworth rode to Ascot in auto cars, they joining a large number of their compatriots in the royal enclosure. The number of Americans in the king's pavilion this year was quite noticeable. Besides those invited through the embassy, many Americans resident in England were among the royal guests.

The Gold cup was won by Bachelors Button, ridden by Maher, the American jockey. Pretty Polly was second, and Achilles, third. Five horses started.

NORSE KING BUSY RECEIVING THE SPECIAL AMBASSADORS SENT FROM MANY NATIONS TO HIS CORONATION

QUEEN MAUD.

KING HAAKON.

Col. Graves and Aides Are Given a Cordial Greeting.

Prince Christian of Denmark Arrives Early on Royal Yacht.

Harbor is Crowded With Warships of Various Countries.

Trondjem, June 21.—The Danish royal yacht, Danneborg, with Prince Christian of Denmark, a brother of King Haakon on board, and the steamer Tromp, carrying the special Dutch embassy to the coronation of the king of Norway, entered the harbor early this morining, whereupon another loud cannonade awoke the few who remained asleep in the city. The sky was overcast and, in view of the fact that a few drops of rain fell at intervals, the scientifically inclined insisted that these endless artillery salutes are proving rainmakers and will eventually spoil all the pretty decorations of Trondhjem.

The palace was astir early as it had been planned to receive there the special French, American, Italian, Austrian and Dutch embassies in the order named, commencing at 9:30 a. m., before the king proceeded to the Danneborg to greet his brother.

The special American ambassador, Charles H. Graves, the minister of the United States to Sweden, supported by Maj. William W. Gibson, military attache at St. Petersburg and Lieut. Commander John H. Gibbons, naval attache at London, and attended by the Norweglan officers assigned to assist them, drove to the palace shortly after 9. After a brief wait King Haakon arrived at the embassy and gave the Americans a cordial welcome, expressing his pleasure at their presence and the most friendly feeling for the United States.

The diplomatic receptions continued for over an hour. A great crowd gathered in front of the palace and watched the arrival and departure of the embassies.

King Haakon and Queen Maud, unless the receptions interfere with their plans, intend to lunch on board the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which brought the prince and princess of Wales and their children here.

The special German and Russian embassy have not been reported, but it is expected they will arrive during the afternoon.

The first vessels of the fleet of excursion steamers are arriving, adding their crowds to the city and increasing the large fleet in the harbor.

King Haakon boarded the Danneborg at 11 o'clock and welcomed his brother, Prince Christian. When the king reached the ship, the German cruizer, Prinze Adalbert, carrying Prince Henry of Prussia, the special representative of Emperor William, arrived, and there was another salvo of salutes.

King Haakon escorted Prince Christian and his suite ashore, where a guard of honor was drawn up, after which the king went out to the Prinze Adalbert, which fired a salute in his honor. Prince Henry received the king, and they remained in conversation for some minutes. The king then returned to shore. Prince Henry landed early in the afternoon, and was given an enthusiastic reception. The arrangements were similar to those of the prince and princess of Wales' reception. The German prince lunched at the palace with King Haakon, who deferred his informal visit to the Victoria and Albert.

William J. Bryan has arrived here to attend the ceremonies.

CHINA GIVES SATISFACTION

To France for Massacre of Six French Jesuit Missionaries.

Paris, June 21.—The foreign office has been advised that China yesterday signed a treaty according complete satisfaction to France for the massacre of six French Jesuit missionaries at Nan Chang, Kiang-Si province, in February last. China pays $200,000 indemnity to the missions and $400,000 indemnity to the deceased missionaries' families, builds a memorial hospital, and punishes the ringleaders of the rioting. In addition, posthumous honors, which the people of Nan Chang demanded, will not be granted to the Chinese magistrates, whose suicide was the signal for the outbreak.

The French gunboats in the vicinity of Nan Chang will now be withdrawn.

HE IS WHITE, THOUGH REARED BY NEGROES.

St. Louis, June 21.—Fernell Greene has just learned that the negro couple with whom he has lived his more than eleven years of life are not his parents and that he is a white boy. The knowledge has caused him the keenest shock. He does not know his name. The child was taken from the house of Moses Greene and wife, an elderly pair who conduct a negro rooming house, on January 5, 1895, when he was an infant. The mother said she would return to claim him soon. After one visit she died and the boy was reared as their own, being sent to a negro school.

IVENS NEAR SCAFFOLD

Supreme Court Denies Motion for a New Hearing.

Murderer is Sentenced to be Hanged on Friday.

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—The supreme court today denied a motion for leave to file a more complete record and support additional authority in the case of Richard Ivens, sentenced to be hanged in Chicago tomorrow for the murder of Mrs. Bessie Hollister.

Judge Hand said the court could see no reason for granting the motion, because it had gone to the original records in the case, and had considered the testimony and evidence in its entirety.

THE AGRARIAN DISTURBANCES

Spread Rapidly and Land Owners Are Abandoning Estates.

St. Petersburg, June 21.—The agrarian disturbances are extending in the provinces of Tula, Orel and Kursk, where the land owners are reported to be abandoning their estates. The property of Count Sheromotchieff, at Kursk, has been completely destroyed. M. Krazzinski, a large land owner of Kiev province, is importing six machine guns from England, with the intention of fighting it out with the peasants. The liberal press is continuing its appeals to the emperor, laying the responsibility for the confusion in the counsels of the government directly at his door. The papers insist that the emperor must come out openly and define his position.

Former Procurator General of the Holy Synod Pobedonstzeff spent the day with the emperor at Peterhoff yesterday, and the gossips attach importance to the visit, saying that his majesty's former mentor has advised him to issue a manifesto to the peasantry.

A law has been published making attacks on the credit of the state, and spreading rumors inciting the people to withdraw their money from savings banks.

PASSED FORGED ORDER.

George Waite Gets Into Serious Trouble at Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Waite passed a forged work order on the Phoenix clothing store Tuesday afternoon. He called at the Northern Pacific railroad office and asked for a blank letter head, and then he wrote out an order on the Northern Pacific for $220, and took it over to the clothing store where he got a suit of clothes, shoes and a hat, the bill amounting to $21.15. The clerk took the order over to the railroad office to see if it was good, and while he was gone Waite took the goods and went away, but was arrested in a short time by Chief of Police John McSweeney. He had a hearing yesterday in the police court, and was bound over to the grand jury in October.

BODY OF THE GOVERNOR IS CONSIGNED TO GRAVE.

Milford, Ohio, June 21.—After a simple service, attended by state officials, party associates and friends from all parts of the country, the body of John M. Pattison, late governor of Ohio, was this afternoon consigned to the grave, his family alone being present at the grave.

DURING THE RAINY SEASON.
FIRST DULUTHIAN—"Fine weather, we're having."
SECOND DULUTHIAN—"Great! I remember, when I was a boy, I saw the sun shine for two days."

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

St. Paul, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A secret meeting of the Democratic state central committee was held at the Merchants hotel this afternoon. The committee, about fifty members being present, joined F. A. Day, chairman and Governor Johnson's private secretary, at luncheon at noon before the meeting. The moving spirits of the meeting besides Mr. Day were L. A. Rosing, F. B. Lynch, H. L. Buck, M. Breslauer and F. L. Ryan. Before the meeting the sentiment against a late convention seemed strong and it was thought that it would be held about the middle of August, although some seemed to favor holding the convention during the state fair week when a full attendance could be expected. Minneapolis seemed to have the best of the argument so far as the place of holding the convention was concerned. Although there was talk of a possible clash over the endorsement of Bryan as the national standard bearer for 1908, it seems likely that Bryan will be the favorite one. The vote for Johnson for governor in 1904 will be basis of apportioning the representation.

HANDSOME PROFIT ON LAND

Hotchkiss' Investment Netted Him $5,400 in Five Years.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 21.—R. K. Cornish, a well known farmer, purchased 300 acres of land just east of this city today, from W. H. Hotchkiss, for $12,600. The land was occupied by Mr. Hotchkiss in 1901 for $7,200, and his profit has been $5,400, a striking indication of the fact that it pays to invest in Minnesota lands.

Deputy Marshal W. W. Rich came up from Benson, Minn., today, bringing with him Oliver W. McKee, who is charged with using canceled postage stamps. The young man was bound over to the United States court, bail being fixed at $500.

FORECAST—Probably occasional showers; sterly winds tonight and Friday.

FEWER DOGS FOUND.

Total Number of Licenses Does Not Equal Last Year.

There are still a few dog licenses which the police have been unable to round up, and the dog census of the city this year is as yet about 200 below that of last season.

The total numper of licenses issued at the city treasurer's office up to noon today was 1899, as compared with a total last year of 2,162.

The arrests made last week had a good effect, but the police are still keeping up their efforts, and anyone without a license is liable to arrest without further notice.

Ask Property Partition.

Carlo and Chrestina Ricci have started suit in the district court against Kate Toomey, N. H. Priley and M. M. Hoare for the partition of the west half of lot 8 and all of lot 10, West Second street, Duluth proper, First division, of which the Riccis claim a half interest and Kate Toomey is said to own the remaining half interest. Mr. Priley is brought into the suit because he holds a $1,600 mortgage on the property and M. M. Hoare is a party defendant because he is occupying the property as a tenant. The property is said to be valued at $11,000. W. J. Stevenson represents the Riccis.

RAILROADS

RAILROAD MEN LEAVE

G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Meeting Closes With Banquet at Spalding.

W. H. Northmore Elected President and W. S. Chadwick Secretary.

A banquet at the Spalding hotel last evening closed the two days' meeting of the Get As Much Business As You Can association, and today very few of the members are left in the city. Preceding the banquet, an election of officers was held, resulting in the election of W. H. Northmore, division freight and passenger agent of A. Booth & Co., as president. W. S. Chadwick, Union depot ticket agent in Duluth, and father of this organization of railroad men, was re-elected secretary.

The following set of resolutions, drawn up by E. A. Whittaker, A. G. Sherman, T. E. Blanche, J. B. Hanson, W. B. Dixon and F. M. Rugg, was adopted:

"Whereas, The G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. league has held so successfully its second annual meeting in the city of Duluth, and

"Whereas, The transportation, commercial and social interests of Duluth have so sincerely demonstrated their open-armed hospitality to our members, and,

"Whereas, The league as it stands organized today appears without flaw in the accomplishment of its primary purpose, sociability, therefore be it

"Resolved, That our president appoint a committee on resolutions of thanks and appreciation to those whom we are so deeply indebted for our entertainment while in the Zenith City of the Northwest.

"This committee further recommends that W. H. Northmore be elected president and W. S. Chadwick secretary for the ensuing year."

The newly elected president acted as toastmaster at the banquet, which was a great success. Mayor M. B. Cullum delivered the address of welcome, and F. D. Lyon, the retiring president, made a response, complimenting Duluth on the hospitality shown her guests, and praising the work of Secretary Chadwick. Mr. Chadwick reported 255 members in good standing, and showed the finances of the club to be in excellent condition. A number of railroad men present spoke briefly on matters of general interest.

The trip to the range yesterday on a special train was also a fine success. Some of the big iron mines were visited, and the special was run onto the ore docks to give the passengers a chance to see the manner in which the lake boats are loaded with ore. The train returned to Duluth at 4:45 p. m. A luncheon was served on board by the Commercial club.

J. W. Kreitter, general superintendent of the road, J. B. Hanson, general freight and passenger agent, and C. W. Kieswetter, traveling freight and passenger agent, acted as hosts, and saw that everything possible was done for the comfort and entertainment of the guests. While the weather was not all that could be desired, no rain fell while the mines were being visited.

Chief Black, an honorary member of the association, gave a run of the fire department after the return of the railroaders to the city. Everybody appeared to have had a good time, and seemed well satisfied with the meeting as a whole.

Passenger Train Delayed.

The Northern Pacific passenger train from St. Paul, due in Duluth at 6:30 a. m., did not arrive in Duluth this morning until shortly after 10 o'clock. It was delayed near Carlton by the breaking of a truck on one of the cars, which left the track.

Claims Painter Trespassed.

Agnes S. Reed, who has been sued by W. K. Fowler for payment for services rendered and material furnished in the improvement and repairs of the former's house, has filed an answer to the complaint in which she admits that she has paid Mr. Fowler nothing, but alleges that she never employed him or authorized him to make the repairs. She claims that Fowler was simply asked to look over the house with a view of determining whether the repairs and improvements could be made, and that his action in going ahead in the work without permission constituted a trespass. Mrs. Reed is represented by Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer.

Appeal Case is Settled.

By a stipulation filed in the district court this morning in the matter of the appeal of Caroline H. Packard and Mary H. Straus from the Second street paving assessment, it is agreed between the city of Duluth and the appellant property owners that they may settle the case by the payment of the original assessment without penalties, cost or interest. The property owners were represented by Sullivan & Grant and the city by Bert Fesler, the city attorney.

HAVE WATER NEXT WEEK

Work on Extension to Park Point is Nearing Completion.

Little Remaining to be Done But Make the Connections.

Water will probably be turned into the Park Point water mains for the first time, next week.

The work on the extensions is nearing completion, and the connections will probably be made within a very few days.

On the south side of the canal there is still about a length of pipe to be laid by the diver, and the connection to be made. On the north side of the canal the work is all completed with the exception of connecting the pipe at the bottom of the well. This work will probably take three or four days, and the connections should all be made some time next week.

As soon as the work is finished, water will be turned into the mains, and will then be available for the residents of Park Point.

One or two applications have already been made for permission to make service connections with the mains which have been laid, and there is no doubt but that the residents of the Point will take advantage of having the city water at their doors.

The mains are now being exended 1,200 feet past their present terminus to connect with the White City, and furnish water for the new park. The money to purchase the pipe was advanced by the White City company, which is anxious to have the water available in time for the opening on June 30.

The work on the Park Point extension was begun early last fall. It was not completed before winter set in, and it has been delayed this spring by unfavorable weather.

OFFICERS ELECTED

By the Minnesota Christian Missionary Society at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today's session of the Minnesota Christian missionary society in session at the First Christian church, Nelson and Farrington avenues, was marked by the election of officers and the reports of committees as well as officers. The reports showed the society has had satisfactory and gratifying results during the past year. Besides several new pastors were admitted into the convention. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, M. R. Waters, Minneapolis; vice president, A. D. Harmon, St. Paul; recording secretary, Baxter Waters, Duluth; financial secretary and treasurer, Charles Oliver, Minneapolis; state evangelistic, C. R. Neel, St. Paul; state superintendent, Christian Endeavor, C. H. Black, Mankato; state superintendent, Sunday schools, C. B. Osgood, Winona.

The following new members were elected on the board of directors: W. L. Hackney, St. Paul; M. L. Waters, Minneapolis; D. J. Rice, Minneapolis; and A. D. Harmon, St. Paul.

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr. M. F. Burroughs, an old and well-known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it." This remedy is almost sure to be needed before the summer is over. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? For sale by all leading druggists.

WIND INTERFERES WITH THE GOLFERS.

Flossmore, Ill., June 21.—A southwest wind was sweeping over the Homewood golf course when the contestants in the Western open golf championship started play this morning. The wind heavily penalized players in the first nine holes as well as part of the course coming in, and no such scores were looked for as have been made during the practice rounds of the past few days. The wind, however, quickly dried the greens, which had been made heavy by the deluge of yesterday afternoon, and the casual water marring the fair greens in many places quickly disappeared. Professionals Robert White of Ravisloe, and Robert Foulis of St. Louis had the first honors of the tournament, driving off at 9:05 a. m. Both made beautiful long balls. They were followed at intervals of five minutes by the other contestants.

SHRINERS ARE COMING

Members of Aladdin Temple, Columbus, to Visit Duluth.

Party Includes Sixty Delegates to Imperial Council at Chicago.

"The Shriners are coming."

About seventy-five or eighty members of Aladdin temple, at Columbus, Ohio, will blow into Duluth next Saturday morning, in their private car, and will spend the day with their brethren of Aad temple, Duluth.

The party is traveling in the private car of Al G. Field, the well-known minstrel, who placed it at their disposal. The party is the delegation from Columbus to the meeting of the imperial council at Chicago. The meeting was to have been held in Los Angeles, but owing to the California disaster, it was transferred to Chicago. The Columbus Shriners, however, were determined not to be robbed of their little trip across the continent, and after attending the Chicago convention, they started for Yellowstone Park. They are now on their way home, and will stop off in Duluth, from 7 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Mr. Field is in the party, and earlier in the season C. A. Marshall, in corresponding with him, made arrangements for him to assist in opening the White City, but the work has been so delayed that this will be impossible, and the local Shriners have prepared to entertain the party.

A committee, composed of the following Shriners, will be in charge: J. T. Armstead, C. H. Bagley, W. A. Abbett, L. L. Culbertson, C. E. Peasley, J. F. Parker, Louis Loeb, H. V. Eva, C. A. Payne, J. E. Watt, H. S. Ely, John T. Black, W. A. Pitcher, S. L. Fraser and C. A. Marshall.

The form of entertainment will all depend upon the weather. If it is a fine day the visitors will be taken for a drive around the boulevard in the morning. At noon, whatever the weather may be, lunch will be served in the temple, and some form of entertainment will be provided for the afternoon. The visitors have to leave for Milwaukee at 4 o'clock.

The party includes about twenty women, and the wives of the members of the local temple will arrange to entertain them.

HAD TO CLOSE PARLIAMENT

For an Hour, the Radical Element Becoming Demonstrative.

St. Petersburg, June 21.—M. Alladin, the peasant leader, at today's session of the lower house of parliament, attempted to create a sensation by recounting that while in the restaurant of parliament, he had heard an officer in the uniform of a lieutenant general say he would like to see the chandeliers ornamented with the bodies of the members of the group of toil. Count Hayden, a marshal of the nobility who presided, advised M. Alladin to summon the officer before a justice of the peace.

Five Social Democrats elected from the Caucasus today took their seatss with the radicals of the "Mountain." The impression produced by the Bialystok massacre had the effect of cutting short a debate on the question of abrogation of privileges and placing all Russian subjects on an equality before the law. Whatever hostility exists against the granting of equal rights to the Jews disappeared after a strong speech made by M. Struepkin, chairman of the parliamentary commission which went to Bialystok. He spoke amid breathless silence, but did not mention Bialystok by name, although everyone within sound of his voice knew he was referring to the scenes which he had just left and the anti-Semitic measures which he had witnessed and which the country was witnessing. He declared that the massacres were due directly to the inequality of rights of Jews before the law, which parliament was seeking to correct.

Owing to the repeated demonstrations of the group of toil and more radical of the Constitutional Democrats during the ministerial explanations in the lower house of parliament this afternoon, the president of the house was compelled to close the session for an hour.

FOREIGN TRADE IS IN DANGER

London Importer Warns American Millers to Watch Out.

Milwaukee, June 21.—At the forenoon session of the millers' national convention, under the auspices of the Millers' National Federation, today, H. B. Tasker, a London importer and representative of the London Flour Trade association, urged the millers to the exercise of greater energy and care in the preservation of their foreign trade. He told them that unless they made earnest and sustained effort their trade in the United Kingdom would be placed in greatest peril by the competition of the British miller. These latter, he said, are in so strong a position and so alert in taking advantage of conditions, that they are constantly taking trade from American mills. He divided the blame for this condition of things between the American miller and the railway and steamship lines, the former sometimes failing to keep his export flour at the highest standard of quality, and the latter taking a hundred days to deliver flour in London when it could be done in forty. Mr. Tasker said that with a maintained high quality and prompt deliveries, American flour would continue to be used in large quantities in Great Britain. The greater part of the morning session was used by the millers in discussing the possibility of scientifically testing flour as to its baking quality, and to the export trade.

COMPLETELY BROKEN DOWN

MRS. T. F. BINKERT.

The Doctor Could Not Cure Me. Began Using Pe-ru-na.

Completely Restored to Health in Two Months.

"Please accept my sincere gratitude." So writes Mrs. Binkert, of New Mexico. Dr. Hartman, in the past few years, has received numberless letters with similar expressions of gratitude.

No physician in the world has a larger number of grateful patients scattered all over the civilized world than Dr. Hartman.

Not a day passes that he does not receive some token of appreciation from the patients he has cured of some chronic malady.

The remedy which has brought Dr. Hartman into such fame is Peruna.

People have generally bought it at the recommendation of some friend or neighbor.

Usually they begin taking it without any other advice than the directions that are on the bottle.

From this host of patients Dr. Hartman rarely receives any letter. But a small per cent of those who buy Peruna find it necessary to write Dr. Hartman concerning the matter.

These inquiries receive a prompt reply, for which no charge is made. This generally results in a cure.

The multitude of heartfelt, sincere testimonials which pour in upon Dr. Hartman every year is a gratifying result of such a stupendous character as few physicians in the world can boast.

Mrs. Josephine Gillen, 345 Morris St., Portland, Or., writes:

"Peruna has proven itself of such untold value to us that we are glad to give it duo praise.

"My daughter and I have been cured of systemic catarrh of several years standing, and we both enjoy the very best of health, thanks to Peruna."

Mrs. T. F. Binkert, Albuquerque, New Mexico, care Traction Co., writes:

"I was completely broken-down a few years ago. My doctor's prescriptions did not seem to bring about the desired results, and I took my case in my own hands and began using Peruna. I felt better and stronger, had a splendid appetite in a very short time, and was pleased to think that I had discovered the right medicine for my case. In two months I was completely restored to health, was not troubled with headaches nor any other aches, and owe my good health to Peruna. Please accept my sincere gratitude."

Mrs. Ruth B. Brent, Holmes, Ill., writes: "I was in poor health three years ago and kept getting worse.

"Finally I got so weak that I could not sit up all day. My feet and hands were always cold. I had no appetite.

"I consulted one of the best doctors and he said I could not be cured.

"I was nervous, my heart would flutter, had a pain in my left side and also chronic constipation.

"I got a bottle of Peruna and Manalin and wrote to you for advice.

"While under your treatment I gained three pounds a month.

"I took two or three bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin and now I am well and able to do all my housework."

Mrs. Kitty Bogue, R. F. D. 3, Middlefield, Ohio, writes:

"Peruna has saved my life.

"I was so bad our doctor said he could do no more for me, and said if I thought some other doctor could help me, to get him. A friend advised me to use Peruna. So I wrote to you and you told me what to do.

"My stomach was bloated, and I belched up so much gas that I could not sleep at night. I would have to sit up.

"It seemed as if there was a lump in my stomach. I had choking spells and was so short of breath that I could not walk or work.

"I could not eat or sleep. I would almost faint if I tried to walk.

"I can now truthfully say I am cured."

POPULATION OF BEMIDJI

Is Shown by City Census to be Over 5,000.

Bemidji, Minn., June 21.—The population of Bemidji is 5,191.

These figures are shown by a census, thorough and reliable, which has just been completed, and indicates an increase in population of 1,391 since the state census in 1905. Nymore is not included.

There has been a feeling for a long time that the 1905 census does not do justice to the city of 1906, and that another house to house canvass should be made to discover just how much had been gained in the last year. In 1905 the city was credited with 3,800 people.

A committee, including Judge M. A. Spooner, Mayor A. A. Carter, Sheriff Thomas Bailey and M. E. Thurston, was appointed to take charge of the census, and working under them as enumerators were Al Wright, O. E. Bailey and C. C. Folker.

PROMINENT MEN SAIL FOR EUROPE.

New York, June 21.—President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia university, sailed for Europe today on the steamer Kaiserin Augusta Victoria.

Dr. Butler will go to Germany to confer with Emperor William with the regard to the plan of exchange of instructors between German and American universities, which has already been inaugurated.

Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, also was a passenger on the steamer. He was accompanied by Mrs. Morton and Miss Pauline Morton.

PREMIER SEDDON BURIED.

Wellington, N. Z., June 21.—The funeral of Premier Seddon, who died suddenly June 10, on the steamer Owestry Grange, took place here today and was a striking demonstration of public grief. An enormous number of people followed the hearse on foot to the grave through streets packed with spectators from all parts of the colony. The day was observed as a general holiday through New Zealand.

Pure Food Law.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read with interest the editorial in today's paper headed "Lying Food Labels."

You then go on and say that if dealers are permitted to sell cheap imitations of maple syrup they should be labeled maple syrup.

Under a new ruling of the department which went into effect March 1 of this year, this is how the law stands as to the syrup proposition:

First. None but the pure maple syrup can be labeled pure.

Second. A mixture of cane and maple syrup must be labeled maple syrup substitute, giving the names of the ingredients.

Third. Is the common table syrup upon which the word maple must not appear and they must also give the names and percentages of the ingredients therein. And I might also add that the manufacturers and jobbers are trying their best to live up to the law which is being enforced to the letter.

Hoping that this will be of some service to you at some future time, I am with regards,

HARRIS BENNETT,
Deputy State Food Inspector.

Tower, Minn., June 20.

(The Herald's reference, of course, was to the federal aspect of the pure food question, not to the state. In the interstate traffic in food stuffs were as well cared for as the state traffic is in Minnesota there would be no ground for complaint. Minnesota has an excellent pure food law, and it is being well administered.—Ed.)

NOMINATIONS BY PRESIDENT.

Washington, June 21.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: Consuls—Jose De Olivares, Missouri, at Managua Nicharagua; Lester Maynard, California, at Sandakan, British North Borneo. # FATHER TIME PRESENTS THE COLUMBIA WITH BIRTHDAY CAKE NO. 1.

One year ago today—on June 21st, 1905—we started doing business in Duluth.

We promised you then that we would run A GOOD STORE—one that every citizen of Duluth could proudly point out to strangers as a model establishment of its kind—a store of metropolitan size and unblemished character.

We told you that we would handle nothing but the high-class merchandise, for which our predecessor, Mr. M. S. Burrows, was justly renowned—and better goods if obtainable.

At the same time we were not backward in telling you that we would never descend to the antiquated "Hurrah" methods (of which our predecessor had not been free), that we would not manufacture special sales by marking prices up and down again to catch dupes—in short that we would endeavor to build up a big business by earning your confidence and good will, and by selling meritorious goods at the same price to everybody, but with a much lower percentage of profit than was the rule in Duluth before our advent.

We calculated that it would take three years to establish ourselves on such a basis. But we built better than we knew. One short year sufficed to secure us the approval of the general public as is evidenced in the steady growth of the patronage accorded us.

A Duluth wholesaler told a certain New York manufacturer the other day (it happened out in Brainerd): "These fellows of The Columbia took a store that was on a down grade a year ago—in less than six months they brought it on a level and now they are going upward and forward by leaps and bounds." Watch us grow!

IS GUS WIDELL TO BE REPUBLICAN BOSS?

St. Paul, Minn., June 21.—Gus Widell of Mankato, brigadier general on the staff of Governors Van Sant and Johnson until 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, may be chairman of the new Republican state central committee.

Much gossip has been started by his sudden resignation from Governor Johnson's staff, which he accompanied with the announcement that he proposed to take an active part in the Republican campaign this year, and felt that he could not consistently retain his position on the governor's staff.

The candidates present at the conference were very reticent as to what was done in the meeting Tuesday, the explanation given for the failure to arrive at any result being the absence of Clarence C. Dinehart, the nominee for state treasurer.

WEST DULUTH

WILL BEGIN ON MONDAY

Construction of Wessenger Plant Houses to Start Then.

Emil Zauft Gets Contract for Work—Substantial Buildings.

The contract has been let for the construction of the buildings of the new Wessinger plant at West Duluth, and work will be begun on Monday morning. Emil Zauft of West Duluth has secured the contract, and will at once get ready to start building. In all, the buildings will cost in the neighborhood of $18,000 to $20,000, exclusive of the office building, which is not included in the contract, and which will be constructed later. There will be two buildings, the main one to contain a machine shop, a blacksmith shop and a carpenter shop, while the other will be the engine and boiler house.

The main building will be 166 by 48 feet, the front part to be 22 feet high, and the back part 14 feet high. In general it will have a brick wall inside, a layer of wood next, and outside will be covered with corrugated iron. The high part of the building will be constructed of steel, which will be put in by the company itself, Mr. Zauft having nothing to do with that part of the construction.

The engine and boiler house will be 60 by 46 feet, and will be 16 feet high. It, also, will be constructed of brick, wood and corrugated iron, the same as the other house. These buildings will be located on the property recently acquired at the corner of Fifty-third avenue west and Polk street. An immense amount of machinery will be installed in the buildings as soon as they are ready, and work will be begun on Mr. Wessinger's patents this summer.

NEIGHBORHOOD ROW.

Testimony Is So Conflicting That Judge Windom Dismisses Case.

As a result of a quarrel over a bill of $10.60, Sam Price, a paperhanger, was arrested and brought into the municipal court this morning, on the charge of calling Mrs. M. L. Beck, wife of his former employer, some vile names.

Price claims that Beck still owes him some money. The two men are neighbors, and yesterday Price told Beck's little girl to tell her father that he wanted that $10.

Mrs. Beck appeared, and told Price that if he wanted the money he had better sue for it, and some words followed. Mrs. Beck claims that Price called her several hard names, which Price denies and also claims that Mrs. Beck swore at him.

The testimony was so conflicting that Judge Windom dismissed the case, this morning.

TRAINMEN TESTIFY

John Millen Introduces Daily Log Train Reports in Defense.

John McAlpine Declines to Say That Logs Were Stolen.

John Millen changed the course of his defense this morning in the action brought by John McAlpine to recover $150,000 damages on account of a partnership deal in pine timber, by dropping the cross-examination of the complainant McAlpine and beginning direct examination of his own witnesses to establish facts claimed relative to the log shipments from Mile 46 on the Duluth & Iron Range road to the mills of the St. Louis Lumber company and Alger, Smith & Company.

Chief Dispatcher C. E. Evans for the Duluth & Iron Range road at Two Harbors was the first witness called. He testified that the conductors' daily log train reports which he produced had been in his possession ever since they were turned in by the conductors, and that no person outside the railway company's office had seen them.

George H. McGreevy, who was conductor on the trains that brought the McAlpine-Millen logs from Mile 46 to Duluth was on the stand the greater part of the morning under direct examination, and it was expected that he would be subjected to cross-examination nearly all the afternoon session.

Conductor McGreevy was asked to explain in detail the reports he had made daily, and which were produced by Dispatcher Evans. He testified that none of the cars of logs had been diverted from their destination, while under his charge, and from the reports traced the different trainloads from Mile 46 to Two Harbors, from Two Harbors to Endion, and from Endion to the mills. The reports showed the time spent at each place, and the reason for stopping, whether to set out or pick up cars. In the main the reports showed the number of carloads of logs that started from Mile 46, and the number of loads delivered at the mills, but did not give the number of cars. The counsel for Mr. McAlpine attached considerable importance to this fact, as shown by their line of questioning and the fact that Mr. McAlpine produced the witnesses Thompson and Stetson, who were employed to check the car numbers from Mile 46, and from Endion, and who testified in that respect.

Yesterday afternoon interest centered in the testimony of Mr. McAlpine, under cross-examination by L. C. Harris, for the defense. Mr. McAlpine admitted that so far as he knew the logs on the Richardson & Avery tract, in 55-11, were sealed by competent and honest men. He considered Absalom Smith, who conducted the logging operations, as competent and trustworthy.

The witness admitted that neither Absalom Smith nor any of the men connected with the logging operations had ever informed him that the logs were being diverted. Mr. McAlpine knew of no theft of the logs between Mile 46 and their arrival at the booms at the mills. He admitted hearing the testimony of the witnesses, Thompson and Stetson, that some of the trainloads of logs had gone to the Alger-Smith mill, and that he had employed them to trace the logs. Stetson's testimony was that some of the logs were unloaded at other than the proper destination.

Asked by Mr. Harris whether he would say that the logs were stolen, Mr. McAlpine declined to use so strong an expression.

The witness further testified that when he discovered the logs were being diverted, that he said nothing to Mr. Millen, but on the advice of his attorney, John Savage, kept a close watch on them.

It was understood this noon that as soon as the cross-examination of the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company's employes was completed, employes of the Northern Pacific company, over whose tracks the log cars were handled from Endion station, would be called to produce and testify as to their reports.

HEINZE DODGED SUIT.

His Ore Company, However, Is Held In Heavy Damages.

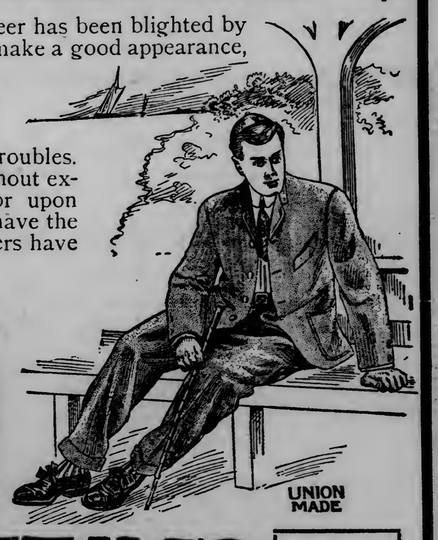

Helena, Mont., June 21.—Twenty-five thousand dollars damages were awarded Mrs. Olsen yesterday in her suit against F. A. Heinze and others to recover for the death of her husband, who was killed in the Pennsylvania mine in January, 1904, when a battle between the Heinze and Amalgamated forces became strenuous, and it is alleged that pieces of dynamite were thrown into the mine to prevent operations.

The killing of Olsen and another miner named Drivel was most atrocious. Both were employed by the Pennsylvania company of the Amalgamated, which was in dispute with Heinze over the ground in question. Dynamite was dropped upon the men and it exploded with fatal results.

Heinze escaped judgment upon a technicality, but the jury found the Montana Ore Purchasing company, in which he always has been a large owner, responsible.

What Retail Markets Offer

Cabbage, 4 cents a lb.
Corn beef.
Fresh herring, 15 cents a lb.
White fish.
Pike.

If you haven't had corn beef and cabbage for a long time you might try it one of these days if you live far out in the country, so that the clinging and indelicate odor of the cooking cabbage may be wafted along with balmy breezes miles, miles away. Then, after you have your dinner of corn beef and cabbage you can make a delicate, daintily prepared hash for luncheon or breakfast, and enjoy a pleasant change.

The fish market will be especially attractive tomorrow, and from fresh herring to Lake Superior's own white fish may be secured in fine condition. The fruit and vegetable markets offer a wide choice of fresh and palatable things.

How Women May Be Beautiful To Be Told by Margaret Mixter

Special Series of Articles on the Care of the Complexion Will Be Printed on Successive Saturdays, Beginning This Week.

Every woman who is essentially feminine desires to have a beautiful complexion and good skin. It is not vanity but a natural desire to make the most of her personal appearance. Beginning with Saturday, there will appear on the Woman's Page of The Herald a series of articles on the care of the skin, written by the special writer on beauty topics, Margaret Mixter.

They will be complete in detail, giving general rules concerning the care of the complexion, and scores of new and valuable recipes which can be compounded at home for every specific blemish that affects the beauty of a woman's face.

First in the series will be one on the complexion, the proper method of washing the face, creams and unguents for dry skin and oily; with food creams and face powders, both dry and liquid.

On the following Saturday there will be a special dissertation on freckles and sunburn, the bane of the average summer girl. Tan is now no longer considered fashionable, therefore, it is up to the girl afflicted with such blemish to take her case in hand. There will be given recipes for bleaching the skin without injury to the cuticle, such as is so often the case with ordinary methods. What color veil is best for the complexion will also be considered the honey makeup, which is the latest process for protecting the skin from the effect of the hot sun while driving, playing golf or tennis, will be printed. There is also a honey treatment for freckles as well as freckle bleaches and delicious unguent to apply at night.

More depends upon a woman's hair as an element of beauty than almost anything else, yet how few women are blessed with a real crown of glory. How to obtain a fine head of hair, how to keep it after one possesses it, its care and treatment form another chapter.

How a girl who isn't the possessor of curly hair can secure it is still another subject dealt with, giving special shampoos, bandolines and treatment. One of the most delightful of these recipes to use and its equally satisfactory effect is the violet waving fluid, which will last several days. Sachets for the hair are also described.

Pretty hands are within the reach of every woman, providing she goes about their care in the right way. Margaret Mixter will tell you just how they should be treated, and their proper care after salt water bathing, which has a most injurious effect upon the nails.

Bathing is so commonplace a subject usually that it would scarcely seem worthy of a special article, but aside from the proper method of cleansing the skin, there are recipes for several different kinds of aromatic baths, as well as those which have a tonic or soothing effect. No woman should fail to read these beauty articles.

Decorative Designs for Table China

Decorative monograms and crests for china and glassware are enjoying a quite unprecedented vogue just now among women who entertain extensively and who spend a great deal of thought on the little details of a well appointed menage.

Lettering is no longer simple either, for instead of being applied flat to the surface, it is now embossed and treated with little scrool designs that make it most attractive and an addition to any table china. Done in gold, as all the lettering is, unless for private yachts or for some purpose where there is a special reason for introducing a bit of color, it is exceedingly rich looking and makes the pure white Minton or Limoges china very handsome.

The use of monograms, crests and various insignia on plates or vegetable dishes is not considered sufficient ornamentation today, for every piece of table ware, from the drinking glasses to the small saucers and plates for fruits and salads, is decorated with some design characteristic of tre family possessing it.

The position of the ornamentation is not the same as it was a few years ago, the change being due to the fact that the use of lettering on so many pieces has become general and the attempt to have it applied in the same relative place naturally has followed. For instance, instead of placing a gorgeous looking shield, beautifully embossed, in the center of a plate, it is now placed on the rim, as is done with the platters and all of the rest of the flat pieces. On vegetable dishes, the ornamentation is put in the center of one side of the cover. Cups have the monogram in front, directly opposite the handle. All of the former are decorated now from the large size coffee cup to the small ones used for chocolate, though formerly this was considered bad form with the small cups for the reason that the prescribed surface would be quite covered with the decoration.

To obviate this condition, monograms and crests are graduated in size, so that they will not be out of proportion to the size of the dishes on which they are used. Last year a shield that measured five-eighths of an inch in length was considered in good taste and quite large enough, but now they run an inch to an inch and a quarter in length for a chocolate cup, and are proportionately larger for dinner plates and meat dishes.

Aside from the pretty little scroll designs used in connection with the raised lettering, the style of the type, a sort of ornamental script, makes the monogram decidedly artistic and effective, and shows off to so much better advantage that the plain block letters or ordinary script are rarely asked for now, and the decorations put on flat are considered obsolete. Single letters, too, are no longer good form, for the monograms admit of much more elaborate treatment, and the more letters there are in them the more decorative they are.

Where the head of a family belongs to some well known order the shield is sometimes used and makes an odd and unusual ornamentation. Or if desired, college fraternity symbols may be selected, but this would scarcely be in good taste for china that is commonly used. The crest of Great Britain is affected by many English people who have no coat of arms and want to have something out of the ordinary.

In placing these decorations on the dishes certain positions are considered good form, and custom demands that these be followed out on every piece.

On all plates, whether dinner size, for tea or the small ones used for bread and butter, the ornamentation should be on the rim, and it should be just large enough to come within the tiny gold border and the ridge that marks the beginning of the dge. Meat platters of whatever size have the monograms, etc., on the rim and at one side; never at the end.

The rule about lettering on cups holds good with glasses of all kinds. On chocolate pots and those for tea, cream and hot water, the position of the crest is directly in the center and on one side.

Striped Fabrics are Modish

By A. T. ASHMORE.

Striped materials are being worn a great deal this year in both light and heavy textures. One pretty striped voile gown recently seen had a jacket that opened over a light blue vest bordered with white. The skirt was unusually full and strapped like the jacket, with bands of the material. Suspender straps from a high girdle were laid over a lace guimpe.

Another suit serviceable for traveling, also of striped voile, has a lingerie collar and vest that are so attached that they can be removed and laundered. The skirt is short and while fitting flat over the hips, the plaits are opened out above the knees so that the skirt has a good flare. A wide silk belt reaching just to the end of the jacket is of the exact shade of the serge. There is a silk shirt waist of the same shade as the suit, and this is quite simply made, the dark color being relieved only with detachable white lace collar and cuffs. Dark blue, if becoming, is always an excellent shade for a traveling gown.

A long wrap that is fairly heavy is necessary even in midsummer. The plain driving coat of covert cloth or of some rough material is now being used a great deal for this purpose.

A good model for a severe long coat is of covert cloth made with a loose back and in front is double-breasted, fastening over with large gilt buttons.

A QUARREL ABOUT BREAKFAST

By M. E. Finlay.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"The real truth," said Phyllis, majestically, rising from the breakfast table and smoothing down the ribbons of her fresh white morning gown, "the real truth is that it was a great mistake for us ever to get married."

"The worst mistake we ever made," said Lal.

Phyllis folded her table-napkin with superfluous neatness, brushed away an invisible crumb from her dainty skirt, and looked thoughtfully out of the window.

"I suppose it can't be helped now?" she said, with a note of interrogation.

"I suppose not," groaned Lal.

"I do not think that the law as yet permits a man to divorce his wife because she has come down late to breakfast," went on Phyllis sarcastically, "though I wonder that, as men make the laws, such an emergency has not been provided for," she added, with scathing emphasis.

"There was not one single thing hot on the table," said Lal defiantly.

"And because the lord of creation has not had his breakfast quite to his liking he must immediately ill-treat his wife and wish to divorce her," said Phyllis, somewhat unreasonably; but more scathingly than ever. "You need not be afraid, my lord and master," (very sarcastically), "I have too much self-respect to ruffle your august mind by standing in the way of your creature comforts." Whereat she swept majestically out of the room.

Lal esconced himself gloomily behind his paper and worked himself up into a great indignation against Phyllis. It really was too bad of her; she was an unreasonable person by nature (being a woman), but she also was deceitful, unjust, inconsiderate—everything she should not be.

"I simply cannot stay in the same house with her," thought he, throwing down the paper, when he caught sight of Phyllis, most daintily dressed for going out in spring hat and frock and beautiful little shoes, passing over the lawn and out of the gate, carefully picking her way as she went.

Lal frowned, said to himself that she was heartless, did not care in the least, then put on his hat and marched resolutely out towards the railway station, going by the short cut way over the fields. He would go away for a few days, at any rate, till Phyllis had come to her senses.

Phyllis, walking on the road, was equally resolved that to live in the same house with Lal was perfectly impossible to her as a right-minded woman, perfectly impossible! She would take the very first train that went and go back to mamma. At home they had let her come down to breakfast just whenever she chose. Besides, at home they did not have breakfast at the ridiculously early hour of 7. Breakfast at 7, indeed!

Lal was first to arrive at the railway station, and going up to the sleepy little office, asked for his ticket. Then he searched each pocket in turn for the money, but not a penny could he find. He grew crimson as each investigation revealed nothing but a few yards of twine, a piece of paper folded lengthwise and a few rusty nails. However did these things come to be in his pockets? How very annoying of Phyllis! She had put out an old suit for him to wear! Lal frowned, blushed and stammered that he had forgotten his money. The ticket man concealed a smile. Lal said that he would go home and fetch it, for his resolve was in no wise shaken. But as he went out of the station door he saw a dainty well-known little figure coming down the road.

(Phyllis carefully avoided the little puddle left by last night's rain, and tried to look joyfully forward to being under mamma's protecting wing.) He drew back and watched her. This very pretty little lady, holding her parasol, marched boldly into the office, and without hesitation demanded a ticket, then, all unsuspecting, she put her little white-gloved hand into her pocket and began to search for her purse.

Lal, with secret triumph, observed her growing pinker and pinker till she was the pretty color of the roses in her hat; she turned the pocket inside out, but no purse was to be found. Then she gasped: "Oh, I left it on the dressing table!" and apologizing profusely to the amused ticket man, she turned away and prepared to walk at a great pace back to the house.

Lal caught up to her in a couple of strides, and politely asked her if he should fetch her purse. She started and colored, thanked him with elaborate politeness, and said that she would get it herself.

"As I am just going to get mine," said Lal, quite coolly, "we might as well walk together, if you don't mind."

As they marched on sedately he watched the determined little figure at his side, and reflected that Phyllis really was looking beautiful!

Phyllis could not help feeling inclined to laugh; it really was all so very ridiculous!

"We have missed that train," said Lal at last.

"Yes," said Phyllis stiffly.

A long pause till they arrived at the garden gate, and he held it open for her to pass through.

"There won't be another for ages," he said.

"Not till this afternoon," said Phyllis, more and more inclined to laugh.

"Do you really, particularly want to go?" asked Lal. "Because of course—it would be awkward if we both went to the same place, and in the same train, too—of course we might go in separate cars."

"The afternoon train is so slow," said Phyllis thoughtfully, "and I think it is going to rain."

"Very probably," said Lal, seriously contemplating the cloudless summer sky. "We might wait till tomorrow. And—what do you say, to having breakfast at half past seven?"

"To give us more time to pack?" said Phyllis gravely. "I'll ask the cook if she can manage it."

With that she gave a little peal of laughter and ran into the house.

Hot Water Bottle Best Preventive of Mal-de-Mer

"Always take a hot water bottle on an ocean trip," says an experienced traveler, who has crossed the Atlantic every season for the last thirty years "It's the surest preventive against seasickness that there is, as well as all the other ailments that persons contract during a voyage. I should much prefer going without my trunk, or even something to eat, rather than without my hot water bottle.

"It is my opinion that if women would keep their bodies warm all the time they would avoid getting chilled and often ward off the illness that is the dread of every one who goes abroad. I would advise them to take the bottle on the deck and put it at their feet, carry it into the cabin with them, and by all means have it filled with exceedingly hot water and placed in the bedding between the sheets for thirty or forty minutes before retiring, so that the dampness from the salty atmosphere can be dried out before they go to bed. In this way a chill that would otherwise be experienced is avoided, and by keeping warm all night I know that many persons have avoided having any but a slight attack of seasickness.

"I think it is well for the traveler who has never crossed before to prepare for possible sickness two or three weeks before sailing by getting the body in thoroughly good condition and being careful of the diet. Plenty of rest and sleep should be had, too, so that the physical condition will be as near perfect as is possible.

"A word of caution about meals, which, if followed, would undoubtedly save much suffering and add to the pleasure of the voyage, is that when first going on the vessel light foods should be taken and continued until the individual is certain that she will not be ill from eating.

"Just what causes seasickness has never yet been determined, but if the food taken does not have any bad effects, then one of the difficulties is over, and the meals after that can be eaten with relish. I knew one man who declared that it was looking at the motion of the vast expanse of water that made him sick, and as soon as he came on deck he would lie flat on his back, his eyes on the topmost point of the mast and keep them there or on the sky until he went back into the cabin, or if he got tired in that position he would lie on one side and close his eyes.

"Once when I crossed there was a party of four, and all wore glasses with blue lenses. They said that the greenness of the water, the blues and grays of the sky, together with the fact that one was always peering into the distance, straining the nerve of sight to distinguish objects far away on the horizon, brought on the despised sickness, and that by looking constantly through the blue glass the colors were practically the same; so they were not ill. And strange enough, not one of them was.

"If a person begins to feel giddy and sick, I think iced beer, cold brandy or champagne is about as good to ward off an attack as anything that is ever prescribed. If the feeling assails one in the cabin, I think the best plan is to get out on the deck as quickly as possible, for the fresh air will often dispel the dizziness and nausau. Or if there are many on the deck suffering with the sickness I should suggest getting away from the sight of the suffering as soon as is convenient, for I know that many with delicate stomachs and keen nerves are made ill just out of sympathy from seeing others.

"With some, the very odor of food being cooked is offensive, and brings on an attack, and when these symptoms are evidenced a person should stay out on the deck all the time, particularly around meal hours. For food, nothing is better for such cases than a nourishing tonic of beef, iron and wine.

"For personal comfort as few belongings should be packed as is possible, and not an unnecessary thing from a hairpin to a shirt waist taken. This being burdened with all the useless and impractical gifts that are usually showered on a woman who goes abroad for the first time is really a detriment to the enjoyment of the voyage, and is often the cause of illness. For instance, a huge bunch of flowers kept in the cabins makes the air heavy with their perfume, and almost invariably brings on nausau. If they are removed outside the stateroom their fragrance still reaches and sentiment forbids their being thrown away until they have wilted.

"Fruits and paper covered magazines or books are often gifts that can be received, for they need not be cherished in one's cabin, and as a rule both are readily disposed of. Lime tablets, done up in glass jars, are acceptable, and really much more desirable than chocolates or fancy bon bons, for they can be used when one is thirsty on the vessel and on the other side, where, until one gets accustomed to the water, there seems to be no way of satisfying the craving for drink. Prunes put in glass jars are another gift, and one that is now almost as common as the giving of baskets of fruits, candy, etc.

RESULTS YESTERDAY.
Winnipeg, 4; Duluth, 2.

GAMES TODAY.
Grand Forks at Duluth.
Winnipeg at Hancock.
Fargo at Lake Linden.
Houghton at Calumet.

This is the tale of a game that was lost,
Of a pitcher put to the bad,
He fell down in the very last round.
Alas! A most promising lad.

We've moved down a peg, behind the Canucks,
They got us for two in a row,
And they took the corn, while we got the shucks,
They go up, while we go below.

What matters it then, if the diamond was wet,
And the field was heavy and slow?
We're tagging along behind the Maroons,
And until we catch them, excuses don't go.

It was heavy going at Athletic park yesterday afternoon. The players were carrying several pounds of Duluth real estate about on their feet, and the game seemed to lack life and ginger in spite of the close score.

McCormick, who was given a trial in the box, displayed a most vacillating disposition. In one inning he would show a tendency to hand the game to the Maroons, and in the next inning would go in to bat and take it away again.

He was wilder than a Comanche Indian, having six bases on balls, two wild pitches, and a hit batsman chalked up against him.

The Maroons couldn't find him until the eighth, however, and the game was a very fair imitation of a pitchers' battle until that time.

The wildness was explainable by his lack of practice, and he may yet develop into a pitcher on whom the Sox can rely in cases of emergency.

He was backed up by perfect support in the field, although Livingstone and Summers each had a chance which might have gone for an error, if the ground had been in condition.

The diamond was spongy with the rain of Tuesday and yesterday morning, and the game had to be called off for a few minutes in the first inning until the sky quit leaking.

The Maroons took one in the first, when, with Piper down, Anderson singled, Zeider was hit by a pitched ball, and Spike was caught a moment later sleeping off second. He was anchored in the mud and failed to get back to his base before the ball. Menelee singled, sending Zeider to third, and the latter scored a moment later on a wild pitch.

The Sox could do nothing with Brenna until the sixth, when with two down, McCormick evened up the score with a beautiful drive over the left field fence.

In the eighth, McCormick, who had allowed but three hits up to this time, showed signs of loosening up, and passed Sommerlott, the first man up. Brenna sacrificed and Piper got a scratch two-bagger, which Adams would have caught if he had not slipped and fallen in a pool of water in right field. Sommerlott went to third and scored on Anderson's single.

The Sox looked dangerous in the last half of the eighth, when Summers led with a safe one, and O'Dea got to first on Hanrahan's third error in left field. Barto placed a bunt in the infield just out of the pitcher's reach, and beat it out, filling the bases. McCormick then scored Summers with an outfield fly, but Lovett and Helding were retired in the same manner.

The Canucks finished it up in the ninth. Voss struck out, Varco singled and Sommerlott cracked out a clean double. Brenna got a pass, thanks to a raw decision of McGraw's, and Piper dumped a little one down in front of the plate, which let Varco work in the "pinch" play and score. Anderson singled, scoring Sommerlott, and Zeider ended the agony with an outfield fly.

The Sox could do nothing in the ninth, going out one, two, three.

Barto got a catch in the fourth that brought the fans to their feet, and cut off a run.

OTHER GAMES POSTPONED.

Rain Prevents Play in All League Cities But Duluth.

All games in the Northern and Copper Country league were postponed yesterday on account of rain.

A shift was made last evening, Winnipeg going to Hancock, and Grand Forks coming to Duluth. Fargo will go from Houghton to Lake Linden, and Houghton opens a series with Calumet.

Tomorrow will be ladies' day at Athletic park, and all the members of the gentler sex will be admitted free to the grounds and grand stand.

This is the first appearance of the Grand Forks team in Duluth this year. The Browns, like Lake Linden, have been playing in hard luck, losing many of their games by a single score after outbatting and outfielding their opponents, and the fact that they are at the bottom of the league does not assure the Sox of an easy time in the series which opens today.

THOET ELECTED EDITOR; DAHL IS VINDICATED.

St. Paul, June 21.—Rev. N. B. Thoet, pastor of Bethlehem church of Minneapolis, was elected editor of the Lutheranean, the official organ of the United Norwegian Lutheran conference by that body.

The last and most important action taken by the conference was a resolution which was adopted, in which the conference vindicated its president, Rev. T. H. Dahl, from the charges made against him, and sent to the conference, in writing, by Rev. J. H. Meyer of Chicago. The charges in substance were that the president exhibited partiality in fulfilling his duties. The vote of the conference in favor of President Dahl was unanimous.

DRUIDS OFF FOR HOMES

Finish Sessions of Grand Grove With Banquet and Excursion.

New State Officers Are Elected and Changes in Insurance Made.

The grand grove of Druids for Minnesota has finished its work, and most of the visitors to Duluth have gone home. Local Druids who have been taking care of the entertaining, regret exceedingly that the weather has been disappointing, and so mentioned last night when the Druid celebration was winding up, but the out-of-town Druids seemed to be of one accord in declaring that they could not have a much better time without doing themselves injury. H. J. Arctander of Minneapolis, noble arch of Odin Grove, Minneapolis voiced the sentiment of the visitors last evening when he said that Duluth is the most hospitable city, as well as the steepest, longest, narrowest and prettiest city he has ever seen.

Yesterday afternoon the business sessions of the Druids' grand grove finished business. Probably the most important act of the convention was the changing of insurance policies from a minimum limit of $1,000 to $500. The proposition was to make the minimum $250, but that was raised. There were quite a number of other changes, but none so important as this.

The afternoon session was finished by the election and installation of grand officers. Arthur J. Smith of Winona, past grand noble arch, installed the newly elected officers, who are as follows:

Grand noble arch, A. W. Harris of Minneapolis; deputy grand arch, L. R. Shaw of Minneapolis; secretary, George A. Johnson of St. Paul; treasurer, Frederick Down of Minneapolis; grand marshal, F. E. Sanstedt of Duluth; grand herald, Anton Melzer of St. Paul; grand guardian, J. C. Chalmers of Virginia.

Following that session all of the Druids marched in a body about 5:30 o'clock from Eagles hall to the foot of Fifth avenue west, headed by the Third Regiment band, and there embarked on the steamer Newsboy. They took a trip around the horn and went to other places of interest in the harbor, and then returned to the city, marching up from the wharf to Eagles hall again. At 8 o'clock one of the most delightful informal banquets took place there that has been enjoyed in Duluth for a long time. A large party of people indulged, and while the meal was going on the Third Regiment band played. Local Druids brought their wives and best girls, and everybody seemed to enjoy the affair.

E. Goering acted as toastmaster when the talk part of the program was reached. He introduced Mayor M. R. Cullum as "the man of whose record we are all proud," and the mayor made one of his pleasing and hearty talks of welcome, at which he has become an adept. Following that, B. J. Elde, noble arch of Duluth grove extended a hearty and whole-souled welcome to the visitors, and hoped that they would soon hold another grand grove meeting at Duluth. Then the Svea Glee club gave a selection which was encored, and to which they replied with another. Then H. J. Arctander of Minneapolis made an address, replying to the welcomes extended by the mayor and the Duluth noble arch. Mr. Arctander's address was witty, and he was frequently interrupted by bursts of applause.

The Normanna male chorus gave a selection, and had to reply to an encore, and Roy Prytz sang, his splendid baritone voice winning for him a rousing encore, to which he replied. Then John Jenswold, Jr., of Duluth, made an address, and Miss Olga Prytz sang a solo. O. C. Hoglund of Minneapolis addressed the ladies in particular, telling them that there is an auxiliary order of the Druids for women, and urging them to start a circle here.

Morey Long, who is doing a turn at the Bijou, entertained the crowd after the speeches were over last night. Shortly after midnight the party broke up. The next meeting of the grand grove will be held in Minneapolis.

HIBBING PLANS FOR THE FOURTH

Arrangements Are Being Made for Having Grand Celebration.

Hibbing, Minn., June 21.—A meeting of the citizens was held in the council chamber and arrangements made for a grand celebration of the Fourth of July in Hibbing. Martin Hughes was the chairman and T. J. Godfrey acted as secretary and later Mr. Godfrey was chosen secretary of all the Fourth of July committees. The following committees were chosen:

General arrangements—J. F. Twitchell, Martin Hughes, Douglas McEachin.

Soliciting committee—Joseph J. Cox, Lester G. Sicard, M. Gleason.

Program committee—P. J. Ryan and two to be chosen by himself.

Mike Somers was chosen treasurer and the following officers of the day were selected: President, Frank Ansley; marshals, G. H. Thompson, Robert F. Berdie, C. M. Atkinson, R. L. Griffin, Douglas McEachin, J. F. Twitchell.

There was considerable discussion over the advisability of having horse racing on the speedway track on the Fourth, and it was decided to make that sport part of the day's program.

There will be the usual morning exercises, including an industrial parade, and the games will be started as early in the forenoon as possible. The children's races will be held at the ball park, and will be continued up to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when a ball game will be called between the Hibbings and the Minneapolis Lunds.

The adult races and contests will be held along Pine street and Third avenue, and will run along the same as the children's contests.

Horse racing will be started promptly at 2 o'clock, and the card cleared in time to bring every one back to the town for the ball game.

The village council has decided to shut down on the cannon cracker, the dynamite cane and other dangerous explosives of that character, and will pass a prohibitory ordinance at the meeting next week.

DULUTH MAKES STRONG PROTEST

Against New Tariff Schedules Proposed by State Commission.

St. Paul, June 21.—Duluth was added yesterday to the list of cities protesting against the new tariff schedules which the railroad and warehouse commission has proposed to the railroads as a substitute for the merchandise tariffs now in effect. The shippers' side of the question was heard before the commission all day and the testimony submitted forms a part of the general hearing which has been in progress before the commission intermittingly for three months.

One of the features of the hearing was that in most instances the complaints of the shippers and the railroads seem to be one, and that is that if the proposed schedules were to go into effect the Minnesota rates, which have been in process of building up for a number of years, would be thrown out of equilibrium, and while certain localities would benefit through the action of the proposed schedule, the benefit by no means would make up for the injury done to hundreds of other shippers.

The hearing was adjourned until June 30, when the shippers will be given another opportunity to present testimony. Mankato will be heard at that time. The citizens of that city want the new schedules put into effect, declaring that it will enlarge their market. Following this hearing, another date will be set for the railroads to submit additional testimony, and at a still later date both sides will be given an opportunity to sum up the testimony and present their arguments. The commission will then take the matter under consideration and make such orders as the members see fit.

Representatives of the Duluth Commercial club appeared before the commission and each was unanimous in his testimony that the present rates in Minnesota, so far as Duluth is concerned, are favorable to the conditions of trade and under these conditions Duluth, as well as the entire part of Northern Minnesota, is gradually building up a strong and vigorous trade.

"Duluth," said Judge R. S. Powell, who appeared as attorney for the Duluth interests, "would be driven out of the market in many of the towns south of the Twin Cities, into which it now enters on an equal or almost equal footing with Chicago and the Twin Cities. Duluth is as much interested in securing a reduction of rates as any other city in the state, but the factor in the new schedules, which the Duluth interests view with the greatest apprehension is the disturbance in the present relation of rates as between the great jobbing centers. These are thrown out of equilibrium under the new schedules, in such a way as to operate directly against Duluth.

"A mere glance at the map shows how a distance tariff would operate against Duluth. Our shippers are now operating on a differential, and little by little are reaching out successfully to the more densely populated parts of Minnesota, as well as to other neighboring states. The proposed schedules tend to accenuate and increase these differentials, amounting in some instances to an increase in the rates, which represents a fair profit on the goods themselves. If a reduction of rates is the only thing desired, I think probably that it might be effected by a horizontal reduction, without disturbing the equilibrium in the relation of rates as between certain points. Such a proposal would meet with our approval."

C. F. Rowe, traffic manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company of Duluth, was the first witness called by Judge Powell. He testified that the proposed schedule would work a detriment to Duluth shippers and prevent them from doing business at all points on the roads south of the Twin Cities. As an illustration, he took the shipment of nails. On this class, he stated, the profit is small. The rate is now 5 cents a keg, in carload lots, and 10 cents on less than carload lots. A difference of 5 cents a hundred against Duluth on this product would eat up the profits and prevent the firm from doing business in that line of goods. Under the proposed schedules, he said, there would be an increased differential of 1 to 6 cents per 100 pounds.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A naphtha launch containing six men who were on a fishing trip capsized in the Delaware river, north of Philadelphia, Wednesday evening, and four of the men were drowned.

The Missouri supreme court, en banc, Wednesday overruled the motion for a rehearing filed by counsel for "Lord" Frederick Seymour Barrington, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of James P. McCann.

Four tramps were killed and two other men seriously injured in the wreck of a Southern Pacific train Tuesday night near Reish, sixteen miles west of Reno, Nev.

The jury Wednesday night brought in a verdict of not guilty in the cases of the Cleveland ice dealers indicted for alleged violation of the Valentine ant-trust law, and charged with conspiring to fix the price and control the manufacture and sale of ice. The trial has been in progress for ten days.

Cyrus W. Davis of Waterville was nominated by acclamation Wednesday at the Maine Democratic state convention as the gubernatorial candidate for the September election.

Henry Mize, a wealthy farmer, died at West Plains, Mo., Wednesday from the effects of poison, supposed to have been administered in a jug of drinking water. J. P. Bremmer, who was accused by Mize of having given him the jug, has been arrested. Bremmer is Mize's son-in-law.

Alexander McIntosh, a halfbreed, and Max Leclair, a guide from Kamloops, were shot and killed Tuesday at Hazleton, B. C. Simon Johnson, an Indian of the Kipscrex tribe, is accused of the crime. Leclair's horse is missing, and it is supposed the Indian killed the guide in order to get the animal.

After deliberating for ten minutes, a jury in the circuit court at Macon, Mo., returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of T. Edward Albright, former member of the St. Louis municipal assembly, who had been on trial for three days on a charge of perjury in connection with the suburban railroad franchise.

Lafayette McMahon was locked up in the county jail at Uniontown, Pa., Wednesday night, charged with killing Giovani Desisto and wounding Nichola Ruzzio and Julio Rossi. McMahon's only reason for attacking the Italians, he says, was because he wanted to.

MEAT INSPECTION.

With the meat inspection amendment to the agricultural bill, all nicely trimmed up and patted into such shape as to satisfy the president, sent to conference with an excellent show that within a few days it will become law, there appears to be no reason why the people should not begin to rejoice over another victory for public opinion stirred into action by the potent muck rake.

The most conspicuous thing about this little controversy, now about to be brought to a happy conclusion, has been the imposing brass of the beef trust in opposing inspection, and in trying to have the effectiveness of the Beveridge amendment crippled through the influence of its friends in the house. In view of the disclosures that had been made, one might naturally have supposed that they would quickly see that their only hope of restoring public confidence in their products was through a proper inspection by the government. They don't see it that way, however, but squirmed uncomfortably, appealed to their friends, and if it had not been for the president's interference might have succeeded in either defeating the inspection amendment or in crippling it seriously.

It is effects, not details, that the public is interested in. What the people want is a thorough inspection of meat and meat products, not only of the live animal before it is killed and of its meat afterward, but of every step of every process that ends in the making of food products. Such incidentals as whether the packers or the government are to pay the cost of inspection are not very material, since in either event the people pay it anyway. If those who would have had the packers pay the fees fancied that they would be making them stand the expense they were much mistaken. The packers would have tucked it on the price of meat, with a round percentage in addition for their trouble, and instead of losing would gain by it.

On the whole, it is perhaps better that the government should stand the expense, in order that it may be in a stronger position to rigidly enforce the law. The people will pay it just the same, and they will not have to pay the packers' commission on it, as they would under the fee system first proposed.

But the main thing is that the law requires the packers to keep their plants and their methods and their products clean and wholesome, and provides a method of punishing them if they fail in these respects, and this is what the people wanted. It cannot become effective too soon, or be enforced too rigidly.

PROSPEROUS DULUTH.

Last night The Herald published the statements of the four principal banks of the city, the First National, American Exchange, City National and Duluth Savings bank.

You may not have noticed it, but the showing was remarkable, and the total amount of deposits is easily the largest figure the banks of Duluth have ever been able to show on one date.

The deposits in the four banks figured up to $16,765,452.48, and a year ago the statements showed a total of only $12,801,500.47, which was considered a very creditable showing at that time.

Estimating the population of Duluth at 70,000 people, this amounts to nearly $240 for every man, woman and child in the city. The average circulation of money in this country is something like $32 per capita.

This is something for Duluth to be proud of. There are few cities in the country that can show so large per capita deposits, and few of the size of Duluth whose banks can make statements so creditable.

INDUSTRIAL EPOCHS.

Sages without number have lately attempted to show that the era of stock speculation is about to give way to an era of land speculation, and that that will be followed by a crash, with ensuing hard times.

The first part of this is unquestionably true, but we have the making of the second part in our own hands. There has been an era of speculation in stocks, and while it does not appear to be quite ended, it is not at all improbable that after the next rush upward the public will lose its interest in the game, and turn to something else for its investments.

Naturally, the next thing is land and city lots, and there are ample evidences that whether or not the stock speculation era is over, the period of land speculation has already begun. If that period results in too great an inflation of values, to a bursting point, the financial crash predicted will result. But industrial prosperity and activity are so great that values will stand a higher notch than they have ever reached before. And if the people, profiting by the last panic that resulted from a too great inflation, will keep their feet under them and their wits in their heads, there is no real reason why the reaction should be necessary.

Duluth is just beginning to feel the impulse toward real estate speculation, but in some other communities it has already reached rather feverish proportions. Here it has been healthier than any boom Duluth has ever had. There has been immense building activity, and a healthy strong market for real estate to be used, but comparatively little for pure investment. Values are good, but not speculative, though every condition is right for speculative buying.

There is no need of worrying much about the reaction, however, at this time. The wise thing to do is to take advantage of the existing prosperity, and by keeping alive the memory of past booms to avert by conservatism and common sense the danger of over-inflation. If there is no over-inflation, there can be no collapse. And surely the lesson of 1893 is too fresh in the memory of the people to permit the conditions of those days to come about again.

One the whole, while it is the part of wisdom to remember the lessons of the past, industrial conditions are too strong to make the danger of reaction anything but remote.

ROOSEVELT'S INTERFERENCE.

Nothing more daring has ever been perpetrated in public affairs in this country than President Roosevelt's interference in legislation pending in congress this winter.

Naturally, it has aroused much resentment in old-time members of the two houses, jealous of their own prerogatives and instantly suspicious of anything tasting of infringement by the executive upon the legislative branch of government.

While the meat bill was in the legislative hopper, and when it appeared likely to be ground into sausage meat to the taste of the packers, the president did not hesitate to speak his mind, and Speaker Cannon, in retaliation, uttered this sentiment:

> The floor of the house is the place for debate, consideration and action regarding a matter which is pending legislation.

No doubt this was intended as a stinging rebuke to the president for presuming to interfere with legislative processes. Undoubtedly it is the idea of Speaker Cannon, Senator Aldrich and other standpat, reactionary obstacles to reform, that the president ought to wrap himself up in the dignity of his office and preserve the attitude of a Stoughton bottle until congress had finished. Then, of course, they would concede him the right to veto the result if he did not approve of it.

But what if the president, during this session of congress, had contented himself with acting the part of cigar sign Indian while important measures were pending in congress?

What, for instance, would have become of the railroad rate regulation bill? As it is, a fairly effective measure has been wrought out of the materials at hand; not a complete measure, it is true, but a step in advance; farther in advance than anyone would have deemed possible at the beginning of the session. And even the Democratic opponents of the president agreed that the result would have been far different if it had not been for his "interference".

What would have become of the meat inspection bill if it had not been for the president's "interference"? Does anybody doubt that through the kindly influences of Mr. Lorimer of Illinois and other friends of the packers it would have been either killed or tortured into ineffective futility?

President Roosevelt has cast convention and tradition to the wind in his interference with pending legislation. He has made himself the star "butter-in", to use a slang phrase, of the age; but he has made it win, every time, and backed by public opinion he has whipped congress into line, very much against its will.

DANGERS OF ATHLETICS.

In view of a rather widespread conception of the injurious effect of athletics, Dr. Robert E. Coughlin of Brooklyn has been making a study of fatalities in athletic games and in general of the effect of such sports, and as might have been expected the result was altogether favorable to reasonable indulgence in exercise. His conclusions are published in the Medical Record, and they favor the conclusion that athletic sports are not more harmful than any other active exercise.

Of course exercise is beneficial or harmful, like everything else, depending upon whether it is judiciously used or carelessly abused. A too great indulgence in strong exercise is likely to result in overtraining, from which heart troubles like cardiac lesions may come; for habitual and excessive exercise tends to overstrain the heart. But systematic exercise, designed to build men up instead of to break records or accomplish difficult feats, is altogether beneficial.

Dr. Coughlin found that only twelve deaths of baseball players were reported in 1904, as compared with twenty-eight in football. Baseball is played for seven months and a half, while football is played only a few weeks each fall, and many more boys and youths play baseball than are engaged in football. This makes the comparison much more favorable than the numbers show. Besides, nearly all the deaths in baseball were accidental, and not because of some trick in playing the game, as in football.

His condemnation of football, on the other hand, is unmeasured. Of the twenty-eight fine youths that were killed at this game in the year, seven died of abdominal injuries, three of dislocations of the spine with paralysis, five of concussion of the brain and five of fractures of the skull, while two had ribs driven into their hearts. Not one in five that play football several seasons escapes serious injury.

Even in boxing does he find a much better showing. But six deaths were reported from boxing in the year covered by his investigations, and most of these were amateurs with little experience. The only really expert boxer who has been killed in fifteen years directly from boxing was Bowen, who fell and struck his head against a brick wall which was part of a poorly constructed ring.

Yet there has never been a law against football in this country, and glove contests are allowed in only three states of the union.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I never ate any brook trout caught by myself until the other day," said C. R. Norlin of the state weighmaster's office, at the Lenox. "One day last week I decided to try my luck at the mouth of Lester river, using worms for bait, and caught five fish. I took them home and showed them to my wife. Both of us were puzzled by the appearance of four of the catch. They weren't very large, didn't have any scales, and were speckled. The fact that they were without scales made us believe they were not good for eating, so we gave them to the cat, and ate the fifth of the string, which had a liberal coat of scales, and was of a presentable size.

"When I got down to the office I told the boys there of my experience, and they laughed heartily over the account. They told me I had fed brook trout to the cat and had eaten a sucker. These were practically the first fish of any kind that I had ever caught, and I didn't know the difference. The next day I caught three trout and two suckers. This time the suckers went to the cat, and we ate the trout. The taste of them made us regret more than ever the fine feast we gave the cat on the other occasion."

Mr. Norlin tells the story himself, which should be a guarantee of its truthfulness.

"Railroad building in Alaska is only just beginning," said J. E. Mast of Seattle, Wash., at the St. Louis. "The country is rich in resources, and from now on there will be great activity in building circles, but up to the present time the Alaska transportation has extended only to coast points and the navigable portions of the rivers, and for this reason development has been confirmed almost entirely to only those parts of the territory adjacent to navigation, which form only a small part of the total.

"The vast stretches of country that lie between the coast and the navigable parts of the rivers are yet practically unexplored, except in a few isolated instances, and are absolutely undeveloped. In many parts of these regions it is known that there are rich resources, but under existing conditions they are unavailable. Railroads are necessary to development.

"The necessity for railroads in Alaska has become generally recognized, and this year will see a lot of new construction work done there. Several projects of the kind are in the field. The Nome-Arctic railroad, running out of Nome in a northerly direction, has about sixteen miles of railroad constructed. This will be extended 100 miles or more into the center of Kougarock mining district. Where now it costs $100 and takes about a month to move a given amount of supplies, the cost would be reduced to $25 and the time to less than a day with a railroad completed to the district.

"The Alaska Central, which already has more than fifty miles of road, expects to complete at least fifty miles additional this year. The Copper River & Northwestern Railroad company, and other organizations of a like nature, will also do considerable construction work this year."

"Preparations are being made to decorate the city of Denver when the Elks assemble there July 15 for their annual reunion, that are the talk of the entire West," said a traveling man at the Spalding. "I have lately come from Denver, and they are building an immense 'Welcome Arch' near the depot, which will be decorated with electric lights, and will be one of the most imposing things seen in the city by the Elks who attend the reunion.

"There is to be a fine display of fireworks, costing many thousands of dollars, and on every block of the entire city a beautiful silver elk will be placed on a pedestal, typifying the occasion of the great gathering.

"The sum of $100,000 has been raised to defray the expenses of the lavish entertainment of the Elks, and thousands of dollars will be awarded in prizes to those who decorate their houses and places of business. The sculptured figures of elks will be seen on all sides. An enormous silver elk has been presntd by Fred G. Shaffer, a millionaire mining man of Colorado, as a prize to the lodge bringing the largest number of ladies, and this valuable trophy will be sought for by all the influential lodges of the country.

"The decorations of the city are under the supervision of one of the most celebrated artists in the country, who has been employed especially for the purpose, and the arrangements made for this feature of the entertainment are the most elaborate found in any city since the St. Louis World's Fair.

"Thoustands of dollars will be spent in fireworks, and in bringing Indian tribes into Denver for the entertainment of the visitors, in Wild West shows and excursions into nearby mountains.

"The work of the grand lodge is also very important, and will attract attention all over the United States."

THE WEATHER.

And the next day it rained. The sun has apparently gone away and concealed himself somewhere, for he has not shown up in Duluth for many hours. It was cloudy all yesterday and last night, and this morning it was still cloudy. It rained most of the night, lightly but more or less steadily, and it was still raining this forenoon. The weather man expects occasional showers tonight and tomorrow, with westerly winds. Last night's lowest temperature was 50 degs, and yesterday's highest was 64 degs.

A year ago today it was unsettled and inclined to be showery, but it was warm.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The disturbance central Wednesday morning over Lake Michigan has moved to Lake Superior, increasing a little in strength. It caused a continuance of showery weather in the Lake Region and central valleys, Port Arthur and Houghton experiencing heavy rainfalls. The barometer is high over districts lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi valley. The easterly movement of these two areas of pressure will be attended by strong westerly winds and occasional showers in this locality this afternoon, tonight and probably Friday. Other low pressure areas overlie Alberta and Arizona and temperatures are rising in the extreme northwest."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

MERRY JINGLES.

Chicago Tribune: Rivers (stopping to sharpen his pencil)—How do you spell the plural of "dodo?"

Brooks (who isn't quite sure)—You don't have to spell it. There's no such blamed bird now. It's extinct.

New York Sun: Knicker—Do you think we should wash our soiled linen in public?

Bocker—No; I favor sending it to the laundry for total destruction.

Chicago Record-Herald: Tired Treadwell—Dey say dis stuff you get in cans is dangerous.

Limping Lem—Well, mebby; but de stuff wot bothers me de most is de kind you get in places where de lady is doin' her own cookin'.

Puck: "Hello," says the man, seeing his friend sallying forth with the pole and net and bait bucket. "Going fishing?"

"No," replies the friend, turning on him solemnly. "No. I'm going to stand on my head and keep my hair from falling out. What made you think I was going fishing?"

Washington Star: "I suppose you consider yourself a leader of public opinion?"

"Not at all," replied Senator Sorghum. "Public opinion doesn't need leading. The thing to do is to keep your eyes open and find out which way it is going next."

Philadelphia Press: "We hadn't any chips at the club last night, so we played poker with postage stamps."

"How did the game go?"

"Got all mixed up. The fool government has made the reds worth twice as much as the blues."

Houston Post: "Whew! That is the first time I ever made a speech. I felt like I had forgotten all I had ever learned."

"You appeared to be talking just as you felt."

Philadelphia Ledger: "How did you feel when you found yourself overboard?"

"As if I were all in," gasped the resuscitated joker, gurgling merrily.

Chicago Tribune: Member of Congress—Speaker Cannon is perfectly friendly to your people, but he can't help taking the stand he does on the statehood question. He has to do it to save his face.

Arizona Man—To save his face! Gosh! He's forty years too late! It ain't worth savin'!

The Lamp in the West.

Venus has lit her silver lamp
Low in the purple West,
Breathing a soft and mellow light
Upon the sea's full breast;
It is the hour when velvet winds
Tremble the alder's crest.

Far out, far out the restless bar
Starts from a troubled sleep,
Where roaring through the narrow straits
The meeting waters leap;
But still that shining pathway leads
Across the lonely deep.

When I sail out the narrow straits
Where unknown dangers be,
And cross the troubled, moaning bar
To the mysterious sea—
Dear God, wilt Thou not set a lamp
Low in the West for me?

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Red Wing Republican: Cleveland continues to love Bryan about the same way San Francisco does insurance companies.

Ortonville Herald Star: That the old soldier still maintains his place in the hearts of the people is testified to by the fact that there are sixty-seven war veterans in congress, twenty-five of whom were Confederates. The war closed forty-one years ago, so these statesmen are either well along in years now or else they enlisted for war's stern duties at a comparatively tender age. These figures show that the gray is venerated as well as the blue.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: The work of meat inspection is not all for congress to do. Part of the work of protecting the public will fall on the state legislatures. And there is as much to be done right here in Minnesota as anywhere else in the country. There is no effective inspection of meat by the state. There are federal inspectors at three points in the state, but that inspection means about what it means in the filthy plants of Packingtown, an inspection, more or less careful, of the cattle before they are slaughtered.

Princeton Union: After reading, marking, learning and inwardly digesting the packinghouse gospel of Upton Sinclair, the country people who have decried the toughness of the home-cut beefsteak will likely grind their teeth hereafter without expostulation.

Mentor Herald: Secretary Shaw, who says he would willingly go a thousand miles to visit the tomb of a man who died from overwork, probably thought he would have to go that far from the United States capital to find it.

Le Sueur News: The oldest of the family is not always the first born. That depends upon whether it is a girl or not.

Grand Marais Herald: The president's demand of inspection "from hoof to can" is echoed by the American people. Hit 'em hard, Ted—they deserve it.

Windom Reporter: Sioux City business men are already considering the construction of a plant to convert their garbage into a cheap alcohol that can be used for cooking and heating. Everyone will be glad to have something cleaner and cheaper than gasoline, regardless of their feelings for the Standard Oil company.

Anoka Free Press: Without the muck there could be no muck-rake. Numerous muck rakes imply an abundance of muck. What small satisfaction there must be in designating critics as muck-rakers!

Le Sueur Center Leader: If they will just keep up the wrangle over the type of canal a little longer, someone may invent a flying machine that will render the canal a superfluity.

Albert Lea Tribune: Anarchists are said to be unusually busy at present and they have several noted people marked for slaughter, but all the governments of the earth should unite in concerted action and stamp out this society that advocates and promotes unbridled crime and destruction. The world has no need or use for such people and they may be truly said to cumber the earth.

Nothing Unusual.

Youth's Companion: Two neighbors were confiding their troubles to each other over the backyard fence that separated their premises.

"You know," said Mrs. Higgins, "that my husband is a carpenter?"

"Yes."

"Well, I give you my word that all our upstairs rooms are unfinished and the roof leaks whenever it rains, and I can't get Henry to do a thing to 'em!"

"You're not any worse off than I am," said Mrs. Clingham. "You know my husband used to be a fireman on a locomotive?"

"Yes."

"Well, just as true as I stand here, I always have to get up in the morning and make the fire."

Advice to Mr. Hearst.

Louisville Courier-Journal: If we were Mr. Hearst's nearest friend we should dissuade him from the following of what is at best but a phantom. No man can be true to his calling as a journalist and be a seeker after office. Upon the threshold the honest journalist is at a great disadvantage, and, in time, if he sticks to the political arena, he will cease to be honest. Journalism is a jealous mistress, and public opinion is a skittish jade. Between the two the self-seeking journalist is likely to go down. He can not successfully play fast and loose with either. Upright, elevated, powerful journalism rests upon, and can only be long sustained by, two supports—independence and disinterestedness. Both are at war with office-getting. Does Mr. Hearst court the fate of Horace Greeley? If he does, let him go ahead. He will surely get there. But he were wiser to throw office to the dogs and go in for the development and substantiation of principles and ideas.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There's no need to hunt for trouble; it will find you just as quick.

Singing in a choir is the very best way not to make friends of the rest of it.

There is hardly anything that makes a woman madder than to have her photograph look like her.

A man can make a good deal of money in stocks by being careful not to have anything to do with them.

New Kind of House Party.

Vinton, Iowa, Times: Mr. C. Mealhouse has been helping Mr. R. Shellhouse build a woodhouse.

How Can He Afford It?

Atchison Globe: Doc Robinson appeared today, wearing his second clean shirt in two months.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Madison Independent Press: The Duluth Herald gave the most complete reports from day to day of the recent Republican convention. The Herald is among the best of them when it comes to giving the news.

Madison Independent Press: The convention crowd says that Duluth did the handsome thing in the way of entertaining the throng of people who visited that city during the past week.

Aitkin Republican: Duluth is certainly a hospitable city. The delegates to the Republican state convention were met on all sides by citizens anxious to promote their comfort and welfare, and the hotels and other places did not take advantage of the rush to advance prices. On all sides the delegates were profuse in their comments on the fine entertainment and good usage. Duluth has established its right to be called a good convention city.

Red Wing Republican: Duluth's hospitality was marked and the delegates express themselves as more than pleased with the courteous attention which they received at the hands of the city and people.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Duluth, the Zenith city of the Unsalted Sea, did herself proud in the management of the great convention and entertainment of the thousands of delegates, candidates and visitors.

Virginia Enterprise: Duluth said she could properly care for the crowds, and she did. Even the normal grade of Duluth weather was omitted, for the comfort of her guests.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Duluth has the bang-up baseball team of the Northwest, and the only way it can hope to hold its reputation is to keep away from the Hibbing independent team.

Redwood Reveille: The municipal gates of the Zenith City swung outward this week and every visitor was given the freedom of the town. If there is anybody who visited Duluth and came away dissatisfied with the brand of hospitality or the accommodations furnished he must have been hard to suit. They don't do things in a half way fashion at the Head of the Lakes.

Crookston Journal: There is every promise of a city of the future outrivaling the Twin Cities and even in the beyond approaching Chicago, the great central market. Duluth's care of the visitors at the convention gave high witness to the feelings of good will and fraternal fellowship that in every line of commercial energy is one of the foundations of success. The hotels and the courtesies and interest given by the commercial clubs to the convenience of the visitors all leaves upon the mind a most favorable impression.

Ortonville Herald Star: It will long be referred to as the Duluth convention with a special emphasis on "the."

Moose Lake Star: The delegates returned to their homes sounding the praises of Duluth as a noble and generous host.

Princeton Union: The kind of difficulties under which life is easiest to be cheerful is the other fellow's.—Duluth Herald.

Unless, of course, the other fellowing is settling them with you.

Crookston Times: Almost as much politics as prosperity at Duluth last week.

The Peek-a-Boo Defended.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The peek-a-boo waist is an unmitigated blessing. It affords comfort to the gentle wearer, both physical and mental. It brings joy to the heart of mere man, who gazes at the half revealed charms of neck and shoulders and realizes how beautiful the world is after all. It adds to the wealth of the purveyor, who charges nine prices for these flimy garments, as any family man will testify, and it doesn't hurt anybody. Clergymen should confine themselves to religious subjects and not endeavor to disrupt the feminine portion of their congregations by attacking the peek-a-boo waist or any other harmless feminine frivolity. And under no circumstances should they call them bathing suits. The revelations of a peek-a-boo waist and those of a bathing suit are as widely separated as they can possibly be; and a priest who compares the two shows a lack of observation that is productive almost of contempt.

The Perfect Lover.

Philadelphia Bulletin: Mrs. Carrie Chapman Cart, the famous woman's rights leader, said of an untactful motion at a woman's club:

"This motion, in its delicacy, reminds me of a Ripon man.

"The man got married, and after he had been married several years his wife said to him one night:

"'You do not speak as affectionately to me as you used to, Hal. I fear you have ceased to love me.'

"'Ceased to love you!' growled the man. 'There you go again. Ceased to love you! Why, I love you more than life itself. Now shut up and let me read the paper.'"

TO REMOVE SOME POLES

Progress is Made by Aldermen Toward Abating Nuisance.

Telephone Companies Decline to be Forced Into Agreement.

Some progress toward decreasing the number of telephone poles and wires in the streets was finally made at the conference, yesterday afternoon, between Aldermen Moore, Bugess and Getchell, of the council committee; President H. J. Pettengill, Supt. Mauseau and Manager French of the Duluth Telephone company, and President A. W. Hartman and Supt. Marks of the Duluth Edison Electric company. The Zenith Telephone company was not represented.

President Pettengill stated that the Duluth Telephone company would construct a condult on Second street, between Third and Fourth avenues east, this year, and that the poles and wires would be removed in time to keep the work from interfering with the paving. The Zenith Telephone company has no wires in these blocks.

The wires on Superior street, between Second and Ninth avenues east, and on Tenth avenue east, between London road and Fourth street, will also be removed this year, and placed either underground or in the alleys.

Next year the Duluth Telephone company will remove its poles and wires on Superior street, between Ninth and Twenty-fourth avenues east, and from First street, between the same avenues.

President Pettengill stated positively that he declined to consent to any plan whereby the Duluth Telephone company should use the same poles as its rival, the Zenith company. He stated that the company was willing to go on the same poles with the electric company, but that he considered it dangerous to do so.

President A. W. Hartman of the Duluth Edison Electric company signified his willingness to fall into line with any policy adopted by the council in regard to joint occupancy of poles, but he urged the necessity of having inspection made by a skilled electrician, as otherwise it would be dangerous to have the telephone and high potential wires on the same poles.

The discussion of the matter was informal, and lasted more than an hour. The council committee will make a full report of the progress made up to the present time to the council Monday evening, and action will then be taken on a number of applications to erect poles, which are now being held up pending the arrival at some agreement between the city and the companies.

Mexico on a Gold Basis.

Mexico is putting itself on a gold basis in a very matter-of-fact way. It is selling its silver reserve at an enhanced value and buying gold in the United States, an order for $5,000,000 worth being recently sent us. Bankers make the claim that the change to gold will greatly strengthen the credit of Mexico. It is always good policy to make any change that will result in lasting benefit, and with this idea in view, thousands of persons have made a change in their medicine and are now taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. They write us that their old remedy did them no good, while the Bitters soon made them well again. If you're not taking Hostetter's, start today. You'll find it quickly relieves indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, heartburn, costiveness, female ills, insomnia, and malaria, fever and ague. Don't accept a substitute.

Big Clothing Purchase.

The Boston Salvage company of Boston, Mass., has been busy for the past week taking inventory of the stock of S. E. Gittleson & Co., 400 West Superior street, which it is said they have purchased at 40 cents on the dollar. L. J. Watson, manager of the company, will place the entire stock on sale in a few days, and promises the greatest clothing bargains ever offered in the city. People will not have to pay for the name of a maker, but will get the fullest value on the goods. Economical buyers will do well to watch and wait for the announcement of this sale.

WANT HILLSIDE SYSTEM FIRST

Fifth Ward Residents Think They Should be Given Preference.

At a meeting of the property owners who will be affected by the proposed extensions of the water mains to the hillside, which was held last evening in the store of W. L. Pierce at 820 West Fourth street, it was decided to submit resolutions to the water board, asking that the hillside extensions be given the preference over the Lakeside extensions in the matter of time. It was pointed out that Lakeside already has electric light, and that gas is in the nature of a luxury, whereas the hillside needs both water and gas.

A resolution to this effect will be drawn up by a committee consisting of Aldermen McEwen and Ribenack, and Messrs. A. P. Cook, James Cullyford and E. H. Holdren, and submitted to the board for consideration.

SCANDINAVIAN GOOD TEMPLARS

Grand Lodge Will Hold Its Next Session at St. Paul.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 21.—The final session of the grand lodge of the Scandinavian I. O. G. T. of Minnesota was held at Norden hall yesterday afternoon. The following officers were elected:

Grand chief templar, G. A. Holmquist, Hastings; vice grand templar, Mrs. Oline Sellberg, Fertile; grand counsellor, Peter Larson, Two Harbors; superintendent of juvenile templars, A. Moreen, Cambridge; grand secretary, A. M. Wold, Minneapolis; grand treasurer, N. G. Ehrenstrom, Hallock. The foregoing officers will comprise the executive committee for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were: Grand marshal, Gust Hjarts, Duluth; grand chaplain, John Swedberg, Aitkin; grand electoral superintendent, A. P. Yngve, Cambridge; councillor of study, Carl Erlander, Kennedy; international chief templar deputy, A. P. Peterson, Minneapolis. W. P. Carlton, of Minneapolis, who for the past year has been grand chief templar, now becomes past grand chief templar.

It was decided to hold the next session of the grand lodge at St. Paul in June, 1907. The delegates were entertained last night at a banquet given by the local lodge.

FATHER OF DR. DOWIE ARRIVES IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 21.—John Murray Dowie, father of John Alexander Dowie, arrived in Chicago, from Essex, Iowa, last night. He said that he had come at the request of friends who believed he could be of help in straightening out the present tangle in Zion City affairs.

"When I learned that the paternity of John Alexander Dowie was questioned," he said, "it became my duty to set the matter right."

Dowie senior, s 82 years of age and appeared hale and hearty.

SCHOOL CRIPPLED.

Cleveland, June 21.—Cupid has made great inroads upon the teachers of the Cleveland public schools. Within a week more than one hundred young women have resigned, to become brides, and the board of education and Superintendent Elson fear they will not be able to fill all the vacancies before the next term begins. "Never before have I ever heard of the public schools becoming a matrimonial agency on such an extensive scale. This breaks all records," said the superintendent.

THE WATER RESOURCES

Important National Work is Threatened With Sudden Termination.

Appropriation Struck Out by Committee of the House.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An important national work is threatened with sudden termination if the action of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives is agreed to in the senate. The appropriation for gauging streams and determining the water resources of the United States was struck out on a point of order, and no opportunity was given the members to express by their votes their approval or disapproval of the work. It was apparent at times, however, that a majority of the members were strongly in favor of continuing the investigations.

For twelve years the value of these investigations has been recognized in congress, which has increased the appropriation from time as the work was extended. Under these appropriations a well organized force of engineers and experts has been built up, and a large number of local observers has been employed, so that the work has progressed systematically and thoroughly.

The value of these investigations to commercial and municipal interests, as well as the general public, has never been questioned. On the contrary the demands for extension and expansion have grown steadily as the public became acquainted with its purposes.

To suddenly stop the work without warning means not alone the throwing out of employment of scores of men who have devoted a considerable portion of their lives to the work, but it interrupts most inopportunely investigations of great moment and importance upon which thousands of dollars have already been expended.

The disruption of the present organization, which has now attained a high state of efficiency, is a mistake, for it cannot be restored without much expense, and a serious injury to the work itself.

The water supply problems in Minnesota are of very great importance, as the surface streams, upon which dependence has been placed in the past, have, in many instances, become so polluted that they are highly dangerous to those using them for domestic supplies, as in the case of Minneapolis and a number of smaller towns. In some instances pure ground waters can be obtained, while in others their quality is such as to prohibit their use for boiler and industrial purposes. The geological survey has been at work on the problems of the underground waters for a number of years, and had nearly completed its investigations, and was about to publish the results, which would show the areas underlain by the different classes of water, the depths to which wells would have to be sunk, and the quality and quantity of these supplies, when the appropriation for hydrography was cut out from the sundry civil bill. The publication of this material will be prevented by the action of congress, and the public deprived of the benefit of the information which has been accumulated.

Besides the public water supply, there is a demand throughout the agricultural portions of the state for better information as to the precautions to be taken to avoid pollution of domestic wells. This information was to be supplied in the proposed report, as was also the available information in regard to the mineral waters of the state, which promise to be of considerable value.

THE ISSUE OF THE SHIRT-TAIL

In Kansas State Campaign Seems to be the Limit.

Topeka, Kan., June 21.—"Down with the shirt!" will be a campaign cry among the Kansas farmers this fall. Not that the agriculturalists wish to do away with that part or the male attire which is tucked within the trousers; not that they are favoring a return to Adamic simplicity in matters of dress—oh, no! "Down with the shirt!" means rather a lengthening of that garment, an additian of one inch, front and rear, to the tails that are never displayed to the public gaze except from the back-yard line on washing day.

Behind the movement is a great altruistic purpose—a benefaction to a host of tillers of the soil. Unionism is rampant on the prairies of the Sunflower state, and the farmers are being urged to form themselves into a league for the amelioration of the entire brotherhood, the raising of mortgages, the selling of crops, etc.

When a doubter asked skeptically: "How can a farmer help anyone except himself?" one of the torch-bearers of the new faith, the editor of a farming journal answered:

"Why, we could sell the whole cotton crop of the United States at a high rate simply by taking thought and adding an inch to the tail of our shirt."

The scoffer was covered with confusion and the slogan: "Long shirts and a grand piano on every cotton ranch," is now ringing through the commonwealth.

The periodical has begun a vigorous campaign of education for an extension of the shirt-tail. If the movement takes root it is to be expected that walking delegates, wearing their shirts outside their overalls, a la Chinois, in order to testify their good faith, will travel from farm to farm bearing yard-stick and calling every Cincinnatus from the plow to be measured. "Just step behind this tree, and let's see if you belong to the union, pardner," will replace "How's crops?" as a greeting. And woe be unto him who refuses to disrobe!

The idea is being taken seriously in many localities, but the Republican and Democratic state campaign committees steadfastly refuse to incorporate it into their platforms. Messrs. Ryan and Crummer, the respective state chairmen, argued today that the lengthening of the shirt might be a menace to the modesty of the entire nation, in the event of a light crop. "The supply might be used up prematurely, and we would then have to wear shirts without any tails at all during the winter," they declared with manifestations of fright.

Revision of the tariff was the issue which led to the flaunting of the shirt-tail throughout the state. Col. W. A. Harris, Democratic candidate for governor, favored tariff reform with vigor in his letter of acceptance. The editor of the Farmers' Advocate, in commenting upon Col. Harris' words, calculated that the addition of one inch to the shirt-tails of the nation would consume the entire cotton crop and prevent any exportation. The argument ran up and down the state like wild-fire, and is now upon every farmer's lips.

It has not, however, the sanction of Governor Hoch, whose private secretary, Charles Sessions, said for him: "This issue of the shirt-tail seems to be about the limit."

THE FOURTH TO BE CELEBRATED

By Frazee, and Congressman Steenerson Will Deliver Oration.

Frazee, Minn., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Becker county and part of Otter Tail county will celebrate the glorious Fourth of July at Frazee this year. Supt. D. L. The streets are being got ready for these events under the direction of Alderman William Baer. At early dawn one hundred guns will be fired, and the committees have announced prizes valued altogether at $600. The town will be gaily decorated and the Fourth will be the biggest in the history of Becker county. Perham's prize band will be in attendance all day.

TO KEEP UP DISCUSSION

On Copyright Bill by Means of Correspondence During Summer.

Washington, June 21.—Although the hearings on the copyright revision bill have closed for the recess of congress, it is deemed desirable by those interested in the measure that the discussion may go on by correspondence to the copyright office in the library of congress. Records are to be kept of this discussion for the benefit of the legislatures. To promote this discussion Librarian Putnam today issued the following memorandum with reference to the matter:

"The hearings by the two committees on patents sitting as a joint committee which were begun June 6 and concluded on June 9, were preliminary merely. The chairman of the house committee announced that his committee would be prepared to resume hearings after the first Monday in December. The senate committee has authority to sit during the recess, but the chairman indicates that there is no possibility of any hearings during the summer, and no probability of hearings prior to the beginning of the next session. The senate committee has passed the following resolution to the public:

"Pending further hearings upon the bill, the register of copyrights is requested to keep record of the discussion of its provisions; and to receive, in behalf of the committee as well as of the copyright office, suggestions for its amendment whether in form or substance, and to digest these also, for convenient consideration by the committee."

TREASURE CHEST ELUSIVE.

Iron Box That Sinks as Finder Would Lift It.

Louisville, Ky., June 21.—In the western end of the city has been found an iron box that refuses to be excavated. It is believed to contain treasure. Rev. G. E. Scott, 1534 West Kentucky street, was spading in his front garden when about half a foot under the surface he struck an iron box, nearly two feet across the top. He cleared away the dirt from the sides and reached for his find, when the mysterious box sank a few inches lower. The hole was enlarged on all sides, but the same result followed. Scott has now reached a depth of twenty feet, and is apparently no nearer the box than when he started.

THREE CONVICTS AND MILL FOREMAN KILLED.

Nachez, Miss., June 21.—Four dead and one perhaps fatally injured, all white men, is the result of an attempt by three life term convicts to escape from Angola, La., state convict farm, seventy miles down the river from this city, yesterday, at 9 o'clock. The dead:

CAPT. J. W. BLOCK, foreman of state convicts' saw mill.
JIM SINGLETON, convict.
—— BYRD, convict.
—— DUTCH, convict.

Wounded: J. W. Gibson, guard, shot through the body.

The convicts were sent up from New Orleans and were working in the saw-mill yesterday morning, while Capt. Block was reading a paper, Singleton secured his revolver and in company with Dutch and Byrd, was making off when the attention of Gibson was attracted.

Gibson fired and Singleton shot Gibson through the body and as Gibson fell, Byrd secured his revolver. Compelling the foreman, Block to accompany them, the convicts started toward the river and had placed their captive in a skiff when they were fired on by a trusty named Deleth. Singleton then shot and instantly killed Block.

Day guard J. L. Ogden joined Deleth and in the fusillade that followed the three convicts were killed.

SERENADE WASTED.

Boston Herald: When the Amherst College Glee club made its first western tour in the early '80s, it gave a concert at Rochester, N. Y., at the same time that Kate Pennoyer, a pretty stage singer, was there. After the concert the boys thought it would be just the thing to serenade her and proceeding to her lodgings, gave the familiar college song, "Dear Evalina," with this paraphrase to the chorus:

Dear Kate Pennoyer,
Sweet Kate Pennoyer,
Our love for thee
Shall never, never die."

After the song the boys lingered, eagerly awaiting the appearance of the fair singer. Then slowly a window was raised in the fourth story and this bass solo was wafted down to the collegians from an elderly gentleman clad in a white robe and with whiskers a foot long:

Dear boys below there,
Sweet boys below there,
Your Kate Pennoyer
Lives four doors below."

As the last words of his impromptu song died away on the frosty air the members of the Amherst College Glee club folded their tents like the Arabs, and as silently stole away.

HE MAY HAVE TAKEN ACID

Mystery Surrounds the Cause of Death of George Yellon.

What may have been a suicide case was reported to the coroner this afternoon from room 312, Lowell block.

The body of George Yellon, a blacksmith, about 25 or 26 years of age, was found in the room, and on the table were some bottles which had contained carbolic acid. One bottle was empty, and there was a weak solution of carbolic acid found in another glass.

In spite of this evidence, which might lead to the opinion that death had resulted from the man's own action, it is believed that it was due to heart failure. The man had been afflicted with tonsilitis, and had been doctoring with a local physician for several weeks. The carbolic acid was probably used as a gurgle for the throat, and the coroner is of the opinion that death was due to natural causes.

A post mortem examination will be held, however, and the testimony of the physician will be taken before the coroner makes his decision.

The man was unmarried, and apparently about 25 or 26 years of age. Not much is known concerning him. He lived at the room where his body was found, and worked at his trade of blacksmith.

SPOILED CHEESE IN A WELL KILLS TWO MEN.

Marshfield, Wis., June 21.—As the result of drinking water from a well poisoned with spoiled cheese, Peter Thorr and his hired man, John Widmann, are dead, while Mrs. Thorr and little daughter are dangerously ill at St. Joseph's hospital in this city.

Thorr operated a cheese factory six miles north of this city, and within a week's time the whole family and hired man were taken sick with typhoid fever. In tracing the origin of the disease, investigation disclosed the fact that a cheesemaker previous to the time Mr. Thorr gained control of the property, had made a poor batch of cheese and presumably for fear that detection would lead to his discharge, had hid it in the bottom of the well. Officials are seeking the offender for the purpose of prosecuting him.

How to Break Up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. # COAL DEALERS ELECT OFFICERS AND ADJOURN.

St. Paul, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The convention of the Northern Retail Coal Dealers' association closed today with an executive session, shippers and railroad men, who have been welcomed to the other sessions, being banished.

Cures for short weights which were presented in papers read before the convention yesterday were taken up and discussed, but no definite action taken.

The selection of a place for next year's convention was left to the board of directors.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. G. Haskell, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, president; N. D. Allen, La Crosse, vice-president; G. H. Reeves, secretary-treasurer; J. T. Scroggs, Berrisford, S. D.; and W. C. Lieferman, Minneapolis, directors for three years.

STEAMER DISABLED ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

St. Louis, June 21.—The propellor shaft of the steamer Bald Eagle snapped with a terrific noise today, and immediately the helpless steamer began tumbling about in the heavy sea. # AUTOISTS GO TO CLOQUET

Duluth Enthusiasts Will Attend Good Roads Meeting There.

Raising Fond du Lac Bridge Money by Subscription.

The meeting of the Carlton County Good Roads association, to be held at Cloquet on June 28, one week from today, will be attended by several Duluth automobilists, who will travel from the Head of the Lakes to the Northern Minnesota town in their machines.

A number of Duluthians, who are not automobile owners, will also attend the meeting, and will do what they can to help the movement along, and at the same time establish a closer relationship between Duluth and the Carlton county towns. Among the latter will be W. E. Culkin, president of the St. Louis County Good Roads association, who will deliver an address.

Quite an interesting program has been provided for the event, and Duluth is displaying an active interest in the meeting. The good roads interests of Duluth and Carlton county are identical, and it is believed that by pulling altogether something will be accomplished. But the mere fact of the closer relationship that will be established between this city and her sister towns will in itself be vastly beneficial to all concerned, even if nothing more were accomplished.

The efforts of the Carlton county association are now being centered in the movement to have a bridge constructed across the river at Fond du Lac, where it is intended to have the Tri-city highway cross. The route as mapped out by the Carlton county people will follow the Wrenshall-Fond du Lac road, leading from Carlton to Wrenshall, then direct to Fond du Lac, and down the river to Duluth. It is claimed this road is much more feasible than the one via Thomson.

The one obstacle to the new route is the absence of a bridge at Fond du Lac. It is proposed to raise the largest amount possible through subscription by the counties, townships, cities, villages, clubs and associations, auto men, business men and farmers, and all others interested in the construction of the bridge, then to go before the state and make a vigorous effort to persuade it to furnish the balance and see that the bridge is built.

"Duluth should take just as active an interest in the doings of the good roads associations of the other Northern Minnesota counties as in her own affairs," said a member of the St. Louis county organization today. "It is as important that other counties in the district have good roads as it is that St. Louis county should be thus provided. Each should help the other, and the more unity of action and interest we have, the better it will be for all."

HAS STRONG BUILDING

Government Lookout Station on South Pier is Completed.

The lookout building that the government has been erecting on the inner end of the south pier at the Duluth ship canal to replace the building swept away during the storm of last November, is practically completed, and will be in use within a few days. There yet remains to be put in place the large headlight, with reflector, which will be used by the watchman to get the name of vessels passing in and out of the canal after dark.

In view of the exposed position it occupies during the severe northeast storms when the waves sweep over the piers, the government has taken the precaution to make the construction work exceptionally strong, and it is believed that the building will withstand the bufeting of any storms that are likely to arise.

The building, though small in dimensions, cost the government $520. The foundations are concrete pedestals on top of the concrete pier, and anchored to it by 1½-inch steel rods six feet long. The sill is of heavy angle iron and this, with the flooring and heavy posts, is bolted strongly to the pedestals. The framework is of 2-inch plank faced over and bolted to the posts and supports. The windows, which are placed high, are of heavy plate glass.

In the floor is a trap door that opens into a well through the supporting pedestal and the top of the pier to the gallery that runs through the south pier from the inner to the outer light. This gallery has a tramway on which operates a velocipede, and which is used by the lighthouse keepers in getting to and from the outer light during a storm. The entrance from the gallery to the inner light has been walled up, and the tramway will be extended to the well leading from the lookout's house. The well formerly leading to the gallery was protected by a brick covering that was washed away during the big storm in November. At that time the gallery filled with water, and communication with the outer light was cut off for several days, until the storm subsided.

The government has begun the removal of the broken sea walls and will replace them with concrete walls reinforced by steel supports.

CITY BRIEFS.

The funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Eischen were held yesterday at Calvary cemetery, and interment made there.

No service connections can be made on Tenth avenue east during the time the avenue is in the hands of the paving contractor, and property owners who desire to have water or gas connections made before the new pavement goes down must secure permission from the board of public works at once.

One day Mr. Polson told me to try D. D. D., and I bought a bottle from Parker's. The first application gave me a relief that one could not believe unless it was experienced. I used three bottles of D. D. D. this spring, and now the skin, once a mass of fire and irritation, is as smooth and soft as any part of my body. You may use my testimonial any way you desire. I only hope my story will induce other sufferers to try D. D. D.

CHICAGO "U" IS POOR; EIGHT PROFESSORS GO.

Chicago, June 21.—Three more members of the faculty of the University of Chicago have severad their connection with that institution. These, added to the five who have resigned in the past two weeks, makes the total eight, and no steps have been taken to replace any of those who have left.

It is stated by a member of the faculty that the Midway school is facing a period of financial stringency. Everything points to a season of rigid economy, and it is probable that the university will attempt to go through the coming year with a greatly reduced staff.

The expenses of the athletic committee have been cut right and left until nothing but a shadow of the former glory of track, football and other teams remains.

It has been an open secret about the university that alarming deficits in several departments have been reported, and unless these can be made good from some sources at present unknown, there will be a big cut along the line.

Several departments that in the past have been maintained at an enormous expense will have to be curtailed or entirely done away with. Among those threatened are the University Press, the Chicago commons, the university restaurant, and the law school.

One professor said yesterday that the reason for dropping the professors was that there was not enough money to pay their salaries, and that in all probability the faculty would have to face the coming year short-handed.

CHIEF OF GRAFTERS

Sheikh Tazi of Morocco Has Them All Badly Beaten.

Has Managed to Make a Fortune Within Three Years.

Fez, Morocco, June 21.—Algeciras is gone—forgotten. Morocco remains. And if there is one place in the world a fit subject for comic opera Fez is that place.

Never did any ruler have so great an opportunity of showing that there was stuff in him as Mulai-Abd-el-Aziz of the present day has had. Sardanapalus could not leave a greater name than he if he would only leave his harem and get upon his horse, for the first business of a sultan is to cut off heads. Not for a century have there been so many heads all absolutely ripe to be cut off and hung upon the gates of all the Moorish towns. First comes Raisuli, whose head should certainly adorn the gates of Tangier, for the climb down the Maghzen has made before him renders it ludicrous to the Moors and dangerous to every European in the land. Just in the very town which is set in a focus in the eyes of Europe, no authority exists. Raisuli's followers, armed to the teeth, perambulate the place, laughing the basha's troops to scorn, and working their sweet will, as it best pleases them. Only three days ago they shot and killed two men in the full light of day, the bullets whistling about like bumblebees, amongst the citizens.

True that the victims wanted killing as badly as they could. One of them was a murderer in "grain," and both were thieves. The greatest danger that the sultan has to face is what is going on in Tangier; for Raisuli is neither feeble as in the "Roqui," nor yet a traitor as the sultan is, and Europe looks upon the situation right across the straits.

* * *

The entire Shereefian army certainly numbers under 3,000 men and the various European instructors—French, British, and Italian—find their posts mere sinecures.

The difficulty is that in Morocco men of energy are scarce. In fact, but one exists able and competent to deal with Raisuli and the Pretender, to curb the unruly tribes, and make the sultan once again master of his own house, and not, as he is now, the shadow of a shade, a king in partibus, a ruler such as those one sees in comic operas, a commander of the Faithful without the slightest faith in anything on earth. That man is El Menebu, once ambassodar in London, and now living in honorable retirement in Tangier, driven from power by court intrigues of ministers incapable of anything but theft.

* * *

The Pretender rules the eastern half of all the territory, having some six and twenty tribes at his command. He has a custom house outside Molide, and collects taxes from his tribes. He, too, is quite incompetent, having made no advance for the past three years, although the sultan has no army to oppose him if he should march on Fez. The territory he rules is mostly mountainous, sterile and stony, and all the wildest of the Berber tribes, who never gave more than a shadowy allegiance to the Sultan of Morocco, inhabit it, making it pandemonium with their feuds. All money laid out on its conquest is money thrown away, for the Pretender can neither make nor mar the sultan, and the expense involved would be exorbitant. The tribes, the Roqui (Pretender) dominates have never been productive of anything but trouble to the state; and if the sultan can restore some shade of order in the country which remains still nominally faithful to his rule, the cause of the Pretender will fall as rapidly as it arose and gradually die out.

* * *

The necessity of a strong effort on the sultan's part is manifest. But with the government as has to back him up, it seems impossible that any can be made, and it is natural enough that, seeing all the pitfalls in his path, the sultan may have given up all hope. Out of a comic opera no one has ever seen a government such as that which at present misrules Fez.

There is but one exception, and that, is Abd-el-Kirm Ben Sliman, the minister of foreign affairs, who is diplomatician. He still retains some of the best traditions of the olden times. His grandfather had his head cut off for treason, which somehow gives the grandson quite a flair of having been brought up in all the best traditions of the state. Cunning and merry-looking, he is, they say, a poet. Report proclaims him honest—that is, as far as it is possible for him to be in his position. He clearly sees the ruin of the Moors, and though an amiable fanatic, not liking Christians overmuch, would welcome anything that would bring order and security. He knows the feelings of the outside world, having himself been envoy both in Paris and St. Petersburg; he has intelligence and tact, though he lacks both courage and initiative, but if a strong prime minister were to arise, like Jonah's gourd, and spread his shadow over all the land, Ben Sliman certainly would second him with all his intellect and knowledge of affairs.

The chamberlain is a stout negro, one Beni-Aish, a merry, hospitable soul, with fair, round belly with good "conseous" lined. He was once governor of Tangier, is now lord chamberlain, and only in an opera, either of Offenbach or Lecocq, could such a man be found. Fit at a moment's notice to play "Bones" or "Mr. Johnson" at a Christy minstrel show, he really is a Moorish mountebank, whom no one could take seriously, even in Fez, the land of Paradox. Being a negro, he is less fanatical than most of his compeers, and foreigners who know him say he is hospitable in his new palace, built with the money he has stolen from various sources, where he loves to entertain. Naturally, he knows nothing of affairs, being profoundly ignorant of everything outside the daily round of ceremonial state in which he spends his life. Still, he is not an evil counsellor, and only let him steal a little now and then and he will not actively set himself up against reform.

Gubbas, the minister of war, looks like a babu from Bengal, or perhaps more resembles an old charwoman in a provincial town. Why he was chosen for the post that once Menebhi filled, allah alone can tell, but in himself he is a kindly man enough, speaking both French and English fluently and well. English he learned in Manchester, where he lived as a merchant, became a Liberal and a free trader, and to this day laments the death of Mr. Gladstone, whom he refers to as "great man of state, and very liberal." His common salutation is "my dear," which he applies to all and sundry, patting their hands, after the fashion of a cardinal as shown upon the stage.

The grand vizier is Si Fedul Khanit. He is now old and counts for little in the state, but has been in his time a figure, having served faithfully the sultans, according to his lights, and having never had the chance to make his fortune until quite lately in his extreme old age. His house is called "Maquimad el Kidoup," that is, the manufactory of lies, and Moors relate, if you watch carefully, that with the sparks that issue from his chimneys when alight lies mingle by the yard. All this he takes as a great compliment to his intelligence and knowledge of affairs. Tall and distinguished looking with a proud white beard which he strokes now and then, as with the fingers of his other hand he tells the beads upon his rosary, he looks a patriarch. His family came from Granada, as his name implies, and was expelled from Spain with the Moriscos, an injury which, it would seem, still rankles in his blood, and which he still endeavors to repay by keeping out the Christians from the land with all his might and main.

Most of the trouble that afflicts the land lies at the door of the chief favorite Sheikh Tazi is his name, and he has managed in the period of three years to make his fortune, and to install two of his brothers in fat offices. His family originally were Jews, and came from Taza, a small town, buried in the mountains, between Fez and Ujda, where now the Roqui rules. The cheikh has been in Manchester, and, it is said, can "spick a leetel Inglis." He is a tall, fat, and portly looking man, who but three years ago was steward of Menebhi when he was minister of war, and was prime mover in the plot which drove him from his post, leaving the path to riches and to power wholly at the butler's command.

Now all are rich, and whilst the people beg about the streets, the sheikh is building a great palace, fit for a sultan, out of the money he has pilfered from the state. Such are the sultan and his government. He is weak as water and they chiefly rouges; and whilst they rob the people, knowing him impotent to check them, he sits still, just like a sailor whistling for a breeze upon a windless sea.

FIVE DAYS FOODLESS

Nine Americans Were Almost Starved in Canadian Wilderness.

They Ventured Up the Pelican River Without Guides.

Winnipeg, Man., June 21.—The tale of nine starving Americans who ventured up the Pelican river without guides, is told by W. M. Gibson, who left here for St. Paul last night. For five days his party was without food.

With the idea of having good fishing and hunting the party to which Gibson belonged, consisting of Dr. J. Spence, Hamilton Holman and James Russell, all of St. Paul, and five other men from different parts of the states, left the Twin Cities with one of the most complete outfits ever seen in these parts. They shipped to Selkirk on board of a Lake Winnipeg steamer as far as Mossy Point and then pushed up Pelican in four canoes by the aid of a rough sketch made ten years ago by the father of Gibson.

For the first week everything went well, then the first of the hardships encountered them. The canoe carrying the bread was being loaded after a portage on the eighth day and as the last man stepped into the canoe he upset it.

The flour for the party was still dry, and there was nothing to hinder the men from proceeding on their journey into a little lake up one of the small tributaries. Dr. Spence went hunting and brought home a lone grouse and the fishermen returned with four fish which were cooked.

That night the two guns and all the flour were stolen by Indians on whose reserve the party was encroaching. The men were sleeping and did not hear the Crees as they crawled up and mulcted them of their firearms and tackle. Only one weapon was left and that, a small revolver, which was in the pocket of one of the men. Some cartridges were also left.

By unanimous decision the men started for home as soon as they found out the condition of affairs. About a third of the distance was traveled on the first day and the whole party lay on empty stomachs that night. The next morning Russell, the crack shot of the party, was entrusted with the revolver and managed to bring down a grouse. This was cooked over a fire and divided among the nine men.

Toward the end of the second day one of the canoes began to lag and did not come into camp until about an hour after the remainder had camped. Some one said something about desertion, and it was left to a vote whether it was to be every man for himself or they were to stick together. It was decided to hold together.

That night three fish were caught on right lines and proved a blessing. The next night nothing was caught and on the fourth day the weak crew of the party gave out and pleaded that they were dead beat.

"I never want to endure it again," said Gibson. "The fellows were lying in the shade panting for food. Suddenly they heard a report of a gun, and Russell appeared swinging a rabbit. The men piled on him and the rabbit was torn to pieces. No person waited to have the meat cooked."

The next morning they sighted the smoke of a camp fire on the bank of the river. "It turned out to be the camp of a trapper named Antoine Beaupre," said Gibson. "We simply ate him out of house and home and he had to come down to Hudson's Bay post to restock again for the coming winter for which he was then making preparations. We stayed at Beaupre's camp for a day and a half, and then journeyed down the river by easy stages until Mossy Point was reached. I left the other fellows there to recuperate. I was called upon by the party to make a fitting present to Antoine. I got him everything he wanted at the post and gave him instructions to call at the post again if he wanted anything more. I left $500 with the factor to the credit of his account."

THINKS COUNTY WILL NOT DIVIDE

County Commissioner Tone of Northome Explains Situation.

Bemidji, Minn., June 21.—There is very little prospect of a division of Itasca county with the establishing of International Falls as a new county seat, if Aad A. Tone, county commissioner of Itasca county and a leading attorney of Northome, has sized up the situation correctly.

Mr. Tone was in Bemidji yesterday afternoon on his way from Grand Rapids, where he had been attending a term of district court, and explained the division fight at length to the Pioneer.

"The Itasca situation might be summarized by saying that there are too many towns wanting the county seat to allow the International Falls plan of division to carry at the polls this fall," said Mr. Tone.

"Division is sure to come some day, for we have a county nearly the size of the state of Massachusetts and with wonderful resources, and it is only a question of time when it will be settled thickly, but the time is not ripe yet. Moreover, International Falls is at the extreme end of the county, and there are a number of thriving villages scattered over the vast area which are all ambitious. For instance, there is Big Fork and Little Fork, Deer River and Northome. All these villages will vote against the proposition.

"The northern part of the county near International Falls will vote for separation, and a number of votes will probably be cast for it in Grand Rapids, but I look to see the proposition defeated."

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home, and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by all leading druggists.

SYNOD AGAINST COLLEGE SPORTS

Augustana Ministers Will Not Give Colleges Discretionary Power.

Denver, Col., June 21.—The question of intercollegiate contests in athletics brought on a lively debate in the Lutheran Augustana synod yesterday.

Prof. Andreen of Augustana college and theological seminary moved that last year's resolution, putting a ban on football, basketball and baseball, be amended to give the boards of the separate colleges discretionary powers as to the last two games. He said that absolute prohibition was too radical and was unjustified and in the synod's institution the rule had not been observed. He readily admitted this and assummed all responsibility for the action. The motion to change the rules governing athletics in the colleges and academies within the synod aroused the ire of the opponents of athletics. Rev. Messrs. S. M. Swenson, Camer; E. J. Weiser, Rush City; O. B. Johnson, Walnut, Neb., and K. N. Rohenius, Pontiac, R. I., led in the fight against the motion, which was warmly defended by Dr. Andreen; Dr. Peck, president of Upsala college, Kenilworth, N. J.; A. T. Larson, Brainerd, former captain of the Minnesota football squad and Dr. Gilbert Seashore. Of the college men present, nearly all favored amending the rule. Dr. Andreen and others begged the delegates to have some consideration also for the students' side of the question, but the minds of the opponents of athletics could not be influenced and the motion was lost on a vote of 65 yeas and 65 nays.

It was noted with interest that the venerable Dr. Norelius, president of the synod, favored greater latitude in athletics and voted for Dr. Andreen's motion.

The reading of the report of the committee to draft resolutions based on the president's annual report precipitated another animated discussion on the synod's relation to the general council and its foreign mission work. The committee recommended that the synod approve of the work done by independent missionary societies, but was against any action on their part which would tend toward a schism. This resolution was adopted.

Another resolution, that pastors and congregations who violate the resolutions of the synod shall be disciplined by being excluded from the right to hold any office of trust in the synod, was also passed.

In this connection President Norelius stated emphatically his decision to resign unless definite action be taken defining the jurisdiction of the synod as against the different conferences. The vote affirming the superior rights and powers of the synod was emphatic.

The question of a fund for Augustana college and theological seminary gave rise to a protracted debate. It has been decided that a jubilee fund of $250,000 be raised before 1910. A motion that all gifts received by the synod without any express stipulation by the donor as to its use, go to the college and seminary, was amended to make the seminary alone the beneficiary.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Boy of 19, to be Charged With Murdering His Stepfather.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Ellendale—District court will convene at Ellendale on June 25. There are thirty-eight cases to be tried, thirty-four being civil actions and the remaining four criminal cases. The only case of any interest is that of Rhinhold Ruttke, charged with the murder of his steptather, John Bartel.

On the night of June 6, during a family quarrel, Ruttke shot and killed his stepfather, John Bartel. The tragedy was the culmination of a long-standing quarrel between Bartel and his wife. The couple had been married three years, and, previous to the marriage, Mrs. Bartel had lived on her claim, which adjoined the Bartel place, but after the marriage she and her family lived at the home of Bartel.

Mrs. Bartel now wished to return to her claim, so that she might be able to prove up on it and have it for her children; but her husband would not allow her to do so, as he wished her to relinquish her right, so that he might be able to buy it from the government.

The couple were unable to agree, and, upon Monday of the week of the tragedy, Bartel went to Ellendale and filed a contest bill against the land in question. On Wednesday Mrs. Bartel and her son Rhinhold, aged 19, went to Ellendale and there heard of Bartel's action. They immediately started for home, arriving there some time before dark.

Upon arriving home Mr. and Mrs. Bartel became involved in a quarrel, in which Bartel became very angry and started to assault his wife. Young Ruttke took his mother's part, and this so enraged Bartel that, it is asserted, he picked up a heavy club and, catching hold of Ruttke, tried to strike him with it. Ruttke succeeded in freeing himself from Bartel and drew a revolver and shot him, the ball entering the left temple and coming out the other side of the head.

Ruttke gave himself up to the sheriff. Public sentiment is with the boy, as it is believed to be clearly a case of self-defense.

Fargo—Genuine alarm is felt by the farmers of the state over the possibility of a labor famine during the harvest and threshing season.

With present indications the state will raise more wheat than in any former year, and there have been fewer idle men than in many years. The amount of railroad and other public work in this and other Western states, added to the face of the general movement of transient laborers to Frisco on sightseeing expeditions, is beginning to create consternation among the farmers here. The railroads will be asked to assist in relieving conditions.

The promotion of Will Cloutier from local manager of the Standard Oil company in Fargo to a similar position in Minneapolis is announced. Mr. Cloutier was a Minneapolis boy, and his promotion will be doubly congenial, as it takes him back to his former home.

After having been arrested on a charge of forging a check and receiving part payment in cash from a local grocer, Alcide Berethaume, a local brickmason, made an effort to escape by running from the police station. He was captured after an exciting chase.

A body found in the Red river, and which at first was reported to be that of a woman, has been recovered and brought to this city. It proved to be that of a man. The corpse was entangled in the bushes on a little island in the middle of the river near the Probstfield farm. From the bank it appeared to be that of a woman, and it was only after it was recovered that the error became apparent.

Minot—Relatives of D. C. Robbins, a business man of this city, who disappeared ten days ago after drawing several hundred dollars from the bank, fear that he has met with foul play, and a systematic search is being made for him.

Robbins was last seen June 11. Every possible clue to his whereabouts has been traced without avail. Mrs. Robbins says she believes he was robbed and murdered. He is the owner of several buildings in Minot, and has lived here many years.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Arthur Copley and George Jeffries, boys who were recently caught in a store in this city late at night, were today taken before Judge Gaily charged with entering a building with the intent to commit a felony. Both pleaded guilty and the judge gave them a lecture on what would be the result of continuing in the way they had started, and fined them $50 each, which was paid. The boys made a confession to the state's attorney as to their actions in other misdemeanors and are being closely watched.

State's Attorney Byrum and Sheriff Howard of Sully county were in this city and secured $281 taxes which were claimed against William Meyers of Sioux City, who removed a bunch of cattle from that county without settling the taxes due. It was learned that Meyers was carrying a deposit in a bank in this city, and a sufficient sum was levied on under execution to settle the claim of the county, and the money secured yesterday.

Yankton—A barn on Albert Alseth's farm near Volin was destroyed by lightning and two head of horses burned. The barn of Will Gilliland, west of this city five miles, was also burned, as was one horse. On the Alseth place six horses and one cow have been killed in five years by lightning, which there, at least, strikes more than once in the same spot.

Rapid City—At the Jack Dailey ranch near Hermosa, Mrs. Earl Strange was accidentally shot and for a time her condition seemed serious. Some of the men had put a target up on the corner of the house, and, not knowing it was there, she came out just as the shooting was going on. She was struck in the breast. The ball was extracted and she is recovering.

De Smet—Charles J. Pease, proprietor of the European hotel, has been sentenced to three months in jail and to pay a fine of $200. He was arrested on the charge of permitting gambling in his hotel.

Sioux Falls—Mrs. Kaufmann, in answer to the demands of the populace, which at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon was yet in a somewhat excited condition, has been lodged in the county jail. The motion for her release on bail will not be heard for several days.

Malta-Vita

"The Perfect Food"

"Good Food is the Origin of Strength in the Human Body"

In this country we have the ideal food. It is Malta-Vita, the food which gives to the body and brain perfect strength and perfect health. It is often called "The Perfect Food" because it contains every food element the body needs, and in the exact proportions which physiologists say are necessary to health and strength.

Malta-Vita is the whole of the best white wheat, mixed with finest barley malt extract. This is the reason it is so rich in vitalizing, refreshing, muscle-building, blood-making food elements. The wheat, after being thoroughly cleaned, is cooked and steamed until the starch cells break down. It is then mixed with the malt extract and rolled out into wafer-like flakes, every flake a whole grain of wheat. The malt extract, an active digestive agent, converts the gelatinized starch of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar. Maltose is very nutritious and is easily digested even by the weakest stomach.

Malta-Vita is baked in great ovens until it is crisp and brown, ready to eat. That is how it comes to you,—the most strengthening, most delicious and cleanest food in the world. No other food has that delicate, satisfying Malta-Vita taste. Try some today with milk or cream.

GREATEST ON RECORD

Are Exports of Meat and Meat Products This Year.

Total Value Will Probably Reach Two Hundred Million Dollars.

Washington, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Exports of meats and products from the United States in the eleven months ending with May aggregated over $180,000,000. The ten months for which complete figures have been presented by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics show a total of $166,000,000 and as preliminary figures for May indicate a total of over $16,000,000 for that month, this would make the total exports of meats and meat products up to June 1st about $182,000,000, with one month remaining to complete the fiscal year. These figures for eleven months show a larger exportation of meats and meat products than in the corresponding period of any other year in the history of our export trade, and show an increase of practically 60 per cent when compared with the figure for the corresponding months of 1896, a decade earlier.

This large increase occurs in all of the principal products, but is especially noticeable in lard, oleo oil, salted pork, fresh beef, and fresh pork. The value of lard exportations in the ten months ending with April, 1896, was $28,000,000; in the corresponding period ending with April, 1906, it was $51,000,000, having thus doubled in ten years. Exports of fresh beef increased from a little less than $15,000,000 in the ten months ending with April, 1896, to practically $29,000,000 in the same months of 1906; hams, from $9,000,000 to $16,000,000; oleo oil and oleomagarine, from $7,000,000 to practically $15,000,000; salted pork from $3,500,000 to practically $10,000,000. Canned-beef exports show but little increase during the decade, the value in ten months of 1896 being $5,000,000 and in the same months of 1906, a little less than $5,750,000. Exports of bacon also show but a slight increase, the value in the ten months ending with April, 1896, being practically $29,000,000, and in the corresponding period of the present fiscal year, $29,500,000.

In order of magnitude, the exportation of meats and meat products are, for the ten months ending with April, 1906: Lard, $51,500,000; bacon, $29,000,000; beef, fresh, practically $20,000,000; hams, $16,660,000; oleo oil and oleomargarine, $15,000,000; salted pork, $10,000,000; canned beef, $5,660,000; salted beef, $4,000,000; tallow, a little less than $4,000,000; sausage casings, $,250,000; and fresh and canned pork, $1,000,000 each. Thus the total value of meat and meat products exported in the fiscal year 1906 will approximate $200,000,000, and will probably exceed that of any earlier year.

All parts of the world are purchasers of American provisions. The lard exports of 1905 went direct from the United States to seventy-five different countries and colonies, the largest quantity to the United Kingdom, valued at $7,500,000; to Germany about $15,000,000; to Netherlands, practically $5,000,000; to Belgium, $2,250,000; to Cuba, $1,750,000; while the remainder went in sums of less than $1,000,000 value to various other countries and colonies, practically every European country being a purchaser to a greater or less extent, as were all of the countries of North and South America, and the principal countries of Asia and Oceania.

Bacon, which stands second in importance in the value of meat products exported, goes largely to the United Kingdom, which took in 1905 practically $21,000,000 worth out of the total of $25,500,000 worth exported. The next largest purchaser was Belgium, a little over $1,000,000 worth, followed by Netherlands to the value of about $500,000, and Cuba $500,000 worth of fresh beef. The United Kingdom is the principal purchaser, the value thereof taken in 1905 having been $22,021,642 out of a total exportation of $22,138,365. Hams show the next largest total, and of the $21,500,000 worth exported in 1905, $19,500,000 went to the United Kingdom, about $500,000 worth to Belgium, and $500,000 worth to Cuba. Oleomargerine and oleo oil, the latter used for the production of oleomargerine, rank next to hams in the total value of meat products exported, amounting in ten months of 1906 to practically $15,000,000, the bulk of which is oleo oil. This article goes chiefly to the butter-making countries, the largest part to Netherlands, which took $6,500,000 worth out of the $11,500,000 worth exported in 1905; the value sent to Germany was a little less than $2,000,000; to the United Kingdom $1,000,000; to Norway $750,000, and to Denmark, about $500,000. Of the $9,500,000 worth of salted pork exported in 1905, nearly $6,000,000 worth went to the United Kingdom and less than $500,000 to any other country. Canned beef exportations amount to about $6,000,000 annually, and have changed little in value for several years, having been $5,000,000 in 1901, and $6,700,000 in 1905, and the quantity ranging from 53,000,000 pounds in 1901 to 66,500,000 in 1905. In this, as in most of the other classes of meats exported, the United Kingdom was by far the largest purchaser, taking over $4,000,000 worth in 1905, against a little less than $1,500,000 worth sent to Japan, and about $350,000 worth to South Africa.

Great Britain, it will be seen, is by far the largest purchaser of American meat products. Of the $75,000,000 worth of bacon, ham, fresh beef and canned beef exported in 1905, the United Kingdom took $66,000,000 worth, or practically 90 per cent of the total of the total exports of meats, valued at $100,000,000, she took $80,000,000 worth, while of the $40,500,000 worth of cattle exported in the same year she took $36,550,000 worth.

The following table shows the exports of meats and meat products from the United States in the ten months ending with April, 1896 and 1906 respectively:

FIREMEN ARE STOPPED.

They Were Summoned From Switzerland to Conflagration in Germany.

Geneva, June 21.—Two Swiss fire engines were dispatched from Bale to a warehouse fire in the German town of Huningue, just thirty yards over the Swiss frontier.

Although the German engines were quite incapable of dealing with the outbreak, the German custom house officials would not allow the Swiss firemen to cross the frontier, as "they had received no orders to that effect."

O'Brien Buys More Pine.

William O'Brien has returned from Florida, where he and his associates, H. C. and E. B. Putnam of Eau Claire, Wis., the Lammers Brothers of Stillwater, and George C. Howe of Duluth, have bought about 500,000,000 feet of pine for a consideration, said to be in the neighborhood of $500,000. These lumbermen now own about 3,000,000,000 feet in Florida and the Carolinas. Mr. O'Brien is also interested in the Virginia Lumber company and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railway company.

ESCAPE WAS NARROW ONE

W. W. Little of Chicago Had Harrowing Experience on Nipigon.

With Guides Came Near Being Swept Over Cataract.

A fishing trip to the Nipigon river country came very near resulting fatally to W. W. Little of Chicago and his two Indian guides. Mr. Little, who is registered at the St. Louis, on his way home from the famous trout stream of Canada, tells how he was saved by a narrow margin from being swept over a 75-foot fall of water by the bravery of his companion in camp, Dr. C. H. Riggs of Toronto. James Cameron and James McIntyre of Winnepeg, who are with him, quite agree with the story in this regard.

"We had very good luck, and caught several nice big trout," said Mr. Little. "A favorite place to try our luck was just above the falls, where the current was very swift. I occupied one canoe there with my two Indian guides at the time of the accident, and Dr. Riggs and his guides were only a short distance away. The trout up there are fighters, and when I hooked an extra big one the battle became so warm that our canoe was upset in the struggle, and all three of us were suddenly thrown into the cold water.

"To make matters all the worse, the Indians could not swim, but with my assistance they managed to reach the side of the overturned canoe, and there all three of us clung. Meantime we were being carried at a rapid rate toward the brink of the falls, and the nearer we approached the swifter the water became. All battle against the current was futile on our part, and we had given up all hope of being able to get out alive when Dr. Riggs and his guides came to our assistance, at a great risk to themselves. It was only the nerve, daring and bravery of Dr. Riggs that saved us. I never want to go through another experience like it, even with the doctor at hand to pull us out.

After we got to shore I sent a log over the falls, and it was seven minutes before it made its appearance after plunging into the whirlpool at the foot of the cataract. We lost $80 worth of property as a result of the overturning of the canoe. Except for this one thing, we had fine sport all the time while away. I have had four trout mounted, and they average twenty-four inches long. They weighed about 6¾ pounds each. I had a small American flag with me on the trip, and the Indians did not know what country it representated."

SENDING MUSIC BY TELEPHONE

Is the Latest and Greatest Innovation in New York.

New York, June 21.—A great central station for the distribution of music by telephone is being put up at the corner of Broadway and Thirty-ninth street by the Telharmonic company of Washington. It is the first plant of the kind ever established in the world and is regarded as the most remarkable musical invention of the age.

Wires leading to the Central station are now being strung in the subway. The music as it is furnished to the subscribers, can be turned on or off at nearly any time during the day or night, like water or gas.

The receiving apparatus is so arranged that any number of people in a room or hall can listen to the music at the same time with perfect distinctness.

An interesting description of the contrivance is by William E. Curtis, correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, in his letter to that newspaper, Mr. Curtis says:

It will be ready for business about the middle of July and it will supply residences, boarding houses, restaurants, saloons, barbershops, hospitals, asylums, schools and whomsoever it may concern, from 9 o'clock a. m., until any hour of the night with all the music they may desire.

It is only necessary to subscribe as you do for a telephone and have an instrument put in where you may desire. Then you can turn on the music whenever you want it, day or night, just as you turn on electric lights or gas or water. You switch the key and the music plays loud enough to be heard by an audience of any size or in any part of an ordinary house.

At the Central station, the corner of Thirty-ninth and Broadway, the managers are now installing an enormous machine, 70 feet long, 10 feet wide and 5 feet high, which runs 200 tones and contains 150 dynamos. This is the instrument which is to amuse all New York.

There is a keyboard at which the performer sits, with keys like those of a piano, but it is not a piano or an organ, or a norchestra or a brass band, but a combination of 150 dynamos, controlled through a switchboard in such a way that they will produce vibrations, and when thrown upon a telephonic surface, these vibrations will produce sounds loud enough to fill the Waldrof-Astoria hotel.

The business will be managed on a system similar to that of a telephone company. Patrons will be asked to enter into a contract for a year or a part of a year.

There will be a monthly rate, just like that charged for a telephone or an electric light where the patron signs a contract and pays his rate.

The wires will run into his house, just like telephone wires or those which are attached to district messenger calls.

The company is just beginning to string the wires in the subway, and on the poles of the Bell Telephone company, with which it has a working arrangement.

The Telharmonic company is not controlled by the Bell company, however. The apparatus is similar to that of the old telephone, a box about three feet by ten inches in size. The company will put in one or several as a patron may desire.

A song instrument will produce a sufficient volume of music to be heard throughout an ordinary hotel dining-room or a residence, quite as loud as that produced by an orchestra of five pieces.

The receiver is so arranged that a hundred or a thousand people can hear the music at the same time as it comes over the wires. There is no buzz or whirr like that which afflicts the phonographs and graphaphones.

BREAK IN PRICES IS DISQUIETING

Due to Dissolution of the Southern Furnace Association.

New York, June 21.—The Iron Age says: Almost like a clap of thunder from a clear sky has come the dissolution of the Southern Furnace association, an unusually short-lived organization, based on a gentlemen's agreement among the leading Birmingham furnace companies. One of the principal transactions was the sale of 10,000 tons to the International Harvester company at $13 for No. 2 Birmingham, a decline of $1 below the nominal price recently quoted. This break in prices cannot help but have a disquieting effect. It came at a time when in other sections the makers were showing some strength. Only a few days since leading Buffalo makers had sent out orders to their salesmen to advance prices 25 cents per ton. In competitive territory an adjustment of prices of foundry iron must follow, unless the tonnage which the Southern makers feel it necessary to book should be only moderate. In such competitive markets, Southern iron is now freely offered at $13.25 to $13.50 for No. 2 foundry, Birmingham.

It must be clearly understood that the situation is entirely different in the markets for steel making irons. The demand for finished material is good. The leading interest, during the first fifteen days of this month booked an aggregate of orders in excess of its shipping records.

"The rail makers have added 26,000 tons for the Missouri Pacific, and 11,000 tons for the Florida East coast to their 1907 commitments. One of the large contracts which is coming in is 23,000 tons of structural material for the yards, etc., of the New York Central terminal.

"There has been a surprisingly large volume of business lately for wire products, and sales aggregating 100,000 tons of steel bars for delivery during the year beginning July 1 have been made.

"The Eastern Bar Iron association is to meet to deal with the price cutting, which has become more prevalent lately. Light rails have advanced $1 a ton.

DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED

Duluth Telephone Company Holds Its Annual Meeting.

At the annual meeting of the Duluth Telephone company, yesterday afternoon, the old board of directors was re-elected. The board is comprised of C. W. Wainman and W. B. Silvey of Duluth, Frederick P. Fish and Thomas Sherwin of Boston, and H. J. Pettingill of Minneapolis. The directors will have a meeting soon to elect the officers of the company. Several of the directors reside in other cities, and a meeting cannot be held until enough arrive to form a quorum.

Among the officers here yesterday were President H. J. Pettengill, Auditor R. W. Overmier and General Manager C. M. Mauseau of Minneapolis.

President Pettengill says that the officers of the company have had a conference with the council committee, and have agreed to expend $20,000 this year in the putting of wires underground. Next year it will do more. Mr. Pttengill says that the Duluth Telephone company has acquired 2,000 new subscribers the past year, and looks forward to the time when it will have 8,000 to 10,000 subscribers.

During the past year the company has spent $100,000 for improvements, including an exchange at Lakeside. The company owns its office and exchange building on First street, and has purchased an adjoining lot for building improvements in the future.

President Pettengill says the Mesaba Telephone company has extended its line from Hibbing to Grand Rapids, and plans are under way for a new building and equipment at the last named place.

Mr. Pettengill is also president of the Mesaba and the Northwestern Telephone company.

DECLINES AT THE CLOSE

Slump Comes in Most Markets After Strength Was Shown.

Flax is Quiet in Duluth Market and Closes Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 21.—The wheat market experienced a slump at the close which left the July option, at least, weaker, in all the American markets except Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The strength in Minneapolis, where the July option closed ⅜c higher and the September option unchanged, was a noticeable feature. In Kansas City, the September option held strong on bad harvesting news. The farmers complain that they cannot get harvest hands. Rumors of black rust from Southern Illinois kept prices up in Chicago and elsewhere during most of the session and the declines were all of a sudden and right at the close. Liverpool closed ½d to ¼d higher, Paris unchanged to ¼c lower, and Berlin and Budapest ¼c higher.

The July option closed ⅛c lower in Duluth, ¼c off in Chicago, New York and Winnipeg, ⅜-½c lower in St. Louis and a shade off in Kansas City. The September option closed ¼c lower in Duluth and St. Louis, a shade off in Chicago, ⅛-¼c higher in New York and ¼c higher in Kansas City. The October option closed ½c higher in Winnipeg.

Corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and ½d to ⅝d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅛ lower in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 51 against 9 last year, and at Minneapolis 131 against 149 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 182 against 149 last year. Chicago received 7 against 1 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 211,000 bus., last year 251,000 bus Shipments 206,000 bus., last year 106,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 141,-000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 833,000 bus., last year 602,000 bus. Shipments 890,00 bus., last year 671,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 1,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet and stronger during most of the session of the Duluth market, but relapsed at the close. July wheat opened unchanged at 85½c, declined to 85¼c at 9:40, advanced to 85⅝@⅔c by 1, and dropped at the close to 85⅜c, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September wheat opened a shade higher at 83⅞-84c, declined to 83⅝c, rallied to 83⅞-84c, fell off to 83⅝c, rallied to 84⅛c, declined at the close to 83⅞c, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday.

Flax was dull and prices were lower in the local market. The foreign flax markets closed easier. July flax opened ½c lower at $1.15, declined to $1.14½, rallied to $1.14⅞ and declined at the close to $1.14½, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. September flax opened ½c lower at $1.15, declined to $1.14¾, rallied to $1.14⅞ and closed at $1.14¼, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. October flax opened ¼c higher at $1.14, declined to $1.13, rallied to $1.13¼ and closed at that price, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

July oats and oats to arrive and on track closed ⅛c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easier With But Little Change in Prices.

Chicago, June 21.—The wheat market opened easier today, but there was little change in prices. Cables showed that Liverpool failed to respond to yesterday's advance on the local market. Trading was heavier in the September option of all grains than in July. July opened unchanged to ¼c lower at 83¾@¾c, declined to 83⅜c and reacted to 83½c. September opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 85¾c to 86c and declined to 85¾@⅞c and rallied to 85⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 189 cars, against 179 cars last week and 150 cars a year ago.

The market became strong about the middle of the day on buying induced by reports of frost in Southern Illinois and a prediction of decreased Argentine shipments. July sold up to 84¼c and September to 86¾c. During the last half hour at lof the gin was lost on profit taking and the close was barely steady, with July off ¼c at 83½c and September down a shade at 83⅞@⅞c.

The corn market was firm at the opening because of higher cables and poor weather for the crop. Commission houses were the best buyers. July opened 5⅝@⅝c higher at 52¼c to 52⅝c and declined to 52¼c. September was unchanged to ⅜c lower at 52¼c to 52⅜c and held steady around 52¾@⅝c. Local receipts were 455 cars, with 205 of contract grade.

The market continued firm and July advanced to 52¾c, September going to 53⅜c. Later there was considerable selling of September and the price eased off. The close was steady with July up ½c at 52c and September off a shade at 52⅛@⅜c.

The oats market was steady, but there was very slight trading. July was ⅜c higher at 29¾c and declined to 29¾c. September opened ¼c to ¼c higher at 30½c to 30⅝c and declined to 30⅜@⅜c. Local receipts were 170 cars.

Provisions were weak. Trading was very dull. September pork was 10c lower at $16.70. Lard was down 2½c at $8.90. Ribs were 5c lower at $9.20.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat after showing decided strength and considerable activity the greater part of the session reacted in the last few minutes and closed a shade under yesterday's prices for September. The reaction was due largely to the fact that the price stopped times at the high figure, 89¾c. And holders took this as a hint that profits on long wheat were in order. It was this kind of selling which put the price back yesterday. There were numerous bull influences, to which the market responded very quickly on the breaks. Cash wheat at Minneapolis is strong at 2 cents over the July. There is too much rain in Texas and too much cold cloudy weather over the entire spring wheat country. There is a black rust report from Logan county, Illinois, the significance of which cannot be told at this time. Yields of wheat are reported much below estimate in St. Louis county, Missouri, and many points in Oklahoma and Kansas. Everything in sight suggests support to wheat on any moderate break.

Corn—Trade was at a standstill most of the day. At the close September corn was a shade lower. Receipts are running under 500 cars a day and the eastern demand and spring movement fully off-sets the liberal run to this market. Would look for a soft spot to buy this corn on.

Oats—There is quite a difference of opinion in regard to the effect of the rains on the states where damage was claimed from the drought. Believe the harvest results will justify purchases on any break.

Provisions—The packers appear to be juggling the pork market. It was run up sharply yesterday and when some other people attempted to sell pork today it was allowed to break 30 cents for July. Shorts were the best buyers of the day. Believe the big holders are friendly to all products and that they will rally from any sharp break.

* * *

Lincoln, Ill.: Black rust has been found in an eighty-acre wheat field in eastern section of Logan county, Ill., and although the wheat is only in the milk, it will cause some uneasiness.

* * *

E. Lewis, Omaha: I find Kansas and Nebraska mills have no wheat and grain merchants tell me country mills will take the first run of new wheat, and it will be some time before receipts at terminal points will be very large.

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: Winter wheat harvest beginning with indications of good quality and yields justifying expectations. Advices concerning oats confirms story of shortage of crop. Corn regular. Cool weather not propitious, but crop making fairly good progress. Clean of weeds and few evidences of injury.

We believe we have about all the information that can be obtained in reference to the above properties and stock and it affords us the utmost satisfaction to give present and prospective investors the benefit of our investigations. If anybody has more or better information than we have, we shall be pleased to have him call at our office and compare notes. # LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Two Killed by Breaking of Cable in the Quincy Mine.

Calumet—The cable attached to an eight-ton skip in No. 6 shaft of the Quincy mine broke Wedesday, and as the car dropped down the shaft at a tremendous speed, it killed two men and injured another. Olaf Pietikann and Matt. Last were killed. They were working at the sixty-second level.

Marquette—A warrant was sworn out Monday for Jack Dunlavey, charging assault on a motorman in the employ of the Marquette City & Presque Isle Street Railway company. It is alleged in the complaint that Dunlevey attended a dance in North Marquette, Saturday night, and when a special car arrived at the dance hall at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, and the motorman attempted to collect the fare of Dunlevey and other members of his party, the latter refused to pay the price asked. The motorman refused to move the car until the price was forthcoming, whereupon Dunlevey is alleged to have knocked him down and planted his strong right foot upon the motorman's cosmos, bruising him to such an extent that the street car man was laid up in bed Monday. The police are unable to locate Dunlevey, and it is believed that he left town immediately after the alleged assault.

Ontonagon—Richard Powers has been brought to Ontonagon from Chicago by Sheriff McFarlane under arrest, on a charge of bigamy, preferred by his wife, formerly Mrs. Catherine McCurdy of Ontonagon. Powers and Mrs. McCurdy were married in the Episcopal rectory at Ontonagon about a year ago by Rev. Mr. Datson. After remaining here for a few days the grom departed for Chicago and it was afterwards ascertained, it is said, that he had a wife and children living in the Windy City. Powers admits that he was married several years ago to a woman at some point in Ohio, but claims that she went West, and secured a divorce. She afterward returned to Chicago and they resumed their martial relations without being remarried.

Ishpeming—Uriah Blight, who has been missing from his home in Ontonagon county the past three or four days, is well known here. He resided at the Wintarop location a number of years and served one year as supervisor from Tilden township. Mr. Blight married a daughter of the late Capt. Harry Wills, for a number of years a resident of the Saginaw location. He has a number of relatives living at the locations south of the city, who are much worried because of his disappearance.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Ordered to File Nicholson's Certificate as Candidate for Representative.

St. Paul, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the case of the state ex rel, John Michelson vs. Peter E. Hanson, secretary of state, Judge Lewis in district court ordered Secretary Hanson to forthwith receive and file relator's certificate as candidate for state representative on the Prohibition ticket on payment of the $10 fee.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Active Selling Caused Prices to Take a Sharp Drop.

Business on Large Scale as Long as Market Declined.

New York, June 21.—The majority of stocks today opened a small fraction higher than last night, but some of the prominent market leaders were among the new exceptions. The United States Steel stocks, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and Louisville & Nashville sagged a small fraction. National Biscuit fell 1½; Anaconda advanced 2¼; Great Northern preferred, 2, and New York Central, 1; the Interborough Metropolitan stocks and Hide & Leather preferred large fractions. Three thousand shares of Baltimore & Ohio sold at the opening for 119¾ and 119¼, compared with 119¾ last night.

Fair progress was made in getting a few stocks higher, notably St. Paul, Illinois Central and Canadian Pacific, but selling at other points kept the market irregular. Selling of United States Steel was prominent and the weakness developed in Pennsylvania, Reading and the gas stocks. The entire market then became reactionary. Consolidated Gas dropped 3 points, People's Gas 2 and United States Steel, Pennsylvania, Reading, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Interborough-Metropolitan 1. The advances of 1¼ to 1⅞ in St. Paul, Illinois Central, Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Kansas City Southern preferred were reduced.

Selling became more active and carried prices sharply downwards through the 1st. losses in Pennsylvania, Smelting and Colorado Fuel ran to 2 points, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 2¼, Anaconda 5¼, Great Northern preferred 1¾, Union Pacific 1⅝, Reading, Northern Pacific and the United States Steel stocks 1½, Norfolk & Western and Distillers Securities 1¼, and Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Copper, Republic Steel preferred, National Lead and Brooklyn Transit about 1. The market became dull when the decline was arrested. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Very active selling began again between 12 and 1 o'clock and the market went down precipitately. The Pennsylvania, trans-continental and metal groups were the most affected. Losses of between 1 and 2 were general.

Business continued on a large scale as long as the market was going down, but as soon as the list showed signs of stiffening and the prices had rallied a trifle, speculation became very quiet. Michigan Central slumped 10, Anaconda 6¾, Smelting and Northwestern 4, Colorado Fuel 3⅜, Reading 3½, Pennsylvania 2½, United States Steel 2¾, Missouri Pacific and Brooklyn Transit 2, Delaware & Hudson and Locomotive 1¾.

An active demand from the shorts developed during the last hour to take profits on the day's wide declines. Rallies to 1 to 1¼ resulted in some of the leading active stocks. The demand diminished again at the recovery and prices were allowed to slip back. The fall in Anaconda reached 5¾, Northern Pacific 4, Tennessee Coal 3½ and Louisville & Nashville and Republic Steel preferred 2. The closing was a fraction above the lowest, but was easy.

Stock Gossip.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened strong and active, but the gains were not held. There was very heavy liquidation in the active list and it looked as if some of the pools were getting out of a lot of stock. Before the close there was a slight rally, but there was no snap to the market and only slight advances. A lot of stock came on the market. We look for an irregular market for the rest of the week.

New York, June 21.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 5 points and sold o ffto a net loss of 4@6 points under offerings inspired by reports, mostly private, of rains in Texas. ### Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market acted weaker today than for some time and a great many weak accounts were liquidated. Copper Range was very weak on heavy selling by Hayden, Stone & Co. North Butte was also pressed for sale and found few buyers. Mass Gas sold off on the declaration of a 8 per cent annual dividend, while they looked for 4 per cent. The New York market was very sick and if we get a few more days like we had today, we believe stocks can be bought with safety.

DIES SUDDENLY AT ADVANCED AGE

Mother of Mrs. P. S. Anneke Passes Away After Breakfast.

Mrs. Theresa Spaeter, mother of Mrs. P. S. Anneke, died suddenly this morning, at the Anneke summer cottage on Minnesota point.

Mrs. Spaeter was at breakfast this morning, seemingly in good health. She suddenly complained of pains in all parts of her body at once, and was assisted to her bed. She was left alone for a few moments in her room, and was found dead by Mrs. Anneke on her return.

Mrs. Spaeter was 81 years of age, and her death was probably due to a general breakdown caused by her advanced age. She has been in Duluth from time to time, for the last twenty years, spending the summers here, and for the last five years has made her home with Mrs. Anneke here. Previous to that time she lived in St. Louis.

She leaves two daughters besides Mrs. Anneke, Mrs. F. Bausemer of St. Louis, and Mrs. Margaret Lawitzky of this city.

Mr. Anneke is in St. Paul at the present time, and no funeral arrangements will be made until he can return to the city.

LOCK TYPE CANAL WINS IN SENATE

Senator Cullom Speaks Strongly in Opposition to Sea Level.

Washington, June 21.—The senate today began consideration of the sea level Panama canal bill, with a view to taking a final vote on the measure before adjourning for the day. The first speech was made by Senator Cullom, in opposition to the sea level bill, on the ground both of expense and impracticability. He contended that the president has authority, under the Spooner act, to construct a lock canal. The lock type canal won, 36 to 31.

Senator Perkins presented, and the senate agreed, to the conference report on the fortifications appropriation bill.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 21.—The house today sent to conference the so-called "immunity of witnesses" bill.

FERRIS DECLINES

The Democratic Nomination for the Governorship of Michigan.

Saginaw, Mich., June 21.—Woodridge N. Ferris, of Big Rapids, nominated for governor a second time by the Democrats at last week's primary election, has declined the nomination. Mr. Ferris says there does not exist among the people the enthusiasm that would warrant him in running for governor a second time.

ADMITTED TO ANNAPOLIS.

Annapolis, Md., June 21.—The following candidates were admitted to the naval academy today: W. G. Arnsworth and F. E. Landworthy, Minnesota.

GET INCREASE IN WAGES.

NEARLY HIT BRIDGE CAR

Operator Runs Close Across Steamer Robert Holland's Bows.

Master of Vessel So Incensed as to Make Official Report.

Capt. J. T. Lennon, master of the steamer Robert Holland, reported at the customs house yesterday that he nearly ran down the ferry car on the aerial bridge crossing the Duluth canal yesterday afternoon at 4:45. Capt. Holland was very angry at what he claimed was carelessness on the part of the car operator, who, he said, ran across the bow of the Holland as she was coming in, there being a space of twenty feet or less between the car and the bow of the Holland. Capt. Lennon said that with the current running through the canal yesterday it was impossible for him to check his steamer, and he was especially helpless in view of the further fact that he had three tows.

The matter will likely take the form of an official report to the city authorities and to the United States engineer.

Last season vessel masters frequently complained that car ferry operators passed in front of outgoing and incoming vessels, thereby endangering the vessels, the bridge and the people on each. No complaint took an official form, however, but Capt. Lennon was so incensed that he determined to make a kick where it would do the most good. He says he never saw anything so foolish in his life.

Vesselmen believe that a collision between the bridge car and a vessel is going to happen one of these days, and it will not only cost a lot in loss of property but in lives as well. Said one today:

"It does not require a great deal of imagination to expect something to happen to the machinery of the bridge car when it is crossing the canal. It has happened before now and may happen again. Well, suppose that had happened yesterday when in front of the Holland's bow, or suppose it should happen at any similar time, what would be the result? A large part of the iron and steel would fall on the ship and wreck it, possibly blocking navigation. The bridge would be wrecked, and if a score or more of people were not killed, it would be nothing short of a miracle that would save them. These foolish car operators should be jacked up hard."

CONTRACT COMPLETED.

Shoal Dredged Out and Ontonagon Harbor Now Open.

The government dredging contract for the removal of a shoal at the entrance of Ontonagon harbor on the south shore of Lake Superior was completed last evening by the Zenith Dredge company of Duluth and the dredging outfit will start for this harbor Friday next to enter on private contract work.

The government will make a survey of the dredged channel within the next few days and the marine interests will be notified of the exact conditions of the harbor.

The dredged channel is 60 feet wide and of a depth of 14 feet and better between the piers at the present stage of water. The middle line of the channel is 60 feet from the west pier. When within about 300 feet of the inner end of the west pier the channel divides into two branches each 60 feet wide and over 14 feet deep. One of these runs to the north end of the commercial dock and the other to the north end of the lumber dock on the west side of the harbor.

Some dredging remained to be done in front of the docks by the county auth

HAY SEASON SOON OPENS

Clover Will be Ready for Cutting in Two Weeks.

Outlook Good for Splendid Crops in This Locality.

The haying season in St. Louis county, in the vicinity of Duluth, will open in about two weeks.

While there has been no continued warm weather since the growing season began, there has been plenty of rain, and the recent spell of warm weather has caused the clover to grow luxuriantly, and it has already begun to blossom out in fine shape.

The Jean DuLuth company, which operates a large stock farm of several thousand acres just beyond the city limits, on the East Duluth and Lester river road, is getting its haying apparatus ready, and expects to begin getting in its crop in two weeks. The clover stands about two feet high in the fields at the farm.

The clover crop in this locality this season will be up to the average. The farmers say that it will run about two tons to the acre, while there are some pieces of land where it will run as high as two and one-half tons.

Clover hay is one of the unfailing crops of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, and there will be more of it put up this year than ever before, for the reason that there was a larger acreage under grass. A large number of the farmers and settlers seeded the new land cleared last season, and this year will take off the first hay crop.

The Jean DuLuth company has 212 acres under clover this year, and expects to get at least 424 tons of hay, figuring two tons to the acre. C. P. Craig, one of the owners, thinks that the total tonnage will even run ahead of the estimate.

The company has storage capacity for 447 tons, its big barns at the stock farm having capacities ranging from 10 to 240 tons of hay.

Modern methods and machinery will be employed by the company in getting in its immense hay crop, and it is figured that the end of the haying season will see it all under cover.

The company is planning on erecting a silo this year, with about 150-ton capacity, and the second growth clover crop, which will be in condition to cut at the latter end of the summer season, when the pastures in the southern part of the state are dried up, will be used for silage. The practice of making ensilage of second growth clover, with the more succulent corn crop, which will be ready for the silo about the same time as the clover, is highly recommended by the silo experts in the northern part of the state, and will be largely adopted this season wherever there are silos in operation.

Owing to the fact that second growth clover hardly matures in this latitude, and for that reason is not so valuable as a seed product, it has been suggested from the experimental stations that the farmers cannot do better than to use it for ensilage.

A matter of news interest connected with the Jean DuLuth stock farm was the announcement made by the owners yesterday that they have secured the services of R. H. Foston of Lake Forest, Ill., as farm superintendent. Mr. Foston is said to be between 30 and 35 years of age. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and has had valuable experience in the superintendency of a large ranch in Illinois. He was recently offered the superintendency of the Madison, Wis., farm, but decided to come to Duluth. The position he assumes is one of importance, and he is recommended to it by D. H. Otis, assistant dean of the University of Wisconsin, and assistant professor of animal nutrition.

GREAT SUCCESS OF CLASS PLAY

Presented by the Students of the High School at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Tuesday evening the students of the Hibbing high school presented the senior class play, entitled "The Professor's Love Story," at the Power theater. The house was practically packed to its utmost seating capacity, in spite of the fact that a hard rainstorm had been raging all afternoon and evening. Never before in the history of Hibbing has an audience been so well satisfied, and never before has a play been so successfully given. Lewis McPike had the management, and certainly deserves a vrey great amount of credit for both the excellent make-up of the characters, and the unusually fine delivery and carrying out of each part. Mr. McPike has had a large amount of experience in theatrical work.

The play is written in three acts, the scene of the first being at the professor's study, in London; the second, a wheatfield at Tullochmaln, and the third, the professor's cottage at Tullochmaln.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Dr. Cosens .....G. D. Cobb, Jr.
Prof. Goodwillie .....Wallace Hoskins
Sir George Gildings.....
.....Winfield Remington
Agnes Goodwillie.....Estelle Chase
Lucy White .....Veldora McLeod
Dr. Yellowleaves .....Marc Atkinson
Pete .....Claire Swain
Henders .....Clark Henry
Footman .....A. Goodman
Effie.....Lila Swain
Lady George Gilding.....
.....Marsella Lavelle
Dowager Lady Gilding.....Eva Bailey

Everyone that took part had a hard and responsible position to fill, and every one did splendidly. As a result of the remarkable success, the Hibbing high school students have under consideration invitations from nearly all the range towns to come and repeat the play there. While nothing definite in this regard has been acted upon, it is very possible that the Hibbing students may decide to repeat their play in either Virginia, Eveleth or Chisholm.

WARLIKE CHIEF'S COURT.

African Expedition From London Hopes to Gain Admittance.

London, June 21.—An expedition will leave London shortly, under the leadership of Brian Bellasis and Lionel Cooke, with the object of obtaining bioscopic records illustrating the wild life and the industrial activities of countries along the entire route of the proposed cape to Cairo railway.

Though the enterprise is mainly commercial, and has the support of many of the most important African companies, it is hoped that it may accomplish something of scientific value.

In the center of Nyassaland is a mysterious native city where a war-like chief holds court. His city is completely surrounded by walls, and is composed of stone kraals.

To the white man it is forbidden ground, no European having as yet entered its gates; but Mr. Bellasis and Mr. Cooke hope, by dint of many presents, to gain permission to enter and take records, which should be of great interest to the outside world.

When Broken Hill, the terminus of the southern section of the railway, is reached, the real difficulty of the expedition will begin. For many months but slow progress can be made, with the aid of native bearers, and when the northern shores of Lake Victoria Nyanza are reached the presence of hostile natives and the extreme danger from fever will render the journey somewhat precarious.

In Abyssinia, the Emperor Menelek will be visited, and animated pictures of London will be shown to him, in return for which it is hoped permission will be granted to bring home to London records of life in the most gorgeous court in Africa.

From Abyssinia the expedition will strike back to the Nile, and proceed by steamer and rail to Cairo.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD BOY

Goes to Pittsburg, Rolling a Hoop for Eighty Miles.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 21.—"There is no telling where you'll stop when you begin to roll a hoop," says little Lysle Gerhart of Dale, a suburb of Johnstown, who is held with another youngster at Central police station.

Lysle came eighty miles and rolled his hoop most of the way. He did not mean to come to Pittsburg, but began to roll his hoop and the fascination of the sport compelled him to continue the journey.

Lysle, who is 8, had been dressed up by his mother to go to a picnic, but the folks were a long time in getting started, and the boy put in the interval amusing himself with the hoop.

He started along the railroad track and before he knew it was well outside of Dale and had forgotten all about the town. He kept on and literally rolled into Pittsburg late Sunday evening, tired and hungry, but with his spirit of adventure unconquered.

On Sunday evening he went to Highland Park to look at the animals and met Ernest Shaeffer, aged 10, and another minute seeker after novelty in town. The two were arrested at East Liberty railroad station.

RED HAT ON HIS DOG.

Court Said It Was a Nuisance and Fined Owner.

Berlin, June 21.—A man in Erfurt, having fixed a red hat on his dog on May 1, in token probably of the owner's Socilistic leanings, has been fined 5 marks, or one day's imprisonment, by the police on the ground that the dog in this costume caused a nuisance and incited to public disorder. Not far from Erfurt another victim to police zeal was fined 3 marks for sneezing with unnecessary resonance on the public streets. The fine was, however, remitted by the supreme court, as the sneezer produced medical evidence that nature had fashioned him for loud sneezing.

SMARTER CLOTHES FOR THE ARMY MEN.

London, June 21.—G. V. Winter, military tailor, is going to the United States under engagement with the American war department, to advise regarding the new active service uniforms. He will be paid $1,000 a week. He is an expert in every kind of military equipment, and besides dress has invented and patented a score of military requisites. His son accompanies him as a model. Mr. Winter says in an interview:

"The Washington officials have given me a free hand. I hope to design something smart for both branches of the United States service. American army men are smart, but although the materials of their uniform are superior to those of the British army, their design and cut are most unsatisfactory.

"I understand the officials are anxious to avoid any semblance of German uniform, and wish to copy ours as far as possible. Their offer was most flattering to the London tailors."

TRYING TO GET TIMBER

McGonagle in West to Hurry Shipments of Dock Materials.

Work on Structures in West End and Allouez Delayed.

W. A. McGonagle, vice president and general manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, is now in the West, and it is said for the purpose of hurrying up some shipments of fir timber from that part of the country so that work on the Missabe's new ore dock in the West end may be rushed to completion.

Tardy receipts of materials have hampered work on the dock all the spring, and unless the lumber shipments from the Pacific coast are more frequent, there is danger that the new dock will not be finished in time to be of much service to the road this season.

Earlier in the year, it was the aim of the contractors and the officials of the line to have the new structure in readiness to receive ore about the first of August, or in September, anyway. But ever since a shortage of cars on the coast tied up lumber shipments, that possibility has faded with a rapidity that made the officials of the road, mining and vessel men, sick at heart.

Mr. McGonagle, it is said, will endeavor, during his stay in the Western part of the continent to spur the Pacific coast timber folk and the roads which handle the timber products on to greater activity. They have been plentifully prodded by others all spring, but the process is continuing just the same, probably on the theory that every little bit helps.

The Missabe road is not the only concern to suffer from the scarcity of Pacific coast timber. The Great Northern is fretting with the delays at Allouez, which are keeping back the completion of work on one of the docks there, which is being enlarged. Building operations about town are being considerably hampered as well.

Even if the new docks were finished, very little could be accomplished on them during this weather. Wet days invariably put a damper on ore shipments. The ore mined on the Minnesota ranges is so sticky that it is almost impossible to handle it when it rains. As a result shipments have been light this week.

Shipments from the Michigan range are not retarded so much because more of the hard ore is handled.

MAE WOOD HAS A NEW CHARGE

Says That Senator Platt Became Her Husband in 1901.

Washington, June 21.—Senator Platt refused to discuss the claim of Mrs. Wood that she had been married to him and her declaration that she was about to bring suit against him for separate maintenance.

Colon, Mich., June 21.—Mrs. Mae Catherine Wood, who, since the marriage of United States Senator Thomas C. Platt to Mrs. Lillian T. Janeway, announced that she would publish a work called "Love Letters of a Boss," has turned over to her attorneys, O'Flaherty & Fulton of Richmond, Va., what she insists is a marriage certificate.

If this claim is proved to be true, it will make Platt a bigamist. By this she will seek to establish her marriage to Senator Platt. Letters requesting her presence at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York city, on Nov. 9, 1901, the time of the alleged marriage, will be shown as additional evidence.

She claims that she is the second wife of Platt and was never divorced from him. She contends his marriage to Mrs. Janeway is unlawful.

Arrangements have been made with two Chicago attorneys to bring a suit for separate maintenance in behalf of the self-styled Mrs. Wood-Platt in Colon. The action, it was planned, would be started simultaneously with action in New York state, the nature of which is to be determined by O'Flaherty & Fulton of Richmond.

According to the attorneys, Platt and Mrs. Wood were married by one Edward W. Rice, an ordained Episcopal clergyman, and the witness to the ceremony was J. V. Jones, a retainer or employee of Senator Platt.

Mrs. Wood asserts that the marriage was entered into Nov. 9, 1901, a gloomy Saturday afternoon, in suite 13, Fifth Avenue hotel, and Senator Platt had exacted ap romise from her at the time to keep the marriage a secret until he should wish to announce it.

Subsequently, Mrs. Wood declares, she became involved in several quarrels with Senator Platt because of his attentions to Mrs. Janeway. In April, 1903, came a parting of the ways, although she declares Senator Platt still kept surveillance over her through officials of the postoffice department at Washington, where she was employed.

Is Jailed for Contempt.

Because he has refused or neglected to pay his divorced wife, Bessie E. Cayo, the $20 per month alimony ordered by the court, Walter J. Cayo will have to remain in the county jail for a period of 30 days, unless he puts up the money before the expiration of that time. Cayo was taken before Judge Cant this morning on a warrant charging contempt of court and the charge was found to be true. He recently filed a petition in the district court for an order setting aside that part of the findings relating to alimony on the ground that it was agreed between himself and Bessie Cayo that he, Walter, was not to make a defense in the divorce proceedings if she did not claim alimony.

The people of Duluth are a reading public. They read the current news columns of "The Evening Herald" and they read the advertising columns, because progressive business men have learned that the advertising columns convey news of another sort—news about their wares, their products, their capacity for service, which is important to the whole public. And if there is one who reads the advertising columns more closely than a man, it is a woman. She is always looking for buying opportunities.
